Thermodyne Radio touched a record top at 14 1-2. Freed-Eisemann was bid up to 30 1-2 on publication of the October report showing net earnings of $184,243 bringing the total for the first ten months of the year to $1,431,137, equivalent to $4.77 a share. Most of the other radios were slightly reactionary.

Strong spots in the industrial group included Centrifugal Pipe, Dunhill International and Amalgamated Leather, up 1 1-2 to nearly 3 points. Nickel Plate preferred closed a point higher but the common and Lehigh Valley Coal certificates lost ground.

BOND MARKET

New York, Dec. 1—Bond prices churned about considerably today but continued to maintain an upward trend. The market was forced to absorb a large volume of realizing sales, but semi-speculative railroad issues resumed their advance and new favorites were brought forward in the public utility and industrial lists.

Trading activity again centered in the railroad group where a number of new high records were achieved. "Katy" Adjustment 5s crossed to the highest level in their history and International Great Northern Adjustment 6s sold at a new top for the year. Gains of a point or more were recorded by the New Haven franc 7s, convertible 6s and 4s of 1957 and Chicago and Eastern Illinois 5s. New York Central, Missouri Pacific, Erisco and St. Paul Bonds were active but price changes were narrow.

A rise of two points in Marland Oil 8s followed the announcement that the company had called for redemption at 105 and accrued interest its $2,395,000 seven and one half per cent. bonds, due in 1931. Provision for the retirement of this issue on Feb. 1, as well as of $2,710,000 sinking fund bonds on April 1, was made through the sale of $20,000,000 five per cent. notes recently.

Other strong spots in the industrial list included sugar estates of the Oriente 7s which advanced 2 points, Pierce Arrow 8s, which reached a new high above 92, and Liggett and Myers 5s.

Talk of new financing again turned to the foreign field with investment circles showing interest in reports of impending loans for Greece and for several French industrial corporations.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Dec. 1—Something of a jolt came to holders of wheat today as the result of an unlooked for big increase of the United States visible supply total. Notwithstanding that earlier the wheat market had ascended to new high price records for the season, declines due to the visible supply announcement left values heavy at the finnish, 1 3-4c net lower to 3-4c gain, with December 153 3-8 to 153 5-8 and May 160 3-4 to 161.

Corn closed unchanged to 3-4c down oats unchanged to 1-2c off, and provisions showing 10 to 35c advance.

Special significance appeared to be attached to the fact that the visible supply enlargement carried the total to above 100,000,000 bushels. The actual increase was but little greater than for the corresponding week a year ago, but the entire domestic visible supply at that time was only 71,- 508,000 bushels, whereas today's aggregate was 100,368,000 bushels, and was a defeat to traders who had been expecting stocks to dwindle rather than to pile up.

Corn and oats paralleled the action of wheat. Smallness of December deliveries of corn finished only a temporary prop to the corn market. Unfavorable corn crop reports from Argentina were likewise of only temporary effect.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

Building operations in Norwich during the past week were rushed along in anticipation of cold weather and considerable progress was made. The work of renovating and remodeling the building owned by Peter Sellas on Franklin square has progressed very rapidly and the interior of the building is now being torn out. The stores in the building have closed until alterations have been completed.

On the West Side the garage for Fishkin has been rushed along and the frame work is up and the cement floor has been laid. The garage was built around the blacksmith shop and Mr. Fishkin continued to do business until a few days ago when the shop was torn down.

Other projects in the city have made equal progress and all the contractors report a busy season, one that will exceed the record set last year.

At the office of Fire Marshall Howard L. Stanton five permits were granted during the last week in November bringing the total up to a figure that exceeds all previous records. With one month to go before the close of the year the prospects that a new record in local building will be set are bright.

The permits issued during the past week are for small work, garages and additions to present buildings and are as follows:

To John Rush to build an addition to the present frame garage on Brown street. The addition will be 8x20 feet.

To Antoni Krukowski to build a frame garage on his property at 171 Cliff street. The garage will be 16x18 feet with concrete foundation.

To Samuel Taylor to alter and add to present building on Fairmount street for the Norwich Hebrew Institute. The addition will be 10x16 feet.

To Paul Winkel to build a frame garage at 18 Hickory street The garage will be 18x18 feet.

To Antoni Frzybysz to build a frame addition to the present house on Roosevelt avenue. The addition will be 6x11 feet.

New London

A Waterford contractor has the contract for a frame dwelling for B. A. Armstrong, 200 Hempstead street, at the corner of Norwood avenue and Briggs street. The house will contain two five room flats, with a modern heating system and other conveniences. It will be 24x42 feet, and will cost about $8,000.

Work has been started on a house for George A. Rogers, on Dell avenue. From private plans, the dwelling will be of frame construction, 24x32 feet, arranged bungalow style for one family. The cost will be about $3,500.

Plans have been prepared for extensive alterations to the Spitz Building on State street, for S. Kamsler. The second floor will be remodeled for store purposes. The present windows will be torn out and new plate glass show windows built in. The entrance to the second floor will be by stairway on the ground floor. Alterations will also be made to the third floor which will be arranged for stock rooms. There will be an extension to the present heating system, new plumbing and electric wiring, metal ceilings and steel beams to support the third floor.

The contract has been awarded for a dwelling at the corner of Norwood avenue and Briggs street for E. A. Armstrong, 200 Hempstead street. The dwelling will be 24x42 feet, arranged for one family. The usual improvements will be provided.

Bids are being received for the erection of a dwelling on Darrow street for Salvatore Cuppello, 91 Truman street. The plans call for a frame dwelling, 28x52 feet, of frame construction, with tile baths, steam heat and other conveniences.

Two houses are being erected for Silas Maxson, Jr., 233 Bank street, on Henry street. One is being plastered and the second is ready to be plastered. They are of frame construction, 22x28 feet.

The permit has been issued for a watchman's house for the Connecticut Power Co. The Oliver Woodworth Co. Pearl street, have the contract for the building which will be 10x13 feet, one story high, of brick and concrete construction. The roof will be of slate.

Silas Maxson, Jr., 233 Bank street, has plans for another house to be erected on Henry street. The dwelling will be arranged for six rooms. It will be semi-bungalow design and will have hot air heat and other conveniences.

Building Permits

E. A. Armstrong, two houses, corner Norwood avenue and Briggs street $11,000.

Manuel Sousa, frame garage, Squire street, $400.

V. Bellucci, frame garage, Fuller street, $250.

Number of permits issued for the week, 9; estimated cost of buildings, $16,650.

East Lyme

Work is being started on a dwelling for Silas Maxson, Jr., in East Lyme. The house will be 32x34 feet and will contain seven rooms. There is be hot air heat and all other conveniences. A barn, shed and chicken coop on the premises have just been completed.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week there were 19 sales of real estate as compared to 16 sales for the corresponding week in 1923. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $78,800 and $46,100.

There were 7 sales of real estate in New London during the past week as compared to 9 sales for the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $65,000 and $58,855.

State Building Operations

The record of building permits issued in the large cities of Connecticut filed in the past week show a large increase in the amount of money expended for new construction. Two hundred fifty-eight permits issued in the larger towns call for an expenditure of $1,838,625. Comparing with these figures 291 permits were issued in the same week of 1923, for $733,644, and 194 permits in 1922, having a value of $583,501. The increase for the week was accounted for very largely by the amount of new construction in Hartford, the total for the week being $764,490 as against $113,036 last year, and in New Haven where the permits issued called for $539,000 against $252,929 of the previous year.

A Raw, Sore Throat
Eases Quickly When You Apply a Little Musterole

And Musterole won't blister like the old-fashioned mustard plaster. Just spread it on with your fingers. It penetrates to the sore spot with a gentle tingle, loosens the congestion and draws out the soreness and pain.

Musterole is a clean, white ointment made with oil of mustard. It is fine for quick relief from sore throat, bronchitis, tonsillitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds on the chest. Keep it handy for instant use.

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

35c and 65c, jars and tubes; hospital size, $3.00.

CUTICURA HEALS SKIN TROUBLE

Scales Formed on Face and Neck. Lost Sleep.

"I had trouble with my face and neck. The skin got hard and then formed scales that dropped off. Then my face would bleed and burned, and itched so badly that I could not sleep. My face was disfigured and was so sore in places that I could hardly touch it.

"I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. After using it I could see a decided change. I then bought one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment and in two weeks I was healed." (Signed) Mrs Omar H. Albee, Columbia Falls, Me.

Cuticura Soap to cleanse, Cuticura Ointment to heal and Cuticura Talcum to powder are ideal for daily toilet purposes.

Sample Free by Mail. Address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. B, Malden 48, Mass." Sold everywhere. Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Try our new Shaving Stick.

Pile Sufferers

Can You Answer These Questions?

Do you know why ointments do not give you quick and lasting relief?

Why cutting and operations fail?

Do you know the cause of piles is internal?

That there is a stagnation of blood in the lower bowel?

Do you know that there is a harmless internal tablet remedy discovered by Dr. Leonhardt and known as HEM-ROID, now sold by Lee & Osgood and druggists generally, that is guaranteed?

HEM-ROID banishes piles by removing the internal cause, by freeing blood circulation in the lower bowel. This simple home treatment has an almost unbelievable record for sure, safe and lasting relief to thousands of pile sick sufferers, and saves the needless pain and expense of an operation. There is no reason why it should not do the same for you.

FIVE LIVES LOST IN N. Y. ROOMING HOUSE FIRE

New York, Dec. 1.—Five persons, three men and two women, lost their lives and ten were injured in a fire which early today swept through a West Sixty-third street rooming house, within a half block of Broadway. The origin of the fire has not yet been determined. Several of the victims were trapped in their rooms.

Detectives were searching for a street car motorman who ran his car over a fire hose severing the tubing and delaying the firemen fully ten minutes. This was said to have contributed materially to the seriousness of the blaze.

The dead women are Mrs. Freda Dascher, 28, and Miss Mitzi Rehak, 33. Both were caught in their rooms on the top floor of the four-story structure. Miss Rekah's body lay in her room. Mrs. Dascher, unconscious, was found in a rear court yard. She died a few hours later in a hospital.

Jack Reid, 38, who also roomed on the top floor, died in a hospital of injuries received when he fell to the street in attempting to escape through a window.

Two Spanish youths, known only to fellow lodgers as Louis and Emanuel, died in their top-floor room, held there by the rapid spread of the flames. A half dozen persons were saved in breath-taking rescues by lodgers and firemen. James Kelly, son of the landlady, Mrs. Anna Kelly, saved his sister, Anna, by swinging her from the window of a fourth floor room to the projecting ledge of the adjoining building.

Mrs. Kelly, in a panic, jumped the four floors to the court yard, and suffered internal injuries. John Reynolds, James Kelly's cousin, was burned about the hands and face in assisting at the rescue of Anna.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Cooper sat on the window ledge of their third floor room with the flames consuming the night clothes on their backs, until firemen on an aerial ladder reached them. Frank Donnelly had the flesh torn away from his hands when he lowered his wife three floors to safety on a fire-escape rope by means of which he later made his way to safety, hand over hand. Mrs. Donnelly was at first reported dead.

Ulrich Bodeman jumped from a second floor window and sustained internal hurts and George Moore, his wife and son, Robert, were burned about their heads and faces before firemen carried them to the street from the third floor.

17 MEN DRIFTED FIVE DAYS IN A DISABLED SCHOONER

New York, Dec. 1.—Seventeen men—one white and sixteen negroes—drifted about the Atlantic in the disabled Windjammer Bluebird for five days, two of them foodless, before the schooner got a tow Boston-ward, it was learned today when the steamship Fort Victoria arrived here from Bermuda.

The Bluebird, her sails whipped from masts by a northeaster, her rudder torn away and her pumps broken down was believed tonight to be in tow of the United States Coast Guard Cutter Gresham, due in Boston, Thursday or Friday.

Twice the Fort Victoria brought relief to the Bluebird, a four-master. On Thanksgiving morning, steaming to Bermuda, she answered the Bluebird's signals to find that Captain E. Bonomi and his negro crew had been without food for two days. He refused to leave his ship with his crew, and the Fort Victoria proceeded on her way after giving him food.

Yesterday morning on his return trip to New York, Captain MacKenzie of the Victoria again sighted the Bluebird, still helpless before the winds and the forty-foot waves. Again he spoke to Captain Bonomi, who again refused his offer to take him and his crew aboard. The schooner's master asked only that he radio for aid. The Fort Victoria's message caused the government to dispatch the Gresham to the scene of the wreck.

The liner arrived three hours late, reporting thick weather and a blinding snowstorm a few hours out of this port.

JURY SELECTED FOR THE SECOND TRIAL OF MRS. BUZZI

New York, Dec. 1.—A jury composed of four retired business men, two salesmen, a lace merchant, a purchasing agent, a fur dyer, a lamp dealer, a banker and a lineman—were chosen in Bronx supreme court today to determine for the second time the fate of Mrs. Anna Buzzi, charged with the murder of Frederick Schneider, a Bronx contractor.

Mrs. Buzzi was found guilty of first degree murder a year ago last June, and sentenced to death by electrocution in Sing Sing prison. Recently the court of appeals ruled inadmissable evidence had been used in gaining the conviction and granted a new trial.

Two prosecution witnesses today gave testimony designed as a foundation for the prosecution's case.

Schneider was found dead in his automobile on a lonely Bronx street February 26, 1923. He had been shot through the head with a pistol which William Turk, a chauffeur, Mrs. Buzzi's brother-in-law later, testified he had given the woman a few days before Schneider was slain. Mrs. Buzzi was arrested after a truck farmer told the police he had heard the shot which killed Schneider, and immediately after had seen a woman running from the car.

ACTION TAKEN BY AGENT GENERAL FOR REPARATION

Berlin, Dec. 1.—(By The A. P.)—Until further notice, Seymour Parker Gilbert, Jr., Agent-General for reparations payments, will continue to reimburse the German government for monies refunded German exporters under the recovery acts, it was stated today.

The German export interests continue to chafe under the handicaps of petty annoyances occasioned by the imposition of the recovery taxes and, although they will ultimately be reimbursed by the German government for deductions made by foreign buyers, objection is freely expressed on the ground that the present procedure involves needless expense.

It is claimed that the export industry generally is deprived of the temporary use of its operating capital while awaiting official reimbursement.

PRESIDENT'S PARDONING POWER DETERMINED IN CONTEMPT

The question was raised by Philip Grossman who by habeas corpus appealed from an order of the federal district court at Chicago requiring him to serve a sentence for contempt notwithstanding a pardon by President Coolidge.

Counsel for the district judges who refused to recognize the pardon as within the president's constitutional powers, insisted that the life of the judiciary was dependent upon its unfettered and complete authority, without executive interference, to enforce its decrees.

Should another branch of the government be permitted to intervene to save from punishment those who had violated injunctions issued by the courts, counsel asserted the judicial power would be destroyed.

Contending that all contempt proceedings were alike and within the complete control of the courts, the judges' counsel argued that "would be no distinction between those contempts created in the presence of the court, commonly designated as 'civil' and contempts arising out of refusal to obey injunctions; which are generally termed criminal."

Attorney General Sterling, appearing in the case at the special request of the president, made his first argument in court since becoming head of the department of justice. He asserted that the president's pardoning power must be determined by "considering conditions which existed at the time the constitution was framed. Then, he said, it was the established practice for the courts to recognize that the executive had powers to pardon in all contempt cases.

Only one limitation was imposed by the constitution, Mr. Stone insisted, upon the president's power to grant pardons and that applied only to cases of impeachment. This indicated, he held, that the framers of the constitution intended that in all other matters the president's pardoning authority was complete. It was also significant, he said, that the president was given the right by the constitution to pardon "offenses" against the government. Had it been the intention to restrict his pardoning field to "crimes" against the government punishable under the criminal statutes, he argued, the constitution would have said so.

In the Grossman case, the attorney general asserted, the "offense" which consisted of a second alleged violation of the prohibition laws, was punishable by indictment and trial. It was a matter of convenience and authorized by the Volstead act, to attempt to prevent such "offenses" by issuing padlock injunctions, he argued, and the fact that Grossman was punished by the court for contempt after his violation of an injunction instead of being indicted and tried by jury for a second violation of the criminal statute, did not impair, nor in any way lessen the validity of the pardon which the president had granted.

POSTPONEMENT OF THREE TRIALS OF PUBLIC INTEREST

New York, Dec. 1—Three trials which have caused wide public interest were postponed when they were called in courts here today.

Pleading in the government's case against the New York Herald Tribune for publication of income tax returns was adjourned for a week by consent in United States district court.

Trial in federal court of Charles A. Stoneham, part owner of the New York Giants, and others, on charges growing out of the alleged transfer of brokerage accounts, was adjourned until Dec. 15, because no federal judge was available to preside.

Trial in United States district court of Thomas B. Felder, indicted with Gaston B. Means and Elmer Jarnecke for obstructing justice and attempting to bribe former Attorney General Daugherty and other government prosecutors, was postponed until Jan. 5th.

TAFTVILLE

Rev. Oscar Normand of All Hallows church, Moosup, has been a recent visitor in town.

Mr. and Mrs. William Whitehead and William H. Whitehead of Boswell avenue have returned from a short stay in Westerly.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Hindle and son Edmund have returned to their home on North Third Avenue after passing several days with Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Singleton of Providence.

Those who have occasion to pass the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Czikowski at Riverside Grove, stop to look at the den of red foxes that the Czikowski boys keep. The animals are of good color and size, and appear to be standing their confinement well. Another attraction at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Czikowski is the large white owl which for some time has occupied a large cage near the house.

Dr. and Mrs. Martin E. Mullen and three sons of Hunters Avenue spent the week end with relatives of Mrs. Mullen in Willimantic.

The many friends of Miss Theresa Adams of Merchants avenue who was seriously burned several weeks ago when her dress caught fire from a spark and who since that time has been a patient at the Backus hospital, are pleased to know that she is gradually improving.

Mr. and Mrs. August Krodel and family have moved from South Third avenue to North B street.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wood of North B street, Mr. and Mrs. Earle M. Wood and Master Mahlon E. Wood of North Third avenue, motored to Providence, Sunday where they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Crowell.

The Misses Louise and Mary Stubbs Emile Sweet and Miss Addie Sweet of Norwich avenue, have been in New Bedford, Mass., attending the funeral of James Stubbs, a brother of the Misses Stubbs.

Many automobiles passing through the village Sunday, had their tops and windshields covered with snow and ice, hanging off the fenders and running boards. Drivers said the snowfall was heavy above the Massachusetts line, one man stating that about eight inches fell near Boston. Another said that he plowed through four and a half inches of snow between Holyoke and Springfield. Local motorists who took trips into Rhode Island over the week end found that that part of the country had experienced a slight snowstorm.

Edwin Pollard has returned to his home in Boston after passing Thanksgiving Day and the week end with his father, William Pollard of South Second avenue.

The regular monthly meeting of the Taftville Football & Social Club was held Monday evening in the clubrooms in the Ponemah House, with President Allen Bogle in the chair. This being the first meeting since the election of officers in November, a number of business items were disposed fo.

The Dramatic Club which is to present a farce and a minstrel show at the annual fair of the Taftville Congregational church, this week, held final rehearsals in Ponemah Hall, Wednesday evening.

The Community Sewing Class met Monday evening in the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah building.

Miss Anna A. Hasler, daughter of Bernard Hasler of Providence street has resumed studies at the Keene State Normal school, Keene N. H., after spending the holidays at her home in town.

Miss Octavia Archambeault of Natick has returned fater spending the Thanksgiving holidays with friends in town.

Miss Margaret Hasler of Providence street had as a Sunday guest Miss Mollie Rainey of Hackensack, N. J.

COUNCIL WILL MEET TO ACT ON ELECTRIC PLANT SALE PROPOSALS

Announcement was made by Mayor Mlio R. Waters Monday evening a. the December meeting of the court of common council that he will call a special meeting of the council next week to act on the propositions received by the city for the sale of the municipal gas and electric plant. The meeting is planned for either Monday or Wednesday night. At the council meeting Monday night the new traffic ordinances were adopted and will become law in five days time. However, according to the mayor, the new ordinances will not be strictly enforced until January first.

The meeting was called to order at 8.20 o'clock by Mayor Waters and the minutes of the previous meeting were approved without reading, according to the usual proceedure. The clerk read the return of publication on the new traffic regulations after which the council approved them and ordered 3,000 copies printed for general distribution.

Petitions Received

From Lucy A. Murphy and others for a light at the foot of the stairs leading to the Elizabeth street school. Referred to the police commissioners with power.

From Mrs. M. R. E. Ogden, calling attention to the decayed condition of a tree at 10th street, corner Central avenue. Referred to the public works committee and tree warden with power.

The monthly report of the street commissioner and the monthly report of the city treasurer were accepted.

The police commissioner, through Alderman Patrick F. Sweeney, reported that on the electric light petition of G. Warren Davis, they had looked the line over and that it will be necessary to take the matter up with Manager C. W. Taggart of the gas and electric department.

Petitions Granted

Other reports made by the police commissioners, through Alderman Sweeney were: Petition of F. Russell Smith for an electric light on Carroll avenue, granted. Petition of Mrs. Julia Casey for an electric light on Cedar street, between Greene avenue and Fountain street, granted. Petition of Edward Kirby to change a bug light to an arc light on Oneco street, granted. Petition of Miss Annie E. Williams for an electric light at the Corner of Broad and Crescent street, granted. All the reports were accepted by the council.

Tax Refunds

Tax refunds were voted as follows on resolutions presented by Alderman Sweeney:

To William C. Burgy, $22.75 paid on 1924 tax list, as he is a soldier exempt.

To Robert S. Chapman, $22.75, paid on 1924 tax list, as he is a soldier exempt.

To Albert F. Green, $7.85, paid on 1924 tax list, on an automobile included in the city tax list by mistake.

To Alex Pasnik, $100, paid on his Shetucket street property, reason for refund being that the property was destroyed by fire.

A deed from Sarah Shaw to the city of Norwich, granting a sewer right on North street, was accepted by the council as was a similar deed from August Sabrowski and Marie Sabrowski, granting a sewer right on Pratt street.

A claim from John J. Dennis for damage to his automobile was referred to the finance committee and the corporation counsel, Mr. Dennis stated in his claim that while his brother was driving his Jewett touring car on Main street, November 20th, near the Buckingham Memorial, a spring was broken owing to a depression in the street.

Department Bills Approved

The following department bills were ordered approved: Water department, Stony Brook dam and Trading Cove Brook pumping expenses, $10,876.53; water department, regular, $3,671.07; fire department, $5,848.73; police department, $5,070.62; street lighting, $2,844.84; department of cemeteries, $963.02; finance committee, $148,222.20; public works committee, $12,999.82; park department, $624.84; gas and electric department, $54,022.87.

NEW TRIALS ORDERED BY SUPREME COURT

In decision handed down by the supreme court of errors in session at Hartford Monday, new trials are ordered in the cases of Lycurgas M. Sistare against the Connecticut Co., and Elizabeth R. B. Skaling against Bridget Sheedy, et al.

Mr. Sistare, a New London broker, was awarded a verdict of $4,500 in the superior court for this county for injuries received when his automobile was struck by a trolley car on Broad street, New London, some time ago. The Connecticut Co. appealed.

Elizabeth Skaling, who is the minor daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Skaling of Montauk avenue, New London, was awarded a verdict in the county superior court for personal injuries received when, in sliding last winter on property on Darrow street, New London, owned by Mrs. Sheedy and others she ran her sled into a barbed wire fence. The defendents appealed the verdict.

DISTRICT DEPUTY IS TO VISIT NORWICH ELKS

Norwich lodge of Elks is to have its official visitation from District Deputy G. E. R. Dr. T. F. O'Loughlin, of Rockville at the meeting on Thursday evening. Arrangements for the meeting are in the hands of the officers who are planning a social session to follow the business part of the meeting.

Filing Bonus Applications.

File for your bonus today, says a notice to ex-service men. Won't you do your part to help get in all bonus applications in at once so as to enable the war department to get rid of thousands of clerks now necessary to handle these applications.

If ex-service people will but make the effort to co-operate those entitled to the bonus now in Connecticut can accomplish 100 per cent. registration by midnight Dec. 6th.

All army recruiting offices throughout the state will, between now and Dec. 6th, and on Dec. 6th be open until 12 o'clock midnight for the purpose of aiding those who apply.

POINTS OUT REASONS FOR THANKSGIVING

The topic of the address given on Monday at the Richmond Radiator noon meeting by Rev. Charles H. Ricketts was Reasons For Thanksgiving. The meeting as usual was under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A.

The main thought that is at least ought to be, in everybody's mind at this season of the year is thanksgiving. It is not enough to be merely thankful but thankful unto Him "from whom all blessings flow." The reasons are apparent. The great blessings of life are a gift. We cannot buy them; we cannot give an equivalent for them. Sunlight, air, climate, the earth's productivity by which we are fed, clothed and sheltered are gifts. The most we can do is to co-operate with God in making them effective. We can plow, plant, cultivate, but God only can "give the increase."

Five things especialy were mentioned for which we ought to be "thankful unto Him:"

1—For the blessings of good government. As national government is a device of men it is naturally more or less imperfect. It is easy to pick flaws with our own government, but would we exchange it for any other in the world? I think not with Russia, Turkey, Italy, or Continental Europe, and hardly with Mexico, or Spanish America. Let us be thankful that it is strong, peaceful and just.

2—For the blessings of religion. The early Pilgrim Fathers broke away from an arrogant, despotic state church, and sought a new land where they could worship God according to the dictates of their own consciences. As such it has been kept. And let us thank God that we are still free religiously.

3—Thankful for our system of public education. Whether superior or not to any other it is ours and has been carefully worked out to meet the demands of our political life. Beyond measure it has been a great boon to the youth of our country.

4—Thankful for soil, climate and productivity. We have such an expanse of area that a general famine is improbable. If climate conditions produce a local shortage, it is made up elsewhere and hence we are not dependent on other nations for foodstuffs. For this we ought to be thankful.

5—Thankful for revived industrial conditions. For about two years business has been sub-normal. While there has not been any general suffering there has been more or less privation. Part time wages are never satisfactory. We ought to be thankful that the trend is toward a better industrial day.

Reference was also made to the blessings of health, family life and the capacity to work which ought to arouse the thankful spirit.

HELD REQUIEM MASS FOR LATE REV. JAMES J. SMITH

In St. Mary's Memorial church, Monday morning at 8 o'clock, a requiem high mass was offered for the repose of the soul of Rev. James J. Smith. There was a large attendance and the parish school children and their instructors attended in a body.

Tuesday marked the first anniversary of the death of Father Smith which occurred in New Haven. The mass was sung by the rector of the church, Rev. William A. Keefe, an intimate friend of Father Smith and former curate under Father Smith at St. Mary's church. Henry J. LaFontaine, the organist was in charge of the music and the choir sang. Sunday reference was made to the fact that it was just 27 years ago to the day that Father Smith celebrated his first mass as pastor of the then newly created parish in old St. Mary's church.

The late Rev. James J. Smith was ordained a priest at the Grand Seminary, Montreal, Canada, May 23, 1880 by Archbishop Fubre. He came to St. Mary's parish, this city, in November, 1897, remaining here nearly 14 years when he was transferred to St. Francis parish, New Haven. His priestly labors in the Hartford diocese covered a period of over 43 years.

LIEUT. LESLIE ARNOLD HAS THRILLING LIFE

One night shortly after the completion of the round-the-world flight Mayor Rolph was introducing Lieut. Lowell Smith and his fellow airmen to an audience of 10,000 people assembled in the San Francisco municipal auditorium. Another 500,000 or more were listening in on the air. All were eager to hear an address from the lips of the man who had commanded the first fleet of airplanes to circumnavigate the globe, says Lowell Thomas in the Washington Post.

Next morning a newspaper, commenting on the function, said that as a speaker Lieut. Smith was certainly a great aviator. He had replied to Mayor Rolph's flowery oration in five short sentences:

"Friends," said "Silent" Smith, "we are overwhelmed by San Francisco's hospitality. But I must confess that I have returned home to discover that there is something more difficult than flying around the world, and that is making a speech. On our flight I often owed much—at times everything—to the other five officers who accompanied me, and more especially to the man who flew with me in the Chicago. He saved my life on at least one occasion, and now I am going to ask him to save it again by making this speech for me. Ladies and gentlemen, allow me to present Lieutenant Leslie Arnold."

Whereupon a smart looking, well poised young aviator stepped forward and, without a moment's hesitation, without groping for a single word, delivered a fifteen-minute address to that vast audience in a clear, ringing voice. One of the leading film directors of America, who happened to be standing near me, said:

"How does he get this way?"

I told him that before "Les" Arnold carved out his niche in the Hall of Fame as one of the world's greatest pioneers who will rank with Vasco de Gama, Heinrick Hudson and Roald Amundsen, he was an actor in a stock company.

"Ah," exclaimed the Hollywood director, "that explains it. Any man who has been an actor in 'stock' must be resourceful enough to walk halfway around the world if necessary, or ever able to address the faculty and students of a young ladies' seminary. I know, because I've been in 'stock' myself."

Like the rest of the world flyers, "Les" Arnold has done most everything from working as a lineman for a telephone company to selling tobacco and playing juvenile parts on the stage. In common with four of his fellow circumnavigators, he comes of old colonial stock and like Erik Nelson, he comes of a race of navigators.

Son of Seafaring Yankees

He was born August 28, 1894, at New Haven, Conn., the son of Frank Arnold, a railroad man. On his father's side of the family were men who captained and manned the tea clippers and whaling ships that carried the fame of New Bedford, New Haven and New London all the way from South Georgia, in the anartic, to Herschel Island, in the far north. His family moved from New Haven to New London when Leslie was 10.

Like the rest of his fellow circumnavigators, as a youth he was bubbling over with high spirits and usually either in the process of being expelled from school or being reinstated. The last words that "Les" recalls having heard from his high school principal were:

But when he landed in Boston at the end of the round-the-world flight one of the first and one of the most highly prized of the hundreds of telegrams and letters of congratulation that poured in upon him was a message of congratulation from that same high school principal. "Les" says that letter give him more of a thrill of pride than when he was congratulated by the President of France.

In his school days he took a prominent part in all sports and built up the splendid physique that enabled him to stand the terrible strain of flying around the world and of pumping gasoline by hand during the long jump from Greenland to Labrador when the engine pump failed, and when the plane might otherwise have been lost at sea, along with Smith and himself.

Football and basketball were his favorite sports and trick plays his specialty. The coach kept him on the sidelines most of the time. But if the team was losing "Les" would be shot in to attempt to pull them out of the hole with forward passes, fake line bucks and freak end runs. As soon as the team started winning the coach would jerk him out again, fearful lest he might lose the game by taking unnecessary risks.

One summer he spent working as a telephone lineman and helping to set poles. He worked with a crew of bruisers who in the evening would entertain themselves by pitting "Les" against the bully of whatever town they happened to be near.

His last summer before graduation he toured New England with a small stock company called "The Associated Players." He played the part of one of Monty Brewster's spendthrift chums in "Brewster's Millions" and was the stage thug in "The House of a Thousand Candles."

From Pianos to Airplanes

After finishing high school he drove about the country selling pianos to farmer's wives, and in the fall became a tobacco salesman. His job was to visit stores in small towns taking orders for stogies and Horseshoe chewing tobacco. Toward the end of the winter of 1913 a firm specializing in the building of submarines hired him. He remained there until he enlisted in the air service in 1917.

He got his ground school training in aeromechanics, machine gunnery, aerodynamics and other branches at Princeton. Then finished his training at Waco, Texas, where he rebelled at the idea of remaining in America as an instructor and went "A. W. O. L." so often and made himself such a general nuisance officers ordered him to France to get rid of him.

Like Leigh Wade and most of the other pursuit pilots sent to Europe, he went straight to the great training center of Issoudon for a few finishing touches. As a matter of fact, when he arrived the flower of American youth was being rushed through Issoudon at such speed that many had the final finishing touch put to their flying careers. It was a common thing to return to the mess at noon, after an hour or so of "stunting," and see a vacant chair across the table.

"Where's Jim?" Arnold would ask. And some one would reply:

Just as he arrived at the front to join the first aero squadron the armistice was signed. For a month he went around France like Leigh Wade, picking up planes and ferrying them back to the central air depot at Romorantan.

One afternoon five minutes after he had "taken off" in a Brequet the plane burst into flames as a result of faulty ignition. He pointed her nose down and when she struck the ground he jumped out and watched her go up in smoke.

At Christmas he went with the first aero squadron into Germany. He spent several months with the American army of occupation cruising up and down over the Rhine from Cologne to Mainz.

Exhibition Flying.

Upon his return to America he was ordered to do exhibition flying at county fairs in the middle west and south. The purpose was to stimulate interest in aviation. He would go from one fair to another and soon got acquainted with all the snake charmers, sleight-of-hand performers, dog-face boys and other side shows that followed the same itinerary that he did.

It was at Dresden, Tenn., that he had one of the narrowest escapes of his flying career. The field was too short and much too muddy for safety. But the local committee begged him not to disappoint the crowds, and he gave in against his better judgment.

At the end of the field were some tall trees and a cliff 200 feet high. As a result of the mud on the field he couldn't get up enough speed in "taking off" to enable him to turn before reaching the cliff. The plane stalled, and in order to keep from crashing into the trees Arnold shoved his control stick forward and nose-dived 200 feet into the roof of one of the main buildings on the fair grounds.

Scared the Prize Poultry.

It was the building that housed all of the prize poultry. The roof gave way gently and broke the shock, but the nose of the plane went right on through until it rested on the floor on the second story, right in the midst of the prize poultry of the county.

The roosters and hens set up a wild cackling and squawking. Arnold unwrapped a few boards from around his neck and climbed out unhurt. In fact, the only person injured was a woman in a building across the street who was so frightened that she fell out of a first-story window.

In February, 1920, he was sent to the proving ground at Aberdeen, Md., to test bombs, fuses, bullets and machine guns. It was hazardous work, and several of his associates were blown up.

Gen. William Mitchell, assistant chief of the air service, stirred up considerable excitement in the summer of 1922 when he appeared in the role of a prophet before a congressional committee and told them that airplanes could sink battleships. Much doubt was expressed; so the air service arranged a joint maneuver with the navy near Newport News.

Arnold, Wade Nelson and a number of other army aviators took up five planes and in short order dispatched a destroyer, a submarine, a cruiser and a battleship. The latter was a modern, heavily armored German battleship, the Osterfriesland. Congressmen, senators and American as well as foreign military and naval experts were present to see the show. Up to that time no battleship had ever been sunk from the air. Naturally every one was skeptical.

The experiment was carried out 90 miles off the coast and the planes were all land machines, with wheels instead of pontoons.

Mrs. Gardner to Broadcast Wednesday

The radio sheets of the New York Sunday papers listed Leila Troland Gardner, of New York, formerly of Norwich, as to sing from Gilbel's—WGBS—Wednesday at 3.10, 3.30 and 3.50 p. m. She is to sing nine songs, Negro spirituals, including "Ol' Man Trubble." The critics always praise Mrs. Gardner for her clear diction, say it is very pleasing to listen in when she sings.

Heap-Daly Wedding.

Announcements of the wedding of Harold Heap of Adams, Mass., formerly of Taftville, and Miss Mary Winifred Daly of New Bedford at St. Patrick's cathedral, New York city, on July 5, 1924, have been received by friends of the couple in Taftville. Mr. Heap is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Heap of Taftville and his bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Daly of New Bedford.

STATE POLICEMAN IS PLACED UNDER SUSPENSION

New London, Dec. 1.—It was revealed today that all is not harmonious in the ranks of the state police at Groton barracks, for it became known during the day that one state police officer has been suspended by Sergt. Clifford Gorgas and another officer's suspension is pending.

The officer suspended is Robert E. Anderson, Meriden. It is alleged that Anderson was given leave over Thanksgiving and that he went to the vicinity of Middletown Thanksgiving eve, where he became involved in a quarrel with several citizens, who finally sought and obtained the services of a deputy sheriff, who took charge of Anderson. It was alleged that Anderson was intoxicated, but when he was taken before a physician and examined the physician is reported as stating that, while Anderson had been drinking, the officer was not intoxicated. When the report of Anderson's conduct became known to Sergeant Gorgas, that officer caused Anderson's suspension to be made and also forwarded a recommendation of its approval to Robert E. Hurley, superintendent of the state police department, at Hartford.

The officer scheduled for discipline is J. J. Bodnick. It is alleged that Thanksgiving day morning he allowed a young man who was intoxicated and who had attended the Coon club dance in Chesterfield to ride to New London in the officer's automobile. It is against the rules and regulations of the state police department to allow persons to ride with officers except in the case of an arrest or the rider being on business connected with the state police department.

MOTOR VEHICLE ACCIDENTS MOSTLY IN DAYTIME

Analysis of 14,809 accidents reported to the state motor vehicle department in the first nine months of this year shows that the great majority of them occurred during daylight hours. Reports were received from 24,603 operators concerning accidents in which they had figured. Of these, 9,392 reported accidents which were also reported by "the driver of the other car," showing that two cars had been involved in the collision; in 402 cases three automobiles were involved, and motorcycles figured in 96 accidents.

Thoroughfares were the scenes of 9,386 of the accidents, and intersections, of 4,979, while 444 were unclassified in this respect because of insufficient information. There were 4,121 accidents at night, according to the reports, 9,507 in daylight and 1,182 unclassified.

Medium property damage was caused by 7,089 of the accidents; serious property damage by 419; slight property damage by 2,395; property damage and personal injury by 1,675; serious personal injury by 97; medium personal injury by 377; slight personal injury by 1,348, and death by 184. Animals were killed by motor vehicles in 131 accidents.

Collisions between two or more automobiles constituted the greatest number of accidents, 9,296 being classified under this heading. Next in order came the number of accidents in which motor vehicles and pedestrians were involved, there being 2,028 of these. Motor vehicles collided with trolley cars in 670 cases; with poles or trees in 503; wagons, 295; bicycles, 236; animals, 226; buildings, 44; fences, 284; walls, 50; children on sleds, 24; hedges, 27; hydrants 28, and trains, 29. Seventy-four automobiles overturned and the damage caused was not attributed to collisions with other machines and in 177 cases the accidents involved only one motor vehicle without colliding with other objects. Nearly 700 were classified under miscellaneous collisions.

STUDY SUNLIGHT EFFECTS ON LUNG TUBERCULOSIS

All the medical officers of the five state tuberculosis sanatoria gathered Monday at the Laurel Heights Sanatorium, Shelton, eager to see and study a promised demonstration of the effect of sun baths on cases of severe pulmonary tuberculosis, or consumption.

In their report of the innovation Dr. Edward J. Lynch, the sanatorium superintendent, and Dr. George L. Bunnell, his assistant, recounted the dangers and the successes of administering so powerful a curative agent as unfettered sunlight to feeble and feverish patients. They told of the effect on pulse, temperature and coughs and of lung and blood conditions. Their systematic and scientific use of sunlight for pulmonary cases has been of too short duration for them to claim cures as yet, but both expressed the belief that sunlight, long known as a cure for bone tuberculosis, will, within a short time and after further study, become a regular treatment for tuberculosis of the lungs.

Any man may select his companions, but his relations are thrust upon him.

In Special Message to Congress President Coolidge Advises Against Further Tax Reduction Until Results of Present Tax Law Become Known—Budget Submitted Carries a Reduction of $59,225,931 From the Estimated Expenses of 1925—Senate Acts on $180,000,000 Deficiency Bill, Carrying the First $126,000,000 Necessary to Get the Soldier Bonus Into Operation.

Washington, Dec. 2.—Congressional machinery functioned smoothly again today and a fair volume of work was accomplished in the hour the two houses were in session.

The senate finally put on its way to the president the $180,000,000 deficiency appropriation bill which came over from the last session and which carries the first $126,000,000 necessary to get the soldiers' bonus law into operation.

The house received the first of the annual supply bills, that for the interior department, and set aside its routine procedure to give the measure right of way until its passage, probably by the end of this week.

Both houses received and listened to the reading of the president's annual budget message. Tomorrow they will get the chief executive's annual message on the state of the union, which will contain his recommendations for legislation.

With the opening day bar against the introduction of bills removed in the senate, quite a number of measures were presented there. Chief among them was that by Senator Underwood, democrat, Alabama, which would dedicate Muscle Shoals to the national defense and provide for either government or private operation for the production of nitrogen for fertilizers and explosives.

Another measure, offered by Senator Smoot, republican, Utah, would extend the life of the American debt funding commission two years from next Feb. 9. A similar measure was offered yesterday in the house.

Thirty-eight millions of dollars for constructing new public buildings already authorized and also new ones on sites heretofore acquired would be made available under a bill proposed by Senator Fletcher, democrat, Florida.

Among the comparatively few measures introduced in the house was one by Representative Hudson, republican, Michigan, to repeal the excess taxes on automobiles and motorcycles.

Bobbed Hair Bandit Working in London

With Another Woman and a Man — Posing as Actors Who Are Persons of Means

London, Dec. 2 (By the A. P.).—London has its own "bobbed hair bandit," according to police reports from many parts of London. These reports describe the woman as about 23 years old, a blonde, with bobbed hair, and say she is working in conjunction with a man, allegedly her husband, and another woman.

The trio pose as actors who are persons of means. They make short stays in boarding houses and leave in a motor car with the jewels and other valuables of guests. The man, the police say, uses numerous aliases. He introduces the bobbed hair woman as his wife and the other woman as her companion.

MRS. BUZZI SCREAMED AT WITNESS "YOU'RE A LIAR"

New York, Dec. 2.—Mrs. Anna Buzzi, on trial in Bronx supreme court for the second time for the murder of Frederick Schneider, wealthy contractor, today heard her brother-in-law, William Turk recite from the witness stand alleged conversations which the witness said he had held with the accused which would tend to connect her directly with the shooting. She showed no indication of a return of the hysteria which interrupted the morning session and caused a recess to be declared.

The interruption of the morning session came when Turk testified that Mrs. Buzzi had confessed to him that she shot Schneider.

"Willie, I shot Fred," Turk testified Mrs. Buzzi said to him. "If I could not have him, nobody else will have him."

"You're a liar," Mrs. Buzzi instantly screamed at the witness. "You lie!" she continued to scream the accusation until court attendants led her from the court room.

At the afternoon session Turk completed his testimony. Turk said he saw Mrs. Buzzi attempting to clean some spots from a long black coat when he visited her at her apartment the day of the shooting.

Other witnesses at the artefnoon session were Mrs. Minnie Schneider, widow of the slain man, from whom he was separated at the time of his death, and Nicholas Feulner, a farmer whose farm is near the scene of the shooting.

Feulner testified that on the day of the shooting he saw Schnieder's automobile pass his place and stop and after which he heard a report which he took to be backfire.

The next time he looked at the car, he said, a figure in a black coat with a white collar, seemingly a woman, was walking away from the car in the direction from which the car had just come. Under cross-examination he admitted that he could not tell at that distance and because of fog, whether the figure was that of a man or a woman, but said he thought at the time it was a woman.

DISPLEASED WITH THREE MEMBERS TRINITY FACULTY

Hartford, Conn., Dec. 2.—New York alumni of Trinity college will, by a petition to be sumbitted to the Trinity board of trustees at their meeting Saturday, demand the resignation of three members of the college faculty on the grounds that the men are "obstructionists."

The three professors whose resignations are asked are Professor Frank Cole Babbitt, Professor of Greek, Dr. Arthur Adams, registrar and librarian, and Dr. Horace Cheney Swan, director of physical education and professor of physiology and hygiene.

The petition alleges that the progress of the college is being hampered by certain members of the faculty, the three here mentioned being named as the most prominent of the "obstructionist" group. The petition speaks highly of the work of President Remsen B. Ogilby, holding that he cannot advance any constructive measures so long as he is hampered by the present faculty.

Professors Adams and Babbitt were among the centers in the revolution of the Trinity college body in the winter of 1920. At that time the undergraduates demanded the removal of certain faculty members, Professors Adams and Babbitt among the number.

Danbury, Dec. 2.—The first coasting accident of the winter here occurred tonight when Raymond Barrett, 12 years old, son of Michael Barrett, market proprietor and former selectman, received injuries that may prove fatal. The boy was coasting on Mountainville avenue and in turning a corner collided with a horse and wagon driven by Nelson Tanafin. The boy received a compound fracture of the skull. He was taken to the Danbury hospital.

After coming north he joined the New York East conference and held pastorates in Oyster Bay, L. I., Norwalk, Meriden, Guilford and Redding, this state. Since retirement five years ago he had made his home in West Haven. He leaves a wife, two sons resident here and two daughters, one a member of the faculty of Erie college, Ohio.

M'Lean of Foreign Affairs Committee

Assigned to Succeed the Late Senator Brandegee—Make Up of Committee Withheld

(Special to The Bulletin)

Washington, Dec. 3.—Senator McLean will be assigned to the senate committee on foreign relations affairs to succeed the late Senator Brandegee who held a similar assignment, the make up of committee will not be made public till list is presented to the senate for approval tomorrow but there is no doubt of the proposed assignment of Senator McLean.

SENATE CALLS FOR COST OF HANDLING MAIL

Washington, Dec. 2.—In adopting a resolution today calling on the post-office department for its report on the cost of carrying and handling the various classes of mail, the senate took its first step toward compliance with the suggestion of President Coolidge last June in his message vetoing the postal pay increase bill, that the postal service be placed on a sound business basis.

The report of the survey begun by the joint postal commission of congress, and finished by the postoffice department, tonight was still in the hands of Postmaster General New who awaited the formal resolution, introduced today by Chairman Sterling of the senate postoffice committee, and adopted with little discussion. Until the resolution reaches him he will not disclose the results of the exhaustive study which is expected, among other things, to throw light on the question raised three years ago whether newspapers and magazines are bearing their share of the cost of handling second class mail matter and whether parcel post rates are adequate.

PRIZES ARE GIVEN TO LARGE FAMILIES IN FRANCE

Paris, Dec. 2.—(By the A. P.)—Paris can boast of only one family out of the seventy families in France having ten or more children whose names were published by the French Academy today as winners of prizes of 25,000 francs each. The prizes were given by the Cognacq foundation as a reward to deserving French families. The other prize winning families with ten or more children dwell in the provinces. Eighty families which have from six to ten children and which were awarded prizes of 10,000 francs each, also all reside in the towns and villages.

The heads of nine-tenths of France's large families as enumerated in the list are farmers, farm laborers and small tradesmen.

More than 3,500,000 francs will be distributed by the French Academy this year on behalf of M. Cognacq who is the owner of one of the largest department stores in Paris. M. Cognacq some years ago put aside 40,000,000 francs, the interest from which is awarded annually "to encourage the birth rate in France."

GRAND JURY TO INVESTIGATE DEATH OF CHAS. B. ROGERS

New Haven, Dec. 2.—Following an announcement today that on Thursday morning the North Haven grand jury will begin an investigation of the death of Charles G. Rogers, bond salesman, of this city, Grand Juror Ward Church of that town admitted tonight that two of the principal witnesses in the case have disappeared and are thought to be in Massachusetts. Rogers was killed on the night of the Yale-Army football game while returning to this city, from an inn in Wallingford with Miss Marjorie Schneider, of this city. According to Coroner Eli Mix, he met death in an automobile accident when his head struck a telegraph pole.

The two missing witnesses, according to Mr. Church, are Mrs. Ruth Hulse and her brother, Bernard Whelm, of this city who were present at the inn when Miss Schneider and Rogers were dining there and both personal friends of Miss Schneider. Mrs. Hulse was one of the first to reach the scene of the accident after Rogers had been fatally injured and drove Miss Schneider's car to this city after the accident.

AN APPEAL TO MINERS TO RETURN TO WORK

Scranton, Dec. 2.—Officials of District No. 1, United Mine Workers of America, tonight appealed to the 12,000 striking miners of the Pennsylvania and Hillside Coal and Iron Company to return to work tomorrow morning notwithstanding the fact that the general grievance committee of the men, at a meeting today in Pittston, voted to continue the strike.

Failure of the men to return to work will result in proceedings being instituted tomorrow to revoke the charters of nine locals.

ILLUSTRATOR KELLER DIED OF PNEUMONIA

New York, Dec. 2.—Arthur I. Keller, illustrator, died of pneumonia today at his Riverdale-on-Hudson home. Mr. Keller was born in this city in 1867, and spent his youth in the study of drawing and painting. He was awarded the first class medal of the National Academy in 1908, and the first Hallgarten composition prize soon after. Other honors included the gold medal from the Philadelphia Art club, a silver medal from the Paris exposition, the Evans Water Color prize and several exposition awards.

FOR HOLDERS LONG TERM FRENCH SECURITIES

Paris, Dec. 2.—Foreign holders of French securities of long term issues will be required henceforth to file affidavits attesting the ownership of such securities before dividends will be paid on them, according to an announcement made today by Finance Minister Clementel.

The affidavits necessary in the foregoing procedure will be furnished free by French diplomatic consular officers, it was stated.

Under the direction of Chairman Moses, the Republican senatorial campaign committee is arranging to wage a vigorous fight in Connecticut in behalf of Governor-elect Bingham, who is a candidate for the seat of the late Senator Brandegee.

GOVERNMENT TO ISSUE LONG TERM BONDS AT 4 PER CENT

Issue in the Amount of $200,000,000 Will Be Offered December 15—Term Will Be 20 to 30 Years—Reservation is Made of Call For Retirement on and After December 15, 1944, on Notice of Four Months—Remarkable Reduction Has Been Made of Government Obligations in the Hands of the Public.

Washington, Dec. 2.—After financing its requirements for more than two years with short-time obligations, the treasury has turned to an issue of long term bonds to obtain cash to meet maturing indebtedness and carry the government through the next three months.

Announcement was made tonight by Secretary Andrew Mellon of the treasury department that an issue of 20 to 30 year 4 per cent. bonds will be offered Dec. 15 in the amount of $200,000,000. The new securities, the first long-time obligations put on the market by the treasury since October, 1922, will mature Dec. 15, 1954, but the right is reserved to call them for retirement on and after Dec. 15, 1944, on notice of four months.

In announcing the new issue Secretary Mellon said no further financing would be necessary until March, which means that the treasury will be able to meet maturities, including $407,000,000 of certificates of indebtedness $25,000,000 in savings certificates and $118,000,000 in circulation bonds of 1925, due Feb. 2, from the proceeds of the present sale of bonds, together with the tax receipts of Dec. 15.

While the offering announced is for $200,000,000, the treasury plans to allot additional bonds of the new issue to th eextent that third Liberty loan 4 1-4 per cent. bonds, treasury notes of series A-1925 and certificates of indebtedness are tendered in payment.

"The extent to which government obligations in the hands of the public have been reduced is remarkable," a formal statement by Secretary Mellon said. "In the five and one-half years since June 30, 1919, the public debt has decreased from $25,484,506.05 to $21,241,138.28, a reduction of $4,242,971,021.77."

TO REORGANIZE POLICE DEPT OF SCHENECTADY

Schenectady, N. Y., Dec. 2.—This city today paid its last respects to Albert L. Youmans, murdered acting police captain, and then turned its attention again to the police department to see what might be done in the way of promised reorganization. Captain Youmans slaying while on duty Friday night was the second within a week.

City and county officials, the police department and a delegation from the fire department attended captain Youman's funeral. Traffic was blocked as the casket was carried between lines of uniformed policemen and then to the cemetery in a long cortege.

The casket was opened in the church and a long line filed slowly by. In it were chief of Police James W. Rynex, Detective Sergeant Diamante Ruguel, Mayor William W. Campbell, and many friends of the slain captain.

Previous to the funeral services today Chief Rynex whose resignation has been demanded, and Mayor Campbell met in conference. It was indicated that the chief probably would remain in office until he completes his 42 years service on October 1, 1925, and until that time would be given a leave of absence and an acting chief appointed.

THREE FORMER "BUDDIES" IN CRIMINAL COURT

New York, Dec. 2.—Prosecutor and complaining witness pleaded for leniency for the defendant in special session today, when three men who were buddies in France during the World war as members of Battery B of the 58th coast artillery faced each other in a criminal case.

The defendant was Frank Loftus, 31 years old, a salesman of Danbury, Conn., on trial for passing a worthless check for $60 on a hotel. He pleaded guilty. Assistant District Attorney J. J. Wilson immediately recognized him as a wartime buddy. So did former Sergeant Major Philip A. Fitzpatrick of Battery B, who came to testify how Loftus had given him a bad check some time ago.

The pleas of Wilson and Fitzpatrick were soon augmented by that of the hotel proprietor. Loftus has been in the Tombs since his arrest a month ago and Justice Kernochan, who presided, said he would postpone sentence until Dec. 8 pending an examination of Loftus' record.

LOAN FOR FRENCH NAT'L MAIL STEAMSHIP LINES

New York, Dec. 2.—The French National Mail steamship lines today concluded negotiations with American bankers for a loan of $10,000,000. Public offering of the company's bonds, bearing 7 per cent. interest and maturing in 25 years, will be made tomorrow by a banking syndicate headed by Dillon, Read & Co. The liens are priced cat 91, to yield over 7.80 per cent.

Proceeds from the sale of the issue will be used for expansion of the company's steamship service to the east and far east, which is carried on under the control nad guarantee of the French government. Ten new liners will be placed in operation at an early date.

ECONOMY IS NECESSARY IN THE NATIONAL GUARD

Philadelphia, Dec. 2.—The need for rigid economy in the administration of the national guard was emphasized today by Major General George C. Rickards, chief of the militia bureau of the war department, in an address before the convention of the National association of the United States.

Development of the motorized divisions of the guard and the use of ammunition in practice cut heavily into the appropriation available, General Rickards said, and the abundant stocks of military equipment available for guard use after the war have been virtually exhausted. On the other hand, the general pointed out, the guard is at present at its greatest strength in number of men.

MEMBERS OF THE ROYAL INSTITUTION OF BRITAIN

London, Dec. 2.—The American scientists Theodore Lyman of Brookline, Massachusetts, and Gilbert N. Lewis of Berkeley, California, have been elected honorary members of the Royal Institution of Great Britain.

Theodore Lyman, physicist, is a graduate of Harvard, 1887, where he served as instructor and assistant professor in physics. He served also as major of engineers, U. S. A., in 1918.

Gilbert N. Lewis, chemist, has held professorships in chemistry in various American universities. He was chief of the defense division, gas service, A. E. F., in the late war.

REAL ESTATE BROKERS SHOT IN OFFICE IN TIMES SQUARE

New York, Dec. 2.—Police are searching for Noah Aaron of Riverside Drive, a real estate operator, following the shooting this afternoon of Louis and Samuel Leibster, brothers and real estate brokers, in a realty office on Times square. Louis, in a statement to a detective at Bellevue hospital, accused Aaron of having shot him following a quarrel "about a business matter."

Both brothers are in a critical condition. Louis was shot in the neck and Samuel in the left shoulder and in the abdomen.

Aaron is said to have left the building immediately after the shooting. Detectives, were unable to find any one who saw him depart.

At the home of Aaron policemen were put on guard. Mrs. Aaron, who has four children, became hysterical when she learned of the accusation against her husband, and a physician was called to attend her.

After the shooting Leibster ran through an adjoining office and collapsed in the hall. On his way out he passed Madeline Siegel, a stenographer and Morris Gross, a book keeper. They told detectives they did not hear enough of the wrangle between the Leibsters and Aaron to know what it was about and that they did not see Aaron leave.

A heavy automatic pistol with which the brothers were shot was found in the office.

BALLOTS CONTAIN NAMES BINGHAM, HOLT, PLUNKETT

Hartford, Dec. 2.—Ballots containing the names of Hiram Bingham, Hamilton Holt and Martin F. Plunkett, republican, democratic and socialist candidates for United States senator, have been prepared for about 100 tons by State Secretary Francis A. Pallotti, on the advice given informally by Attorney General Frank E. Healy on Monday to the effect that Holt's name could be printed on the ballot despite the fact that his nomination had been filed after the statutory time limit.

These ballots are now ready for the press and it is expected that many of them will be printed tomorrow. The formal opinion on the question of allowing Holt's name to appear on the ballot has not yet been prepared by Mr. Healy, but it will probably be delivered to Secretary Pallotti tomorrow.

Whether a fourth name will have to be added, requiring the reprinting of these ballots, will depend up Mr. Healy's opinion as to an extension of time for the filing of a petition to allow the progressive candidates name to appear, should that party succeed in securing the required number of signatures to such a petition.

MOVEMENT FOR PROGRESSIVE CANDIDATE FOR SENATOR

Hartford, Dec. 2.—Luther H. Trieschmann, state chairman of the committee of fortyeight, said today that the movement to put a progressive candidate for the United States senatorship in the field was state-wide among progressives. Nearly enough signatures to a petition to allow the party's nominee a place on the ballot had been secured before the recent election. These he said, had been returned to the various progressive town chairman because of a mix-up caused by petitions for an independent candidate.

Party leaders were busy today in an effort to straighten out the tangle so that the petition would reach the state secretary before 4 p. m., Thursday, Mr. Trieschmann said.

IS TO RENEW CONNECTIONS WITH DISTANT YALE ALUMNI

New Haven, Dec. 2.—Dean Charles S. Warren of the Sheffield Scientific school at Yale, left today for a speaking tour in the middle west, when he, representing the university, will renew connections with distant alumni. He will speak to alumni associations in Louisville, Cincinnati, Milwaukee, Chicago and other cities, his subject being "official and under-graduate life at Yale." These trips are made annually by President Angell or a member of the faculty to keep the alumni in closer touch with the life of the university.

LAWSON HAS SURGICAL TREATMENT FOR DIABETIS

Bar Harbor, Me., Dec. 2.—Thomas W. Lawson, the Boston financier, who recently underwent surgical treatment for diabetis, is very comfortable, eating regularly and sleeping fairly well; Dr. R. W. Wakefield, his physician, stated here today. His stay in the hospital depends on how he responds to the insulin treatment begun Sunday.

ARRESTED IN CONNECTION WITH SLAYING OF WIFE

Birmingham, Ala., Dec. 2.—County authorities tonight caused the arrest of Dr. George E. Edwards in connection with the slaying of his wife in the Edwards home at Fairfield early today.

Dr. Edwards is under guard in a hospital suffering from a bullet wound in the left hand. His first statement to officers was that he was wounded when he was attacked by an assailant whom he later found had murdered his wife as she slept.

A neighbor attracted by pistol shots and cries of the physician, called the police. They found Mrs. Edwards dead in bed and the physician suffering with a wound in his hand. The woman seemed to have been slain with a hammer.

The physician said he was awakened by some one trying to administer a drug to him and that he grappled with the assailant who fired three times. The woman's body bore evidences of burns.

The police found the telephone wire to the Edwards' home cut, a window screen slashed in the dining rom and the kitchen door open.

Dr. Edwards denied that he was responsible for his wife's death and the injury to himself.

MYSTERIOUS DEATH OF MAN IN BRIDGEPORT

Bridgeport, Dec. 2.—Levine Kline, aged 50, found dead here by three boys, has given the police and the medical examiner a first class mystery since it is not known whether he died of exposure, committed suicide or lost his life at the hands of enemies who desired revenge for his informing the pocile of the robbery by a gang of the Salts Textile Works here. Robbery of person was also suggested as a possible cause leading to his death since only one penny was found on his person and all means of identification had been removed.

A mysterious letter received by a friend of Kline, Frank Kozma, of 134 Albien street, on Monday evening predicted that he, Kline, would rather take his own life than lose it at the hands of other.

Kline is said to have been a former I. W. W., who had been in difficulties with the government during the war. He was an active member of the Hungarian socialistic club here and known as a radical about Fairfield county. He formerly lived at 115 Oak street.

EGYPT HAS ACCEPTED BRITISH CONDITIONS

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 2.—(By the A. P.) "The council of ministers, bowing to necessity and impelled by a great desire for pacification and good understanding accepts the conditions integrally and without reserve."

This was the reply which Ziwar Pasha, the Egyptian premier, made to Viscount Allenby when the British high commissioner enumerated in writing the British conditions for the evacuation of the Alexandria customs.

The customs had been seized as a guarantee for compliance with several of the British demands, which the Zogloul government left behind for settlement when it went out of existence.

The only signs of disturbanees in Cairo have come from the students, who, notwithstanding the advice of the former premier have been engaged in political agitation, in which the cry of "Revolution" has been set up frequentyy.

A report current here is that Lieutenant General Sir Joseph J. Asser, governor of the Bermuda island, may succeed to the post of sirdar of the Egyptian army.

SUCCESSOR OF CUMMINGS AS STATE'S ATTORNEY

Bridgeport, Dec. 2.—William H. Comley, Jr., of this city, former state senator, appeared in criminal superior court for Fairfield county at the opening of the December term this afternoon for the first time as state's attorney in succession to Homer S. Cummings. Judge William M. Maltbie was on the bench.

State's Attorney Comley declared it to be the intention of his office to wage uncompromising opposition to rum runners.

Joseph Giordanco, 19, and Joseph Carellara, 21, of Brooklyn, N. Y., pleading guilty to transportation of alcohol through Stamford, were each sentenced to nine months in jail.

A state's prison sentence of from one to three years was imposed upon Walter Zoyeboroski, 41 years old, of Bridgeport who pleaded guilty to aggravated assault upon a woman.

SWINDLER KORETZ IS TO PLEAD GUILTY TODAY

Chicago, Dec. 2.—Leo Koretz, promoter of a $2,000,000 Panama oil bubble that burst, will plead guilty in criminal court tomorrow and ask to make restitution to his victims, State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe announced tonight. Koretz was returned here from Halifax, where he fled a year ago.

Koretz, the state's attorney said, will plead guilty to four indictments charging larceny by bailee and operating a confidence game. Each charge carries a penalty of from one to ten years in the penitentiary.

Koretz seems to have resigned himself to his fate. Today he wearily faced a referee in bankruptcy and told of his operations for the past twenty years.

When he fled from Chicago a year ago, after some of those who had invected their money started for Panama, to investigate, Koretz said he withdrew from Chicago banks about half a million dollars. Of this sum he retained about $1775,000 and gave the rest to relatives whom he had swindled. The rest of the $2,000,000 he said had been used to defray his living expenses or to pay dividends to investors to retain their confidence.

A NEW YORK-TO-BOSTON AUTO BUS DRIVER FINED

Meriden, Dec. 2.—In the borough court of Berlin this evening John F. McRay, of Mattapan, Mass., was found guilty of operating a motor bus without proper operator's license, and without proper markers. He was fined $50 and costs on each count, and took an appeal under a $100 bond. This is understood to be a test case which may reach the supreme court of the United States. McRay operated a bus for the New York-to-Boston Auto Company. The bus, while passing through Berlin on its regular trip was stopped by a state policeman. The bus carried two sets of markers, one for Massachusetts and one for Connecticut. McRay had an operator's license in Massachusetts but none for Connecticut. The bus company claims as it has no terminal in Connecticut, Connecticut has no jurisdiction in the case.

This case is the first of its kind to come before a Connecticut court.

A large number of the Training School girls and faculty gathered in the Old Gym, Tuesday evening, to see the two one-act plays presented by the Normal School Dramatic Club under the direction of Miss Lucy Stone, head of the English Department. The plays were given, as amateur and semi-professional plays are being given more and more, with very little scenery, on an almost empty stage. The few properties used, strictly in keeping, excellently provided the necessary atmosphere. The programs distributed at the door were designed and printed by the girls. The plays were "Nevertheless," a charming trifle by Stuart Walker, supposed to take place "in a room upstairs, last night or tonight perhaps," and "My Lady's Lace" a play of Dutch peasant life by Edward Knoblock. The Prologue to the first play was given by Alberta Messenger, who was also stage manager. The device bearer was Pruna Garocari; the part of the girl was taken by Mary Nash; the boy, by Mary Woods, and the burglar by Frances Fenton. In "My Lady's Lace," the lacemaker, Moeder Kaatje, was taken by Ellen White, Mynheer Cornelis, by Elizabeth Stick, his daughter Antje, by Josephine Irlandi and her suitor Jonkeer Ian, Mary McCarthy. The scene for this play was laid in the garden of a small Dutch house about 1660.

The recently elected officers of the City Basketball League organized here some time ago which representations from all of the troop teams are: President, Charles W. Hill; secretary-treasurer, Bert F. More, and a playing commission consisting of Edward A. Morrison, Charles F. Curran and Stanley Warren.

The places of Judge of the Police court, Frank H. Foss and Prosecuting Attorney Samuel B. Halvey were filled respectively Tuesday morning by Deputy Judge Curtis Dean and Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Frank P. Fenton, Attorneys Foss and Harvey were attending the opening of the Tolland county superior court at Rockville. John Foley of Danielson was charged with intoxication and he pleaded guilty. At the time of his arrest Foley had with a supply of rubbing alcohol which he said was a regular blood purifier having no kick. Foley expressed a desire to return to his home town and Judge Dean gave him a chance to clear out, passing a suspended ten day jail sentence.

Raymond Osterhoudt of this city was placed under arrest by virtue of a warrant served on him Tuesday by Chief of Police Allyn McArthur charging him with non-support of his family. The warrant was made out for the Killingly authorities and Osterhoudt was turned over to Deputy Sheriff Charles E. Ayer of Danielson who returned to give the man a hearing in the Killingly town court in the afternoon. Additional to the warrant for the non-support charge Deputy Sheriff Ayer served another writ in a civil action against Osterhoudt for an alleged unpaid bill of over $250. Osterhoudt has been living and working in this city for about two years while his wife and four children have been in Danielson.

Two kittens, one tipping the scales at 20 ounces and the other at 14 ounces, are believed to be the smallest felines existing in this section of the state, by the owner, Arthur P. Hollsworth of South Windham road, rural carrier on Route 2 from the local post office. One kitten is six and one half inches long and the other is seven inches long. They are the sole survivors of a family of five, including the mother, a tabby cat, which was killed by an automobile. There were four kittens, one being killed by a cow and another by a dog. The tiny orphans are doing well and despite their diminutive size are healthy and quite strong.

Guests of Mrs. Edward J. Tyron the past week have been Miss Elizabeth Bigelow of Meriden and Miss Ruth Bigelow of East Hartford.

The second layer of plank flooring has been laid in the Bank street engine house which is undergoing quite extensive repairs. The laying of the final layer of oak flooring will be started this Wednesday. The steel uprights which act as supports to the main floor of the building have all been installed in the basement and rest on concrete bases set into the ground to a depth of about three feet. The joists in the main beams under the floor are being reenforced with steel plates and the cross beams are being bolted down to further strengthen the floor.

Dick Zagara of Park street was arrested about 10 o'clock Tuesday morning, charged with assault on his wife. The assault is alleged to have followed a heated verbal discussion. Officer Roderick Larliviere made the arrest. Zagara was released under bonds of $100 for his appearance in police court this (Wednesday) morning.

A horse owned by William Fever of South Coventry suddenly bolted on Union street shortly after noon Monday and smashed one wheel of the wagon to which it was hitched and the officer policeman at the intersection of Jackson and Union streets before it was halted. TWO WILLIMANTIC MEN LOSE HUNTING LICENSES

(Special to the Bulletin)

Willimantic, Dec. 2—The series of events built up around the alleged assault on Merwin Berry of Andover by two local and one New York hunter on Tuesday afternoon, November 18 have now taken a new turn with the announcement that the hunting licenses of John T. Meikle and Edward P. Lyman of this city have been revoked for one year, dating from November 22 for violation of the hunting law for which they were convicted. The communication making the announcement has been received by Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton from the office of John W. Titcomb, state superintendent of fisheries and game at Hartford. An answer of protest has been made by the local men to Superintendent Titcomb and the explanation is given that neither man was convicted of violation of the game laws. Both pleaded nolo contendre to a charge of trespassing, a charge clearly out of the run of game laws. A fine of $10 and costs under the statute was imposed by Justice of the Peace Charles A. Faulkner in the Andover town court on Saturday afternoon November 22. Up to date Town Clerk Fenton has not received any notice to revoke the hunting license of Charles Lyon, who was one of the party alleged to have assaulted Berry. It is understood that Meikle and Lyman will take legal steps to regain their licenses.

MORE FIRE APPARATUS SMASHED IN WILLIMANTIC

Willimantic, Dec. 2—The partial wrecking of another of the old horse drawn chemical wagons of the fire department took place about 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon while the wagon was being towed by one of the city trucks to the scene of a fire at the home of Alexis Caisse on Chestnut street. The wagon was being drawn tandum fashion and was one which had been brought down from the Hilltop Hose Co. to the Montgomery house on Jackson street, to replace a wagon of similar type that was wrecked the night before Thanksgiving, on Railroad street, while being drawn in like manner. Joseph Dazy, a truck driver for the street department was operating the truck which was hauling the wagon. The accident happened on Maple Avenue when the pole which attached the wagon to the truck snapped near the axle of the vehicle, allowing it to careen to one side and strike against a tree and the curbstone in front of the home of William D. Talcott at the foot of Bellevue street. The damage to the wagon was slight, the foot rest being split and other marks of the collision with the tree being made on the left side. Profiting by the experience which nearly cost the lives of John Ryan and Raymond Sullivan when the Montgomery wagon overturned on Railroad street here was no one riding on the Hilltop apparatus. Riding in the truck with Dazy were Jack Couchon and Raymond Sullivan who is still carrying his left arm in a sling as the result of a broken wrist sustained in the previous accident. The accident, being the second of its kind within as many responses to a bell alarm for the Montgomery Company since last Wednesday night proves conclusively that a chemical wagon hooked tandum to a motor truck is an unsafe, unpracticable course to follow and more forcibly emphasizes the need of an additional motor truck for the department. There is an interesting feature connection with the fire at the Alexis Caisse home in that while firemen were fighting a chimney fire from the interior of the house the sparks ignited the shingle roof and the fire had gotten considerable headway before it was discovered by the firemen.

About 1:10 o'clock a still alarm was received at the Bank street Engine House for the chimney fire and Lieutenant Michael J. English and Hoseman William L. Smith went to the Caisse home in the Reo Chemical wagon. When the smoke-eaters left the interior of the building to fight the chimney fire from the outside they found the roof well ablaze. At 1.25 o'clock a bell alarm was sounded and was responded to by the remainder of the Engine House members and by the Montgomery outfit which only got halfway to the fire. The blaze was quickly under control and the recall sounded. Considerable damage was done to the roof. While fighting the fire the firemen were menaced by the danger of a sudden collapse of the chimney which would bring down a shower of bricks upon them. That chimney and two or three others in that vicinity lean decidedly to the east.

BRIDGEPORT PEOPLE INJURED IN ACCIDENT

Willimantic, Dec. 2.—Two women were slightly injured, one boy was badly shaken up and a National touring car was partly wrecked early Tuesday afternoon when the machine skidded in rounding a curve on the Willimantic-Danielson road near Sherman's Corners in South Chaplin and came to rest lying on its side against the embankment. The accident apparently was not reported to authorities in this vicinity and the party left from Willimantic to Bridgeport by train a few hours after the mishap. The name of the driver of the car was not made known. Other passengers consisted of the two women, a Mrs. Redmond and Mrs. Frazier of Bridgeport, and three boys. Mrs. Redmond and Mrs. Frazier came to this city and the former was escorted to the Red Cross rooms here by Conrad Dupeau for first aid treatment. Mrs. Redmond sustained a cut behind the ear and a highly discolored eye. The other woman's injuries were of a minor nature. The damaged car was hauled from the scene for repairs. Further investigation will be conducted to learn the identity of the owner and driver of the machine.

How Chrysler Enthusiasm Starts and Grows

It is almost amusing to watch a motorist drive a Chrysler Six for the first time. He realizes, of course, that the Chrysler Six "has something". Otherwise it could not have registered such an extraordinary success—it could not have so completely monopolized conversation.

Yet he is unprepared for the results the Chrysler Six delivers because all his experience has been based on totally different standards. He associates all the finer qualities of performance, driving and riding with cars of higher price, larger size, greater weight.

Once behind the Chrysler wheel the revelation is not long delayed. He tries the Chrysler Six for power and pull, he lets it out for speed, he tests its agility and alertness, he demonstrates its braking efficiency, he takes some turns at smart speed.

And when he is through there is no case left for the heavy, the cumbersome, the wasteful. He promptly joins the army of Chrysler Six enthusiasts.

HEAR FINE ADDRESS ON NEW ENGLAND ADVANTAGES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, Dec. 2—One of the largest audiences in some time past gathered at the December meeting of the Willimantic Chamber of Commerce Tuesday evening and listened with interest to the various reasons why David S. Wheeler of Boston "Bet His Life on New England." The excellent supper and group singing were followed by a brief business session in charge of President James P. Bath. Secretary Morrill announced the names of five new members. A. E. Greene, chairman of the entertainment committee, then took charge, and he in turn gave the floor to Mr. Wheeler. The speaker's talk on Why I Bet My Life on New England was pleasingly original and was illustrated in novel manner by actual samples of raw materials produced or found in New England which the speaker took from a handgrip at intervals. The attention of the gathering was unbroken throughout the entire discourse. Summarily Mr. Wheeler outlined the great advantages of New England in the remarkable quality of its fisheries, its forests, soil, granite and traprock supplies, products namely, tobacco and textiles, climate, location, drinking water and water power and shipping centers, and lastly, but not least, its manpower and educational institutions. He was accorded a rising vote of thanks.

JEWETT CITY

Thomas S. Oldershow, 76, died Tuesday morning at the home of his son, John Oldershaw, in Voluntown. He was a photographer, located in Jewett City, on North Main street for probably 25 years. His health has been failing for several years and for a few weeks he has been in his son's home. He was married twice, his first wife, Sarah Ann Oldershaw, dying in 1908. His second wife was Emma Sherman, and she died a few years ago. He leaves one son, John of Voluntown, and a daughter, Mrs. Belle Noble of Apponaug, R. I. Three grandchildren survive him, Mrs. Charlott A. Carkin and Samantha Oldershaw of Groton, Mass, and John Oldershaw, Jr., of Groton, Conn.

Mike Kargul and Joseph Bakik, were in the Griswold town court Monday morning and were found guilty of violations of the Volstead act. Judge John T. Barry imposed the following fines: $300 and costs to Kargul amounting to $350 and $100 and costs to Bakik, amounting to $150.

Miss Doris Bliss has returned from a Thanksgiving visit with her parents in Schenctady, N. Y. Miss Bliss is a student in the Norwich Free Academy and is making her home with her grandfather, B. C. Bliss. She was astonished to find such fine weather here after leaving a foot of snow in that city where she has been a visitor.

The Borough of Jewett City, under the direction of the electric light and power commission, G. J. Moeller, L. G. Buckingham and E. G. League are extending the lighting service.

On the north the line will go to a point near the Bakanowski house at Tadpole. There will be at least four who may now avail themselves of the benefits of the extension.

At the annual meeting of Mt. Vernon Lodge, No. 75, F. and A. M., held Tuesday morning the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

George T. Bell, worshipful master; William McCluggage, senior warden; Lawrence G. Drescher, junior warden; Everett H. Hiscox, treasurer; George H. Prior, secretary. The other officers are appointive, and are selected later.

FINDS OLD PICTURE OF WILLIAM McNICOL HOME

(Special to The Bulletin)

Jewett City, Dec. 2.—A picture has come to light which had been used as a book mark. It is the property of Andrew McNicol. The subject of the photograph is the house and a part of the grounds where William McNicol now lives. The present generation, always think of this home as the Dwight Tracy house. Remarkable for the natural beauty of architecture, it stands from gable to sill, a fair model of the builders' art of 1828, the time of its construction.

The photograph in question was taken shortly after the late Archie McNicol purchased the property and improved and beautified it in many ways.

Mainly by the building on the southern side of a broad piazza extending across the entire front. The picture, at first a simple likeness of the house came under the skill of a master hand at color tinting, no less a person than Archie McNicol himself. The delicate pink color of the brick is brought to notice, the blinds were touched with olive green while the delicate tracery of yellow along the fences and house trimming, goes to make a rural home picture unsurpassed.

The house was built 96 year ago by Esquire Elisha Partridge and has the distinction of being one of the three old time residence built in Griswold of brick which were made on the "place."

The Napoleon "Bony" Campbell house near Lawton Village, was brick first, but years ago a fastidious owner encased it with wood and clapboards. None that pass today ever suspect that home made brick went into its original construction.

The John Clark place, made famous by Amanda Spaulding Hall of Norwich in her story "The Little Red House Under the Hill," is also made of brick which were fashioned by the architects of another age, in the hollow of the swamp below the house.

ANNUAL MEETING OF QUINEBAUG CAMP ASSO.

(Special to The Bulletin)

Jewett City, Dec. 1.—The Quinebaug Camping Association, Inc., held its annual meeting Monday evening. The following directors were elected: H. G. Willis, Eudor LeClaire, Herbert Thompson, Tyler Gilbert, James H. Shea, Ben Schelifer, William McNicol, George S. Brown, Arthur LeClaire, Charles Maynard, Edward Blanchard.

It is now proposed to increase the price of the shares and offer four more for sale. From a small beginning, with H. G. Willis as the pioneer camp builder, this beautiful colony on the eastern bank of the Upper Quinebaug has increased to nearly two dozen model summer homes. The site would permit of little improvement, and few there are who make their first visit that who are not anxious to repeat the pleasure.

The owners of the camps fairly vie with each other to see who shall be the leader in hospitality summer evenings with its setting of pine and oak, and the high land overlooking the river, with the hills of Canterbury in the distance, the spot suggests itself to owners and visitors alike as ideal.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theater

Rupert Hughes has discussed a daring theme cleverly, subtly and in original manner in his latest cinema production, True As Steel, now showing at the Breed theater. The result is one of the most entertaining pictures of the year.

The title, True As Steel, is taken from a sub-title in the film, in which the business woman, asked by the "other man" if she loves her husband, says:

"I am as true as steel to him. Steel bends—but always returns to the straight when the pressure is released.

The story is told without the use of melodrama, lurid situations or a superabundance of bokum.

Aileen Pringle, the Goldwyn discovery, whose work in the picturization of Elinor Glyn's Three Weeks, started her on the way to fame, enhances her record of film achievements with the leading part in True As Steel. Huntly Gordon, in the leading part opposite her, gives another of his excellent characterizations of the sedate business man.

Coming to The Bread

And now comes to the screen the greatest romance in American history, Barbara Frietchie, a Regal production, which will be shown here for the first time next Sunday when it comes to the Bred theater. Through the near perfection of screen technique, this famous story is made to unfold on the silver sheet with a realism that carries the audience back through history to Civil war days, for it is endowed with qualities of feminine subtlety, sweetness and delicacy so often missing in modern tales of love. And certainly, romance was never faced by greater obstacles than the love of Barbara Frietchie and Will Trumbull, which proved greater than the principles that divided north and south and stood the test not only of separation, but of actual conflict between the girl's brother and sweetheart.

Broadway Theater

A clever blending of music, comedy, song, dance and comedy is on the program that opens Thursday at the Broadway theater. It is as fine a program of Keith vaudeville as can be asked for.

In marriage between a woman or man of the stage to a person who is not of the theatrical world bound to be unsuccessful? Newspaper accounts of the tremendous number of divorces following such marriages would lead one to suspect so. A new aspect of the case is presented in Pal O' Mine, a dramatic, enthralling motion picture offering which comes to the Broadway theater on Thursday. A popular young woman with a beautiful voice is much sought after for the operatic stage, but she sacrifices her career to marry an ambitious young business man who does not approve of the profession. Irene Rich is the star of this production and is supported by a well known cast.

Broadway Theater

Pola Negri comes to the Broadway theater next Sunday in the Paramount picture, Forbidden Paradise, an Ernst Lubitsch production which features Rod La Rocque, Adolphe Menjou and Pauline Starke in the all-star supporting cast.

Forbidden Paradise, adapted from the Broadway success, The Czarina, a fine comedy-drama, is an up-to-date story of a small European kingdom.

This picture is Ernst Lubitsch's first production starring Pola Negri since his arrival in this country and is said to far outclass anything either ever did on the other side.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Supt. Robert T. Hurley of the state police department is going to motor over from Hartford to Brooklyn on Thursday evening to deliver an address at the first meeting of a newly organized Men's Organization in Brooklyn. It is planned to have a large attendance of men from Brooklyn and vicinity. A supper is to be served at 6.30.

The formation of the Brooklyn Men's Club follows quickly upon a meeting held there last Friday evening when fifteen men sat down to a dinner in the chapel of the Congregational church. Rev. William C. Prentiss of Plainfield spoke of the Lincoln club in that place and there was an informal discussion relative to forming a club in Brooklyn. There was so much enthusiasm that it was decided to form a club at once.

Danielson has certain qualifications to making fame for camels. It can get along without water for a considerable period of time—and not drink anything else meanwhile. It did it Tuesday. The borough gave its demonstration of ability to resist a dry spell without exhibiting any undue symptoms of getting along without something it is accustomed to have in abundance. Outwardly, it did not seem to mind it at all.

There was a period of four hours and ten minutes Tuesday during which the entire water supply of the borough was cut off, while connections were being made at Judd avenue with the new line of 16-inch main that has been installed during the past few weeks between Elmville and that point. The water company had given due notice of its plans and before the gate that cut off the water was closed at 10 o'clock in the morning about everyone took a good long drink and faced the future with confidence. Water from the supply in the mains continued to come through for a considerable time after that at many points in the borough, but this gain was later offset by awaiting the filling of the mains below the new connection after the water was turned on again at 2.10 p. m.

It was observed by numbers in the late afternoon that the volume of water appeared better and at the office of the water company it was said that the flow, while from the same reservoir, should come with less friction now that the new pipe line is in service. The work that has been done by the company is carried out in advance of plans of the state highway department to build a concrete roadway along the route between the northerly line of the borough and Attawaugan, to which point a concrete road is being built from Putnam.

Armsful of envelopes, each bearing a Christmas club check from the Windham County National bank, were dumped into the mails here late Tuesday afternoon as a complete surprise to those who have been in this bank's club during the past year.

The release was made a week to ten days earlier than is customary each December and made without any prior announcement of what was to be done. Many thousands of dollars are represented in this first distribution of the about $100,000 of [illegible] to be released here this [illegible] are in [illegible] and range from $12.- [illegible] They go toward making Christmas a happy period for hundreds of people, lessening for them the burdens of expense attached to Christmas shopping, inasmuch as the cost thereof is spread over a year, instead of crowded into a fortnight of spending from funds in hand. This may be entirely psychological, but the club members will tell you that it is a special delight of their own at this time of year. Only a percentage of the checks were delivered on Tuesday evening, so there are interesting envelopes awaiting many of the bank's club members at the office this morning or will come to them when the carriers make their first deliveries.

For a part of Tuesday afternoon traffic through lower Main street was detoured while a frame building was moved off the Augustus Longo property and up through Main to Railroad square, where it is to be set on a location on the F. A. Davis property.

Motorists continue to find the delays, which are sometimes long drawn out, irksome in getting through Plainfield, where state highway construction is underway. Delays as long as half an hour have been experienced by some drivers when traffic is heavy. The holdup there is unavoidable, however.

Having saved the trees from the danger of forest fires through the long period of drought, the next problem will be to save some of them again from the pillaging of Christmas tree hunters, who are already about getting a line on some tree to be cut off others' properties a fortnight hence.

At the Standard Oil company's storage plant on Mechanic street another big metal container is being erected to meet the local needs of the big corporation. A force of men is engaged on the construction work.

William McDermott, who has been in Michigan and other western states for several months as a salesman of securities, is expected at his home here for the Christmas holiday season.

Aunt Clarissa Lends Her Heirlooms of Two Centuries will be the subject of a lecture to be given this (Wednesday) afternoon before the members of the Killingly Woman's club by Mrs. M. Gertrude Cutter.

Despite his advanced years he has been active and in good health, attending church services twice the day before his death. His daughter, Miss Mary Wilbur, teaches school in the Sawyer district. When she left home Monday morning her father was apparently as well as usual. When the laundryman called a little later he found Mr Wilbur lying on the floor in a semi-conscious condition. Summoning a neighbor, Pierre H. Myers, they got him onto a couch and a physician was called.

The greater part of his life was spent in Abington as a farmer. Three years ago he bought the residence of the late Frederic J. Daniels and he and his daughter moved into it.

Besides Miss Mary Wilbur there are two other daughters, Mrs. Edward Wood of this city and Mrs. Herbert Sive of Abington.

Mrs. Frances A. Barrett, wife of Hiram L. Barrett, died Monday evening, December 1, at nine o'clock at their home on Grandview, in her 80th year.

Three weeks ago her husband, who is 86, left the house on a brief errand and when he returned he found Mrs. Barrett lying on the floor of the kitchen breathing with difficulty. A physician was summoned and she soon regained consciousness. She rallied from the attack but after a few days her strength failed and she sank gradually until the end.

Mrs. Barrett was born March 17, 1845, in Woodstock. Had she lived a few months longer she would have been married for 63 years.

Her husband, a Civil war veteran, has been a resident of Putnam for many years. There are six children who survive, Emma, wife of Fred Hill, and Mary, wife of Lewis H. Williams, both of this city; Walter and Irving, both of whom live in South Manchester, Clarence Barrett of Hartford and Owen Barrett of Providence.

At the regular meeting of the town school committee Monday evening, resolutions were adopted commending the directors of the Citizens National bank for their public spirited action in guaranteeing the return in full of the money the school children had on deposit in the First National bank. The resolutions said that the Putnam Town School Committee expressed its sincere appreciation of the generosity and public spirit of the directors of the Citizens National bank as manifested in their offer as individuals to guarantee to all children having accounts in the School Savings System of the First National bank the full amount of their savings. This action in the opinion of the committee will re-establish in the children confidence in the value of thrift that will have a lasting good effect.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Knight entertained eight tables of bridge whist at their home in Webster Monday evening for the benefit of Jessamine chapter, Order of the Eastern Star of Putnam. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Hiram S. Whipple, Mr. and Mrs. James McCollough, Mr. and Mrs. Justin S. Greene, Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Ilji, Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Talbott, Mrs. Walter Phillips and Miss Anna Leavitt, all of Putnam, and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Watson, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Maitland, Mr. and Mrs. Olin Whiting, and Mrs. Elliott, all of Thompson.

The first prizes were won by Mrs. Maitland and Mr. Watson. Refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs. Knight were residents of Thompson until a few weeks ago, and Mrs. Knight was the last matron of Jessamine chapter.

Mrs. Samuel Rosoff entertained a small party Saturday afternoon at her home on Pleasant street for guests, Mrs. M. Hortstein of Far Rockaway, Long Island. Those present were, Mrs. S. Lesser, Mrs. A. Lowenthal, Mrs. N. Sosorenko and Miss Anna Sosorenko, all of Providence, and Mrs. J. A. F. Gagne and Mrs. R. Lesser and Mrs. Jacob Alpert, of Putnam. Auction bridge was played and Mrs. Gagne won the first prize. Mrs. Lesser the second, and the consolation prize went to Mis Sosorenko. Refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Rafferey of Grove street have had as guests over the week end Miss Virginia Arnold and Miss Natalie Arnold of Bridgeport, their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Rafferty, now in the office of State Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald at Hartford, and James Crawford of Bridgeport. Miss Natalie Arnold is a student at Laurelton Hall at Milford, a former classmate of Miss Rafferty.

Since the supply of tickets for the minstrel show to be given by Putnam High School students on Friday evening of this week has already been exhausted, arrangements have been made to repeat the show on next Tuesday evening, at the school auditorium. A third performance will be given at the Abington hall, Abington, on Wednesday evening, December 17. The school athletic association will profit from all three.

The town school committee has voted to accept the proposition of a local ice cream manufacturer to furnish the school children who ask ten per cent. under normal weight one-fifth of a quart of ice cream every school day for three months free of charge.

This has been tried in New London schools, it is said, with very good results. There are 114 such children in the public schools. Fifteen at Smith street, sixty-one at Israel Putnam and thirty-eight at the Putnam High school.

O. F. Smith, sub-master at Putnam High school, has been engaged as a coach for the baseball team. Practice to begin in the spring.

Jerome W. Andrews of Farrows street, Putnam, is to receive a second lieutenant's commission in the officers' reserve corps of the United States army, according to an announcement made by Brigadier General John D. Barrette, acting corps area commander for New England.

He is a son of Bertram Andrews, who has been a rural free delivery carrier for several years. He graduated from Putnam High school in the class of 1922 and for the past three years attended the citizens' military training school at Plattsburg, N. Y.

Miss Ann Boni of Millers Falls, Mass., and Miss Catherine Sazio of Agawam, Mass., are two new nurses at the hospital.

Deputy Sheriff Charles E. Ayer of Dayville has served a writ of attachment on property owned by Samuel Smith and James Aframe on South Main street on complaint of the Danielson Trust company. This Danielson bank, which had a branch office in Putnam during the period in which this city had no commercial bank of its own, claims that on October 19 of this year Smith and Aframe borrowed money of it and gave tow notes totalling $3,000, payable one month after date.

The attachment is for $3,500. Attorney M. H. Geissler is counsel for the plaintiff company. The action is made returnable to the Windham county superior court on the first Tuesday of January.

Ralph C. Jenkins, superintendent of the Putnam schools will be given time off and expenses paid to attend the annual meeting of the National Educational Association, department of superintendents, to be held in Cincinnata, Ohio, in February.

PLAINFIELD

A crew of the state construction department dragged the cement mixer from the state highway to the depot yard where it will rest until next spring when work is resumed on the state highway. Nearly two miles of cement has been laid and the road will be open for traffic on both sides of the road in twenty one days. The new road is open from Snyders house on the state highway to Bishop's Crossing.

Mr. and Mrs. Adelard Gobille motored to Willimantic where they visited Miss Cecell Garand who is confined to her home with illness.

Miss Agatha Burdick will address the students of Plainfield High Wednesday evening in the high school auditorium. Promises for a real good time are in store as the students are all enthused over this address on Alaska.

The Girls' Basketball team of the high school went through a real hard practice this afternoon. Coaches Collins and Puedon report favorably on the progress of the team.

A senior class play rehearsal was held Tuesday afternoon. The coaches Miss Violet and Dodd, say that the play "Seventeenth", will prove a big success.

Armond Lacourse has arrived in town having served a cruise in the U. S. Navy. He was formerly of the U. S. S. Tennessee, and held the rate of a petty officer second class. Mr. Lacourse has a position with the Lawton Mill corporation.

At a recent meeting of the fire department of the village of Moosup the members of the fire department elected a new house committee consisting of Messrs. George Roy; Arthur Dubois, Renald Sargent; Leo Maynard; Edward Belodeau. A sick committee was appointed consisting of Messrs. Sam King; A. Laperle; Irving Barba; and Otto Fry. The entertainment committee was augmented by the addition of Messrs. Napoleon Fournier and George Mackenzie. The real live entertainments are scheduled for the coming winter. The fire department is anticipating the biggest event of the year, a big first annual Grand Ball in the near future. Plans are under way for securing a much needed want —a fire alarm system.

The village of Plainfield can watch with great interest and a little envy as the fire departments of other villages of the town are getting the real hearty support of practically every citizen of their village. If the people of Wauregan, Moosup and Central Village can make their town safe and sound with a real fire department surely Plainfield can go one step further.

Frank Carlson visited friends in Providence over the week end.

A crew of men from the Lightning Rod Company of Boston were working on the mill chimneys. These chimneys are one hundred and fifty-nine feet high and the men say that it sure was very breezie up there installing the new lightning rods. The men have four feet of slanting space to walk around and from the village the workers resemble pigmies.

A new radio set has tuned in on the stations as H. Betterman has a new three tube set installed in his home.

Earle and Clifford Gerad, who have been in the employe of the National Pavement Company, on road construction, have returned to New Haven to spend the winter.

All work has been discontinued on the cement laying on the Plainfield highway as the pump which supplied water to the cement mixer froze up and part of the mechanism was made useless as a result. The pipe line from the pump to the mixer froze as the flow of water ceased when the pump went out. If the weather permits more work will be done on the highway, otherwise work will be suspended until spring.

F. J. Rapperman was a business caller in town Tuesday.

John MacNally, former long distant runner in this state was a recent visitor at the home of Mr. Jacob Wechsler.

D. D. Jodwin is in the employ of the Lawton Mill Company store.

Miss Josephine Armstrong, assistant principal of the Plainfield high school addressed the students of the eighth grade on Why They Should Attend the Address to be Given by Miss Agatha Burdick, at the High School Auditorium.

Miss Mae Geary has returned to her home having successfully undergone a major operation. She was confined at the Memorial Hospital.

George Longfellow, who will be remembered by many of the lod timers of Plainfield, as he built the new mill for the Lawton Mill Corporation many years ago, now of Boston, sent word to Mrs. Leon Maynard an announcement of his marriage to Miss Lena Pratte of South Hadley, Mass. Mr. Longfellow was very prominent among the townsmen during his long stay in Plainfield.

The Fire Department committee, with Mr. Jacob Wechsler as chairman reports much progress along the new equipment for the fire apparatus. Mr. Wechsler promises to make public within a few days a big report of the progress.

Mr. and Mrs. James Todin of Pawtucket were visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Greens recently.

John Ledoux of Norwich has spent a few days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ovila Charron.

A big squad of men are answering the call for candidates for the high school basketball team. Coach Emery certainly does feel confident over the men who have answered the call. A big team is the cry among the students. They are hoping for a champ team to defend their school.

Henry Varieur motored to Providence Tuesday where he spent the day.

Henry Vincent who was in the Bluevillo accident is recovering slowly from injuries received.

The Carding room of the mill will commence work today Wednesday having been closed down since last Tuesday.

Uclide Varieur and Arthur Radcliffe were callers in Woonsocket, Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Pouquet of North Grosvenordale were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mercier of the Old Village, Tuesday.

HANDLING "DEAD" LETTERS.

According to the report of the postmaster general there were 21,-818,168 letters sent to the dead letter office during the year. In those letters there was found money to the total of nearly $126,000, of which over $70,000 was restored to the owners, while the value of the drafts, money orders and checks found reached the total of over $3,546,000.

Were you a contributor to work deposit upon the dead letter office? No, is to be realized that the letters that were sent to that office were but a small proportion of the total number handled by the postoffice department during the year, but they nevertheless furnished much business for a considerable force, before they reached there as well as afterward.

The dead letter office receives the mail that cannot be delivered. It may be due to incorrect addresses, writing that cannot be deciphered or the failure on the part of the writer to place his address in the upper left-hand corner of the letter. Whatever the circumstances it reveals a situation that ought not to exist. The idea of considering postal employes as mind readers, knowing just where a letter should go even though there's a wrong address to guide them, is the height of carelessness. Perhaps there may be letters where it makes little difference whether they get to their destination or not, but that can hardly be the case with those which contain money or checks.

Only a small idea of the lack of attention that is given to the addressing of mail matter is to be gained from the work of the dead letter office. Much of it can be and is straightened out by the regular postal employes, but the deplorable part is that such dependence is placed upon the clerks and carriers when those upon whom the responsibility rests of providing full and complete addresses regard their duty so lightly. There are bound to be mistakes but with 50,000 letters going to the dead letter office daily a little more care would permit this employment of the funds required for that office being employed for different service.

THAT WILD CLAIM.

When Senator La Follette raised the great cry about a $12,000,000 slush fund to be used by the republicans for the purpose of defeating him in certain states he was playing to the galleries. There wasn't any such thing and no effort to create such a fund had been made. It was one of those political methods of trying to injure the other fellow. Often gets a certain amount of credence from the gullible but which is judged for what it is recognized to be by the great majority.

What Senator La Follette attempted to do by such a claim in the recent campaign is only what Candidate Cox tried to do four years ago. In both instances such claims fell of their own weight because there was nothing to support them.

Following such a claim, the investigation that was made concerning it and the failure to find anything resembling the terrible condition, it is interesting to note that the treasurer of the republican fund shows that there was a total of $3,062,952 spent during the campaign and that there is a surplus remaining of a trifle over a third of a million. This means that the republicans practically kept within the sum of three million which had been set as the amount necessary to run the campaign, and a sum which was much smaller than used in the conduct of previous national contests.

That there should be such a showing at this time is only what there was reason to expect. La Follette was fanning the air when he talked about a "slush" fund or the raising of $12,000,000. Apparently he figured that as long as he was going to resort to this political dodge in an effort to win votes for himself he might as well make the claim a big one.

La Follette fell into the same ditch that others have done before him, that of knowing too much that wasn't so. Under the circumstances it is not strange that he could not prove the charges that he made. It was a wild claim, just as it was branded at the time.

DEBT PAYMENT.

What must be regarded as steps preliminary to the reaching of an agreement between this country and France for the funding of the war debt have been taken by Ambassador Jusserand. The negotiations have not progressed to the point where there is any definite agreement, but it is evident that France has gotten where it sees the wisdom of coming to an understanding, and where the outlook in connection with the European situation is such as to warrant it in making such a move.

Talk of cancellation has ceased. It is apparently realized that this country has no intention of any such action. With the interest on the money borrowed France now owes the United States about $4,000,000,000. It is not as large as the British bill but nearly so and at the rate of 5 per cent the interest is piling up rapidly.

According to the discussion France would like to have a moratorium for a period of four to ten years and a cutting in two of the rate. It would then like a period of 80 years in which to wipe out the debt. It would be noted in comparison with the British terms that this plan is more favorable to France, and because of it there are those who claim that the British would seek modification.

Inasmuch as no agreement has been reached concerning terms this is based solely upon conjecture. Of course the British have claims against France for loans and while they might not relish easier terms being offered to France than was allowed them, they cannot fail to realize that whatever is done to relieve the burden on debt paying by France will simply advance the day when the payment of France's debt to Great Britain can be started.

There's many a slip between the cup and lip but the preliminaries indicate that France will soon get down to brass tacks concerning the debt payment, and without being pressed. That would leave Italy as the one big country which has not taken such steps.

HANDLING VICE.

There are times when vice conditions get so bad that drastic action is required to clean up communities. The first of this year it was the city of Philadelphia which found that law enforcement had gotten to such a low ebb and the authorities were subservient to other forces than those of law and order that a new order of things was necessary and General Butler was called in from the marine corps to become director of public safety. He hasn't found his job a path of roses and he hasn't accomplished all that was desired in the short time he thought it might be possible, but he has done remarkably well at a hard post.

The killing of the head of the vice squad in Schenectady has caused the mayor of that city to ask for the resignation of police officials and to serve notice that that city is going to be cleaned up, even if it is necessary to go outside to get some leader to do it. The intimation is that certain ones high up in authority in that city have been working hand in hand with the criminals and law breakers. It is not a disclosure that pleases any community, and it is most unfortunate that the murder of the leader of the vice squad was necessary in order to open the eyes of the mayor and the city.

Schenectady is late in, waking up to the conditions which exist within its limits. Vice and crime have apparently been rampant. If we are to judge by statements attributed to the murdered man they were virtually licensed. Schenectady is tardy in its housecleaning but it should make up for the lateness by doing a thorough job. It is no time for a mere flourish but an honest to goodness clean up.

ALIEN BOOTLEGGERS.

Much attention has been attracted by the part which aliens have played in connection with the violation of the prohibition and narcotic laws. Apparently the arrests and penalties imposed have not served to reduce the number participating in such activities if we are to judge by the bill which has been introduced in congress calling for the deportation of the aliens who are convicted of violating or conspiring to violate statutes of the country or any state dealing with the manufacture, sale, transportation or importation of intoxicating liquors or of opium and its derivatives, and in which cases a sentence of a year or more is imposed, or upon a second conviction in case the sentence is the first case is for less than one year.

This means the imposition of a penalty that may make a different impression than the small fine or a short jail sentence. Just as long as it can be regarded as entailing no more than would be involved if a license was paid the bootleggers can be expected to keep busy and do a big business. There is no distinction between the alien and the citizen. Perhaps the former is much more disposed to show disrespect for the law. If that is so, the proposed federal law threatening deportation would have the effect of ridding the country of an element which can hardly be regarded as desirable. It would be discrimination in favor of the citizen, but it is to be realized that the proposal of such a law is by no means the same thing as writing it on the statute books.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

With the Christmas seals being put on sale it is evident that the great holiday isn't far away.

Might just as well give December a proper welcome. It might take kindly to a show of interest.

Interest today will center in what the president has to say to congress and indirectly to the country.

The man on the corner says: Too many people overlook the opportunity to laugh when the world laughs.

Senator Smoot calls for a business rather than a political session of congress. May the call not fall upon deaf ears.

When you buy Christmas seals it is rendering a service to the unknown, but one that contributes greatly to the crushing of the white plague.

Are the democrats going to kill the fatted calf now that Senator Wheeler has announced that he is still a democrat? Or don't they really believe him?

When George Bernard Shaw says that Great Britain has ruined the league of nations that of course relieves Uncle Sam of similar charges made against him.

When you have mastered all the cross word puzzles a new style of mind exercise can be practiced by endeavoring to grasp the explanations of the rotor ship.

IN SPITE OF SCHEMES

Every girl in town, casting her eyes upon Doody Burnfire, was conscious of great exasperation that the Burnfire fortune, prestige and eventual estate were wasted on Doody!

He was just an ordinary appearing chap of 5 feet seven, slight, modest and scared to death of girls. Nobody really knew what he really was like, because all he did was to prowl about the laboratory that his father had built for him on the side of the hill on the Burnfire grounds, and whenever his mother gave a party and he was obliged to show up he had an abnormal faculty for surrounding himself with a barrage of the older men through which no determined girl could penetrate.

"There's just no sense to it!" snapped little redheaded Jessica Finch to herself when she first turned over in her agile mind the advantages of being Mrs. Doody. She meant Doody's persistence in bachelorhood. She jabbed her powderpuff in three vicious pats on nose and cheeks and then proceeded to smooth down the result. "I like his eyes," she said. Somehow she thought more about Doody's eyes than his eventual checkbook and it was a pity he did not know this, because he ran from Jessica true to form.

Jessica, however, was a girl who seemed able to block ways of escape and she did it so prettily, so breezily and attractively that Doody occasionally found himself really embarking on conversations with her, amused and at ease. When he was twice seen talking with the sparkling and effervescent Jessica it caused a mild sensation in town and feminine hordes flew to arms.

The Whipples' visiting cousin looked on and smiled, alive to the situation and its possibilities. Lillian was beautiful in an insolent, chic fashion and her enemies called her a man-eater.

They came when she snapped her fingers, but a careful study of Doody at his mother's annual garden party convinced her that snapping fingers at the Burnfire heir would result only in wearing them to the bone with no results. Almost everything had been tried on Doody except insulting him. Lillian took a long breath and set about being as actively antagonistic and insulting to Doody as a resourceful girl might be. Doody blinked once, gasped twice and fell to heel. He seemed fascinated, oblivious to spectators. Wherever Lillian was there also was young Mr. Burnfire.

Jessica held her glowing head high and proceeded on her way gallantly, with a smile. Any ache of the heart or tear in the eye were indulged in privately, if there were any such tributes to Doody Burnfire. Rather bitterly she reflected that he the man who he might be he didn't care for the real friendly gal came—the vamp with a "line" won out every time. There was a little jab at her heart when she recalled Doody's eyes as they had talked together. Why, she had even dared to begin to think that—

Jessica sat humped over on the garden seat way out among the rose bushes one dim, fragrant evening, just thinking. Things had seemed to go a little fast and she could not enjoy racing along with the old crowd as usual. Left alone she was letting herself get it fixed in her mind that Doody with his nice, kind soul and ignorance of the ins and outs of wily ladies, was about to throw himself away on a calculating, scheming, shallow girl who would be bored with his laboratory first and with Doody next. Jessica wiped away a trickling tear.

There were quick steps on the gravel and a brisk, determined figure rounded the bushes, dropped down beside her and tucked her head on his shoulder all in one move. Doody Burnfire spoke without the least hesitation.

"Where have you kept yourself all these days?" he demanded. "You've melted away like quicksilver on sight and I've been having the darnedest time trying to run you down with that female caveman on my trail blocking all exits. I can't live without you, Jessica! Tell me you like me a little bit!"

"Well, what would your keen, scientific brain deduce in regard to that?" murmured Jessica, staying exactly where she was, inside his right arm. —Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Charles Downer Hazen, who has been elected to membership in the American Academy of Arts and letters, is an eminent historian, for a number of years connected with Columbia University. To many nonacademic people he is perhaps best known as the author of Europe Since 1815. Professor Hazen is a native of Vermont, who found his way to Dartmouth college, where he graduated in 1889. Then he pursued his specialty abroad in the universities of Paris, Berlin and Gottingen. He won his doctorate Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore. Smith college, at Northampton, Mass., called him to teach history to its girls, and while there, from 1894 to 1914, he not only was successful as a teacher but was prolific as an author. After leaving Smith College he lectured on history at Johns Hopkins and then, in 1916, joined the Columbia University faculty. As an author he has unusual canacity to compress a narrative without taking out of it all color or vivacity.

Nash Had to Give up Farming

Just when success as a farmer seemed possible for Charles W. Nash, he had to move to the city because his wife's health was not sufficiently robust to endure life in the country.

Twenty-eight years of age and the father of three, he faced the task of finding work in a new sphere. His father had been a farmer near Flint, Mich. Charles had received little schooling and had been forced to fight his way since he was thrown on his own resources early in his teens.

His first job had been with a farmer, who gave him his board and a suit of clothes and three months' tuition in the country school each year. After four years of hard work, he ran away. Next working as a carpenter's helper, he received $7 a month. Then came the call of the farm once more, and he went with a new employer who paid him $1 a month more.

Showing ability at 18 to manage others, he developed as a farmer. Marrying at 20, he established a home and success seemed assured. Then his wife's frail health changed his plans.

Obtaining work as clerk of a grocery store in Flint he picked plums for J. Dallas Dort, the vehicle manufacturer, to earn extra money. His ability in the orchard attracted Dort, who got him a job in the trimming department of the Flint Road Cart Company. Six months later Nash was made foreman of the shop.

With his slight book learning, his muscle and his ability to turn out work, Nash at 30 looked as if he had surely found his level in life.

The Durant-Dort Company took over the factory, which became the largest vehicle plant in the world. Nash's production ideas were so effective that he was made vice-president and general manager.

When the old Buick company, in which the Durant-Dort company was heavily interested, began to meet reverses, Nash was induced to become general manager. He put it on its feet and was made president and general manager of the General Motors Corporation.

In 1916 he grasped his opportunity to buy the Jeffery Manufacturing Company, which he changed to the Nash Company, and built to its present success.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

IRELAND'S TWO STATES

"The complicated Irish boundary question, now stirring Ireland and England, has numerous aspects, anyone of which might be responsible for the present disagreements," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

The bulletin deals with the region along the boundary line between the Irish Free State, or southern Ireland, and Ulster or northern Ireland. The desire of the Free State to add to its territory portions of the counties of Tryone and Fermanagh, as it has already added the former Ulster counties of Monoghan, Donegal and Cavan, constitutes the present problem. Ulster is unwilling to surrender the additional territory.

"Ulster, in the northeastern corner of Ireland, is in the odd position of being a part of Ireland which is in large part not Irish," says the bulletin. "Three hundred years ago the British King James I, with the desire to Anglicize a part of Ireland, decided to 'plant' a colony of English and Scotch. What is known as the Ulster Plantation followed.

"Other 'plantations' had been attempted in southern Ireland without accomplishing anything save suffering to the natives and loss to the 'undertakers,' as the imported landlords were termed. But the Ulster Plantation took root and flourished.

"The original plan of the king to have English settlers dominant in Ulster; but he also permitted the Scotch to participate. English settlers were not easily interested, however, while the Scotch flocked in, making the Plantation dominantly Scottish. By 1660 the population of Ulster consisted of some 50,000 inhabitants of Scotch blood, 5,000 of English ancestry, and 40,000 Irish. Altogether probably about 100,000 Scotsmen moved to Ulster. The English were soon merged with the Scotch but the Irish and Scotch strains remained almost entirely independent.

"Ulster differs economically from the rest of Ireland. Either the Scotch immigrants had a greater propensity toward industry or their economic conditions were more favorable. At any rate Ulster has become the marked industrial region of Ireland while the remainder of the country, save in the larger cities, has not followed this line of development.

"There is a religious difference, too, between North and South Ireland. Ireland, including Ulster, was Catholic. The Scotch immigrants brought their Presbyterian religion with them and it became firmly rooted. The English government favored the established Church of England and this is also strong in Ulster. The Presbyterians and the Episcopalians combined today tip the scale in Ulster to the side of Protestantism. But the margin is not great.

"Physically Ulster has a greater proportion of highland than most other parts of Ireland, but a large part of the land is in cultivation. Flax is seen everywhere, especially in the eastern counties, in the neighborhood of Belfast, the great world center of the linen industry.

"The present border between the Irish Free State and the State of Northern Ireland, created in 1920 and 1921 extends through a rather rough country. Dundalk on the east coast, is just south of the line. Near this city is one of the passes through the hills used since earliest times in Ireland; and because of this situation Dundalk's neighborhood has been the scene of numerous battles. Farther west the boundary touches the long, deep valley in which lies Lough Erne, the longest and the next largest lake in Ireland. The island's largest lake, Lough Neagh, lies in the heart of Ulster east of Belfast.

"Formerly Ulster consisted of the northern tier of counties from coast to coast. When the two self-governing states were formed, however, Donegal largest of the Ulster countries occupying the northwestern corner of Ireland, was attached to the Free State. The boundary of the state of Northern Ireland, therefore, does not now reach the Atlantic but turns at its southwestern corner a few miles short of the coast and runs northeastward between Donegal on the west and Fermanagh, Tyrone and Londonderry on the east to Lough Foyle, an inlet at the very top of the island. The state of Northern Ireland, therefore, occupies only a small segment in the northeastern corner of Ireland. Readjustment of the boundary as desired by the Free States would concentrate the northern division still closer into the northeast corner.

"Though small in territory the State of Northern Ireland has a concentrated population. Its area is less than one-sixth that of Ireland but it contains more than a quarter of the island's inhabitants.

"The United States has more than an academic interest in all that affects Ireland. Two of the most important streams of immigration that have reached America came from the island; one of the socalled Scotch-Irish from Ulster; the other, the Irish from south of the Ulster line. The Scotch-Irish early felt the weight of repressive English laws both in the religious and economic field. They began emigrating to America in large numbers during the latter part of the 18th century and it is estimated that they made up one-sixth of all the colonists by the time of the American Revolution. They were prominent in that struggle and later became the frontiersmen, playing an important part in winning the Middle West and the west.

"The main stream of immigration from Southern Ireland took place in the 19th century. The genius of the newcomers for politics has made itself felt in local, state and national governments."

A Little Talk on Thrift

Saving Money, Only Beginning of Thrift

Abraham Lincoln once said that economy begins with saving money. What he had in mind was the great truth that in thrift the first steps consist of laying aside money, but that these primary practices do not constitute thrift in its entirety.

Current events emphasize the need of widespread thrift education. There are thousands who have made the start by saving money, but unfortunately their thrift education got no further. As a result one reads in the papers almost daily of the exposure of individuals who have despoiled the cherished savings that grew penny by penny in many cases through a long term of years. No greater tragedies appear on the pages of fiction than many of the stories of these misguided persons whose lifetime accumulations are swept away.

It is unfortunate that in much of the so called thrift work in this country encouragement has been given only to the saving of money. One cannot, of course, say aught of such advice, excepting that it does not go far enough.

Let the nation learn the words of Lincoln that "economy begins with saving money," but let us emphasize the fact that Lincoln made use of the word begin. Saving money is only the beginning of thrift.

Judging by the reports in the newspapers from day to day one seems safe in assuming that there is a rising tide of unscrupulous practices based on insufficient popular understanding of personal economics.

A great public duty confronts us all in putting forth every effort to end these machinations. As much attention should be given to teaching the corect uses of money as is given to the encouragement of saving money. Simply to preach "Save!" "Save!" is not enough.

Wise spending and prudent investing constitute two-thirds of the problem of personal economics. Successful saving is the other third.—American Society for Thrift.

Stories That Recall Others

Easy For Jimmy.

Jimmy was only seven. He had never been to school before, and it was with a very nervous feeling that his mother left him in charge of the teacher on the first day.

He appeared to be very much interested and was very attentive to everything that the teacher said to him. It was during the afternoon session that she asked:

"Jimmy, how many fingers have you?"

That was an easy one to Jimmy. Holding up both hands, fingers outspread toward her, he exclaimed:

"There you are. Count 'em."

He'll Make His Way.

Fred is not out of the grade school. It was the night of a basketball game and Fred was enthusiastically talking of the contest when his father inquired whether he had the price of admission for the evening. The son replied in the negative. His father asked how he thought he could get in.

"That's easy, dad, you see I'll back in and the doorkeeper will think I'm coming out."

About 8,500 Chinese umbrellas were shipped from Peking for the use of the Kiangsu soldiers in the fighting in the Shanghai district. It is said that one soldier digs trenches while another holds an umbrella over him, and marching soldiers, in couples, take turns at carrying umbrellas.

WEDDINGS.

Green-Davoll

There was a pretty wedding Saturday afternoon at the First Congregational church, Mansfield Center, when Miss Mildred A. Davoll, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Davoll, became the bride of Myron E. Green, son of James E. Green of Mansfield Depot. The ceremony was performed by Rev. T. Hawthorne Jones, the double ring service being used. Miss Ruth Davoll, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and Miss Blanche Davoll, younger sister of the bride, and Miss L. Anne Green, sister of the groom, were bridesmaids. Fenelon McCollum of Mansfield Depot was best man and the ushers were Willard Stearns and Jesse Inman. The bride wore white crepe de chine with voile and carried a bouquet of roses and sweet peas. The maid of honor wore only green silk and carried yellow chrysanthemums. The bridesmaids wore pale yellow silk and carried yellow chrysanthemums. During the ceremony Miss Frances Crane, pianist, and Rexford Crane, violinist, played softly. The church was beautifully decorated with hemlock trees and chrysanthemums. After the wedding ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, about sixty attending. Guests were present from Chicago, New York, Providence, Groton, Columbia, Andover, Mansfield Depot, Eagleville, Chaplin, Wormwood Hill and South Willington. The bride and groom left for a wedding trip after which they will be at home in their newly purchased and furnished house in Coventry, near Mansfield Depot.

The bride is a graduate of Windham High school and Lawrence Memorial Hospital, New London, and has for many years been a resident of Mansfield, where she was always active in church community affairs.

MORE BIDDERS MAKING OFFERS TO BUY CITY'S GAS AND ELECTRIC PLANT

Possibly four or five bids to buy the city's gas and electric plant are to be opened Friday night by the special committee of the common council to which was referred a bid made several weeks ago by a Providence attorney, Mr. Brodell, which it is now disclosed by Mayor Milo R. Waters was on behalf of the Central Connecticut Electric Co., which operates electrical service in Haddam and Colchester and in a number of places in Rhode Island.

This offer was in substance to buy for $2,250,000 cash, or to buy at a valuation of $2,500,000 of which $1,750,000 would be in cash and the balance in notes extending over a 15 year period.

Since that offer was made the common council committee has asked Mr. Brodell to submit some further information which would clarify some of the points involved in the offer.

A new offer is to come from the Jersey Central Electrical Co., through its representative A. E. Fitkin, who has left his offer in the hands of J. J. Desmond as attorney. The terms of the offer are not yet known to Mayor Waters or the committee, but Mr. Desmond has given notice that he will have it on hand for them by Friday This company is a forty million dollar corporation that operates electric properties in Ohio, Indiana and Wisconsin and also on the west coast of Florida, where it is about to open up a new station at St. Petersburg.

There has also been received the offer of the Eastern Connecticut Power Co., which has declared its willingness to meet the terms which another prospective buyer would agree to.

Those making offers have already each deposited with the Thames National bank $50,000 in Liberty Bonds as guarantees of their sincerity.

Mayor Waters said Tuesday that he believes there may be two other offers, one of them coming from New York men who have been here and looked the city gas and electrical property over to determine upon a valuation.

In fact there have been representatives of several interests who have been looking the property over at different times during the last month, one of them having spent as much as $2,000 in the work they have done. Some of these would-be purchasers have not been heard from since their representatives left the city.

After receiving and opening the bids Friday night, Mayor Waters said he expected to call a special meeting of the common council for next Monday or Wednesday evening to hear the committee's report.

MERCIER ASSEMBLY HOLDS ITS ANNUAL ELECTION

A largely attended meeting of Mercier Assembly, No. 12, Catholic Ladies of Columbus, was held Tuesday evening in their rooms in the T. A. B. building with the president, Miss Mary H. Maloney, presiding and considerable important business transacted. It was voted to donate a sum of money to the sanatorium holiday fund and the Catholic Ladies of Columbus will take entire charge of the sale of Christmas seals in the three theatres of the city, this work to be under the direction of Mrs. James J. Casey as chairman.

Future events of much interest will be a meeting for initiation in Steiner hall on Sunday afternoon Dec. 14 and another Sunday afternoon meeting on Jan. 4, when the newly elected officers will be installed and the outgoing officers will be the entertainment committee for the day.

Two other events are to be a food sale under the direction of Mrs. Elizabeth O'Neil, chairman, and an evening of whist by the musical club.

The election of officers was held with the following result: President, Mrs. Thomas McVeigh; vice president, Mrs. Mary Murphy; recording secretary, Miss Mary Hamill; financial secretary, Miss Irene Day; treasurer, Miss Mary McCrohan; mistress at arms, Miss Minnie Mingo; assistant mistress at arms, Miss Lena O'Neil; sentinel, Miss Mary Mara. Three trustees and three auditors were also elected.

WEST END CLUB HOLDS BUSY MEETING

The West End Community association, with President Paul Brown in the chair, held its monthly meeting Tuesday evening in the Elizabeth street school auditorium and disposed of much business of community interest. A committee on new sidewalks was constituted to formulate a plan for new walks. Its members consist of C. E. Carpenter, M. L. Bergstresser and Charles F. Wells. Report was made by another committee that the city had started to put in a new catch basin at the corner of Mt. Pleasant and Champlin streets. Charles F. Wells reported for the committee on new fire station that conferences had been held with Chief Howard L. Stanton, and Fred L. Oat reported for the committee on extension of the trolley line to Maplewood cemetery that they were cooperating with the chamber of commerce.

An amendment to the constitution proposing to place boundaries for membership in the association was voted down and there will be no limits.

The welfare committee, consisting of Miss Marion Lathrop, Mrs. Eugene Calkins and Mrs. M. L. Bergstresser, reported that it was cooperating with charitable organizations to provide clothes for needy families and towards Christmas cheer. It had found a special need for clothing for infants and was appealing to have this need met on a day that will be set for receiving the donations and gifts.

The entertainment part of the evening was in charge of Mr. Oat and Mr. Latimer and consisted of a programme of old fashioned dances with community singing and refreshments.

It was announced that there would be a New Year's eve costume party for the members, who will have the priveleze of inviting friends. The committee in charge is to be Mrs. John McWilliams, Mrs. C. D. Joslyn, Mrs. Herman Pukallus, Mrs. Clarence Smith, Mrs. Frank I. Royce and Mrs. Eugene Calkins.

CHARGED WITH USING AUTO WITHOUT PERMISSION

On the charge of using an automobile without the owner's permission, Charles Yankowski alias Charles Young, of Asylum street was bound over to the superior court from the city court Monday morning. The complainant against him was Valentine Sebastian of 5 Sixth street and the testimony showed that about the middle of August Sebastian had placed his automobile for repairs at Yankowski's garage. The latter took the car for a trip to New York city, but at Rye, N. Y., had a collision in which three machines were involved and the total damages were about $1,000, of which $300 was to Sebastian's car. There have been several continuances in the city court in order to enable Yankowski to pay for the damages, but he has paid only $3.

Charged with obtaining goods under false pretenses, Edward B. Sheldon, 29, alleged constable of Ledyard, was also before the city court. Upon request of Public Defender Stewart, the case was continued until Dec. 15. The accused was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Oscar Main and brought to Norwich. Bonds of $500 were fixed to assure the appearance of the accused in court on the 15th. His father furnished the bail.

The specific charges preferred against Sheldon are that he falsely represented that he was an engineer employed for the past 12 years by the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Co., immediately and prior to said Aug. 11, and did thereby fraudulently induce the Motor Mart, a Connecticut Corporation, located and doing business in Main street, Norwich, to let him have on credit an automobile of the value of $375, which said Sheldon obtained under false pretenses. It is understood that the continuance was granted so that the matter can be adjusted between the parties.

STATE'S BANNER TOBACCO SEASON WAS IN 1919

The production of 40,252,000 pounds of tobacco in Connecticut in 1923 was less than the banner year of 1919 when the total production for the year was 46,950,000 pounds. The average weight of the 30,000 acres that year was 1,565 pounds. The year 1921 came next with 45,074,000 pounds and an average per acre for the 31,000 acres of 1,454 pounds. The year 1921 came next with 44,400,000 pounds and 30,000 acres, an average of 1,480 pounds per acre. The above figures and other comparative figures have been compiled by the department of commerce.

Figures are given beginning with 1839 and every tenth year following including 1909 and then each year's figures are given. The number of pounds raised in Connecticut in 1839 was 471,657 and there was generally a steady increase in poundage with 37,500,000 as the high mark previous to 1919. The average weight of the 1923 crop was 1,383 pounds.

Though the United States leads all other countries in the production and manufacture of tobacco, the quantities of both unmanufactured tobacco, and tobacco products imported are considerable. The leaf imported is used principally in the manufacture of high grade cigars and of certain brands of cigarettes.

In 1923 about one-fourth of the total leaf tobacco imported was Turkish tobacco from Greece and Turkey to be used in making cigarettes. About two-fifths was imported from Cuba for manufacturing cigars, while most of the remainder was leaf suitable for cigar wrappers, produced in the Dutch East Indies, and imported from the Netherlands.

Of manufactured tobacco imported, cigar and cheroots, the product of the Philippine islands forms the largest proportion, there having been more than 4,200,000 pounds imported into the United States in the calendar year 1923 compared with more than 2,300,000 pounds in 1922; 1,600,000 in 1921 and 3,000,000 in 1920. In addition to tobacco and tobacco products imported into the United States considerable quantities are shipped from Porto Rico into continental United States. The shipments from Porto Rico in 1923 included 17,838,132 pounds of leaf and 2,842,059 pounds of stems, scraps and trimmings and 193,746,000 cigars and cheroots.

Of the total quantity of leaf tobacco imported in 1923, 1,930,561 pounds were the product of the Philippine Islands and 55,739,134 pounds the products of other countries of this latter quantity, 7,708,257 pounds were suitable for cigar wrappers, while all other leaf amounted to 48,030,877 pounds.

The total value of domestic tobacco and its products exported in 1923 amounted of $179,208,163, an increase of $5,903,035 as compared with 1922 The total value of exports of tobacco in 1919 was $206,361,519. Of the exports in 1923, 474,500,139 pounds was in leaf tobacco, valued at $153,393,061.

The export of cigarettes for the calendar year 1923 was 12,252,528,000 valued at $23,035,126. Of this amount more than 9,000,000,000, valued at $17,206,208 were exported to China, and more than 1,000,000,000 were sent to the Straits Settlements. Smoking tobacco exported in 1923 amounted to 859148 pounds and plug tobacco to 3,769,324 pounds. The number of cigars and cheroots exported in 1923 was 1,070,000 compared with 649,000 in 1922.

Considerable quantities of smoking and plug tobacco were sent to Alaska and Hawaii, and 3,503,455 pounds of leaf were sent to Porto Rico for use in making cigars, this amount comparing with 1,462,008 pounds in 1922.

In registered factories in this country in 1923, 654,311,618 pounds of leaf tobacco were consumed in the manufacture of cigars, cigarettes and tobacco and snuff. Of this quantity 125,-363,949 pounds were used in the manufacture of cigars, 202,314,757 pounds for the manufacture of cigarettes and 294,632,812 pounds in the manufacture of chewing and smoking tobacco and snuff. More cigarettes were made in 1923 than in any previous year.

ARMY-NAVY CLUB OPENS SEASON WITH VICTORY OVER SO. MANCHESTER FIVE

With Harry Mills leading the attack, closely followed by Murphy, the Army-Navy club of Taftville opened the 1924-25 basketball season at Parish hall Tuesday evening by registering a victory over the Company G team of South Manchester, 38 to 22. At no time during the game was the local team in danger as they took the lead at the start of the game and held it throughout the struggle which was fast and furious.

Mills, playing center for the Army, had his eye glued to the hoop and his nine baskets from the floor accounted for half the points scored by his team. Murphy played a fast game in the forward and guard position and accounted for six baskets from the floor. Hunt was the leading point man of the visitors, getting three baskets. Joe Belair, the Taftville flash, showed that he has lost none of the remarkable speed which marked his playing last year and it was his fast floor work that helped his team to victory.

The Army-Navy club will have the fast Hartford Crescents as their opponents next Tuesday evening at Parish hall.

In the preliminary game the Army-Navy Seconds defeated the Baltic Bantams 31 to 8. The summary:

PEERLESS TAKES TWO GAMES FROM AETNA FIVE

New London, Dec. 2.—Some high individual bowling averages were registered in the eastern Connecticut match game here tonight between the Aetna and the Peerless bowling teams. Peckham's 145 in the second string gave the Aetna bowlers their only string of the evening.

Although Peckham hit a single of 145 Bosworth's bowling was more consistent and he beat out Peckham for high three. Bosworth registered 344 in three strings, while Peckham's total was 341. Copper hit a single of 126. The scores:

TRADES AND RUMORS OF TRADES AT BASEBALL MEET

Hartford, Conn., Dec. 2.—(By the A. P.)—"On to Atlanta," and "On to Asheville," banners appeared in the lobby of the convention hotel today while the magnates were assembling prior to the opening meeting of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, squelching reports that both of these cities had given way to Los Angeles and now it looks like a fight for the honor when the issue comes up at the final meeting.

Despite the meeting, many of the minor league magnates and their major league friends remained in the lobby today and continued the relentless task of bartering and selling. In one section of the lobby two magnates sat and swapped players. Across from them a major league magnate was giving a minor league a field an "earful" about a certain player he wanted to place on option. A little further along a club owner and his manager was doping out spring training trip. On an upper floor behind closed doors a club president was dickering with a syndicate concerning the purchase of his club.

Scribes rushed here and there in a vain attempt to gather up the scattered remnants of news which were threatening from ever quarter.

Several managers reported that they had placed players out on options, but would not release their names until they had signed them to a 1925 contract. Others waited for the other party to make the announcement of a trade or a sale. George Sisler and Miller Huggins, managers respectively of the St. Louis Browns and the New York Yankees, withdrew from the floor and relegated themselves to a remote corner of the lobby to discuss business while wild rumors about Urban Shocker, Ken Williams, Wally Pipp, and Everett Scott, rambled about the lobby with increasing speed.

At the conclusion of the talk with Huggins, Sisler said that no argument for the sale of Shocker had been reached although Huggins made a bona-fide offer.

"I am willing to sell or trade Shocker," Sisler said, "as I am willing to trade or sell most any member of the team with the exception of Ken Williams. Huggins, however, has not offered any more for Shocker than any other club has already offered."

Several minor league deals were reported, among them the purchase of Outfielder W. J. Wolfer by the Vernon Pacific Coast league team from Portland of the same wheel. Wolfer was the leading outfielder in the Coast league last year, finishing the season with a batting average of .326 and being considered as the premier lead-off man of the circuit.

Salt Lake City of the Coast league reported the sale of Rudy Kallio, an outfielder to the Boston Red Sox for a cash consideration. Outfielder Connelly and another player to be selected later.

Samuel Robertson, president of the Buffalo club of the International league, announced that he had placed two players out on option but refused to give out their names until he had signed them for next season.

He also announced through his manager, Billy Webb, that the team would train at Palmetto, Fla., next spring.

Judge Arthur Clement, president of the Saginaw club of the Michigan-Ontario league, announced the sale of Frank Wayenberg, a right-handed pitcher to the Kansas City club of the American Association. The deal was a straight cash proposition.

Dan Howley, manager of the Toronto club of the International league, announced that he had arranged two exhibition games with the Waterbury club of the Eastern league at Waterbury, Conn., on April 13 and 14.

The American Association met again today and renewed consideration of the blanket insurance plan but this was tabled after a lengthy discussion and the clubs will insure their players individually as before.

Richard O'Conner, Judge Landis' secretary, arrived today with the information that Judge Landis would not attend the sessions of the association owing to a death in the family.

Tom Turner of the Portland club of the Pacific Coast league is endeavoring to organize an eastern branch of the Association of Professional Baseball Players of America, a benevolent and protective organization for the care of sick and injured baseball players. This organization is flourishing in the Coast league now and Turner went to interest Eastern league magnates with the idea. It has been rumored that he will bring the subject to the attention of the convention.

BASKETBALL AT SUB BASE STARTS IN JANUARY

New London, Dec. 2.—The basketball season at the Submarine Base will not get under way until January. The reason for the month's delay in getting the gobs in action is the recent forming of the inter-department league. This league is expected to uncover some basketball talent at the government reservation, and will be run on exactly the same plan as the inter-department baseball league which was known as the Dungaree league this summer. A squad will be selected of the best performers in the inter-department league and will be retained for the regular Sub Base contests played with outside teams.

The inter-department league will furnish some new material as well as keep basketball on the upward grade with an opportunity of all sailors stationed at the base to be able to play this game. Some keen competition has resulted from the Dungaree league baseball games this summer and a repetition in rivalry is expected to once again make itself evident with the opening game of the league.

An opening game for the regular Submarine Base eleven has already been scheduled for Jan. 3, with the Cycle Club five of Westerly. Several other games have already been scheduled but the complete program to cover the gobs' activities on the chalked court this winter has not been completed, but the announcement of a coach and manager for the quintet was awaited before steps securing games could be made. The stiff schedule which was opposed last winter will be met with an equally strong schedule this season. Some of the leading professional and college teams will be included in the season's opponents.

Almost the same team which had such a successful year last season will take the floor when the whistle for the opening game is sounded. Among those remaining on the reservation awaiting the first call for practice on December 5, are O'Hare, Compton, Murphy, Bartz, Keck and Robbins. These players with the exception of Keck were on the squad which comprised the 1923 team. With the assignment of Lieutenant Trevor Lewis, a former forward on the Naval Academy quintet at Annapolis during the year 1921 to the base, he will most likely take over the coaching reins. It may be that Lieutenant Lewis will also don a uniform personally and play the game again besides coaching it. If he does turn to playing once again, the Base will gain an expert forward.

EAST HAS NO MONOPOLY ON FOOTBALL INTEREST

New York, Dec. 2.—(By The A. P.)—The frontiers of football, propelled by ever-increasing popularity are limited now only by the nation's natural boundaries.

Analysis of attendance figures from all parts of the country for the 1924 season, witnessing the greatest growth of any year in gridiron history, show that the east, original stronghold of the game, no longer has a monopoly on popular interest, which has spread with astonishing rapidity through the west and south.

The Pacific coast sector, where 800,000 altogether saw four conference championship races, furnishes a startling item of proof of the game's growth in the record crowd of 90,000 which saw Stanford and California battle to a tie. This mark eclipsed by 10,000 the next highest figure, 80,000, at the Army-Navy game in Yale Bowl, which held the previous record. A record crowd for the Army-Navy classic, 80,000 saw the service rivals clash at Baltimore, while other high marks were 75,000 for the Yale-Harvard struggle at New Haven, fought out in a driving rain, 68,000 at the Michigan-Ohio State game at Columbus; 67,000 in the new Illinois stadium for the game in which Red Grange ran wild through Michigan, 56,000 at the Cornell-Pennsylvania battle Thanksgiving Day at Philadelphia; and 50,000 at the California-Southern California contest in the mammoth Berkeley stadium.

Altogether, estimates places the total attendance for college games at 10,000,000, a figure which appears conservative in the light of the definite facts that more than 2,600,000 alone saw ten of the country's outstanding elevens in action over the brief fall season.

This limit is headed by Michigan whose stadium at Ann Harbor housed 340,000. The east's best drawing card was Pennsylvania which attracted a total attendance of 326,000, Harvard stadium accommodated approximately 300,000 while California approached the same figure to set the pace in the far west Georgia Tech played before 106,000 at Atlanta, the highest mark reached at any southern institution.

Figures for other institutions included Yale, 272,000; Notre Dame, 260,000, including games at home and abroad; Ohio State, 250,000; Chicago, 245,000; and Illinois, 225,000.

To meet this tremendous demand, universities throughout the country have rapidly erected bigger stadia, but even the most modern proved inadequate. At the Stanford-California game it was estimated that from 10,000 to 20,000 saw the contest from surrounding hilltops. Applications for tickets for the "Big Three" games in the east were double and treble that number available. There was a complete sell-out for every game of note anywhere, so far as reports indicate.

Many institutions dedicated new stadia during the season, among them Illinois' $2,000,000 structure, West Virginia, West Point, Louisiana State University and Birmingham-Southern.

TRADES BALL PLAYERS FOR AN AIRPLANE

Hartford, Dec. 2. (By the A. P.)—An innovation in organized baseball was pulled at the National Association convention here today in the way of a baseball trade when Barney Burch, president of the Omaha, Neb., Western League club, traded a pitcher and a catcher to Edward J. Tracey, president of the St. Joseph, Mo., club, in exchange for an airplane.

The deal is a legal baseball transaction involving Pitcher R. Luebbe and Catcher F. J. Wilder, who will report to the St. Joseph club at the start of the season in 1925.

According to the rules of the National association 2 per cent of the purchase of the player must go into the treasury of the association and the Western league magnates were perturbed for some time as to how this might be handled. However, President Burch solved the problem by offering to give Secretary John H. Farrell a ride from his home in Auburn, N. Y., to St. Joseph, Mo., and back in one day to take care of the 2 per cent.

The Western league held its annual meeting today and decided to play a 168-game schedule this season, to open April 16 and to close on September 27. John Holland, president of the Oklahoma City club, was appointed to work with President A. R. Terney to draft a schedule. They will hold another meeting on February 15 in Kansas City, at which time the schedule will be adopted.

An important rule was adopted which makes it mandatory for clubs to ask waivers on players to be sold outside of the league, if such players are placed on the market after the first thirty days of the playing season.

Those who attended the meeting included James Humphries and John Holland, Oklahoma City; James K. Crawford, Tulsa; Frank Isbell, Wichita; Milton Anninger, Denver; Warren Giles, E. J. Tracey, St. Joseph, Mo.; Barney Burch, Omaha; Lee Keyser, Des Moines; Joseph Clark, Lincoln.

Among the various trades reported late tonight was the sale of Marty Shay, infielder, by the Boston Braves to the Shreveport club of the Texas league. Henry Demoe, Hartford second baseman, was sold by the Senators to the Rochester club of the International league for a reported sum of $4,000.

The resignation of Jesse Burkett of the Worcester club of the Eastern league was announced by A. H. Powell, president of the Worcester club. At the same time he announced that Eddie Eayrs, outfielder of the club, will sign as manager.

The Minneapolis club of the American association announced the purchase of three players from the Burlington, Iowa, club of the Mississippi Valley league. They are Pitchers Lee Farris and Walter House and Outfielder Rudolph Swanson.

One of the most important deals of the day was consummated between the Columbus and Indianapolis clubs of the American association. In this trade H. J. Schreiber, Columbus shortstop, was sent to Indianapolis in exchange for Robert Blessing, an outfielder, and "Spud" Campbell, a third baseman.

Billy Webb, Buffalo third baseman, announced the tentative spring training schedule for the Bisons. The herd will train at Palmetto, Fla., playing two games with teams in Florida before starting north. Then games will be played at Valdosta, Ga.; Macon, Ga.; Augusta, Ga.; Greenville, S. C.; Spartanburg, S. C.; Charlotte, N. C.; Salisbury, N. C.; Greensboro, N. C.; Danville Va., and Lynchburg, Va.

Manager Webb announced that games are now being arranged for the team to travel through Maryland and Pennsylvania.

P. C. League Against Increase.

Hartford, Dec. 2.—The Pacific Coast league, at a meeting held here tonight, voted against allowing the majors to increase their reserve list from 40 to 50 men. It also went on record as being opposed to the increase of the optional limit from eight to 15 men and against the lengthening of the optional period from two to five years.

HEATED ARGUMENT BETWEEN FARRELL AND O'TOOLE AT BASEBALL MEETING

Hartford, Conn., Dec. 2.—(By The A. P.)—An ancient feud which has long been simmering under a mask of friendship, cropped out on the floor of the convention hall at the opening session of the National Association of professional baseball leagues today, when John Conway Toole, president of the International league, and John H. Farrell, secretary of the National association, clashed in a heated argument over consideration of the proposed amendments to the major-minor league rules.

Attacking Farrell for his attitude in sending out the amendments to the minor league magnates before they had been acted on by the major leagues and alleging that Farrell was a gross party to a "persistent and willful" violation of the optional player agreement, Toole swayed the hall with a vigorous protest against the practice of the major leagues in ignoring the presence of an agreement.

The clash assumed spirited proportions when Farrell attempted to interrupt Toole when the New York lawyer was arguing against any consideration of the proposed amendments, no matter what they are.

"Every year since 1921, the major leagues have violated the major-minor optional player agreement by placing as many as fifteen players out on option to minor league clubs when our rules specifically state that the limit is eight," declared Toole.

"You are secretary of our National association and it is your business to check this flood of illegal options," he continued.

"I have persistently written to your office and to the office of Judge Landis to find out how many players have been placed in the International league on option but I have never been given a satisfactory answer.

"How many players on option were in our league last year?" asked Toole of Farrell.

"I don't know. I didn't count them,' said Farrell.

"You didn't count them? It's your business as secretary of our association to count them and let us know how we stand. Why didn't you stop the flow of such deals when eight had been reached?"

"All players in your league on option above eight are there because Judge Landis ruled that the majors were within their rights to dispose of fifteen players in this manner and I don't feel that I have the authority to overrule Judge Landis," said Farrell.

"I have all the respect in the world for Judge Landis, but I don't see how he can close his eyes to the rules and authorize such procedure which is a gross violation of the existing rules."

The whole trouble started when John D. Martin of Memphis, Tenn., president of the southern association, moved that the proposed amendment be shelved as a whole without any consideration until they were acted on by the majors.

After a long and heated debate in which many insinuations were made and what proved to be a virtual attack on Farrell's administration was made by Toole, the magnates voted to lay the matter over until tomorrow and give it consideration before any other matter of business.

Credentials, Thomas J. Hickey, Chicago, chairman; J. Doak Roberts, Dallas Texas, and A. R. Tearney, Chicago.

Amendments to National association agreement: John H. Farrell, Auburn, chairman; J. Cal Ewing, Oakland, Cal., John Conway Toole, New York; John D. Martin, Memphis, Tenn.; Dan O'Neil, Holyoke, Mass.; W. G. Bramham, Durham, N. C. and J. V. Jamieson, Jr., Hagerston, Md.

Twenty one leagues were present at today's session, represented either by the president of their circuit or by proxy. The treasurer's report was read and accepted and the secretary's report given similar consideration, the president's report, in which several minor recommendations were made, was referred to the committee on amendments. The treasurer's report showed that the national association had a balance of $115,846.47 at the conclusion of play in the minor leagues this year. It was also revealed that $2,313,468.43 assignment of contracts, placing players on option, exercising options, drafting players and for territorial liens allowed.

The report further showed that during the 1924 season only sixteen players were suspended for contract jumping against 134 for 1921. According to the report 23 minor leagues are in operation in the country, embracing 202 cities and towns in the United States and Canada, of this number only three failed to finish their respective playing schedules. Six thousand one hundred and twenty three players employed by the Association during the 1924 season.

The convention adjourned until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning without transacting any business.

M'GRAW SAYS HORNSBY MORE VALUABLE THAN VANCE

New York, Dec. 2.—John J. McGraw, manager of the Giants, champions of the National league, returned from Europe on the Leviathan today in time to disagree with the verdict of the newspaper committee that Dazzy Vance of the Brooklyn Dodgers was the most valuable National league baseball player in 1924.

"I regard Rogers Hornsby as far more valuable player than Vance," said McGraw. I would pick Hornsby first if I had the job of making up a team of National leaguers."

The Giants' manager said that so far as he is concerned the O'Connell case is settled. He declared at present he has no player deals in mind but will be willing to talk business at the major league meetings in New York next week.

Swimming Tryouts This Week.

Tryouts for this season's "Y" swimming team will begin this afternoon in the Y. M. C. A. pool, and present indications are that the local mermen will be represented by some good material as well as stage some very interesting meets.

The team will be coached by Fred Williams who led the team last year and among last year's men who are expected to be included in this season's aggregation are McNamara, Hinrichs, Davies and Wyman. Practice will be held in the "Y" tank every Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoons.

Reports that John A. Heydler would be opposed for re-election by certain club owners of the National League have brought forth denials from Cincinnati and New York. Garry Hermann says he's for Heydler, while Stoneham intimates that there is no one to take his place.

7-20-4 R.G. SULLIVAN'S CIGAR

ROGER G. SULLIVAN

founder of the 7-20-4 Cigar, was born in Bradford, N. H., in 1854.

In 1874 he hired a store and one cigar maker and started in business in Manchester, N. H. Later he located at 724 Elm Street, from which the 7-20-4 Cigar derived its name.

It was a struggle at first. Capital was limited and competition keen, but the uniform excellence of the cigar steadily gained, and for fifty years has continued to gain friends.

Since 1874 the business has outgrown six factories and now occupies one of the largest and most hygienic cigar factories in the world. More than 1500 men and women are employed, with an annual payroll of two million dollars.

In 1923 the firm of R. G. Sullivan paid the United States Government $2,225,000 for import and stamp taxes.

Notwithstanding its enormous growth, the entire business was owned by Mr. Sullivan until his death, July 13, 1918. Since then it has been and is now owned exclusively by his family.

Estimates of Six Big Departments

The estimates of six major departments or other agencies of the government—Interior, Navy, War, Treasury, Shipping Board and Veterans Bureau—were reduced in the new budget while there was only one notable increase—that for the department of agriculture.

Practically all of the $26,000,000 reduction in the interior department total was due to the smaller allotment for the pension bureau. That bureau's outlay was cut from $224,616,000 for the current year to $199,116,000 for the next year, largely because of the decreasing pension roll resulting from the death of pensioners.

The cut of $33,000,000 in the navy's total was scattered over many items of expenditure, but a large part of it was due to a reduction of the fund set aside under the heading of "increase of the Navy." It is understood supplemental estimates for needed construction will go to congress later. The budget director's report to the president declared that under the total allowed the navy can continue at its present enlisted strength of 86,000 men; the Marine corps will have provision for 18,000 men instead of the present 19,500; the naval reserve force will continue on practically the present basis; it will be possible to increase the average steaming range of battleships from 19,400 miles to 23,-700; two more of the submarines authorized in 1916 can be laid down; new aircraft can be purchased; and it will be possible to continue work "at a normal rate of speed on all new ships under construction within the limitation of authorized cost."

Reduction in War Department

There were scattered reduction totalling $8,600,000 in the war department's allowance, but no particular branch of the military service was singled out for reduction appropriations. Under the total authorized the budget bureau declared, the regular army can continue on its present basis of 12,000 officers and an average enlisted strength of 118,000; the number of reserve officers who can be trained will remain about the same; attendance at the citizens training camps must be limited to 29,000 instead of 33,000 in the current year and the Militia Bureau will be able to maintain an average strength of 175,-500 'a reduction of 3,500 from the present authorization. The air service allotment was increased from $14,900,-000 for the current year to $17,000,000 during the coming year to "enable the air service to make reasonable progress toward cutting down its present shortage in heavier than air craft and at the same time assist in keeping alive the aircraft industry for use in time of emergency." The total fixed for rivers and harbors improvement $59,277,980 is practically the same as for the present year.

Veterans' Bureau

It was in the veterans bureau estimate that the budget director made his biggest cut under the figures submitted a year ago. A net total of $79,-000,000 was lopped off, in spite of increases in some departments of the Bureau's activities. The factors which more than offset these increases included a drop from $39,000,000 to $38,-000,000 for vocational rehabilitation due to the decreasing necessity for giving vocational training to men wounded in the war; a reduction from $127,800,000 set aside a year ago for possible use in bonus payments to $62,000,000 which the budget director estimated would be sufficient to carry the payments through next year if applications continue to come in at their present slow rate; and a $7,000,-000 reduction in the amount set aside for hospital construction.

Treasury Department

The treasury department's reduction of $16,810,000 under the total for the present year was largely accounted for by the fact that tax refunds amounting to $16,140,000, resulting from the 25 per cent. reduction voted by congress at the last session, were included in the expenditures for the current year and no like item was necessary in the new budget. The Coast Guard allotment was increased by $1,650,000, as a part of the drive against rum runners, while the total given the customs service was cut $712,000—a reduction declared by the budget director to be due to decreased activities and an estimated falling off in refunds.

Included in the factors contributed to the shipping board's reduction of $6,000,000 were enumerated improved methods of operation, together with the consolidation, curtailment and reduction in the number of trade routes and an improvement in freight rates.

The budget bureau informed the president in its report that the net increase of $62,000,000 in the amount set aside for the agriculture department was "due primarily to an increase from $13,000,000 to $80,000,000 for the construction of rural post roads." There were various comparatively small increases in other activities of the department.

More than half of the $2,288,000 increase in the allowance for the justice department was accounted for by a decision to more than triple the amount set aside "for the investigation and prosecution of war frauds." The war frauds item in the budget for the present year amounted to but $500,000, but in the new budget it is $1,725,000. The amount set aside for enforcement of anti-trust laws was increased from $203,830 to $228,000.

A net increase of $23,000,000 also was shown for the post office department, but the whole expenditure of that department is expected to be returned to the treasury, along with a surplus, as a result of postal revenues. In theory the postal service always is regarded in the budget as self supporting, although it has not always been so in fact. The budget Bureau declared revenues for the fiscal year 1925 had been conservatively estimated at $647,410,000, while the amount to be advanced to the department for expenses is only $637,-276,005. Should these expectations be borne out, a postal surplus of more than $10,000,000 would be turned back into the treasury.

ESTIMATES POINT TO SURPLUS OF REVENUES

Washington, Dec. 2—President Coolidge informed congress today that present estimates point to a surplus of revenues over expenditures of $67,-334,489 for the present fiscal year and of $378,743,714 for the fiscal year 1926, but he advised against any further tax reduction until definite results from the present tax law are known.

"If we continue the campaign for economy, we will pave the way for a further reduction in taxes," the president said in a special message submitting the annual budget. "This reduction cannot be effected immediately. Before it is undertaken, we should know more definitely bu actual operations what our revenue will be under our present tax law. But the knowledge of our revenue under the existing law will avail us nothing if we embark any new large expenditure programme."

The president recalled his recommendation for a reduction in taxes and said that thus far in this fiscal year, previous calculations of the results had been borne out. He declared a revision of the estimates for 1925 showed that receipts for the current year should approximate $3,601,968,297 while the expenditures should not exceed $3,624,033,805, and compared these with the estimates for the next fiscal year transmitted in the budget showing probable receipts of $3,641,295,092 and a probable cash disbursement by the treasury of $3,267,551,378, which will include some funds appropriated, but not all expended, in the current year.

Estimates Analyzed.

In analyzing the estimates submitted the president said:

"For the national defense the estimates amount to $349,000,000, which is $28,000,000 less than the amount available this current fiscal year. These figures do not include non-military items of the war and navy departments. This reduction is made in accordance with my belief that we can have adequate national defense with a more modest outlay of the taxpayers' money. Further study may point the way to additional reduction without weakening our national defense, but rather perfecting it. This nation is at peace with the world. We no longer have international competition in naval construction of major units. We are concerner primarily with maintaining adequate preparedness. We should have adequate preparedness in 1926 within the limits of the amount recommended.

"Aside from the important factor of training personnel our national defense is largely an industrial problem. Today the outstanding weakness in the industrial situation as it affects national defense is the inadequacy of facilities to supply air service needs. The airplane industry in this country at the present time is dependent almost entirely upon government business. To strengthen this industry is to strengthen our national defense. For the air service of the army and navy, and the Air Mail Service, the estimates, including contract authorizations amount to $38,945,000. This contemplates an expenditure with the industries of $18,287,000 for the procurement of airplanes, engines and accessories. The remaining $20,658,000 is for maintenance, operation, experimentation and research. The amount of $38,945,000, however, does not include all that will be available for this service in 1926. Amounts contributing to the air service carried in other estimates, and usable war supplies, will make a total availability conservatively estimated at $65,000,000.

"The amount requested for national defense includes $50,118,000 for the Army and Navy Reserves, National Guard, Citizens' Military Training Camps, and other civilian training activities.

"There is also included in the national defense estimates $7,444,000 for increase of the navy. This will provide for continuing work on the fleet submariner under construction and for beginning work on two of the four remaining fleet submarines authorized in the 1916 programme. With regard to the navy estimates legislation is now pending which provides for additional vessels, including gunboats for use on the Yantze river. Further estimates for increase in the navy are dependant upon the enactment of this legislation. It will also be necessary to request congress legislation increasing authorized cost, of two airplane carriers now under construction. If this be granted it will require funds in the next fiscal year not proved in the estimates contained in this budget.

"For rivers and harbors $56,237,000 is recommended. In this is included $40,000,000 for maintenance and improvement of existing river and harbor work, $10,500,000 for flood control on the Mississippi and Sacramento rivers and $5,437,500 for the operation and maintenance of canals and the removal of wrecks and other obstructions. Of the $40,000,000 for maintenance and improvement of rivers and harbors, $21,973,915 is for new work and $17,-241,576 is for maintenance. This will make possible material progress on the most important projects approved by congress.

"It is estimated that $8,541,500 will be needed to complete Dam No. 2 at Muscle Shoals. Of this amount $3,501,200 will be required this year. This will be covered by a supplemental estimate for 1925. The balance—$3,040,390 is provided for in these estimates.

"There is included in these estimates $50,000,000 to be set aside in the adjusted service certificate fund established under the World war adjusted compensation act of May 19, 1924. This is for the second payment to the fund to be made January 1, 1926. For the first payment, due January 1, 1925, $100,000,000 is included in the deficiency bill now under consideration by congress. The applications from veterans so far have been below the estimated number which the records indicate as entitled to the benefits of the act. If the two appropriations recommended are made, it is estimated there will be a sufficient amount in the fund on January 1, 1926, to meet the demands of the act. Should the number of applications increase beyond what present experience indicates as probable, there will be ample time to submit a supplemental estimate for the additional amount necessary before that date.

"For federal aid to states the estimates provide in excess of $109,-000,000. These subsidies are prescribed by law. I am convinced that the broadening of this field of activity is detrimental both to federal and state governments. Efficiency of federal operations is impaired as their scope is unduly enlarged. Efficiency of state governments is impaired as they relinquish. And turn over to the federal government responsibilities which are rightfully theirs. I am opposed to any expansion of these subsidies. My conviction is they can be curtailed with benefit to both the federal and state governments.

"For reclamation purposes I am recommending $977,257 for 1926. It is highly desirable that the congress, as a basis for this an dother futurde reclamation expenditures, enact the legislation embodying new reclamation policies proposed in H. R. 9611, Sixty-eighth Congress, first session.

Gross Public Debt Reduced.

"The gross public debt was reduced $1,098,894,375 during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1924, and stood at $21,250,812,589 on the latter date. This reduction was accomplished through

(1) the application of the sinking fund and other public debt requirements required to be made from ordinary receipts, aggregating $457,999,750;

(2) a reduction in the general fund balance of $135,527,639; and

(3) the use of the entire surplus of $505,366,986.

"The annual interest charges on the debt represented by this reduction are equivalent to over $45,000,000

"The total reduction in the debt since the high point of $26,594,000,-000 on August 31, 1919, amounted to $5,343,000,000 at the close of the last fiscal year. This total reduction has affected a saving in interest amounting to approximately $225,000,-000 annually, a saving which equals nearly one-third of the annual pre-war expenditures of the government.

"The fixed-debt charges are included in the regular budget of the government under a definite plan worked out soon after the close of the war for gradual retirement of the public debt, and must be met before the budget can balance. The most important of these fixed-debt charges is the cumulative sinking fund provided in the Victory Liberty Loan act. Retirements through this fund during the past fiscal year were about $296,000,-000. The next items in size among the fixed-debt charges are the retirements of securities received from foreign governments under debt settlements and the purchases and retirements of securities from foreign repayments. These continuing reductions of the public debt have a very material effect in maintaining high prices for Liberty bonds. They permit the issuance of new government securities for temporary and for refunding purposes at low interest rates, with consequent further economy in government expenditures. Interest paid in the fiscal year 1924 amounted to $940,000,000. It is estimated that this item will be $865,000,000 in 1925 and $830,000,000 in 1926. This saving of $110,000,000 in two years is the result of the reduction in the amount of the debt and decrease in the average rate of interest paid. The sinking fund is a part of the contract between the United States and the holder of the United States obligation, and, therefore, cannot in good faith be charged. The continual seady effect of these debt reducing factors is to cut down the largest single item of government expenditure, and permit further reductions in the burden of taxation.

"During the last session of the congress a bill was introduced authorizing a yearly appropriation of not exceeding $10,000,000 for a progressive building programme in the District of Columbia. This bill has my endorsement. I earnestly recommend its enactment by congress.

"I have recently appointed a commission to investigate agricultural conditions. The purpose of this was to determine what action, through legislation, or otherwise, should be taken to place agriculture on a basis of economic equality with other industries. The findings and recommendations of the commission are for the use of the congress. I mention this commission here for the reason that I will shortly sumbit to the congress an estimate of appropriation to meet the expenses of the commision.

"We are now in the fourth year of our campaign for reduction in the cost of government. Our aim is to reduce the burden of taxes. In this we have been successful. For those things which we are now required to do we are fast reducing our expenditures to a minimum consistent with efficient service. We have before us an estimated surplus of $67,000,000 for the current fiscal year and $378,-000,000 for the next fiscal year. Shall we embark upon new projects involving expenditures which will prevent the accumulation of these expected surpluses, or shall we continue the campaign for economy? I am for economy. If we continue the campaign for economy we will pave the way for further reduction in taxes. This reduction cannot be effected immediately. Before it is undertaken we should know more definitely by actual operation what our revenues will be under present tax law. But the knowledge of our revenue under the existing law will avail us nothing if we embark upon any new large expenditure programme."

WHEELER'S ESTIMATES OF BOOTLEGGING IN WASHINGTON

Washington, Dec. 2.—Bootlegging in Washington, the subject of various controversies, myriads of figures and sharp differences of opinion as to the facts, brought today fro mWayne B. Wheeler of the Anti-Saloon league the statement that bootleggers released by the courts and rearrected had swelled the apparent total of prohibition violators and given a false picture of the situation.

At the same time, Mr. Wheeler said, Assistant District Attorney Hart had denied to him that he had estimated there were 5,000 illicit liquor sellers vending their calling here.

"Washington never had 5,000 bootleggers," Mr. Wheeler said, adding that many had been repeatedly arrested, given small fines, and turned loose to "continue their lawlessness."

UPRISING IN REVAL WAS QUICKLY SUPPRESSED

Berlin, Dec. 3 (By the A. P.).—Advices received by the Esthonian legation here today report that the Esthonian uprising in Reval yesterday failed within two hours after it started. The government claims that the situation is now well in hand. It was said the rebellion evidently was well planned and organized, as the communists simultaneously seized the government administrative buildings, railroad station, parliament, the post-office and telephone exchange.

Nineteen persons on the government side were killed in the street fighting, it was stated, including Minister of Communications Korn, while probably fifty of the communists lost their lives.

The legation predicts that the government will deal severely with the sixty communist leaders arrested and with the others now being sought. Martial law has been proclaimed and General Lainener given plenary power.

The communist outbreak is thought to have been a protest demonstration against the recent trials involving 149 of the party members. The communist workers were especially enraged at the execution of one of the communist members of parliament who was courtmartialed because, at the preceding trial, he addressed an insulting remark to the court.

TRADING SLOWED DOWN AS THE MARKET CLOSED

New York, Dec. 2 (By the A. P.).—Speculators for the advance regained control of the stock market in today's early trading, relinquished it during the early afternoon and took possession again just before the close, lifting 35 issues to new high prices for the year during the day. The volume of trading slowed down perceptibly, total sales falling short of 1,650,000 shares, as compared with 2,184,000 yesterday and 2,594,300 on Nov. 26, the highest in eight years.

Heavy buying of the southwestern railroad shares carried the general railroad average to the highest level in several years. The average of leading industrial stocks was unchanged, although several specialties showed net gains ranging from one to nearly six points.

Trade news was largely favorable. It included reports that the U. S. Steel corporation was not operating at 73 per cent. of capacity as against 70 a week ago, settlement of the Southern Pacific wage dispute, additional gasoline price advances and publication of statistics showing that the weekly freight loadings were being maintained at the million-car level. Marking up of the call money rate from 3 to 3 1-2 per cent. probably influenced some of the early afternoon selling.

FURTHER DEVELOPMENTS IN SHEATSLEY DEATH PROBE

Columbus, Ohio, Dec. 2.—Further evidence to support County Prosecutor John R. King's theory that Mrs. Addie Sheatsley, wife of the Rev. C. V. Sheatsley, Bexley pastor, was dead before her body entered the furnace in the basement of the parsonage, was furnished the prosecutor late today when experts reported that an analysis of the blood of two guinea pigs cremated alive in the same furnace revealed large quantities of carbon monoxide.

The test was made at the order of Prosecutor King to determine whether a living thing cast into the furnace would inhale a sufficient amount of the poisonous gas to be evident in the blood before death. An analysis of the blood fro mthe lungs of Mrs. Sheatsley showed no signs of carbon monoxide, chemists previously had reported.

ADAM PERILLO SENTENCED TO LIFE IMPRISONMENT

Montreal, Dec. 2.—Adam Parille who recently pleaded guilty to manslaughter in connection with the murder of Henri Cleroux, driver of the Bank of Hochlega collection car which was robbed last April, was sentenced to life imprisonment today. Four men have been hanged and two others sentenced to the penitentiary for life for the murder of Cleroux.

A charge of manslaughter was made against Parille following his arrest in Bridgeport, Conn., when he agreed to assist in the prosecution of the other bandits.

RESPONSIBLE FOR DEATH OF MISS CATHERINE MACK

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 2.—Raymond K. Martin of Southington, was held criminally responsible for the death of Miss Catherine Mack, of this city, who was killed in an automobile accident here Thursday, in a finding handed down by Coroner Eli Mix today. Miss Mack was riding in a machine driven by James Farrell and the car was in collision with Martin's machine at Davenport and Howard avenues. Miss Mack suffered a fracture of the skull when she was thrown to the pavement.

The president yesterday sent to the senate the nomination of John Buckley to be U. S. district attorney for Connecticut. Buckley had previously held a recess appointment.

Furniture—The Useful Gift
The SPIRIT of CHRISTMAS
The Spirit of Christmas is a difficult thing to analyze or define. It is too deeply rooted in the hearts of people—too firmly imbedded in tradition to be questioned or doubted, It has lived through disasters, wars, revolutions, pestilence—it will endure as long as the world endures. And, since the gift-laden Wise Men of the East followed the Star, the outward manifestation of the Spirit of Christmas has been the giving of gifts.
This Spirit is not necessarily confined to individuals. It may inspire a business organization as well—and this institution is so inspired. We, too, are anxious to give.
Our gifts to you are the most efficient and willing service that is humanly possible, friendly helpfulness, tireless courtesy and the finest of furniture at the smallest possible cost. We are anxious to give more than can rightfully be expected of any store—and your first visit will convince you that here, indeed, is a store that is filled with the Spirit of Christmas.

HOW TO EASILY LOSE FAT
Paris Sends Us Simple Formula to Get Thin
Prominent American Specialists, Doctors and Former Health Commissioner Exclusively Recommends New French Discovery to FAT PEOPLE.
Without injuring your health or having to diet or exercise, you can to-day easily take off 5 to 6 pounds a week with a French prescription conveniently put up in a small tablet called SAN-GRI-NA. Since SAN-GRI-NA has been introduced in America, it has met with such tremendous success that Doctors, Specialists, Nurses, and Dr. Rudolph, former Health Commissioner, have thoroughly investigated it, and now exclusively recommend it to fat people as absolutely harmless and most effective. If you have been fat for years; if your case is most obstinate; if you have tried everything advertised without success; if you suffer from puffing, high blood pressure, tired feeling—simply do this: Get a package of SAN-GRI-NA, take two small tablets before each meal, and watch your weight gradually go down and your health improve. Not only will SAN-GRI-NA do away with fat, but almost from the minute you start taking it you will feel a wonderful change in your entire system. Thousands of people already have been benefited by SAN-GRI-NA, and are sending in most gratifying reports. These cases vary in reducing from 10 to 70 pounds in a remarkably short time, and many say that "almost immediately after taking SAN-GRI-NA they felt 100 per cent. better."
Mrs. Kosser, of Brooklyn, writes: "With SAN-GRI-NA, in six weeks I lost 20 pounds of ugly fat, and after years of suffering I was relieved from heart trouble. I now can climb the stairs without puffing, and I have found wonderful relief. You can use my letter, as well as my name, as I am grateful, and wish to help as many of my sisters as I can."
"When I first sent for SAN-GRI-NA I had been under the Doctor's care for heart trouble and high blood pressure. After I used SAN-GRI-NA for two weeks I was much better."—Mrs. Fonquerney.
"SAN-GRI-NA is a great help to me. I have reduced 20 pounds since I first started to use it."—Mrs. Wm. Parker.
"I have used 9 boxes of SAN-GRI-NA and I have lost 30 lbs."—Mrs. Dull, Oklahoma.
"I lost 8 pounds with one box of SAN-GRI-NA."—Mrs. Whiting, Springfield, Mass.
"I am very pleased with results. I have lost 14 pounds in 10 days."—Mrs. Hay, Vancouver.
NOTE.—Since SAN-GRI-NA has been introduced in America, it has met with such tremendous success that imitations cannot be avoided. Save yourself a disappointment. Ask for and be sure to get SAN-GRI-NA. Do not accept a substitute claimed "just as good."

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
by DAVID CORY

Breaking Into the School

Beneath the School House window
In his woolen tiptoe ex
Upon a log set up endwise
Stood wicked Danny Fox.

Thank goodness, though, the inside blinds
Were fastened tight and trim,
And only through a tiny crack
Could he see Professor Jim.

Dearest me, I must beg Professor Jim Crow's pardon some day for calling him "Professor Jim." My excuse will be that "Crow" doesn't rhyme with "trim."

Well, now, let me remember where and how we ended the last story. Oh,

yes, now I recall what had happened. Of course I do. Dear Little Bobbie Redvest had flown out through the little window in the roof of the school house to the Police Station in Rabbitville. I hope he finds the kind Policeman Dog at his desk before wicked Danny Fox breaks through the window.

"Botheration!" snarled the old fox, shaking the shutters with his paw. "They're locked. I must find a big stick and smash 'em," and down to the ground he jumped. Then over to the woodpile in the back yard he ran and in a few minutes more he was again climbing up on the log just under the side window. It was no easy matter to balance himself, for the log wiggled and jiggled, but at last he stood on the top end. Lifting the stick high in the air, he brought it down, Crackerino! through the glass window-panes and against the inside shutters.

"Oh dear, oh, dear," cried Little Jack Rabbit, huddling up to Professor Jim Crow. "Mother will never see her little bunny boy again if Danny Fox gets in!"

"Or me," whimpered Timmie Meadowmouse.

"S-s-sch!" whispered Professor Jim Crow. "Bobbie Redvest will bring the Policeman Dog in time. I'm sure of it. Just the same, let's be ready to defend ourselves in case the old fox breaks the window. Pile up your books like a fort. Don't be afraid. Haven't we built many a snow fort in the winter time and played soldier?"

It wasn't long before all the geographies, arithmetics and spellers were piled up in a high, thick wall, behind which all the little furry and feathered people hid, waiting for that wicked old fox to jump through the window.

"When he gets near us, hit him with books," advised the brave old professor bird, just like a general in the army. But, Oh, dear me, it's a dreadful thing to be waiting for a fox to break in through a window, and, the poor frightened little people could hardly keep the tears from falling. Even if Professor Jim Crow had asked them to spell "cry," I guess they would have been too frightened to answer.

Just then, all of a sudden, Cracko, Bango! went the inside shutters, and with a crash, they fell to the floor.

And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

WINS LETTER PRIZE IN BRIDGEPORT CONTEST

Miss Mary Te Burke of 557 Arctic street, Bridgeport, who formerly resided in this city, has just been successful in winning a prize in a letter contest conducted by The Bridge, a magazine of Bridgeport, upon the subject, Which Deserves the Greater Credit For a Successful Life, The Man Born Poor or The Man Born Rich?

Am writing to express my opinion in regard to the two men who made good, one born poor, the other wealthy. Arriving under far different environment, both deserve success. According to modern viewpoint, this is an interesting subject on which to write and will attract attention. The man born with a "gold spoon in his mouth" finds himself in a firm financial foundation, enabling him to enjoy ease and luxury, so much craved for at the present, and still stays in harness, absorbs his energy and ambition in useful occupation, which his means would allow, deserves great credit. His is a noble career. To work for wealth or fame should not be the end and aim in life. A desire to serve and be useful, is the first rule of happiness and contentment. To stick to his task, hold a responsible position, with success, money playing no part in it, is certainly commendable. It requires a wise man, and is considered quite an accomplishment, to save and guard your finances.

Thrift is almost a lost art, as far as Americans are concerned. Majority of them are not only living up to their income, but beyond it. This man is an exception and is putting his time and money to advantage.

On the other hand, the man who finds himself poor in purse, and reduced to humble circumstances, will realize he is on thin ice, and is compelled to work and strive, in order to get along. Poverty staring him in the face, gives him a jolt, which arouses him to the situation, and urges him to be industrious, to safeguard his interests. The anxiety to gather in the coin and make himself independent, I say incentive to him. Create a desire, and after that success is assured. You are not so liable to spend on impulse if you are trying to add to your savings account.

To reach the highest pinnacle one must be thrifty, prudent and resolute, actuated by ordinary common sense. In the inevitable battle, in the great struggle, it was far better for the poor man who started with nothing but his ability, to plod along hoping and dreaming than to surrender. Aspire to excel in their task, study methods, and master their art. After he learns from experience, determines what is best, becomes energetic and brings into play thrift, industry and economy, success is assured. As far as my judgment tells me the rich man, who was at it were, beset with every temptation, owing to his wealth, had more to overcome to humble himself and make a successful man, than the poor man who was put to it.

WYANDOTTES LED IN FOURTH WEEK AT STORRS

The egg production in the fourth week of the Storrs contest suffered a slight drop from a production of 3,461 eggs last week to 3,249 for the present week. This represents a decrease under the same week of last year, of 435 eggs but it is still better by 1,275 eggs than the average production during the eight years before lights were used. Some of the pens, however, continued to turn in high weekly scores, the four highest for the past week being as follows:

A. B. Rice, White Wyandottes Tekamah, Neb.	54
Hanson's Leghorn Farm White Leghorns, Corvallis, Ore.	52
Acrebridge Farm, White Leghorns Marlboro, Mass.	51
Pinecrest Orchards, R. I. Reds Groton, Mass.	50

Recent experiments on the effect of light from mercury vapor arc lamps on growing chickens have caused quite a stir in poultry circles. There can be no doubt that the invisible rays produced by such lights have a stimulating effect on chickens. The same can be said for direct sunlight which does not come through window glass. The action of both of these kinds of light is remarkably similar to the effect of one of the vitamins which prevents leg weakness and stimulates growth. There are two ways in which the poultryman can take advantage of these discoveries. (1) Increase the amount of direct sunlight received by growing birds and fowls. (2) When this cannot be done substitute cod liver oil or a similar source of vitamins in the rations of birds which do not get enough sunlight. The use of ultra violet light is at present out of the question for the average poultryman because of prohibitive expense.

White Rocks
Ellen Day Ranken Huntington, L. I., N. Y.	131
W. C. Matthews Wilmington, Del.	128
White Wyandottes
Thomas H. Matteson Davisville, R. I.	187
William A. Ellis Warwick, R. I.	185
A. B. Rice Tekamah, Neb.	185
Barred Rocks
Mrs. H. C. Kleinsmith Beavercreek, Ore.	106
Merritt M. Clark Brookfield Center, Conn.	90
Jasper E. Guptill Berwick, Me.	85
Rhode Island Reds
Pinecrest Orchards Groton, Mass.	187
I. W. Mitchell Wallingford, Conn.	161
Red Mount Farm Franklin, Mass.	161
The Hayes Hennery Dover, N. H.	143
White Leghorns
Hanson's Leghorn Farm Corvallis, Ore.	200
Meadowedge Farm Sterling Junction, Mass.	197
Mount Hope Farm Williamstown, Mass.	184

POLICE MAKE SEARCH FOR OWNER OF CAP

A cap with a name in it, which was found on the New Haven turnpike near the lifeless body of Peter Toolin, Jr., of New London, was discovered on Thanksgiving morning is a possible clue that has been stirring state, county and local police officers to renewed efforts the past few days in an effort to locate the owner of the cap. The name in the cap was imprinted with a rubber stamp upon the under surface of the sweatband.

The cap is in the possession of the state police, as is the cap found in Toolin's pocket, the latter having been identified by members of the family as the one the slain man wore when he left his home in New London Wednesday evening.

Five men from the state police barracks at Groton were on Tuesday combing New London and Norwich and nearby towns for the owner of the cap while County Detective William Lewis and Sergeant John Cavanaugh, of the New London police pursued their search for him in various places about the city where information they were in possession intimated that he might be found. It was stated by officials that the man will be immediately arrested if located.

This cap was found about 20 feet west from the body and bore road oil stains, which might indicate that the owner of it had fallen while wearing the cap. It was learned Tuesday that a glove and another personal effect belonging to some one other than Toolin were also found near the dead body had been found, a man stopped are confident that these articles were also lost by the owner of the cap.

Checking up every possible source of information, County Detective Lewis has learned that early Thanksgiving morning a short time after Toolin's body had beenf ound, a man stopped at the Lawrence and Memorial associated hospital in New London and requested treatment for various lacerations about the face and head. This fact in itself would not be considered as of very great significance, but for the fact that the man had no hat leads the authorities to link him with the car, which was found near Toolin's body. The hospital authorities, however, did not take the man's name, and at the institution it was stated that there was no record of the man being given treatment.

Sergeant Goggas of the state police made a hurried trip to Providence on Monday night where he interviewed Frank Champlain, the third occupant of the car in which Toolin left Reynolds dance hall. Results of negative value were obtained through the interview, Champlain telling precisely the same story related by the two New London men who have already informed police officials that they took Toolin in their car from Reynolds, but made him get out after the car had proceeded only a short distance when he became, according to their story, abusive and profane.

John Toolin of Detroit, brother of the victim, general manager of the Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co. for the western district of the United States was in conference with County Detective Lewis and Sergeant Cavanaugh throughout Tuesday morning, and is lending every facility at his command in aiding the officers in their investigation.

"We are not looking for revenge," said Mr. Toolin in talking about the case, "but we are anxious to learn the exact manner in which Puter met his death, and no time or expense will be spared in our efforts. If death was entirely accidental, we would greatly appreciate it if those who were familiar with the circumstances would come forward with them and relieve us of our burden. If, on the other hand, foul play caused the death, then we shall demand that the state mete out justice to those who figured in it, provided they can be located."

Coroner J. J. Desmond will shortly begin the examination of every witness that the state authorities can bring to light, including every person who was in attendance at the dance at Reynolds, and the drivers and occupants of every car that passed over the stretch of road around the time the death occurred.

Meanwhile with the search for the owner of the cap being pressed, the occupants of the three New London cars that left Reynolds' after the dance are being kept under close surveillance because of the fact that there is considerable evidence tending to show that it might have been from one of these three cars that Toolin fell or was pushed.

NORWICH TOWN

Ever Ready Circle of the Kings Daughters is to hold a meeting Wednesday evening at the home of Miss J. G. Bonney of Harland road.

The Family Album is to be presented by the W. I. T's., and the One Aim class of the First Congregational Sunday school. Miss Sadie J. Davidson is to be the reader.

Saturday morning at 7:30, at the Sacred Heart church, there was a large attendance of relatives and family friends, at the requiem high mass, celebrated by the church pastor, Rev. Charles W. Brennan, for the repose of the soul of Mrs. Rose Roy of aYntic.

The Home Missionary Service society of the First oCngregational church, is to meet Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Frank E. Story of Lee avenue.

Sunday morning at the First Methodist Episcopal church, the pastor, Rev. James B. Aldrich, preached from Luke 10:27. And he answering said: Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind, and thy neighbor as thyself. At the evening service, Rev. Mr. Aldrich gave a talk on "The Good Samaritan". This was preceded by the Young Peoples Christian Endeavor service in charge of Miss Grace Mitchell. The topic was, "Our Prayers For Christs World." Mathew 6:9-13.

Thy People Shall be My People, and Thy God My God. Ruth 1:16, was the text of Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey's sermon, Sunday morning at the First Congregational church. The Young People's Christian Endeavor service was held one hour later than usual at 7:30. Miss Florence M. Bennett stewardship superintendant of the Methodist C. E. society was the assigned leader; but owing to illness was unable to attend.

Miss Jessie E. Hyde presided, ably treating the topic, "Our Prayers For Christ, which was the fourth and last in a series on Stewardship. The Scripture reference was Matthew 6:9-13. Advent. GOSHEN

People from here were in attendance at the funeral of J. Henry King in Lebanon Saturday afternoon. Mr. King's earlier home was in Goshen and for many years his trade was that of a carpenter and painter. His home and carpenter shop was at the summit of Goshen Hill. George W. Draper, now of Rockville, then his nearest neighbor, was associated with him in the same line of work, and many was the jobs of building and repairing they found in the township. Mr. King as a member took an active part in the Goshen church and was a singer in the church choir. Twenty-four years ago, when the present church was rebuilt, he was the head or boss carpenter in its erection. Mr. King naturally possessed a genial nature that won him a large circle of friends and his fund of humor and life's incidents that were interesting to hear him relate seemed unlimited.

A. J. Randall and family were with friends in Meriden Sunday.

People in the western end of the state, around Danbury, reported snow five and six inches in depth Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. McCall of Colchester were callers here Sunday evening.

The new owner of Mr. Fargo's place took possession Dec. 1st. Mr. Fargo has moved to Bozrahville for a time. He is getting lumber together for building a new barn on the former Walls place.

The annual inspection of Narragansett commandery, No. 27, K. T., of Westerly, Arthur E. Thompson, commander, will take place at the asylum on High street on March 4, 1925, when the inspecting officer will be Benjamin Downing of Newport, R. I.

Max Mushnick, Patsy Serra and Joseph Salimeno pleaded guilty before Acting Judge M. Walter Flynn, Jr., in a special session of the Third district court on Monday evening to a complaint of indulging in a game of cards on Sunday. They were sentenced to pay a fine of $5 each and costs of $3.80, amounting to $8.80. At the same session Michael Serra was arraigned on a complaint of keeping a place used and occupied for the purpose of gambling and playing games of chance, which will be heard in the regular session of Third district court next Friday morning. The arrest of the men took place Sunday night when Westerly Police Officers Mitchell and Curtin visited the resort, which is reported to have acquired quite a reputation. Officer Mitchell arrived on the scene just as one of the party was said to have been leaving the place and, placing his foot inside the door, was at the table before the evidence could be removed. It was said that $118 was found in the "kitty."

STONINGTON

Professor Marshall H. Tyler, Helen E. Peck and three Rhode Island state college seniors, William F. Luckes of Stonington, Conn., Stella Cohen of Providence and Milton H. Bidwell of Providence, have been elected to the state college chapter of Phi Kappa Phi, the scholastic honorary fraternity.

Marshall H. Tyler, professor of mathematics at the state college since 1906, received his B. S. degree from Amherst in 1897, and his M. S. degree from Brown university last year. Miss Helen E. Peck who received the A. B. degree from Wellesley, came to the college in 1915, as instructor in English. In 1919 she was made assistant professor of English literature and this fall was advanced to full professorship. She received her M. A. at Brown university last June. Election to Phi Kappa Phi in both cases was based on work done by these professors in the class rooms and in studying for their advanced degrees.

Mr. Luckes who is a Stonington boy, has taken an active part in the campus life at Kingston, and is on the board of editors of the Grist, a college year book published by the seniors, business manager of the Beacon, the weekly newspaper published by the students, a member of the senior finance committee and president of the student council, also acting as chairman of the judiciary committee of that body. The election of students is based primarily on the grades received for scholastic work. Three elections are held during the year. At the first those seniors having an average above 87 per cent. for the preceding three years are eligible for election; at the second an average of 86 per cent. for the entire course up to that time is required, and at the third, and last, election seniors who have averaged 85 per cent. and those juniors who have shown very unusual scholarship are considered.

POETRY

THE LANE OF LONG AGO.

Orange pumpkins load the wains
Moving slowly through autumn lanes,
Entering the time-worn barn,
Sagging through its weight of days;
Still the ancient farmhouse stands,
Up-to-date by work and stress,
While the lane, by Meadow Lands,
Seeks the Woodland Wilderness.

Down the Lane of Long Ago
Blows the Breese of Daye Gone By,
Crooning drowsily and low
Sweetest old-time melody,
Where the bright red apples glow,
Where the bronze leaves drop on high,
And dim wraiths Time used to know
Softly murmur, softly sigh.

Come the young and come the old,
As their forbears long before;
Merry laugh and feet are heard
At that hospitable door;
Lovers watch the Hunter's Moon,
Children gather gray-hued leaves,
Sky and field and wood combine
In the flame cloak Autumn weaves.

While the Lane of Long Ago
Winds to Woodlands Far Away,
Telling tales fond lovers know
Of today and yesterday;
Mystic wraiths of years gone by,
Hand in hand, trip light before,
While the ruddy firelight glow
Streams from out the farmhouse doo.

IMMORTALITY.

"I believe in the resurrection of the body and the Life everlasting."

On every flower that blossoms waits decay,
Oaks spring from earth to earth to fall again;
The very stars in heaven wax to wane—
Such is the law of Nature, so ye say.

Let Nature tread then her descending way,
Place first the antidote and then the bane;
Man's path leads upward; first he sees the plane,
And then the height; the night and then the day.

His childhood heard the crash of Life's fierce storms
And, trembling, dreamed that grim mortality
Must soon or late dissolve its fairest forms.

But man's maturity shall save them yet!
The sun of spirit's risen in the sky,
The moon of matter's 'neath the horizon set.
—Marchesa Florence Alli-Maccarani, in Nautilus.

The royal commissioner in charge of the city administration in Rome has aproved in principle plans submitted by an Italian-French group which is seeking a subway concession. The proposals submitted cover the construction of two underground lines which will connect districts between which the traffic is especially heavy, the routes having been chosen entirely with a view to affording relief where it is most needed regardless of the heavy expense that this will entail. The narrow streets and congested traffic in Rome make the construction of a subway especially desirable, as the transportation problem will continue to become more difficult as the population increases.

At the convention of the National Council of Traveling Salesmen, held recently, Fred M. Lewis of New York was said to have traveled more miles than any other member. During his 32 years on the road he averaged 35,000 miles a year, and altogether he has totaled more than 1,000,000 miles. He sells laces and nettings. Ten nights out of fourteen find him in a Pullman, yet he has never grown accustomed to a berth and still finds it hard to be lulled to sleep by the motion of the train. As frequently as twice in one year he has made the trip from Paris to California and back again. He thinks nothing of going from New York to San Francisco. He calls himself New York's longest distance commuter.

DAY after day the same old nagging backache? Lame in the morning, tortured with stabbing pains—weak and unstrung after the least exertion?

Too often weak kidneys are to blame for this unhappy state. When the kidneys slow up, poisons fill the blood and upset the whole system. Your back aches, you are lame and stiff, suffer headaches, dizziness and annoying kidney irregularities.

C. I. ALLEN, sta. engineer, 595 E. Main St., says: "I was bothered with my kidneys and the doctor told me they were causing the severe lameness in my back. When I bent over it took quite a few minutes to straighten. The kidney secretions passed every hour and were highly colored. Doan's Pills regulated the passages of the secretions and did away with the lameness in my back. The cure Doan's gave me has lasted."

NEW LONDON POLICE DEPARTMENT AWAITS SCHEDULED INVESTIGATION

New London, Dec. 3.—No steps have yet been taken so far as is known to members of the police force to call patrolmen or others before the committee of the council that is to endeavor to discover any lack of efficiency in the police department. The city manager is to name three members of the city council who will hear whatever is offered in the line of testimony, weigh the facts as presented and then devise rules and regulations that will be in line of securing a better performance of duty on the part of all connected with the department. It is understood that officers will be given an examination finally to determine their knowledge of police duty and of their especial duty in particular, that they may disclose a reason why they are on the force and why they should remain on the force. It is understood also that rules and regulations will be printed and a copy of them placed in the possession of each officer so that there can be no excuse for failure to live up to the discipline expected of the men. The rules under which the force is operating now are said to be those which were in force six years ago and it is doubtful if the men are in possession of those rules. The inquiry will, it is believed be helpful to the members of the force when it is completed, but there are few of the other officers who will admit that there are to be any changes in the force as now constituted. Sergeant James D. Gaffney, one of the oldest members of the force in years of service, is now serving as acting lieutenant, he succeeding Benjamin Beebe retired under the age limit rule. Patrolman Babcock is serving as sergeant in the place of Sergeant Gaffney. When the lieutenancy is permanently filled there is apt to be a vacancy in a sergeancy and that will be filled from the ranks.

The sewer on the premises of the Empire theatre was reported to the police this evening as clogged up so that sewage was flowing in to the street. The difficulty will be remedied early tomorrow.

The foundation for the proposed Hollandersky building on Bank street, near Pearl, is now completed, but the work on the superstructure is delayed for some reason.

The Hartford and New London bus line is understood to be a bidder for the franchise for the line between Waterbury and Hartford.

Carrol Mattoon, Hempstead street, and Mrs. Morris Hauss and infant son, Colver street, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

The members of the New London police department were given a course of instruction by a physician of the American Red Cross this evening, the instructions being as to methods to be employed in first aid treatment.

A score of youths were arraigned in the juvenile court this afternoon at 4 o'clock. The youth were complained against by Max Rogovin, 177 North Bank street, who alleged that the youths had caused extensive damage to his automobile.

Eben C. Duerr, 32, of Godfrey street, Mystic, died at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital last night, death resulting from an operation performed during the afternoon. Mr. Duerr was a native of Mystic and is survived by his wife and six children, John W., Eben, Lillian A., Virginia M. and Lois M. Duerr; his mother, Mrs. Katherine Conlin Duerr; fourth brothers, Nicholas, Edward, John and Frederick Duerr and three sisters, Mrs. John Johns, Mrs. Melvin Dillaney and Miss Minnie Duerr, all of Mystic. Mr. Duerr was a member of Stonington lodge of Odd Fellows and the moulders' union.

The funeral of Miss Alice Lyons, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah J. Lyons, 133 Montauk avenue, who died at St. Francis' hospital, Hartford, last Saturday evening, as a result of a fractured skull she sustained by being hurled from an automobile at Glastonbury early Thanksgiving day morning, operated by William Riordan, Norwich, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Joseph's church and was attended by a large concourse of mourners. A solemn mass of requiem was conducted by Rev. William C. Fitzsimons, rector of the church, assisted by Rev. Alexander Wollschlaeger as deacon and Rev. Lemoud O'Callahan as sub-deacon. The bearers were Morris J. Sullivan, George Sheffott, John McCarthy, Robert Sullivan, William Buntin and Thomas McGarry. The flower bearers were Anthony Jordan, William Ruddy, Philip Sullivan and William Smith. Interment was in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery, where the committal prayer was said by Rev. William C. Fitzsimons.

Funeral services for Miss Katie B. Smith, who was found dead in a chair at her former home, 123 Connecticut avenue, Sunday morning, were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at 48 Shapley street. Rev. Joseph A. Elder, pastor of the Huntington Street Baptist church, officiated. Interment was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

The funeral of Mrs. Margaret M. Dart, wife of Leonard W. Dart, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at her former residence, 16 Berkley avenue and was attended by a large assemblage of mourners. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Beveridge Lee, pastor of the Second Congregational church. Interment was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

The New Haven railroad sent an oil burning locomotive to the eastward through New London Sunday that dragged 30-odd cars behind it. The road has seven or eight of these engines now in use on its branch roads, the oil burners reducing the cost of operation and making possible a considerable saving in fuel bills.

Union Masonic lodge worked the Master Mason degree this evening in full form, the attendance being very large and being composed of members of the ord from all the section about New London.

The drop in temperature cleared the streets of parked autos this evening and gave the walks a deserted appearance as compared with the scene they present in warm weather.

A local grocer who has a considerable trade in bagged coal put a ton and a half of that commodity into his stock Monday. He declared that the cold snap of Sunday brought on a trade that would have taken nearly the whole lot of coal if he had been supplied with it. He was not so fortunate and now he means not to be caught that way again. The profit on the coal is about 20 per cent.

The finishing touches were put upon the cement work that completes the laying of the highway at the junction of Town Hill and Montauk avenue today and the changes in the sidewalk necessitated by the purchase of land from Burr Brothers. The work has been in progress several weeks but it was delayed for some reason until freezing weather appeared.

The city council has not yet decided whether there shall be public skating places for the children during the winter.

Edward T. Leary, 54 Fremont street, is a patient at St. Francis' hospital, Hartford, where he will be under treatment two weeks for a throat affection. Mr. Leary was recently operated upon in this city for the removal of his tonsils, but since the ordeal he has experienced considerable pain.

The condition of Mrs. Lillie Jordan, wife of Robert Jordan, Squire street, who has been seriously ill at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital several days, is reported this afternoon as being considerably improved.

An automobile, owned and operated by Clinton Avery, 504 Bank street, and a machine owned and driven by David Lubow, John street, were in collision this afternoon at the corner of Church and Meridian streets. Both cars were damaged.

Miss Isabelle Flora, 10 Terrace avenue, lodged complaint with the police this afternoon because of youths, who attend studies at Winthrop school, causing damage to the hedge in front of her home daily.

An automobile owned by the Connecticut Power company and operated by Thomas Pisanti, 25 Belden street, and a machine owned and driven by C. A. Lewis, Truman street, were in collision this morning at the corner of Church and Union. Both cars were damaged.

An anniversary mass was celebrated at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church this morning at 8 o'clock for Edmund J. Condon, formerly of New London and Portland, Ore.

The Ford sedan, owned by Albert E. Moore, proprietor of a Main street tailoring establishment, which was stolen from in front of the tailoring shop last night, was recovered this forenoon when the car was found abandoned in Waterford. The thief, however, stole a spare tire that was on a rack on the rear of the machine.

Christopher Newbury, Waterford milkman, in making his trip to New London about 8 o'clock, observed the car alongside the highway about two miles outside the city and he informed Patrolman Carlos Selesnitsky of his find, the recovery of the car following.

Sergeant Clifford Gorgas, Groton state police barracks, is authority for the statement that Officer J. J. Bodnick, who, it was reported yesterday would be suspended for alleged violation of the rules and regulations of the department, would not draw a suspension. Sergeant Gorgas, however, admitted that Officer Robert E. Anderson, Meriden, and stationed at the Groton barracks a year, had been suspended for engaging in a row near Middletown on Thanksgiving eve and to having indulged in liquor, although not intoxicated. Anderson was about the city today and stated that he anticipated that his suspension woud be lifted within a short time.

The criminal term of the court of common pleas convened here today with Judge Charles B. Waller on the bench and many cases were disposed of.

GROTON MAY ISSUE BONDS TO PAY FOR NEW SCHOOL

(Special to The Bulletin)

Groton, Dec. 3.—This town recently erected a modern school building that cost a lot of money—a lot for a little town that has not big riches—and now the school district is to spend the money that is necessary to complete and equip the building that will be known as the Col. Ledyard school. A special meeting of the voters of the first district was held last evening, and it was in session two hours and a half before the hard-headed taxpayers decided that the proper thing to do was to go to the legislature, ask for authority to issue bonds to the extent of $25,000 and then get right into the game and play it so that the town of Groton should have as good schools as there are anywhere and that the children of the town can obtain education there if they have that purpose in view. A committee of the district recommended such an appropriation as was made, but in a meeting of two and a half hours' duration in which all that could be said was uttered it can be imagined that there was some biting criticism. But that is helpful, it is proof positive that the people desire to know what is being done with their money when it is being expended. The meeting decided that the children in the Noank Park section should be enrolled in the new school.

OPENING OF DEC. SUPERIOR COURT SESSION IN HARTFORD

Hartford, Dec. 3.—About forty prisoners were put to plea before Judge Martin at the opening of the December term of the superior court here today, among them Kenneth W. Smith, of South Glastonbury, who pleaded guilty to abandonment and desertion. He was brought back to Connecticut after he was found in Buffalo, N. Y., in company with a South Glastonbury girl. No sentences were imposed today. Walter E. Shean, charged with murder in connection with the killing of Policeman Skelly in New Britain several weeks ago was not put to plea today.

SIMEON E. BALDWIN FAVORS THE CANDIDACY OF HOLT

New Haven, Dec. 2.—Former Governor Simeon E. Baldwin, in a statement issued here today, endorsed the candidacy of Hamilton Holt, of Woodstock, for United States senator to succeed the late Senator Brandegee.

"Hamilton Holt has been friendly to some kind of plan to establish an association of nations since the movement for it originally began," Mr. Baldwin said. "I became interested in the plan many years ago. It has been carried out. There is a league of nations and has been for five years. It has all the arms of government, metaphorically speaking. It has entertained jurisdiction of serious controversies between great nations.

"The vote of one senator may decide whether we shall join the league of nations with proper reservations to protect the provisions of the Constitution of the United States. Hamilton Holt has been one of the earliest advocates. Nobody is in doubt as to his views."

FORECAST 69TH CONGRESS AS OVERWHELMINGLY "DRY"

Washington, Dec. 2.—In the 69th congress there will be 319 dry votes in the house, 111 wet votes and five which it is impossible to classify with certainty, and in the senate there will be 74 dry votes, 21 wet votes and one vacancy, according to estimates presented today to the annual meeting of the board of temperance, prohibition and public morals of the Methodist Episcopal church, by Dr. Deets Pickett, research secretary.

The meeting adopted resolutions endorsing among other things the Cramton and Stalker bills. The former, which would set up an independent prohibition enforcement bureau, was endorsed as "placing upon the prohibition unit greater responsibility for prohibition enforcement." While the latter was described as being designed to "increase the penalties for prohibition law violation and for other commendable purposes."

Other resolutions condemned prize fighting on government reservations and that participated in by professional prize fighters; condemned lynching, endorsed prohibition of transportation through the mails of "indecent" magazines and books specializing in sex appeal, called for stricter enforcement of the 18th amendment in the District of Columbia, congratulated the secretary of the treasury and the prohibition commissioner for "checking" liquor smuggling, and expressed commendation of Attorney General Lish, of Indiana.

BINGHAM NOT TO STUMP IN SENATORIAL CONTEST

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 2.—Lieut. Governor Hiram Bingham who is governor-elect will not take the stump in the senatorial contest, he said today. He is giving his entire attention to preparations of the message he will deliver when inaugurated as governor on January 7, a task he says, which requires that he read hundreds of pages of manuscript of reports being prepared by heads of state departments and the managements of many state institution. "It's a whale of a job," said Col. Bingham. "The people of the state who elected me governor, I take it, expect me to prepare for them a message reviewing the condition of state affairs. That is the task I have set out to accomplish. I shall make no formal speeches in the senatorial campaign although I may talk at gatherings of workers."

Col. Bingham has made a number of visits to state institutions.

SENATOR MOSES TO CAMPAIGN FOR BINGHAM

New Haven, Dec. 2.—United States Senator George H. Moses, of New Hampshire, will speak in Music hall here on December 11 in the interest of Hiram Bingham, republican nominee for United States senator, it was announced here tonight. Other republican rallies are being planned.

Professor Irving Fisher, of Yale university has been added to the list of speakers who will address the democartic rally here tomorrow evening in the interest of Hamilton Holt, democratic nominee for United States senator. Mr. Holt and Homer S. Cummings, of Stamford, former national committeeman, also will speak.

FINANCIAL REPORT OF DEM. NATIONAL COMMITTEE

Washington, Dec. 2.—The democratic national committee filed today with the clerk of the house a report showing total campaign contributions of $865,520 from July 1 to Nov. 20, inclusive.

The committee also reported a loan of $120,000 from the New York Trust company, which made available for the campaign a total of $985,520.

The report listed total expenditures for this period at $903,908, and showed a balance of $61,612.

Contributions received at the New York national headquarters were $780,122.73; at Washington, $31,311.-32, and Chicago $9,602.50, the report stated, listing in addition, as miscellaneous receipts, $3,726.32 from the New York office, $20,715.45 from Washington, and $47.50 from Chicago.

Expenditures by the New York office were placed at $683,453.99; by Washington $216,305.32, and Chicago, $54,150. The balance of $61,612, was accounted for by computing the $120,000 loan among the assets.

Contributions of more than $100, amounted to $635,902. The largest single contributor was John D. Ryan, of New York, who gave a total of $55,000.

Other large contributions included L. Chadbourne, New York, $30,000; B. M. Baruch, New York, $22,500; Henry Morgenthau, New York, $21,000; W. Gerard, New York, $10,000; Clem L. Shaver, Washington, $7,500; Samuel Untermyer, New York, $5,000; Norman H. Davis, New York, $5,000; Cleveland H. Dodge, New York, $5,000; Frank L. Polk, New York, $5,000.

SHIFT OF TESTIMONY IN TRIAL OF CHAS. R. FORBES

Chicago, Dec. 2 (By the A. P.)—Government counsel today shifted the testimony in the conspiracy trial of Colonel Charles R. Forbes, and John W. Thompson, a St. Louis contractor from the Veterans' Hospital contracts to the Gutheil case. Thompson, since 1919, had been suing in the court of claims for $800,000 more than the government paid him for the salvaged steamer Gutheil, raised from the Mississippi river at Baton Rouge, La., claiming that the government's $700,000 award was insufficient.

It was testified by Elias H. Mortimier, that Thompson sought Mortimier's aid and then the assistance of Forbes in pressing this Gutheil claim, and that Forbes said Mr. Anderson, government counsel in the case, could be reached through Charles F. Cramer, counsel for the veterans' bureau, while Forbes was director. Jesse Smith, Attorney General Daugherty's friend.

The government brought Miss Caroline Kiser of San Francisco, a Western Union Telegraph operator in the Fairmont hotel there, to identify messages received by Mortimier and Forbes from Thompson relating to a deposition in the Gutheil case to be taken at Los Angeles. Then government counsel took turns in reading a review of the case sent by Thompson to Forbes for the information of the Los Angeles counsel and several thousand words of depositions in the case.

CONFERENCE OF NEW YORK STATE DEP'T OF LABOR

New York, Dec. 2.—Governor Alfred E. Smith opened the eighth annual industrial conference of the New York state department of labor here today with an appeal for a general spirit of conciliation, which he said was the best means of maintaining peace and stability in industry.

"The 'big stick' is all right in its place, but it does not belong in industrial disputes," the governor asserted.

Morris Hillquit, discussing industrial values, said every industry must assume the charge of supporting its workers "all their lives as long as they give themselves throughout their productivity to their industry."

C. M. Ripley of the General Electric company, announced that, contrary to belief of some workers that corporation dividends exceeded wages his company in recent years had paid ten times as much for payrolls of employes as for dividends to stockholders.

ITALY SUPPORTS AMERICA IN REPARATIONS CLAIM

Paris, Dec. 2.—(By the A. P.)—Italy has formally recognized the American position respecting the United States war claims under the Dawes plan and will support this position at the meeting of the allied finance ministers which will be held in Paris at the end of the first week in January for the purpose of distributing the proceeds of the receipts from Germany since the new reparations plan was put in operation.

France, Belgium and Italy are committed to the support of the viewpoint of James A. Logan, Jr., American observer with the reparations commission. England alone has not yet reached a decision as to what her attitude will be.

The American position is that not only the costs of occupation should be paid the United States under the Dawes plan, but also the war damage claims of American citizens against Germany which are now being adjudicated by a mixed commission.

The total of the claims of the United States has not yet been definitely fixed, but it probably will be between $500,000,000 and $550,000,000.

MASSACHUSETTS LEGISLATOR IS INDICTED FOR LARCENY

Boston, Dec. 2.—Robert E. Dinamore, of East Boston, a member of the state house of representatives, surrendered to the district attorney's office this afternoon in answer to a secret indictment charging him and two other persons with conspiracy to steal and with larceny.

The indictment was based on an impersonation of District Attorney Thomas J. O'Brien of Suffolk county in which $300 was extorted from Harry Buyers under a promise to drop prosecution against him on the charges of selling liquor. The charge was made when Buyers' wife visited the office of District Attorney O'Brien to protest his failure to keep his "promise" after her husband was sentenced to the house of correction. Buyers was a witness yesterday before the Suffolk county grand jury which today returned the secret indictments.

Dinamore was released on $1,000 bail for appearance in court tomorrow.

The democratic national committee reported to the house that its campaign contributions with a loan of $120,000, totaled $965,520, and expenditures amounted to $903,908, leaving a balance of $61,612.

BRAZIL TAKES ACTION TO EXCLUDE JAPANESE

Tokio, Dec. 3.—(By The A. P.)—The Brazilian consul has notified the Japanese government that has been instructed to suspend the grant of visas for intending imigrants to Brazil. The foreign office, taken by surprise, has instructed the Japanese minister to Brazil to make a report on the matter immediately.

Mr. Akamatsu, chief of the immigration section of the foreign office, said: "If this notice heralds an exclusion policy against Japanese the situation presents itself in a decidedly serious aspect to the Japanese nation."

MARKET SLOWED DOWN

New York, Dec. 2.—Stock trading slowed down perceptibly today with prices moving upward during the morning, falling back in the early afternoon and then bounding upward again at the close. The average of 20 leading industrial shares was unchanged on the day, but the average of 20 leading rails advanced about two-fifths of a point to the highest level in several years.

Thirty-five issues, including seven rails and seven public utilities, attained new peak prices for the year. The list included Atchison, Baltimore & Ohio, common and preferred, the Erie preferred issues, Wabash preferred "A" "Katy" common, Hudson and Manhattan, Mathieson Alkali common and preferred, Marine common and preferred, American Express (new), Famous Players, American Water Works (old and new stock), and Allis Chalmers preferred.

Wabash preferred "A" was heavily bought rising more than 3 points to 57 1-2. Erie first preferred advanced more than two points to 45 14 and Baltimore and Ohio closed nearly two points higher at 75. Buying of the rails was stimulated by publication of statistics showing that freight loadings for the week ended Nov. 22, again exceeded a million cars, settlement of the Southern Pacific wage dispute and reports of high current earnings.

The recent improvement in railroad earnings has led to a heavy demand for new equipment, which accounts for the public offering of 200,000 shares of Symington Company class A stock at $27.50 a share, the proceeds of which will be used to take care of expanded business.

United States Steel common fluctuated between 116 and 117 1-4, closing at 116 3-4 for a net gain of 1-4. Baldwin and American Can closed fractionally higher.

There was a heavy demand for the oils just before the close. Pure Oil was bid up to a new top at 28 5-8 on the report that Henry Dawes will resign as comptroller of the currency to assume the presidency of the company. Pan-American B closed about a point higher at 54 1-2 on the report that the company had concluded several important contracts.

There were several strong spots in the specialty list. United States Realty was run up seven points to a new top at 129 1-4 and then eased to 127 3-4 and the preferred closed four points higher at 128. American Tobacco and the "B" stock, American Water Works, International Harvester, Mathieson Alkali preferred, Union Tank Car and Westinghouse Air Brake closed at net gains of 2 to 5 12 points. The weak spots included Associated Dry Goods, Jersey Central, Fleischmann Company, National Distributing preferred, National Lead, Owens Bottle, Stromberg Carburetor and United Fruit, off 2 1-2 to 3 1-2 points; Pittsburgh and West Virginia, which dropped 5 3-8 and General Baking, which broke 3 1-2 points.

Call loans renewed at 3 per cent. and then advanced to 3 1-2. Time money and commercial paper rates remained firm with business in moderate volume. Acceptance rates again stiffened, asking rates ranging from 2 3-8 per cent. for 30 days to 2 3-4 for 120.

Foreign exchanges displayed a firm tone. Demand sterling ruled about a cent higher around $4.64 3-4 and French francs sold just under .5 1-2 cents. Other European rates showed nominal changes.

BOND MARKET

New York, Dec. 2.—Bond prices again wavered today although the market was dotted with individual points of strength. High yielding rail bonds were the center of attraction, although their popularity was shared by the traction issues. Outside these groups price changes were narrow and insignificant.

"Katy" adjustment 6's continued to keep pace with the rise in the road's stock advancing more than a point to a record high price. Frisco Income 6's and International Great Northern Adjustment 6's reached new high levels for the year, while Seaboard, Erie and some of the New Haven and St. Paul issues resumed their upward movement.

Bonds of the local transportation companies responded to prospects that the operating situation would be improved as a result of the official investigations now under way. Interborough, Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit and New York Railways liens advanced smartly, some of them selling at new peak prices for the year.

Announcement of the United States treasury's $200,000,000 long-term financing came too late to effect the market for the government's obligations. The response of some of the early maturing issues, which can be used in payment for the new 4 per cent. bonds, probably will be shown in tomorrow's price movements. Investment circles were interested in the announcement that bids would be opened on January 7 for $3,000,000 five per cent. public improvement bonds of Porto Rico.

Word was received here today that the Greek government loan, which has been under discussion for some time, will total about 12,4000,000 pounds sterling and probably will be offered in London next week. There has been a suggestion that part of the loan be issued in dollars, but this has not been definitely determined.

CURB MARKET

New York, Dec. 2.—Considerable irregularity marked trading in today's curb market, with reactionary tendencies cropping out in some of the oil and other industrial shares.

Speculative disappointment over the declaration of an extra stock dividend of fifty per cent. of American Gas and Electric common shares caused a break of 2 1-2 points in the stock to 113 1-2, although earlier in the day it had sold as high as 117 1-2.

Uncertainty over proposed capital conditions of the Standard Oil Company of Ohio was reflected in a decline of 19 points in the stock to 345. Prairie Oil and Gas, however, responded to the firming market for gasoline and other oil products, moving up 2 1-2. Fractional losses were general in other active issues.

Radio shares moved within narrow and irregular limits. Most of the active stocks, including Thermodyne, Jones, Radio Corporation and Hazeltine receded fractionally, but Dubilier mounted almost two points to 59 1-2.

Bullish demonstrations were conducted in the new "Nickel Plate" stocks, traded in on a "when issued" basis. The preferred shares moved up 1 1-4 to 87.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Dec. 2.—Big selling orders executed through houses with eastern connections had a depressing effect on the wheat market today, and prices averaged lower. Enlarged offerings of new crop Argentine wheat at Liverpool was a reason for selling. Wheat prices here closed unsettled 3-4 to 1 3-4c net loss, December 1.52 1-2 to 1.52 5-8 and May 1.59 3-4 to 1.58 7-8. Corn finished unchanged to 5-8c higher, oats at 1-8c off to 1-8c up, and provisions varying from 2c decline to 45c gain.

It was only after the wheat market had shown something of an advance that selling orders in any great volume began to operate. The result, however, was a sharp break which in some cases amounted to 3 cents a bushel, a loss that subsequent rallies overcame only in part.

Bullish crop advances from a Chicago expert who is investigating condition in Argentina had more or less to do with the temporary strength shown by the wheat market here. The bullish news, however, was virtually lost sight of when selling in great volume set in, and the buying support proved to be disproportionate.

Corn and oats owed their firmness largely to the fact that farm sales of both were light, with feeders active buyers of corn. Besides, the corn market was responsive to crop damage reports from Argentina.

An upturn in hog values helped to strengthen the provision market, and so too did a decrease in lard stocks here.

ROCKNE'S UNDERSTUDY TO ACCEPT COACHING BERTH

New York, Dec. 2.—Coach Knute Rockne of the undefeated Notre Dame football eleven left today for home with his star quarterback, Harry Stuhldreher. He was approached by representatives of two eastern schools with offers of coaching positions next season.

Stuhldreher said that he had not signed to coach any team and was not likely to do so soon although he intimated that he would eventually accept one of several offers he has already received. He did not reveal the source of these offers, however.

Stuhldreher has been generally credited as being the brains of the Notre Dame eleven for the last three years and is said to enjoy unusual confidence of his chief. Among Notre Dame followers he has long been considered a "Rockne on the field" and the most valuable man on the Hoosier squad. His home is in Massillon, O.

Coach Rockne said that his squad would leave South Bend December 20 for Pasadena for the game New Year's day with the undefeated Stanford eleven. He plans to arrive the day before the contest and to keep in condition by workouts along the route of the Southern Pacific.

Amzis McDonald, comptroller of the Southern Pacific railroad and Notre Dame alumnus, who was instrumental in arranging the Stanford contest with the Tournament of Roses committee, said at a dinner given in honor of Rockne and Stuhldreher last night, that an annual Notre Dame game with Stanford on the Pacific coast during the holiday season might grow in the same manner as has the Army-Notre Dame intersectional classic on the eastern seaboard.

Army and Penn State will be Notre Dame's two eastern opponents next year, Coach Rockne said, adding that the remainder of his schedule was yet in a formative stage.

"We expect to lose two or three games next season because of the loss of the entire first eleven, seven men from the second and five from the third," Rockne said, "but that will do the team and the student body good."

"A few losses test the soul," he reflected, "except when you lose too often—then you lose your job.

ARMY-NAVY GAME WILL BE AT NEW YORK IN 1925

New York, Dec. 2.—New York will be host to the Army-Navy football classic next fall for the ninth time. The game will be played Saturday, November 28, at the Polo grounds, scene of the 1923 service conflict, according to announcement today by the New York National League club, which was understood to have obtained the contest in spite of a bid made by the New York American league club to stage the game at the Yankee Stadium.

Selection of New York, made be West Point authorities as a result of agreement between the rival Academies under which each chooses the battleground on alternate years, came as a surprise because of charges in connection with the 1923 game that theatres and hotels charged excessive prices, in addition, widespread ticket speculation came in for criticism.

An official investigation of these charges was made by Brig. Gen F. W. Sladen, superintendent at West Point, and rear Admiral Wilson, Naval Academy commandant. It was reported that theatres had advanced their prices from 50 cents to $2 above normal rates the night of the game.

Theatre and hotel owners alike, however, denied that any profiteering existed.

Brig. Gen. Sladen, commenting on the 1925 site, said:

"The trip to Baltimore required keeping the cadets up twenty-four hours. The cost of travel also is expensive. New York is the Army's choice of cities, although this must not be taken as any complaint against Baltimore. That city gave us every courtesy and consideration."

It was reported unofficially that the Navy, which has the selection of gridiron in 1926 again would name Baltimore, although there is known to be some feeling at Annapolis that the site of this year's contest was too near by the Naval Academy to permit of the midshipmen anjoying much freedom.

WITHINGTON TO CONTINUE AS COLUMBIA COACH

New York, Dec. 2.—Dr. Paul Withington, former Harvard lineman, who became football coach at Columbia on the death of Percy D. Haughton, indicated today in a rally of varsity and freshman squads that he would retain as mentor for another year at least when he said that "the 1925 season begins today."

Dr. Withington picked up the reins just before the Cornell game with the Ithacans won, 10 to 0. The team romped away with New York University, 40 to 0, the following Saturday and a week later tied the Army, 14 to 14. John McBride of Syracuse kicked three field goals to defeat the Withington eleven in its last game, 9 to 6, but the season on the whole is considered Columbia's best in football.

Bowdoin's Schedule

Brunswick, Me., Dec. 2.—Bowdoin's 1925 football schedule, made public today, consists of eight games, including:

Valiants Accept Challenge.

BASKETBALL SQUAD AT CHAPMAN IS CUT

New London, Dec. 2.—The first cut of candidates who answered the first call for basketball at Chapman Technical High school was made this week with the result that the number first reporting which reached the high number of fifty candidates was cut to 24. The cut will enable the Tech mentor to pursue a direct course now dealing with the varsity squad.

Real practice did not begin until Monday afternoon, although the first squad assembled last week. There is real promise for the Chapman Tech quintet this year. In the practice held in the auditorium today, the team shaped up well in practice. The reporting of Linkletter, Andrews, Hewitt, Hicks and Martin presents almost the same combination which won the Connecticut Agricultural College trophy from the pick of the teams in this section of the state.

Success is expected to smile once again upon the efforts of the Red and Black court men, and there is a possibility that even a better season than last year will be had if the present signs do not mislead. The combination seems to hit off that smoothness which is so rarely in attendance so early in the season. The team work of the past two years and the fine all round playing of the Tech team last season gives promise of an unusually brilliant and successful season.

When Tech will open its season is uncertain as yet, for the schedule has not been drawn up as yet. What games that have been scheduled will be played next month and there is not a contest which is as yet scheduled to be played this month as yet.

Combat Train Beats Valiants.

The Combat Train indoor baseball team registered an easy victory over the Valiants Tuesday evening at the state armory 13 to 7. The Combatants far outclassed their opponents who did not have a chance at any time during the game.

The Combat Train challenges Battery B for a game for Thursday evening of this week.

ADD FOUR GAMES TO YALE BASEBALL SLATE

New aHven, Conn., Dec. 2.—Four additional games in the Yale baseball schedule for next season were announced tonight by John K. Bacon manager of the team. They are as follows: May 9, Holy Cross at Worcester; May 11, William and Mary; May 12, Columbia; June 9, New York Athletic club.

CORNS

Lift Off—No Pain!

Doesn't hurt one bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers.

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the foot calluses, without soreness or irritation.

INTERDEPENDENCE

The well being of the people depends upon the interdependence of industries and the co-operation of men and women within them. The co-operation of wool growers, textile manufacturers, the textile trade and clothiers produces the cloth that clothes the people and in this worthy enterprise, the American Woolen Company endeavors to contribute its just share.

Norwich Bulletin

NORWICH, CONN., WEDNESDAY, DEC. 3, 1924.

FULL ASSOCIATED PRESS DESPATCHES

The Bulletin

Norwich, Wednesday, Dec. 3, 1924.

THE WEATHER.

Conditions.

Pressure has remained low over the Canadian maritime provinces and it was low and falling Tuesday night from Ontario southwestward. High pressure prevailed over all other regions. Fair weather has prevailed. The temperature was slightly higher almost generally east of the Mississippi river.

The weather will be generally fair in the Washington forecast district Wednesday except for local rains or snows in northern New York. The southwestern disturbance will cause unsettled weather, however, throughout the east and southern states on Thursday, and snow or rain is probable in portions of the North Atlantic states. The temperature will rise almost generally east of the Mississippi river Wednesday, while colder weather will overspread the North Atlantic states on Thursday.

Winds.

North of Sandy Hook and Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Fresh west and southwest, and fair weather Wednesday.

Forecast.

For Soutern New England: Fair and somewhat warmer Wednesday; Thursday unsettled and colder, possibly rain or snow.

Observations in Norwich.

	Ther.	Bar.
7 a. m.	32	30.10
12 m.	38	30.20
6 p. m.	34	30.20

Highest 38, lowest 28.

Comparisons.

TAFTVILLE

With an audience that taxed Ponemah hall to capacity, the annual fair and bazaar of the Taftville Congregational church opened Tuesday evening. Gaily decorated booths lined the hall on all sides, most of them taken care of by the church or church school societies. Various home-made foods and fancy articles were disposed of, there was a grab bag for the little folks, and quick lunch, soda, ice cream and home-made candy found a ready sale.

A three act farce, The Second Puncture, presented by the Dramatic club, furnished the entertainment for the opening night. The play was real comedy and made a big hit with the audience, who were very generous with the applause. Before the curtain rose, and between the acts, piano selections were played by Miss Dorothy Campbell. The stage settings were excellent, the furniture being furnished by Schwartz Bros., Inc., of Norwich. The cast of characters was as follows: Betty Holmes, Miss Flossie M. Meyers; Faith Hyland, Miss Nyra A. Yerrington; Slippery Jim, a burglar and a crook, Fred Knowles; Dick Loring, Harold E. Linderson; Harry Mosely, Oscar E. Mathewson, Jr.; Mrs. Wallace, Dorothy Campbell; Mr. Wallace, Victor H. Davis; a detective, Archibald Torrance, Jr.; Will Hyland, William H. Whitehead; Grace Andrews, Mildred C. Kloss; Lena Mosely, Sarah Newton; Delia, Mary Taggart; Norah, Mrs. John Volkman.

The booths did a thriving business, every one being well patronized. They were in charge of the following:

Aprons—Mrs. John Volkman, Miss Elizabeth Houston, Miss Mary Greenhalgh.

TRYING SUIT FOR $5,000 FOR TRAIL'S CORNER AUTOMOBILE CRASH

Before Judge George E. Hinman and a jury in the superior court here Tuesday morning, the trial was begun in the $5,000 damage suit of Mrs. Sarah Menghi of New London against Flanders Garage, Inc., for injuries Mrs. Menghi sustained in an automobile accident late on the afternoon of March 4, 1924, near Trail's Corner, Groton. She claimed she was thrown out of the touring car of Ettore Cecarelli of New London, when it was in collision with a motor truck of the Flanders Company, which was driven by Arthur J. Winslow. Her most serious injuries consisted of a broken right wrist, lacerations around her right eye and ruptured blood vessel in her left leg.

Testimony in the case developed one important divergence on one of the claimed facts as Mrs. Menghi testified she was thrown out of the Cecarelli car, while witnesses for the defense testified that she was on the back seat of the car immediately after the accident.

Ettore Ceradelli, of Smith avenue, New London, was the first witness to testify. Cecarelli, who is a bricklayer, is a son-in-law of the plaintiff, and was driving his Buick car in which Mrs. Menghi was a passenger on March 4, when an agent of the Flanders Garage ran his truck into his auto, causing Mrs. Menghi to be thrown out and receive bodily injuries. He said that he had gone to Noank prior to the accident to bring his sister-in-law to Dr. Lena's hospital in New London, and was taking her back, when the collision resulted.

Traveling between 13 and 15 miles an hour, going slowly because his sister-in-law was in a plaster cast from her waist up to her shoulders, Cecarelli, who nearing the so-called Trails Corner, saw a large truck coming down the hill, which he claimed was traveling at a great rate of speed. He pulled over to the extreme right and nearly came to a dead stop. The truck struck the left side of his Buick, damaging the left mudguard, ripping through the left running board, and taking off the left rear wheel. It finally stopped, wedged into the Buick. The passengers were upset, and Mrs. Menghi was thrown from the car.

Ernest C. Daboll, of Groton, civil engineer, was called to the stand to explain locations, with a map, and sketch of the locality, explaining the various conditions after the accident. Daboll explained that there were some plainly visible marks on the right side which were evidently done by the truck coming down on its left. The highway at the point of collision is 23.6 feet wide.

Cecarelli was recalled to the stand and told that the car was off of the traveled portion of the highway after the accident. Cecarelli was cross-examined by the defendant's attorney.

Medical testimony was given by Dr. Frank W. Hewes of Groton and Dr. J. J. Donohue of this city and Mrs. Sarah Menghi, the plaintiff, told of the way she was thrown out of the touring car from the back seat and of the injuries she received. She testified that she still suffers from pains that she never felt before the accident.

Gina Menghi gave her testimony through an interpreter, Mrs. Italia Pusitini. The witness is the daughter-in-law of the plaintiff and was in the automobile at the time of the accident. The automobile was driving slowly at the time because the witness had a plaster cast on and an abscess on one of her lungs. She saw the truck coming at some distance and she told the court that she saw her brother-in-law flying out of the car and she fell forward with the baby on top of her. She saw her mother-in-law with blood on her face and she cried out, "Oh, mother, one of your eyes is out."

The plaintiff rested and Arthur J. Winslow, driver of the truck, was the first for the defense. He first saw the Cecarelli car when he was about 300 feet distant from it and he was on the right of the road within 18 inches of the edge of the concrete. The other car was on its left and close to the inside of the curve at a point 100 feet distant from the place of the collision. When the cars met, the witness said his left front wheel just scraped the left front mudguard of the Cecarelli car, scraped along the running board and hooked into the left rear wheel and spring of the Menghi car. He jumped out of his truck but got back again and moved the truck back as he heard cries and thought somebody might be held down by the truck. The steering gear of the truck was locked by the accident.

When he first saw Mrs. Sarah Menghi after the crash, she was being helped out of the automobile and Mrs. Menghi was in the machine.

The witness illustrated with two paper weights on the judge's desk the position of the two cars at the time of collision. The other car, he said, was traveling in excess of 30 miles per hour. The truck, he said, was going from 5 to 10 miles per hour at the time of the accident, and about 12 miles per hour just before then.

On cross examination, Mr. Winslow stated that he coasted down the hill approaching the point of the accident and when he saw the other car and that it was on his side of the road he slowed down but did not blow his horn, expecting the other car would get out of the way.

Mrs. Winslow, who was riding in the truck with her husband, testified that the speed of the truck coming down the hill was exactly 12 miles per hour and it then slowed up after seeing the other automobile. The truck was on the extreme right of the road. She was thrown out in the collision, striking the fence on the right of the road.

She jumped up and ran around to the other car, picking up the Menghi baby, that was on the lap of the younger woman in the Cecarelli car. Both the Menghi women were in the back seat of the Cecarelli car at that time.

Christopher M. Holloway, a truck driver of over a year's experience, in Rhode Island and Connecticut, and before that driving machines for six years, testified that he saw the accident from Trail's garage, with a clear view. He had not noticed the cars before the accident, but when he heard the crash he looked up and saw the machines still moving. He started to go over to the accident but Mr. Winslow shouted to him to call a doctor and he went back to the garage and telephoned to the state police and a doctor.

Lewis C. Gadbois, a grocer, familiar with the operation of automobiles for the past twelve years, testified he came to the accident just as the state police arrived. The right hand wheels of the Cecarelli car were either just off or just on the concrete.

G. W. Jones of Groton, a garage man testified he was the next man called after the doctor, and saw the cars soon after the accident. He moved the Cecarelli car to his garage where a picture of the car was taken the next day.

Three pictures of the car were entered as exhibits and were handed to the jury to look over after they had been identified by the witness.

Court adjourned at 4.30 in the afternoon to continue the trial next day.

There are also two suits on account of the same accident brought by Ettore Ceccarelli and Mrs. Gina Menghi.

TWO WATERFORD YOUTHS HIKED TO THE COAST

Hiking a good part of the way, obtaining lifts from occasional motor vehicle drivers and hopping freights when necessity occasioned it, Rufus and Chappell Rose, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Rose of Waterford, had an eventful time of it in making their way across the continent to California, according to word received from them recently by members of their family. The young men, who were students at Antioch college, Yellow Springs, O., forsook the halls of learning last September and thereafter tramped the rough road of experience across the continent in search of adventure.

Rufus Rose is 20 years of age, a graduate of Bulkeley school, while Chappell is two years his senior and a graduate of Chapman Technical school, New London.

The young men are grandsons of John Isham Chappell, Waterford's nonogenarian, veteran of the gold rush days of '49. Taking along a trio of blankets and a decidedly abbreviated camping outfit and little money in their jeens, the young men had a venturesome experience crossing the western deserts, hob-nobbing with Indians, working as common laborers and finally reaching their destination.

Wrote From Los Angeles

Writing from Los Angeles, where they are temporarily domiciled, they had the following to say:

"This is the first letter we have had the chance to write since we started. What a hike we did have. We never could get the experience and education any other way. We went through a devil of a lot and that's all there is to it. To tell the whole story would take a year if we entered into detail at all. Yes, of course, there were lots of hardships to be endured, but there were so many surprises and revelations about our own country in store for us at every turn in the road that we didn't mind them.

"Every time we went through a bit of hard sledding we were better equipped for the following trials and tribulations. Except for about 200 miles in a remote part of New Mexico we were able to steer clear of the freights, but we did have to take them there or I guess we would still be hiking. You easterners think that the main highways across are all paved and hard roads. We were surprised to find the Santa Fe trail nothing but mud in most parts of Missouri, cowpaths in New Mexico and sand in Oklahoma and Texas.

"It was interesting to see the sand and cactus that we were in a little of the time as we went west from Kansas. We left the main trails many times looking for work but found very little. Kansas seems to have been the only prosperous state in the whole union this year. We pulled broom corn in Texas a short while on a real old time ranch. Saw them bustin' broncbos and go through a thousand other western antics all foreign to us.

"Through Arizona we found to our surprise real honesto-God Indians still hanging around trading posts, etc., and living back in the mountains. New Mexico was practically all Mexicans, it seemed. Towns of nothing but "Dobies." However, they were much more hospitable than "white people" in many sections.

"Strange laws and customs through the southwestern states allowing pretty rough and tough life in most of the small towns. After leaving Kansas City we found cities of from 400 to 800 big places. They were printed big on the map, but look up their populations and its disappointing.

Nights Cold on Desert

"Luck followed us all the way across the continent. We were particularly lucky to get a long ride from Needles to Los Angeles via a spud truck. The desert was hot, of course in the day time, but extremely cold at night. Our three blankets were hardly enough for those cold nights in the sand country with coyotes yapping around us at night.

Don't ever think there are no more coyotes running around loose from New Mexico to California. The driver of the truck (from Needles on) carried a target pistol with him and by turning the spot light on the jack rabbits at night fairly slaughtered them.

"This is a rather disconnected letter so far as a line of thought goes, but I wanted to write down a few of the things as they came to mind to sort of give you the flavor of the trip.

"We kept in perfect health all of the way and are rather taken back at times [illegible] in Los Angeles to have our ages guessed from 16 to 20 years constantly. We tell them they're all that way in the east.

"Goodness, Goodness, Gracious Agnes! The quality of fruit they raise here! I can't safely say you have never eaten any real sweet fruit until you eat it ripe from the trees here. Ten cents per bag.

Attending Night School

"The bums flock here from all over the country. Mexicans are hard to buck on the labor market for they work for little and live on less. We had a great experience on the threshing outfit here at Ventura, Cal. What we learned of their ways and language together with what we learned coming across the continent, gave us a good start in our course at night school here.

"We just started a couple of nights ago and are taking two courses each. I'm taking Spanish and mining, and Rufus is taking Spanish and typing. I may change my mining course later for something else for it isn't very interesting. Haven't had anything in Los Angeles but temporary work so far. We have our names in at several employment agencies and expect something soon. In the meantime we are bucking the common labor market from all over the city here consisting of Mexicans and Jews, numbskulls and nincumpups of all descriptions. We are getting quite a kick out of it and it isn't all in the stern end either.

"This has been a sort of ramble of faraway thought and experiences but it's the best summary I can give of the experiences of two galoots (many times called, I suspect) landed in the middle of Los Angeles for a stretch of sedentary life. We are working hard on the Spanish and we won't rest until we can talk it glibly."

PUBLIC IMPATIENT WITH TOOLIN CASE INVESTIGATION

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Dec. 2—Residents of this city are astonished that the police, state and municipal, with the police authorities of the county have been unable to trace the cause of the death of Peter A. Toolin, Jr., who was found dead and his head crushed Thanksgiving Day morning near station 15 in Waterford. He had companions but their version of the night's experience has not been made public nor has any arrest been made, though it is claimed that some one or more will be taken into custody tomorrow that they may relate all they know about the case. Toolin was found with his head crushed and lying in the roadway. Some of the officers who have been working on the case declare that it was an impossibility for the man's head to have been crushed as it was crushed by an automobile passing over the head. There are no marks on the neck or upper body that would show that Toolin was run over and crushed by a heavy truck, and no such vehicle is known to have gone over the road at or about the time it is claimed Toolin left an automobile at the point or near the point where the body was found. The state police officers investigating the case have been quoted as saying that Toolin fell or was pushed from an auto and that he could have met his death by falling upon a stone by the roadside. Other officers scout this statement and point out that it was impossible for him to have fallen and sustained the crushed skull as Toolin's head was crushed. A cap picked up near the body figures in the case to some extent, but whether the owner of that cap has been found and how he accounts for its presence where was found has not been disclosed. The mystery surrounding the death is astonishing the people of this city and they are not at all satisfied with the manner in which the investigation has been carried on and the facts that there has been no statement from the officers making the inqury as to what they have learned absolutely.

DISCUSS EDWIN NORMAN FOR U. S. ATTORNEY

According to a report in Washington, a campaign has been started there to have Edwin G. Norman of Worcester succeed Judge Robert O. Harris as United States attorney at Boston. It has been stated in high official circles in Washington that Judge Harris is to be removed unless he voluntarily resigns.

Mr. Norman, who has been discussed as successor to Judge Harris, is a brother of Attorney Hibbert R. Norman of this city, attended the Norwich Free Academy, graduating in the class of 1898.

Motor Transport Conference

Growth in the use of motor vehicles in New England and the expansion of New England's highway system will be stressed in an address upon "Commercial Use of New England's Highways" to be given by William F. Williams, State Commissioner of Public Works, at the New England Motor Transport Conference to be held at the Copley-Plaza, Boston on Monday and Tuesday, December 8 and 9. Commissioner Williams will speak at the Highways Session on Monday afternoon, December 8. State and city highway officials from all over New England are expected to be present.

It was also announced that Col. Charles R. Gow, president of the Boston City Club, and a former president of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts, will preside at the closing session of the conference on Tuesday afternoon, December 9. Col. Gow will also deliver an address upon "The Public and Highway Transport" at that time.

LOCOMOTIVE FIREMEN WILL SUPPORT NEAR EAST

The following is an abstract of the address delivered at a Golden Rule dinner in the Hotel Roosevelt, New York, in October, by J. A. McBride of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen on the title, An Appeal to Justice and Reason:

"Recognizing that the Golden Rule is the gerat Divine law governing human relationships, I make an emphatic appeal for the cause of the orphan children of the Near East. The voice of judgment and of reason is crying out to us in loud and ringing voice, and no American who heeds that voice can do less than his utmost for these thousands of fatherless, motherless, homeless, penniless children of God in foreign lands. The nation-wide movement on their behalf pleads with each one of us to donate and assist to the fullest extent of our ability. Success means the salvation of those little children. The Near East Relief is one of America's greatest humanitarian organizations. The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen is also a relief organizations. Now we have made the cause of the Near East Relief our own cause. We shall continue to give our most hearty support to its program before the entire membership of our organization."

CONNECTICUT'S PLACE IN MAKING FIREARMS

Connecticut manufactures about a third of the firearms produced in the country, according to the biennial census of manufactures just completed by the department of commerce. And in the year 1921, the state had nine of the 20 plants in the United States. Massachusetts is the leader in amount of production, but Connecticut is a close second.

In 1921, says the census, of $12,883,842 worth of firearms those fired from the hand or the shoulder, the Nutmeg state produced $4,153,626 worth. The cost of materials amounted to $1,016,654 and that of labor, $2,081,612. This latter amount was paid to 1,576 workers giving an average yearly income to each of about $1,300. This is rather higher than the average yearly income for workers throughout the state, which was slightly more than $1,000.

BUSINESS MEETING FOLLOWS PRIMARY COUNCIL'S SUPPER

The regular monthly meeting of the Primary Council of the city was held Tuesday evening at the Broadway school with a supper at 6 o'clock followed by a business meeting. Miss Jennie Congdon had charge of the arrangements for the supper and presided at the business meeting at which routine business was transacted. A report was read to the effect that Miss Helen Royce, of Cleveland, Ohio, a former teacher in the schools of the city, was able to resume teaching there after a protracted illness. The meeting closed with a discussion of the methods used in the primary grades.

For Receiving Stolen Goods

Charged with receiving stolen goods Felix Oldza of Carpenter street was presented in the city court Tuesday morning. The case was nolled on payment of $10. Oldza got into trouble when he bought a watch from his small nephew, the nephew having bought the watch from another boy who took it from the home of Dr. Clarence G. Thompson on West Thames street. The watch was recovered through the activities of the local police.

Pension For Norwich Man.

Recent awards of pensions to Connecticut folks include $15 per month each to Thomas F. Mullen and James Hines, both of Hartford; $20 to Susan Troy of Norwalk; $18 to Ernest C. E. Wiese of Norwich; $30 to Minnie W. Hulbert of West Haven; $30 and $15, respectively, to Delia M. Holbrook and Stephen St. Martin, both of Putnam, and $15 to George G. Beauchamp of Noroton Heights.

PROFESSOR SHAW TO RUN SOMERS FARM

Professor Ethan Allen Shaw, for a quarter century professor of mathematics at Norwich university, Northfield, Vt., is to locate in Somers in the early spring. Professor Shaw has resigned at the university. He has purchased from Dr. Henry W. Gillett what is known as the W. A. Dimock farm in Battle street, Somers, and will take possession March 1.

The farm comprises in addition to buildings, 35 acres of land now devoted chiefly to general farming, including some tobacco and fruit. According to announcement from the university, Professor Shaw plans to devote a considerable portion of the farm to fruit. He is a relative of Mrs. Gillett. The farm is directly opposite Dr. Gillett's own residence at "four corners" in Battle street, Somers.

G. G. G. GIRLS MET TO WORK AND MAKE PLANS

The December meeting of the G. G. G. Girls of the Central Baptist church was held Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Esther Wadsworth, 133 Rockwell street with an attendance of 15.

After the routine business was transacted, aprons were cut out which are to be made for the colored girls at the Mather school in North Carolina. Plans were made to go to the Sheltering Arms and also to the Norwich State hospital during Christmas week with gifts. Mrs. Elizabeth Forschler was elected chairman for the Sheltering Arms committee and Miss Genie Dean for the hospital.

Refreshments of cakes and chocolate were served by the hostess.

COOLIDGE SAYS TAX REDUCTION IS CONTINGENT UPON RIGID ECONOMY; PROSPERITY DEPENDENT ON BOTH

In Annual Message the Chief Executive Declares That Through Rigid Economy the Government Can Do More to Remedy Ills Than Through Any Other Action—Recommends Adherence to the World Court With Reservations; Favors Sale or Lease of Muscle Shoals; Amendment to Transportation Act to Avoid Labor Troubles; Placing of Prohibition Enforcement Force and First, Second and Third Postmasters Under Civil Service—Many Other Matters of Domestic Import Are Dealt With—Disapproves Cancellation by United States of Debts, but Appeals For Support by Public Authorities and Private Citizens For the European Reparations Settlement Plan.

Washington, Dec. 3—President Coolidge submitted to congress today a broad program dealing with domestic and foreign affairs, but frankly said the chief job for the government was to keep down expenditures.

In the face of the usual December drive for increased appropriations, the executive again made economy his watchword, and reminded the congress that he still stood in the gap to resist increased appropriation bills, which would make future tax reduction impossible.

While generally endorsing most of the domestic legislative recommendations of the president, administration leaders at the Capitol saw little hope of translating many of them into law at this session. They will be fairly well satisfied if they can get all of the annual measures through before this congress expires by limitation next March fourth.

Departing from the custom of recent years, Mr. Coolidge did not deliver his message in person. He transmitted it by messenger and it was read simultaneously in both houses. Senators and representatives as well as fairly crowded galleries gave it close attention. In the senate there was an absence of the applause which generally greets executive declarations when made in person, but in the house members applauded several of the recommendations.

President Coolidge made no recommendations with respect to immediate tax reduction, but he told the congress that if it would keep within the limitations of the budget he presented yesterday it would be possible to have "a moderate amount of tax reduction and all the tax reform that the congress may wish for during the next fiscal year."

Chief among his other recommendations, some of which are reiterations of declarations in his first annual message, were:

American adherence to the world court with reservations previously outlined and with an additional safeguard that this country shall not be bound by advisory opinions which may be rendered by the court upon questions which the United States had not voluntarily submitted.

The sale or lease of Muscle Shoals under rigid guarantees, for cheap nitrogen for agricultural use.

Flood control on the Mississippi and Colorado Rivers and development of the lakes to the gulf and the St. Lawrence waterways.

Amendment of the transportation act so as to facilitate consolidation of railway systems and to provide simplicity in relations between employer and employe and more direct local responsibility of each in labor disputes.

The transferring to the emergency fleet corporation of the whole responsibility of operation of the merchant marine fleet and property and leaving to the shipping board solely the duty of determining major policies which require deliberative action.

Agricultural aid through legislation to be submitted after the agricultural commission has completed its surveys of the situation.

The placing of the prohibition enforcement force and first, second, and third class postmasters under civil service.

Amendment of the immigration act so as to permit immigrants in this country more latitude in obtaining admission of members of their own families.

Passage of legislation for the reorganization of government departments.

Maintenance of the policy of "constantly working toward the full treaty strength of the navy."

Announcing that the calling of a second disarmament conference by the United States would await the outcome of proposals made by other governments for a European conference, President Coolidge said he would not wish to have representatives attend a conference which would "contemplate commitments opposed to the freedom of action we desire to maintain unimpaired with respect to our purely domestic policies."

The president told congress that proposals to outlaw aggressive warfare should be carefully studied and sympathetically viewed.

In his discussion of foreign affairs, the president again took occasion to declare the United States not to be disposed to join the league of nations; to appeal for support by public authorities, and private citizens for the European reparations settlement plan and to declare against cancellation by this country of the war debts.

Immediately upon the conclusion of the reading of the presidential message, the last preliminary incident to the opening of the final session of this congress, the senate and house started in on the real work that will occupy them for the next three months.

In the house the first of the appropriation bills, that for the interior department, was taken up, while the senate gave brief consideration to the Muscle Shoals question, recessing until tomorrow with this legislation having the right of way.

President Coolidge's recommendation and the general legislative program were subjects of informal conferences among administration leaders at the capitol and also were discussed at a meeting early in the day between the executive and some of the senate republican leaders.

Both house and senate leaders are determined to bring forward matters of general legislation whenever possible, but in the face of the jam which always is characteristic of short sessions and the lack of a working republican majority, they are making no predictions as to possible accomplishments.

Senator Borah of Idaho, who today was made chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, said that whenever there was opportunity to do so he would lay the world court proposal before the senate, but that he saw little hope of final action at this session. He reiterated his opinion that an extra session would be necessary.

Endorsing President Coolidge's proposal to place the merchant marine under the emergency fleet corporation, Chairman Jones of the senate commerce committee, said there probably would be much opposition to this plan. He doubted that final action would be possible before March 4.

With respect to the executive's recommendation for a suspension of the operation of section 28 of the merchant marine act giving preferential rail rates on goods hauled in American bottoms, Senator Jones said this section first should be tried out before being condemned.

Senator Smith, democrat, South Carolina, chairman of the interstate commerce committee, gave general approval to the president's plans regarding amendment of the transportation act and said there would be definite action at this session.

Asserting that there was little real opposition to the plan of government reorganization embodied in pending legislation, Chairman Smoot of the special joint congressional committee which has been considering the problem, predicted favorable action on the bill.

An amendment to the immigration act along the lines suggested by Mr. Coolidge is in preparation, but neither house nor senate leaders would forecast action at the present session.

With respect to agricultural relief legislation there was divided opinion, but most leaders concurred in the view of the president that definite legislative action should not be undertaken until after the agricultural commission appointed by the executive has completed its labors.

JAMES H. HOWARTH WAS HIT BY DELIVERY TRUCK

New Haven, Dec. 3—James H. Howarth, 75 years old, former postmaster here, suffered a possible fracture of the skull today when he was hit by a light delivery truck operated by Howard Robinson, of this city. The accident occurred at Temple and Chapel streets. Robinson had turned the corner and had driven up behind another machine when a woman with a baby carriage went between the two automobiles. To avoid hitting her, Robinson is said to have turned to the left. The fender of the truck struck Mr. Howarth knocking him to the pavement. Robinson was not held by the police, it being held that the accident was unavoidable.

CIVIL GOVERNING BODY IS IMMINENT IN SPAIN

Madrid, Dec. 3—Transformation of the military government of Spain into a civil governing body is imminent, according to reports current in connection with the approaching return to Madrid from Morocco of General Primo Rivera, president of the Military directorate.

Newspapers, considered usually well informed, do not believe a change in government will take place immediately. They hint at a postponement until the Moroccan problem has been disposed of.

Damage by Gales in Spain

Madrid, Dec. 3—Fierce gales caused great damage throughout Spain last night, destroying telegraph and telephone lines. A mill collapsed at Medina Del Campo and five men were killed and ten injured.

COOLIDGE IS EN ROUTE TO LIVESTOCK EXPOSITION

En Route to Chicago with President Coolidge, Cumberland, Md., Dec. 3.—(By the A. P.)—An innovation in presidential travel was being tried tonight by Calvin Coolidge.

Since the days of Lincoln, it has been the custom of presidents to travel by special train, or at least in a private car, on the long trips, but Mr. Coolidge tonight was on his way to Chicago to speak at the international livestock exposition aboard a regularly scheduled train, with the same accommodations that may be obtained by any private citizen at almost any ticket office.

Economy, which Mr. Coolidge through his budget message and his annual message to congress, has in effect, during the last two days, declared to be the watchword of his administration, is the motive for the abandonment of the custom. Mr. Coolidge figured he could save approximately $1,700 on the trip by eschewing the old methods of travel, and decided that such a saving might be accepted as an example by departmental heads and bureau chiefs and possibly might have an effect on congress.

President Harding made one or two trips without using a private car, but they were short as compared to the eight hundred mile journey from Washington to Chicago.

Leaving the capital about mid-afternoon, both the President and Mrs. Coolidge quickly settled themselves into the routine of the average traveler. The train, one of the fast ones on the Baltimore and Ohio, between Washington and Chicago, carried six Pullman coaches and a diner, and was followed by a second section to take care of the overflow from the first.

The president's party occupied a compartment car, which was placed between the diner and the observation car. The president and Mrs. Coolidge had a drawing room. The compartments were occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stearns, Secretary Slemp, Major J. F. Coupal, the White House physician, Captain Adolphus Andrews naval aide to the president and the secret service men.

HOLT, CUMMINGS, FISHER AT DEMOCRATIC RALLY

New Haven, Dec. 3.—The democratic campaign for United States senator opened here tonight when a rally was held at Lampson lyceum, with Hamilton Holt, of Woodstock, the democratic nominee, as the principal speaker. Other speakers were Homer S. Cummings, of Stamford, former national committeeman, and Professor Irving Fisher of Yale university.

Mr. Holt devoted considerable of his address to foreign policies, the abolition of war and the league of nations, pledging his support to President Coolidge in "all attempts he may make beyond those already taken by Mr. Hughes to cooperate with the various committees and commissions of the league of nations."

The democratic nominee also pledged himself to stand behind the president "to the limit" in his effort to get the United States into the permanent court of international justice, "even though many senators of his party—to their eternal discredit—are not likely to do so."

Declaring that no question will enlist his strength and support as a senator more than the question of the abolition of war, Mr. Holt pledged his support to President Coolidge in any other step he will take in this direction. "I will support him in any conference he may call," the democratic nominee said, "to reduce armaments, to codify international law or to outlaw war. I will do what I can moreover to see that when the United States sits at the council table of the nations, she sits as an equal and not as an observer, peering through the keyhole."

STATE COMMERCIAL BANKS AND TRUST COMPANIES

Hartford, Dec. 3.—Commercial deposits in trust companies of the state increased $9,378,327.41 to $187,894,234.12 during the period from June 30 to October 10, a statement issued today by Bank Commissioner John B. Byrne on the condition of state commercial banks and trust companies shows. During the same period savings deposits in these banks increased $1,283,674.87 to a total of $91,505,217.70 for deposits of this nature.

The total assets of the trust companies of the state on October 10, were $269,363,320.92, an increase of $10,184,767.42 over the assets listed for the companies on June 30.

Commissioner Byrne pointed out that the figures for the period show that the companies are evidently pursuing a policy of putting new capital into active circulation and at the same time gradually building up a substantial cash reserve. That the companies are active in circulating new capital is indicated by an increase amounting to $4,979,771.73 in loans and discounts. The total for these on October 10 was $111,528,695.49, as compared with $106,548,423.76 on June 30.

TO RETIRE AFTER 52 YEARS SERVICE WITH ONE BANK

Syracuse, N. Y., Dec. 3—More than 52 years of service with the Merchants National Bank will be completed when Charles A. Bridgman, cashier, retires January 1.

$40,000,000 Deficit In Postal Service

Washington, Dec. 3—A net loss of nearly $40,000,000 was sustained by the government in 1923 in operation of the postal service, it was shown in an expert analysis submitted to the senate today by Postmaster General New. More than half of the excess of gross expenditures over receipts was found to be chargeable against second class mail, embracing newspapers and magazines.

The report, filed in compliance with a senate resolution and designed for use in connection with the bill proposing general increases in salaries of postal employes found that only first class mail and postal savings were operated at a profit.

With friends of the salary-increase bill, vetoed at the last session of congress by President Coolidge, expressing confidence that it would be re-enacted, the cost study submitted today was seen as necessitating a revision of postal rates sufficient to bring in $100,000,000 additional revenue. As now drawn, the bill provides an average of $300 a year to each of the 200 employes with a total added expenditure of more than $60,000,000.

Negotiations already are under way to fix a date for a vote on the veto, Senator Curtis, Kansas, republican leader, said today in reply to a question from Senator Dill, democrat, of Washington. In the cloakroom predictions were heard that the poll would not be delayed much beyond the present week.

New Jersey, author of the vetoed measure, had prepared a new bill containing revenue producing sections, he declared today he had not decided whether to attempt to obtain its consideration. Senator Edge and other proponents of the salary increases were said to hold that it would be impossible, legally, to combine the two purposes in one statute without running foul of the constitutional inhibition against the senate inaugurating revenue-raising legislation. It was their contention that the pending salary bill should be enacted at once and a separate bill drawn in the house to effect the rate revision.

Estimates of the extent of the rate changes to be proposed were not attempted by any of the interested senators but they indicated that the recommendations made by Postmaster General new last April probably would be followed to a degree. These included:

Second class: Increase of 1 1-2 cents a pound on advertising matter in first and second zones, and of 1 1-4 cents in third zone.

Fourth class: General advance in parcel post rates for local delivery and in other zones with an estimated increase in revenue from this class of $30,000,000.

Insurance and registry fees also would be boosted.

The postmaster general computed the total increased receipts from his schedules at $50,000,000, as compared with a total increased expenditure of $150,000,000, which he saw in all postal bills then before congress or in preparation.

The report submitted today was described by Mr. New as "merely a fact finding statement," in which no reductions or recommendations had been attempted. Beyond numerous tables and charts, the bulky somes laid before the senate comprised merely a technical recitation of the manner in which the data had been accumulated. The work was started by a joint postal commission set up by congress but, the commission having expired last June, it was completed by the department through certified accountants and engineers.

DEATH OF MRS. EDWARDS MYSTIFIES AUTHORITIES

Birmingham, Ala., Dec. 3.—While arrangements were being made to take Dr. George T. Edwards to Montgomery to attend the funeral tomorrow of his wife, Annie Lou Edwards, authorities were tonight delving further into many mystifying angles which they assert are connected with the death of the woman.

Dr. Edwards, charged with the murder in a coroner's warrant, is still suffering much pain from a wound in the left hand which he said was inflicted by an assailant who he asserted murdered his wife and then attacked him in the Edwards home at Fairfield early yesterday.

After a conference with George Ross, his attorney, it was stated that Dr. Edwards would have no further statement to make. According to officers in charge of the inqury, the physician has adhered to his original statements concerning the attack upon his wife and him and vigorously denied accusations suggested by the service of the warrant.

Officers said they had discovered evidence tending to show that a fourth shot was fired. Deputies previously quoted the physician as saying that he fired three shots at his alleged assailant after the ointruder had fired up up him once. Deputies said Dr. Edwards' pistor had been fired three times and is being held as evidence.

Every inch of space in and about the home was being searched for additional clues and inquiries made at drug stores in an effort to identify the scource of two bottles containing an anaesthetic which were found in the house.

BOY SAFE AFTER FOUR CARS PASSED OVER HIM

New York, Dec. 3.—Four cars passed over Bert Somerall today when he fell from the platform of a subway station in front of a six-car train.

A wrecking crew and a hospital physician were called, to extricate the remains but Somerall rolled out, got to his feet and remarked: "I saw some nasty scenery." He escaped death by rolling into the depression between the tracks.

BOY'S DEATH RESULTS FROM COASTING ACCIDENT

Danbury, Dec. 3.—Raymond Barrett, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. Barrett, who was injured in a coasting accident last night, when his sled ran into a wagon near Mountainville avenue, died in the Danbury hospital today from the effects of his injuries

Session Confederacy Daughters In Turmoil

Washington, Dec. 3.—Police were called late today to restore order at a meeting of the District of Columbia chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, in special session to elect officers for the Washington organization.

Since 11 a. m., the convention had been in turmoil without interruption, with accusations hurtling back and forth between the contending factions, one of which is led by Mrs. Drury C. Ludlow and the other by Mrs. Walter E. Hutton, who is acting as president-general over the protest of many of the delegates.

One woman finally ran to a telephone to summon the police, and a lone negro patrolman responded. His appearance cowered both sides, and the meeting broke up with a final argument over who had sent for him.

STUDYING THE UNDERWOOD MUSCLE SHOALS PLAN

Washington, Dec. 3.—The senate paused today in its consideration of the Muscle Shoals problem to give President Coolidge and the senators an opportunity to study the new plan of Senator Underwood, democrat, Alabama.

When the subject was called up in the senate at two o'clock, it was agreed to carry it over until tomorrow. Recess was afterwards taken instead of adjournment, leaving he issue in its favored position on the senate calendar.

No move toward settlement of the Muscle Shoals question is expected by congressional leaders, until the president expresses his attitude on the Underwood proposal. The bill was taken to the White House early today by Senator Curtis, the republican leader, and Senators McKinley, Illinois, and Pepper, Pennsylvania, republicans.

The president referred the measure to the war department for a report from military experts. Some consideration already has been given to the bill by the president, Senator Underwood having conferred with him several times while he was preparing it.

Leaders of the various senate factions interested in Muscle Shoals said today that the Underwood bill carried out the general plan of President Coolidge on Muscle Shoals as expressed in his annual message read today to congress.

Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, author of the Muscle Shoals bill which formally before the house, said today that he knew President Coolidge was opposed to its measure and for that reason he did not expect to get it through the senate. He predicted the Underwood bill would pass the senate if it received the administration's support. The Norris bill was reported to the senate by the agricultural committee at the last session and was left in preferred position on the calendar at adjournment.

MISS SCHNEIDER WILL NOT CLAIM IMMUNITY

New Haven, Dec. 3.—That Miss Marjorie Schneider, of this city, the driver of the automobile in which Charles G. Rogers, bond salesman, was killed on the night of November 1, will make no claim for personal privilege or immunity, when grand jurors of North Haven open an investigation of the tragedy tomorrow morning, was announced tonight by her attorney, Jacob P. Goodhart.

Rogers was killed on the night of the Yale-Army football game while returning to this city from an inn in Wallingford with Miss Schneider. According to Coroner Eli Mix death was due to a fractured skull received when Rogers' head struck a telephone pole in an accident in North Haven. This finding was accepted as "indisputable facts" by State's Attorney A. A. Alling.

An investigation was started by the state police two weeks ago, however, and it is understood that the grand jury inquiry in North Haven is the result of this investigation. No hint has been dropped as to what new evidence, if any, the state police have found.

SYRIAN WAS SHOT IN BACK IN PROVIDENCE

Providence, Dec. 3.—Solomon Haskell, a Syrian, shot in the back in the alley leading to his tenement tonight at 6.30, turned and chased his assailant into Spruce street, fired one shot that missed, and dropped. He died on the way to the Rhode Island hospital.

At 10 o'clock, headquarters inspectors and police arrested on suspicion Francis Simon, also a Syrian, who claims he was in Brockton since 1 o'clock this afternoon.

The murder is believed to be the result of a feud among members of the Syrian colony on Federal hill which had its inception in the fatal shooting June 15 last of Charles Simon, brother of the man held. Charles Simon died June 17, vowing vengeance in the next world on Michael Rahad, another Syrian, who was indicted by a grand jury October 17 for the murder.

PRESIDENT OF STEVENSON SOCIETY OF AMERICA

Saranac Lake, N. Y., Dec. 3.—Colonel Walter Scott, of Scotland, tonight was installed as president of the Stevenson Society of America at ceremonies attended by more than 200 members and friends. The day was the anniversary of the death of Robert Louis Stevenson on the Island of Samoa.

The Stevenson society recently purchased the Baker cottage in which Stevenson wrote many of his books. It is intended to make the cottage a permanent literary shrine.

GOV. SMITH TO DISREGARD ACTION OF MAYOR HYLAN

Governor of New York Has Informed the Mayor of New York City That Investigation of Transit Conditions in New York City Will Proceed—Mayor Hylan Had Declined to Participate, Except as Required by Law—Party Leaders Are Looking For Political Contest.

New York, Dec. 28.—Investigation of New York city's transit muddle will proceed under the direction of Supreme Court Justice McAvoy as Governor Smith originally ordered it, the governor tersely informed Mayor John F. Hylan late today.

"The subject matter of the charges of the board of estimate and apportionment against the transit commission is within the scope of the wider inquiry I have directed," the governor wrote in answer to Mr. Hylan's letter of yesterday in which the mayor protested against the proposed investigation and announced his determination to participate in it "only to the extent required by law."

Both republican and democratic party leaders looked upon the governor's letter as a gauntlet thrown at the mayor's feet, the signal for internecine political warfare looking to the defeat of Mr. Hylan in his aspirations for a third democratic mayoralty nomination with Tammany backing.

Recent events pointed to an alliance between William Randolph Hearst, United States Senator Royal S. Copeland and the mayor—an alliance, which under certain circumstances, would seek to wrest city and state democratic party control from Governor Smith and Tammany leaders.

Arthur Brisbane, a Hearst editor, recently declared that if the mayor were refused renomination in next fall's city election, Mr. Hylan probably would run as an independent candidate. In a speech a few weeks ago Senator Copeland advocated the appointment of a state democratic leader other than Governor Smith, who long has been recognized as the leader of his party in New York state.

ALL-DAY BATTLE OF COUNSEL AT THE TRIAL OF FORBES

Chicago, Dec. 3 (By the A. P.)—The testimony of Arthur C. Crump, of Philadelphia, formed the background for an all-day battle of counsel today in the Forbes-Thompson Veterans' Bureau conspiracy trial. Crump, during the period when Charles R. Forbes was head of the Veterans' bureau, was secretary-treasurer of the Pontiac Construction company of Detroit, the firm which got the first Veterans' bureau hospital contract, the one for the foundations of the Northampton, Mass., hospital buildings.

Both sides through Crump, introduced a large number of letters, telegrams and memoranda, which Judge George A. Carpenter, taking a hand now and then in the debate over the admission of these papers as evidence.

On cross-examination, Crump admitted he had refused an interview two months ago to counsel for Forbes and his co-defendant, Thompson, being advised by the district attorney at Philadelphia not to give them any information. The Pontiac company, it was brought out, was an open shop subsidiary of the James Black company, of St. Louis, Black now dead, being a business associate of Thompson.

Crump's testimony was taken today, with Elias H. Mortimer, the principal government witness, only half way through his story, so that he might return home.

Under questioning by John W. H. Crim, and Ralph F. Potter, special assistants to the attorney general, Crump related his part in figuring the Pontiac company's bid on the Northampton foundation job, arriving at an estimate of $160,000, with 120 days as the time of completion.

TRAGEDY PERPETRATED BY A PROSPEROUS FARMER

Clymer, N. Y., Dec. 3—Chautauqua County authorities tonight were investigating the case of Herman Wilterink, 45, prosperous farmer, who apparently became insane today and after wounding his wife and daughter committed suicide in his barn. The child, Mabel, five, was said by physicians to be in a critical condition tonight. Wilterink's wife is expected to live. Another daughter, Mary, eight, escaped attack.

Wilterink's wife, whom he won by a mail courtship and married ten years ago, was writing a letter to her mother in Alabama this morning, when her husband entered and asked:

"Ruth, do you want to die?"

She replied: "No, not yet, why?"

Without a word Wilterink struck her with his fist and then pounded her head with a flatiron. The woman ran from the house and told Clifford King, a neighbor of the attack.

While she was away Wilterink struck his daughter, Mabel, over the head with the iron, knocked her unconscious.

When King approached the Wilterink house, the farmer fired at him, King, unarmed, notified the sheriff. He then went back to the Wilterink farm in time to see Wilterink, gun in hand, go to the barn. A few moments later smoke rolled from the barn and King heard another report of the gun. He called Clymer firemen. In the ruins of the barn they found Wilterink's charred body, the head blown off by the shot gun. Three horses, nine cows, a calf and forty chickens died in the fire and tons of hay and much machinery were destroyed.

TEACHER SUED FOR AN ASSAULT ON PUPIL

New Haven, Dec. 3—Miss Henrietta Ransom, a teacher in the Scranton St. school was made defendant in a $5,000 damage suit filed in superior court today by John Angelillo, father, in behalf of his son, Augustine, uncalled for assault being charged. The matter has been brought to the attention of the school authorities and to them, Miss Ransom declared there was no truth in the claim that she struck the boy or ill treated him. Miss Ransom is a new teacher at the school and is said to have been appointed by the state board of education. It is stated in the complaint that on October 14, the teacher ill-treated the boy, causing injuries that made it impossible for him to attend school for several days.

PUCCINI FUNERAL SERVICE IN CATHEDRAL IN MILAN

Milan, Italy, Dec. 3—The funeral service over the late Giacomo Puccini, the operatic composer, was held in the cathedral here today in the presence of a great assemblage of mourners. Despite the rain the funeral procession to the cemetery was most impressive. The entire route was draped with black.

The minister of instruction represented the government, and there were present also the mayors of Milan and Lucca. Military honors were paid to the dead at the cemetery and the coffin was deposited temporarily in the tomb of the Toscanini family.

MRS. BUZZI DENIES THAT SHE COMMITTED MURDER

New York, Dec. 3.—Mrs. Anna Buzzi, testifying in her own defense here today at her second trial for the murder on February 23, 1923, of Frederick Schneider, wealthy contractor, denied that she committed the crime or that she ever confessed to it to William Turk, her brother-in-law, as he has testified she did.

She stated that she had remained at home the day of the murder, and until late that evening. She also denied that when Turk came to her apartment on the evening of the murder, she had been cleaning the sleeve of a black coat, as Turk had previously testified.

The coat was one which the prosecution had declared Mrs. Buzzi wore on the afternoon of the murder, and on which, it was said, blood stains had been found.

J. P. Atkinson, chemist, a prosecution witness, admitted on cross-examination by defense counsel that the stains on the outside of the coat were not made by human blood, but insisted that spots on the inside of the coat were.

At the request of the jury, Mrs. Buzzi put on the coat, and measurements were taken to show that the coat ended six and a half inches below the knee. A previous witness, Nicholas Feuiner, had testified that he had seen some one apparently a woman, in a similar coat, leaving the automobile in which Schneider's body was found. The coat he said, reached to the ankles.

James Donnelly, counsel for Mrs. Buzzi, in his opening address to the jury said the defense would rest on an alibi.

Miss Molly Nager, who lived in the same apartment house as Schneider, testified that on the day of his death, just before 5 o'clock in the morning, he opened the door of the building for her and that when he followed her in she saw Mrs. Buzzi open Schneider's door for him.

Harry R. McGlauflin, who formerly drove a truck for Schneider, said he was the contractor in an excavation job at 4.30 p. m., and when driving the truck to Schneider's garage, accompanied by a timekeeper, saw Schneider dressing in his car, alone, at 5.10, at some distance from the place where the body was found an hour later.

The case of the prosecution was closed at noon today.

FURTHER REPORT OF DEMOCRATIC FINANCES

Washington, Dec. 3.—The democratic national committee, in reporting campaign contributions and expenditures to the clerk of the house, disclosed that its liabilities on Nov. 20, included trade bills unpaid to the amount of $204,927.78.

Jesse H. Jones, director of finance, reported that the committee had funds on hand to cut its deficit to approximately $260,000. Between July 1 and Nov. 20, receipts of the committee, including the New York Trust company loan, totaled $964,520.38, and expenditures $903,908.21.

Examination at the clerk's office today of the individual contributions listed showed several discrepancies in the amounts as first made public, due chiefly to the fact that some donations by the same persons were listed in the report in different form.

It was shown that Thomas Fortune Ryan contributed $50,000; John D. Ryan, $5,000; Bernard M. Baruch $25,000; Henry Morgenthau $23,500; James W. Gerard, $13,000, and Herbert Lehman $10,000. Clement L. Shaver, Washington, was listed as having contributed $7,500; C. Shaver, New York, $2,500, and C. L. Shaver, Fairmont, W. Va., $100.

TO STUDY HEAVENS OF SOUTHERN HEMISPHERE

New Haven, Dec. 3.—When Prof. Frank Schlesinger, director of Yale university observatory, leaves for London on his way to South Africa, he will take with him the lenses of the new telescope which is to be set up at Cape Town for a study of the heavens of the Southern Hemisphere.

The telescope now set up in Mason laboratory has been tested for accuracy and stability. It will be dismantled and shipped without delay.

Prof. Schlesinger estimates that the mechanism of the telescope is so accurate that it moves five-eighths of an inch in four minutes and makes a complete revolution in 24 hours.

The Oriental Rug was the topic of a discourse by Hagi Iskiyan, of Hampton, at the regular meeting of the Woman's club held this week. The old art of weaving an industry started 12 or 15 centuries before Christ and the great labor involved in making a rug by hand were subjects touched upon during the talk. One person working eight hours a day for four years is the amount of labor necessary to complete a rug seven feet by four. The girls of the orient do most of the weaving, although oftentimes, the whole family joins in the work. The best wool from well cared for animals is taken for rug-making and the long process of dyeing is done with vegetable dyes. The designs are not works of art but symbolical. A perfect rug is never made as only Allah was perfect, but the quality of a real Oriental rug is such that it improves with age.

WILLIMANTIC ARTIST DOING NOTABLE WORK

(Special to The Bulletin)

Willimantic, Dec. 3.—The fine old home of ex-President Franklin Pierce of Hillsboro, N. H., which was built by Governor Pierce in 1804, is being restored by Miss Rosina Dondero, a highly talented artist from this city. When the work is completed the home will be presented to the state of New Hampshire by Mayor Kendall of Cleveland, Ohio, who is distantly related on his mother's side of the family. It will be a fitting memorial to his father and mother and to the ex-president. As workmen scraped off many coating of wall paper it was found that the walls proper were finely tinted and stenciled. The constant paperings and patchings had in many places completely obliterated the delicate work but in spite of these handicaps Miss Dondero has succeeded in reviving the designs to their original glory. The powdered colors, mostly the ochres and Venetian red, vegetable colors with animal fats and skimmed milk were used. An elderly woman who remembered many things of her girlhood days took a presiding position over the work and greatly assisted Miss Dondero obtaining a remarkable likeness of the old paintings in the great 48 foot hall room, lower living room, side entry, and front hall. While working in the building Miss DonDero visited the grandnieces of the ex-president, Mrs. Susan Hawthorne and Miss Mary K. Pierce at their home in Hillsboro. She is soon to go to Newport, R. I., to finish the commission to copy the portrait of General Pierce, ex-governor of New Hampshire and father of ex-President Pierce, which is in the public library there.

WILLIMANTIC COUPLE LEAD EXCITING LIFE

Willimantic, Dec. 3.—The unusual situation existing in the household of Richard Zagara and his wife Rose Zagara, and their six children, ranging in ages from 17 to 6, was brought to light in the police court here Wednesday morning when both husband and wife were charged with assault. Both pleaded guilty. Some eight years ago Mrs. Zagara shot and injured her husband during an argument. They separated for a time but for the past five years have been living under the same roof, the husband retaining a [illegible] room and cooking his own meals. According to the wife Zagara [illegible] dollars a week for the support of the children when he was working. He paid for his own food. Of late he had been out of work and she and her children had to live on a measely $30 a week which was brought in by the two oldest children who worked in the mill. When working steady Zagara earned $30 a week but since having been laid off he had been drawing on a $900 bank account in a Hartford bank. She said that her husband had started the trouble Tuesday morning and threatened her with a chair. She told the court that she did not want him around the house any longer and could get along without him. Zagara argued that while he was frying himself some pork chops his wife rushed at him with a potato knife. He ducked behind a chair and when she said that she would call for the police he told her she did not have to as he would pack his belongings and leave the place. The court did not have the power to order Zagara to keep away from his house, but impressed upon him the necessity of supporting his family. To give the couple an opportunity to patch up their troubles Judge Foss continued the cases one month.

JEWETT CITY

Twenty-five people from Jewett City went to Pachaug Grange hall Tuesday night to attend the fair, supper and entertainment of the Ladies' Aid Society. Although the furnace has not yet been placed in the building, it was splendidly heated by stoves, and the rooms could not have been more comfortable. A harvest supper of corned beef, mashed turnip and potato, applesauce, brown bread, rolls, pie and coffee was served by Mrs. W. B. Montgomery, Mrs. William Bitgood, Mrs. Arba Browning, Mrs. W. C. Terry, Mrs. Walter Johnson, Mrs. Karjalo, Mrs. Joseph Rood and Mrs. Jane Lester.

Mrs. Forrest Necham and Mrs. Idella Babcock were at the fancy and domestic table. Mrs. Edward Gibson had charge of the canned fruit and home made candy, Mrs. Victor Campbell received the door fee. Mr. and Mrs. William Edmond had charge of the ice cream which was served by Alvin Douglass. Blanche and Frances Montgomery conducted a laundry package establishment. Everybody, young and old, patronized this "bargain" sale and no end of fun was created with the purchases which were bought sight unseen. Mrs. J. P. Richardson was in charge of the programme. Mrs. Adelbert Gallup of Sterling Hill brought the performers, with one exception, and the numbers were all arranged and the dances by the children were worked out by Mrs. Gallup. It was one of the best and snappiest programmes ever given in this vicinity. An orchestra of four pieces comprising violin, cornet, saxophone and piano, was made up of four very young boys, Richmond, Raymond and Byron Young and Russell Gallup, all of Sterling Hill. And they played in perfect harmony and time. Mr. and Mrs. Adelbert Gallup gave a very funny sketch, Glickman, the Glazier.

The Paranzino sisters from Moosup rendered a violin and piano duet and later with Miss Agnes Allard gave several ukelele selections and songs, being recalled several times. Mrs. Mildred Barber of Oneco sang a solo, also giving an encore. Mrs. Harold Burke and Floyd Gallup presented the farce Turnipville Station Agent which was well acted. Mr. Burke gave a monologue dressed as a colored man, and also played harmonica selections. Mrs. John Murphy of Voluntown sang a soprano solo with an encore. The last number was the Dance of the Fairies, and was preceded by a pianologue by Mrs. Gallup and Mrs. Burke. It was entitled Star Dust, Mrs. Gallup reciting to the music. Then, four little girls, Bernice Gallup, Helen Dunay, Mildred Filmore and Edna Frink gave a costume dance which was very lovely. Little Rita Filmore appeared as a fairy and executed a different solo dance in the daintiest and most charming manner. The accompanist were Miss Florence Douglass, Mrs. Harold Burke, Mrs. J. P. Richardson and the orchestra.

Are You Losing Your Grip on Health?

Physician's Prescription to Increase the Health and Strength of Anaemic, Run-down Men and Women

As a result of the tremendous strain of modern living many people find that the nerve cells have become devitalized, the whole system weakened, and thousands of men and women are today losing their grip on health simply because their blood is thinning out and possibly starving through lack of sunshine food. It is through iron in the red coloring matter of the blood that life sustaining oxygen enters the body and enables the blood to change food into living tissue, muscle and brain. If people would only keep their blood filled with sufficient strength-giving iron by taking Nuxated Iron when they feel weak and run-down they might readily build up their red blood corpuscles and quickly become stronger and healthier in every way. If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. Nuxated Iron will increase the strength of a pale, nervous, run-down man and woman in two weeks' time in many instances. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. Nuxated Iron is on sale at all good druggists.

DANIELSON

What would you do with the more than $100,000 being released in Danielson to Christmas club members if it were all your own? One man asked that question of another one here on Wednesday and got an answer. Probably 100 different people would answer in 100 different ways. The man who was first asked about it, however, allowed that he would invest it in something he believed to be safe—real estate, government bonds or some gilt-edge security and let it set. He had no visions of doing anything spectacular with such a sum. In considering the particular sum in connection with how it was created here he was particularly impressed because it is made up of savings in comparatively small amounts. "It is an illustration of what one can do by regular and systematic saving. It is a demonstration of what one can do if one will."

The cold weather is having its effect on men who are roaming about the country in search of work or as vagrants. Chief John McFarland said Wednesday morning that nine such men have sought and received lodging at the police station since last Saturday night.

Sergeant and Mrs. Albert S. Field are entertaining Gurdon Robinson, a relative of Mrs. Field. Mr. Robinson, who is in the United States naval service and attached to the U. S. S. Wyoming is of Brooklyn, Alabama, a community named after Brooklyn, Conn., from which place some of Mr. Robinsons ancestors, relatives of Mrs. Field, went forth more than a century since to found the new Brooklyn in the sunny south.

Treasurer Sidney W. Bard of the Brooklyn Savings bank and Mrs. Bard and Mr. and Mrs. William Valentino of Pomfret motored to Hartford Wednesday evening and attended the annual banquet and entertainment of the Connecticut Vegetable Growers' association held at the Hotel Garde. Membership of the organization is representative of many sections of Connecticut.

They grow hogs up in the East Killingly country—hogs that would rate as such where people accustomed to see them large. Two giant Durocs, one weighing 528 pounds, the other 490 pounds, were recently butchered for Nelan Eldridge of that place by Earl Burgess and his son W. Earl Burgess. They were remarkably fine hogs in appearance as to have been raised in this territory in years.

Another flood of Christmas club checks was released in Danielson Wednesday afternoon by the Brooklyn Savings bank and several hundred people will be happy this morning when they sort their mail and find among the letters an envelope containing one of the pretty bits of paper that mean so much at this particular time of the year. The checks in this list call for varying amounts, according to the weekly payments of each individual during the past year. A considerable percentage of the checks are of the $250 class, these going to the group that have paid in $5 weekly during the past fifty weeks. Enough money has been released through Christmas clubs in the past two days to pay for any business block in Danielson—and as much more is going to be released here in the immediate future. This outpouring of money is bound to benefit the business men and make for smart buying days between now and Christmas.

School children are adding their effective efforts to boosting the sale of Christmas seals in Danielson. Through their ractivities many of the borough residents have already been reached and sold. The children are enthusiastic over their opportunity to assist in such a worthy cause and are canvassing for sales with great zeal. They will contribute materially toward making the sales of the seals reach 75,000 in Danielson for that is the object this Christmas season.

Alex Duval of Tiffany street is a clever manipulator of a pocket knife. In a show window at Meech's store is an interesting sample of his handiwork. It is a miniature loom, complete in every detail. It is interesting in design and equipment, no detail being lacking. It looks as though it might run were power applied. It has its warp and woof, its harnesses and shuttles, its bobbins and belts and things. Mr. Duval evolved the creation during spare moments and did not forget to carve out a figure of a woman standing beside the loom, in attitude of an operative. The loom is attracting much attention, especially from those who are familiar with mill machinery.

Danielson's supply of dry, hard wood is diminishing. At least such wood is not as plentiful as it was early in the fall, when there appeared to be an abundance of it on hand, following extensive cuttings made during the past winter and early spring seasons. However, it appears that wood is in more general use here since the war brought scarcity of fuel and csucceeding years witnessed the advance in price of that fuel to its present levels. Some dealers in dry, hard wood have exhausted their supplies. Others have such wood on hand and find that the demand for it is beyond their expectations.

On a still alarm after four o'clock Wednesday afternoon firemen made a trip down the Green Hollo wroad to the Warren farm, where a chimney fire in the small dwelling on the place was causing concern. The fire did not result in any serious damage to the property.

At the Woodstock Congregational church Wednesday afternoon David Phillips, the new minister to the Woodstock church, was ordained into the Christian ministry in the presence of a large congregation. A number of distinguished divines took part in the services.

Rev. Walter B. Williams, pastor of the Westfield Congregational church at Danielson, was moderator and Rev. Frank Abbott of Eastford was clerk. Rev. Mr. Williams made the opening statement and Mr. Abbott read the minutes of the preceding council. Miss Louise Lawton sang very acceptably My Redeemer and My Lord. The scripture lesson was read by Rev. Kenneth D. Beckwith of New York city, a former classmate of Mr. Hatch.

Rev. Edwin K. Mitchell, president of the Hartford Theological seminary, made the prayer of ordination. Afterward, the right hand of fellowship was extended by Rev. Stephen D. Livingston, pastor of the Congregational church at Thompson. The charge to the new minister was delivered by Rev. Willis H. Butler, pastor of the Asylum Hill Congregational church of Hartford, and the charge to the people by Rev. Cornelius H. Patton, D. D. Mr. Patton, whose home is in New York, is secretary of the home missionary board of the Congregational church of the United States.

Without making his intentions known to anyone here, Adolph Jarvis went to New York three weeks ago and on Nov. 19 was married to Miss Marie Anderson. Her home is in New York but she has spent a good deal of time in Pomfret. They are now back in Putnam, but are still celebrating their honeymoon, making automobile trips to Boston, Providence and Hartford.

When war was declared against Germany he and his brother were among the first six ot enlist from this city. They joined the New England coast artillery and were sent across as members of the 69th regiment, United States artillery service. At that time Adolph Jarvis was 21 years of age and his brother, the present captain of police, was but 19. They did not return from France until January, 1924, and when they arrived in Putnam a month later, because of their unusual military service and the number of friends they have here, a public reception was given them that was only surpassed by the general welcome extended to all of the homecoming soldiers from this district. Mr. and Mrs. Jarvis will make their home in Putnam.

A course of entertainments of four numbers is to be given at the Putnam High school hall under the auspices of the faculty and students of the high school, assisted by the Parent-Teachers association. The first entertainment is to be given by The Sunshine Girls' Trio.

The regular monthly meeting of the Putnam city council was held Tuesday evening with all members present except Councilman Rogers. Mayor Chapdelaine presided.

The report of Police Captain William Jarvis showed 21 arrests for the month of November. Eleven of these were for drunkenness, five for violation of the motor vehicle law, one for violation of the liquor law, other than imbibing gasoline or denatured alcohol.

The secretary of Chemical Hose company No. 2 submitted a list of new members for the council's approval as follows: Ernest Laurion, Edgar Auger and John Pierre. They are to replace William Durand, Anthony Bernier, Napoleon Benoit and Emile Lavoir.

A report was made by Councilman Warren S. Ames, chairman of the street lighting committee, recommending that three lights be installed on the northern section of Church street. Residents of that section asked for five. Mr. Ames' suggestion was adopted.

City Tax Collector Archie Macdonald, Jr., presented a list of corrections which he asked authority to make in the city tax book. Council granted the request.

Napoleon LaPointe, addressing the council in French, through the aid of an interpreter, asked that some action be taken that would permit him to get gas extended so as to serve two blocks on Mill street. The request was taken under advisement.

The question of whether the city should pay the bill of Howard C. Bradford for services as assistant city prosecuting attorney since January of this year again came up for discussion. Alderman-at-Large Charles Richard said that he was opposed to paying the bill, that in his judgment Mr. Bradford was not entitled to any remuneration. He exhibited a bond given by Mr. Bradford for a two-year term beginning January, 1922. It expired on the first of this year, and has never been renewed.

The matter of paying the bill was referred to Charles L. Torrey for recommendation, and directing his attention particularly to the two-year bond.

The general committee on Come-Back days, Friday and Saturday of this week, reported that 97 retail merchants of the city had pledged their support and co-operation in the movement, and that tomorrow they expected to bring the number to an even one hundred.

One of the biggest socials and supper events of the season was held by the Women's Bowling league in the dining room of the Plainfield Community House Tuesday evening. The room was very prettily decorated with evergreen trimmings and flowers of the season. A big dome light in the center of the room which hung over the center of the table was decorated with red white, and blue crepe paper, was very effective. Each chair at the table was decked with ribbons and paper rosettes a duplicate of a queen's chair. The table was decorated with a big fern in the center with streamers to each plate. Fastened to the ends of the streamers from the center were little favors of French ivory "Little Men" with the reception of two places where two men sat these had little cupple dolls. The table was set for twenty-three guests. A course dinner of chicken was served, chicken salad and macaroons. The opening toast was given by Augustus Coffey. After the supper Miss Teresa Sullivan sang a solo, Miss Celia Israel told many interesting jokes. Miss Edith Bertwhistle played selections on the banjo-uke and Miss Pauline Peltier played the piano. Margaret Reid imitated the famous Scotchman, Harry Lauder. Miss Madeline Brown entertained with classic dancing and Miss Alice Moffet closed the evening with a real address on the doings and plans of the Bowling league. DANIELSON

What would you do with the more than $100,000 being released in Danielson to Christmas club members if it were all your own? One man asked that question of another one here on Wednesday and got an answer. Probably 100 different people would answer in 100 different ways. The man who was first asked about it, however, allowed that he would invest it in something he believed to be safe—real estate, government bonds or some gilt-edge security and let it set. He had no visions of doing anything spectacular with such a sum. In considering the particular sum in connection with how it was created here he was particularly impressed because it is made up of savings in comparatively small amounts. "It is an illustration of what one can do by regular and systematic saving. It is a demonstration of what one can do if one will."

PUTNAM

At the Woodstock Congregational church Wednesday afternoon David Phillips, the new minister to the Woodstock church, was ordained into the Christian ministry in the presence of a large congregation. A number of distinguished divines took part in the services.

Rev. Walter B. Williams, pastor of the Westfield Congregational church at Danielson, was moderator and Rev. Frank Abbott of Eastford was clerk. Rev. Mr. Williams made the opening statement and Mr. Abbott read the minutes of the proceding council. Miss Louise Lawton sang very acceptably My Redeemer and My Lord. The scripture lesson was read by Rev. Kenneth D. Beckwith of New York city, a former classmate of Mr. Hatch.

Rev. Edwin K. Mitchell, president of the Hartford Theological seminary, made the prayer of ordination. Afterward, the right hand of fellowship was extended by Rev. Stephen D. Livingston, pastro of the Congregational church at Thompson. The charge to the new minister was delivered by Rev. Willis H. Butler, pastor of the Asylum Hill Congregational church of Hartford, and the charge to the people by Rev. Cornelius H. Patton, D. D. Mr. Patton, whose home is in New York, is secretary of the home missionary board of the Congregational church of the United States.

Without making his intentions known to anyone here, Adolph Jarvis went to New York three weeks ago and on Nov. 19 was married to Miss Marie Anderson. Her home is in New York but she has spent a good deal of time in Pomfret. They are now back in Putnam, but are still celebrating their honeymoon, making automobile trips to Boston, Providence and Hartford.

When war was declared against Germany he and his brother were among the first six ot enlist from this city. They joined the New England coast artillery and were sent across as members of the 69th regiment, United States artillery service. At that time Adolph Jarvis was 21 years of age and his brother, the present captain of police, was but 19. They did not return from France until January, 1924, and when they arrived in Putnam a month later, because of their unusual military service and the number of friends they have here, a public reception was given them that was only surpassed by the general welcome extended to all of the homecoming soldiers from this district. Mr. and Mrs. Jarvis will make their home in Putnam.

A course of entertainments of four numbers is to be given at the Putnam High school hall under the auspices of the faculty and students of the high school, assisted by the Parent-Teachers association. The first entertainment is to be given by The Sunshine Girls' Trio.

The regular monthly meeting of the Putnam city council was held Tuesday evening with all members present except Councilman Rogers. Mayor Chapdelaine presided.

The report of Police Captain William Jarvis showed 21 arrests for the month of November. Eleven of these were for drunkenness, five for violation of the moter vehicle law, one for violation of the liquor law, other than imbibing gasoline or denatured alcohol.

The secretary of Chemical Hose company No. 2 submitted a list of new members for the council's approval as follows: Ernest Laurion, Edgar Auger and John Pierre. They are to replace William Durand, Anthony Bernier, Napoleon Benoit and Emile Lavoir.

A report was made by Councilman Warren S. Ames, chairman of the street lighting committee, recommending that three lights be installed on the northern section of Church street. Residents of that section asked for five. Mr. Ames' suggestion was adopted.

City Tax Collector Archie Macdonald, Jr., presented a list of corrections which he asked authority to make in the city tax book. Council granted the request.

Napoleon LaPointe, addressing the council in French, through the aid of an interpreter, asked that some action be taken that would permit him to get gas extended so as to serve two blocks on Mill street. The request was taken under advisement.

The question of whether the city should pay the bill of Howard C. Bradford for services as assistant city prosecuting attorney since January of this year again came up for discussion. Alderman-at-Large Charles Richard said that he was opposed to paying the bill, that in his judgment Mr. Bradford was not entitled to any remuneration. He exhibited a bond given by Mr. Bradford for a two-year term beginning January, 1922. It expired on the first of this year, and has never been renewed.

The matter of paying the bill was referred to Charles L. Torrey for recommendation, and directing his attention particularly to the two-year bond.

The general committee on Come-Back days, Friday and Saturday of this week, reported that 97 retail merchants of the city had pledged their support and co-operation in the movement, and that tomorrow they expected to bring the number to an even one hundred.

Lawrence Colburne Hermon Colburne and families of Norwich were visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Colburne Tuesday.

One of the biggest socials and supper events of the season was held by the Women's Bowling league in the dining room of the Plainfield Community House Tuesday evening. The room was very prettily decorated with evergreen trimmings and flowers of the season. A big dome light in the center of the room which hung over the center of the table was decorated with red white, and blue crepe paper, was very effective. Each chair at the table was decked with ribbons and paper rosettes a duplicate of a queen's chair. The table was decorated with a big fern in the center with streamers to each plate. Fastened to the ends of the streamers from the center were little favors of French ivory "Little Men" with the exception of two places where two men sat these had little cupple dolls. The table was set for twenty-three guests. A course dinner of chicken was served, chicken salad and macaroons. The opening toast was given by Augustus Coffey. After the supper Miss Teresa Sullivan sang a solo, Miss Celia Israel told many interesting jokes. Miss Edith Bertwhistle played selections on the banjo-uke and Miss Pauline Peltier played the piano. Margaret Reid imitated the famous Scotchman, Harry Lauder. Miss Madeline Brown entertained with classic dancing and Miss Alice Moffet closed the evening with a real address on the doings and plans of the Bowling league. Those present were, Misses Marion Lee, Celia Israel, Joan Kirby, Katherine Kirby, Melsie Hartwell, Elizabeth Gorman, Pauline Peltier, Edith Bertwistle, Auriana Gauthier, Teresa Sullivan, Margaret Reid, Mae Lyons, Alice Lyons, Semon LaPerle, Madaline Brown, Alice Moffet, Mrs. Charles Heap, Mrs. Daniel Connel, Mrs. Louis LaMotte, and Mrs. George Eastham, S. Augustus Coffey and W. Harold Burke.

The first night of the Congregational church bazaar was a big success. The doors opened at five o'clock and many of the townsmen were present. The ten booths were very prettily decorated. Each booth had a different display, the agricultural booths had all kinds of vegetables; the dainty booth, delicious cakes, cookies and pies; women from the Order of Joyous Servers served the big supper of roast beef, potatoes, lettuce. The big entertainment went over fine, the quartet of the Odd Fellows order was a bit hit, the singers being Christ Krauss, Sidney Mathewson, Charles McFarland and Andrew Tracy. Frank Hicks of Canterbury pleased with his humorous selections.

Mr. Evans whose ice house and wet wash plant were recently burned down, ha salmost completed his new house for the ice. This storage house will hold three thousand tons. He contemplates building a new wet wash plant in the spring.

Miss Rose Dumas of Putnam is now in the employ of the Mercier department store.

Mrs. Herman Eglin received a letter from her husband, who is now touring Germany, that conditions in that country are very good. He mailed the letter from Bassel, Germany as he is visiting the places of his childhood and many friends and relatives that are still in Germany.

E. E. Dupuis of Moosup was a business caller in Lowell, Mass., Wednesday.

Mr. W. Sangster, manager of the Danielson Electric company was a caller on the reporter of The Bulletin Wednesday. He explained the situation that the company had to contend with on the wire system from Danielson to Plainfield and stated that company was doing all within their power to better the service and give Plainfield real service. Ten thousand dollars was spent on the new sub station near Central Village and the new line from that station to Plainfield is almost ready. He promised that by next Friday, Plainfield would have power over the new line. A big crew of twenty or thirty men are working on this line. He claimed that the company had been working on the direct lines to the mills as they were in the greatest need for power.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

From the beginning to the end of President Coolidge's message to congress common sense stands out conspicuously in connection with his recommendations and the view which he takes of conditions. He bears down heavily in behalf of economy. He seeks to approach further tax reduction in a sane manner. He directs attention to the recuperation which is being shown in several directions. He makes himself clear in regard to foreign relations and he is positive in the course he believes this country should pursue in the handling of both foreign and domestic problems.

Furthermore he strongly advocates adherence to the world court but he correctly interprets the sentiment when he declares the United States is not disposed to join the league of nations. It is with satisfaction that he refers to the promising results of the Dawes plan in Europe and there is satisfaction to be noted in his reference to the fact that our foreign relations are the best during a period of a dozen years and he gives assurance that whatever help can be given for economic and financial support for reproductive industry and sound business administration will be unhesitatingly given.

Well does he stress the fact that the situation at home and abroad "is one that can be improved only by hard work and self denial. It is necessary to reduce expenditures, increase savings and liquidate debts. It is in this direction that there lies the greatest hope of domestic tranquility and international peace. Our own country ought to furnish the leading example in this effort." But while he sets forth the eagerness of this country to cooperate and help he sends home the point that "we are equally determined to be independent and free." We are not ready to hand over control to the league of nations.

In directing attention to the fact that our domestic problems are for the most part economic he emphasizes the point that the remedy for them lies in rigid enforcement in public expenditures. What the purpose of the economic programme is is revealed when he says "If at the close of the present session the congress has kept within the budget which I propose to present, it will then be possible to have a moderate amount of tax reduction and all the tax reform that congress may wish for during the next fiscal year." The president aims at a proper preparation for the things sought. He holds to the sane and scientific method of tax reduction and favors the repeal of that portion of the revenue act dealing with the publicity given to income taxes.

The idea of outlawing aggressive warfare received sympathetic attention and while it has been and still is the purpose of the president to take up with other countries further consideration of armament reduction, the proposals advanced by other nations makes it necessary to await developments.

The president has expressed himself to congress and the country on many important subjects. He has dealt with them, from the standpoint of national welfare and it remains to be seen what the reaction by congress will be.

BILLBOARDS AND SIGNPOSTS.

Efforts have been displayed in many states against the billboard nuisance. Resentment has also been shown to the practice of tacking up various signs of various sizes along the highways, and laws have been enacted against such things.

Not so long ago there was great delight shown by many in Minnesota at the chance afforded by the newly enacted law in that state to rip down such signboards as were to be found within the limits of the highway. It represented the way in which the people of that state felt concerning such disfigurements. Now we are told that the state of Iowa has forbidden the placing of signboards on public property, the law requiring that the highways shall be free from all incumbrances. Thus are the states gradually showing their disapproval of what mars the countryside and interferes with the vision of the highway users.

In connection with the putting into effect of the law in Minnesota it is claimed that a half million signs were removed. It would be a grand good thing if every state which undertakes such a clean up, and the there as well, would manifest as much interest in the marking of the crossroads and designating where the various roads lead, as they seem to be doing in the improvement of their appearance.

Roads are being used as they never were before. Strangers are traveling them in greater numbers, and while here may be only a few who desire to see every crossroad, the fact that they are properly marked means a decided relief to those who are seeking the particular one that will carry them to their destination. It is figured necessary to name and mark city streets because of the convenience that is afforded. The same holds good in the case of the country roads of all kinds, and the demand for it increases each year.

Let the undesirable highway signs come down, but it would be an excellent thing if for every sign or billboard that is removed under the provisions of the law, a highway signboard for the guidance of travelers should be erected.

STATE FOREST FIRES.

After a season that was well calculated to test the efficiency of the fire fighting forces subject to call for woodland fires, it has been shown by the state forester that Connecticut suffered but little in comparison with what might have been expected. The conditions were right for many fires and heavy losses. Only by the preventive measures adopted and the effective means of detecting and fighting the fires were such favorable results obtained.

From the time of the closing of the hunting season until the ban was lifted over 4,000 acres of woodland were burned over, but in view of the conditions and the experience of other states the wonder is that the 122 fires could have been checked within that limit.

What the ban on hunting did in the way of preventing fires, there is no way of telling. That it resulted in a large reduction of the number is unquestionably as indicated by the fact that even those hunters who violated the ban were responsible for 16 of the fires. There are various agencies which figure in the starting of woodland fires and of those the locomotive always occupies a place near the top. This year there were 28 from that reason while smokers are credited with 21, and brush burners with ten.

Those who go into the woods with fire brands, those who throw smoking material from passing automobiles into the leaves and brush beside the road, those who are unable to control brush fires all figure prominently in connection with the destruction to woodland. Conditions of this kind have made necessary the establishment of lookouts, fire patrols and forest fire fighters. It is important to protect standing timber even as it is dwellings and other farm property. Heavy losses are entailed when woodlands are destroyed, and the unfortunate part of it is that a large part of the destructive fires could be prevented through the exercise of just a little more thought and care.

THE BRINDELL CASE.

It was not so long ago that the entire east was deploring the manner in which R. P. Brindell had the building trades unions of New York city in his grip and the frightful results that developed therefrom. It was a disclosure that was generally regarded as calling for something more than a slap on the wrist and there was a feeling of satisfaction when the convicted czar was sentenced to prison for five to ten years.

It is even less time since the news of the day told of the manner in which this same Brindell had exercised sufficient "pull" so that he could leave prison and meet his family in some nearby building frequently. It was quite evident then that influences were at work to relieve the effect of the prison sentence.

It was with even greater surprise that the report was given out that the parole board of New York had sanctioned the parole of Brindell on December 26, after serving three years and nine months, or a year and three months less than his minimum sentence. Considering the nature of Brindell's acts and the fact that his parole would not prevent him from going back and engaging in the same practices the indignation that is being manifested in New York can be regarded as fully justified. There are so many whose crimes have been slight in comparison with Brindell's that the paroling of him under such conditions naturally creates resentment. New York may well want to know what its laws amount to and why there should be such an effort to punish the criminals only to have the parole board turn them loose on the public in such a short period of time.

The question is bound to be asked as to whether New York has the kind of a parole board that it should have, whether it is subject to "pull" quite the same as some of the subordinates at Sing Sing were and whether it is serving the interests of the state first or devoting its efforts to meeting the wishes of the criminals. New York seems to have reason to figure that Brindell occupies about the same relation to the parole board that he did to the building trades unions before his conviction

President Coolidge carried Illinois by 876,364; and yet there were those who figured it among the doubtful states where La Follette had a chance.

Those republicans who have been voting the democratic ticket cannot expect to get much of a following when they shout for Hamilton Holt and the league of nations.

A CALL FROM 717

Kitty Healy was pulling out cords, punching in plugs with her miraculous speed.

"Hotel Hawthorne," she answered incoming calls.

"This you, Kitty?" The voice was querulous and timid.

"Yeh. Well, has he come home yet?"

"No. Kitty and I—I'm so worried. He didn't pay the rent, either, and Parker's been here all morning and—"

"But, Kitty, since the doctor said that—I can't help—"

"Shucks mom! He's all right. The doctor just said that to scare him. Trouble with dad is you're too darned easy with him. If you'd just put your foot down! Believe me, I'll tell him a few! Say, mom, 717's flashing like —"

She plugged into 717, chanted, "Office. Order please." But she heard only an inarticulate muttering, then a click as though the receiver had dropped. She tried another connection.

"Say, cap," she called to the captain of the bell boys. "Shoot a boy up to 717. Fellow signaled and his receiver's still down."

She turned again to her flashing call board. The light from 717 went out.

"Anything the matter in 717?" she asked later.

"Naw," said the sophisticated brass buttons, "some stew just tumbled over on the couch dead to the world."

"Stew? You sure he's stewed? May be he's — Go back and see."

"Nothin' doin'. I'm no errand boy. It's my front now," and he skidded off.

The bell boy's bench was empty. Kitty Healy pulled off her headpiece, leaving calls flashing. She took the master key from the keyrail and a half-emptied flask that was under the marble counter.

Room 717 yielded to the master key. The spirit of the past night was still there. Gray and dank was the air, evidenced by overflowing ash trays. A sweetish smell from glasses not wholly emptied. And on a couch under the telephone was crumpled a partly bald old man in a rumpled suit. Gray as his suit was his drawn face and stiff lips barely breached a moan.

"My God!" It was not an ejaculation but a prayer as Kitty Healy threw up the window.

As she raised the huddled figure an envelope dropped. She stuffed it mechanically into her pocket, reaching for the flask. She coaxed a little down his throat while more slopped down the vest and ready-made tie.

The bleary eyes opened. He clutched the serge arm of his good samaritan. "Don't let me go again," hoarsely. "God! I could feel myself going —I wanted somebody—and all I could see was royal flushes and bobtailed straights—Don't let me—"

"You're a darn good kid," muttered the old man, "to help a fellow out like this. Get me out, can't you? So help me God, I'm through! I'm through! I'm scared I guess—to be sinking and just see cards and chips. Please—get me home."

"Now, don't hit the high places too hard," she cautioned.

"No siree," and the light in his eyes revealed that he wished it was this reddish-haired girl he was tucking in, instead of a tremulous ashamed old man.

"And, Dennis, have you anything on your hip?"

"Why yes," he had the grace to blush, "in case of emergency."

"Don't you worry," assured Dennis.

"Hell, mom, this is me again. ("I'm ringing your number, sir,") You might put on some strong coffee to give dad a cup when he gets there. I just trundled him home in a taxi. And for the love of Mike, don't go jawing and nagging the poor man when he does get home."

"I wonder," said the relieved, though tired voice at the end of the wire, "about the rent money. Parker's here and he's got a deputy. He's going to put us out."

Then Kitty Healy, remembering, snaked a look at the envelope in her pocket. For once dad had not "given the party." All yellow backs smiled back at her.

Today's Birthdays

Edwin S. Broussard, United States senator from Louisiana, born in Iberia parish, La., 50 years ago today.

Frank J. Gould, youngest son of the late Jay Gould, born in New York City, 47 years ago today.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Professor William F. Durand, who is to preside at a notable meeting in New York today to celebrate "the centenary of the announcement in 1824 by Sadi Carnot of the second law of thermodynamics and the Carnot cycle," is a renowned mechanical engineer, long connected with the Leland Stanford University and now president of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. Prior to going to Stanford university he had been at the head of the department of mechanical College of Michigan. From 1880 to 1887 he served in the engineer corps of the navy, which means that he graduated from the Annapolis academy in 1880. For many years Professor Durand has been specially interested in aeronautics. When the war finally enlisted the United States in behalf of the cause of democracy, he naturally was summoned to aid in development of the aviation corps and its equipment.

Connecticut's Attitude

Bingham, Not Holt.

(Waterbury American.)

Two good men are up for senator and the vital difference between them is that one is a republican and the other a democrat. The country made a great effort to elect Coolidge last month and to give him a congress which would work with him instead of against him. To send a democrat from Connecticut to take the place of a republican in that congress would impair the good thing accomplished and endanger the chief end of the affair. We care little patience, except for the use of the fact that Mr. Holt has been a New York man all his life up to three months ago. He has spent his summers in Woodstock for many years and is connected with the Bowen family, long residents of that place. He knows his Connecticut well enough to represent the state in congress, if it were not that his position on the league, the tariff and most political questions would make him inevitably an antagonist of the administration. Misrepresentation of Mr. Bingham is also petty and mean. He did not seek the senatorship. It came to him and it is not a thing to be declined. He cannot decline the governorship because he is not yet governor. He is in an uncomfortable place through no fault of his own and not because he was trying to grasp one office while holding another in his hand. In the midst of these confusing misrepresentations voters will do well to fix their minds on the one vital point, that the country wants a man from Connecticut who will surely be on the president's side and that man is Bingham, not Holt.

H. Wales Lines For Bingham.

Ex-Mayor H. Wales Lines, of Meriden, prominent supporter of Congressman Tilson for the United States senatorial nomination at the recent republican convention states that he will support Governor-elect Bingham at the election December 16th. He said "The welfare of our nation requires that the United States senate have a sure dependable working majority of everyday republicans. To fill the present vacancy from Connecticut my support is given to Hiram Bingham because that is the only way in which I can help to keep the senate surely republican. My preference as a candidate for this vacancy was John Q. Tilson, the present able and faithful congressman from the Third district. With Hiram Bingham as United States senator, Connecticut's interests and influence will not suffer. He is worthy of this great honor."

Comedy of Holt's Disciples.

(Bristol Press.)

Hamilton Holt has a little band of excited disciples who are endeavoring to boost him by pulling down his opponent. This is familiar practice in desperate cases, but it has distinct disadvantages, as the band is discovering. However, they are adding to the gaity of life in Connecticut—and the laugh is on them. While savagely criticising Senator-elect Bingham for alleged insufficiency of experience for the position they showed their own innocence and lack of acquaintance with affairs by failing to comply with the law requiring notification to the secretary of state of the nomination of Mr. Holt. They thus confess lack of primary qualifications and place their candidate in position of receiving a favor for he can now go on the ticket only by a broad interpretation overlooking the carelessness of those who are so exacting in demands on others. It is in keeping with the comedy they are playing.

No Ground to Oppose Bingham.

(Ansonia Sentinel.)

Republicans of Connecticut ought to be wary concerning the special election to be held on December 16th, to make choice of a successor to the late Frank B. Brandegee in the United States senate. A maladroit scheme has been set on foot to turn away support from Hiram Bingham, the nominee of the republican convention, because of alleged undue influence in his selection by J. H. Roraback, the state central committee chairman, in the work of the convention. The scheme is engineered by democrats and, apparently, many republicans who should be loyal to Mr. Bingham are wavering in their support.

Really there is no good ground of opposition to Mr. Bingham. No one doubts his qualifications for the position; his knowledge and experience of general affairs are such as to commend him to every citizen. He was fairly nominated by the convention in the exercises of its wisdom and with the approval of his competitors for the place the choice was declared unanimous. Certainly no one will accuse The Sentinel of being partial to Mr. Roraback. It has had occasion many times to condemn his policies, but in this instance it can see the exercise of no undue influence. Mr. Bingham was not our first choice for the position, but inasmuch as he has the nomination it will support him and do what lies in its power for his election.

In taking this course we are mindful of the situation at Washington. We recognize that the republican majority in the senate is slender and Connecticut ought to be relied upon to fully sustain and uphold President Coolidge in his endeavors to recommend and provide suitable legislation for the country. The loss of a republican senator in Connecticut would be little short of a calamity under the circumstances. The republican majority in the United States senate is so slender that a combination of democrats and radicals might embarrass, if not entirely defeat the needful legislation that President Coolidge will recommend.

Stories That Recall Others

Real Pluck

She had occasionally a "little touch of rheumatism," as she admits to the members of her family; but never to the public. "I'm entirely too young to have rheumatism," she quotes.

But to the family doctor she was more frank. She told him of the twinges of pain she had. "Then I just say," she smiled to him, 'Feet, hurt if you have to, but whatever you do, don't dare limp and give some one occasion to say that I'm beginning to get old.'"

It Felt Like It

Helen's daddy has had several teeth removed and came home early in the day feeling miserable. Helen did her best to keep the other youngsters quiet and when one little playmate asked why they must be so still, Helen replied:

"Daddy's feeling awfully bad. He had six teeth excavated today!"

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

ARMENIA

"Unhappy Armenia, already laid waste during the past decade by all of the Three Horsemen of the Apocalypse, is now the victim of a physical catastrophe," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society in regard to that region of Asia Minor from which a highly destructive earthquake is reported.

"Armenia, centuries ago, was one of the most powerful and prosperous states of Asia. It is the memory of this golden age of independence and power that has kept alive in the breasts of Armenians a hope of again emerging as a nation. Their history has been not unlike that of the poles, though tremendously more tragic. torn as they were among powerful neighbors and the victims of persecution and massacre as well.

"For a few fleeting months after the close of the World war it appeared as if a full-fledged Armenia would spring into existence again; but Russian and Turkish armies quickly put an end to that dream.

"Since 636 the Armenians have really never had a chance. The country was then conquered by the Moslem Arabs and a long train of alien masters was up— 1 in: Arabs, Seljuk Turks, Mong Osmanli Turks, Persians, Russians.

"Just before the World war three 'Armenias' existed: that of Trans-Caucasus Russia, that of Turkey, and a smaller plot in Persia. Lofty Mt. Ararat was and still is the common corner of these Russian Persian and Turkish domains. The Armenians, Christians since the earliest centuries of the present era, accept the Noahic legend most literally and are ready to point out the exact spot on the famous mountain where the prow of the Ark grounded.

"The recent earthquake disturbance seems to have been most pronounced in the region within a hundred miles of Arrarat to the west and northwest. Evzerum, where much damage resulted according to Constantinople reports, is in Turkish Armenia, though it hardly deserves the name now, for hundreds of thousands of former Armenian residents of the territory, persecuted by the Turks in the last few years, have fled to the Armenian Soviet Republic a few miles north and east. The latter state does not even include all of the prewar Russian Armenia, for the Soviet government ceded about two-thirds of that territory to the Turks.

"In the Armenian Soviet Republic, with an area of between 10,000 and 15,000 square miles, are now concentrated about a million and a quarter Armenians, the bulk of the people of Armenian blood who have survived the past decade of forced migrations, massacres, famines, pillage and plague. Because of the influx of refugees most of the towns of Soviet Armenia are overcrowded and probably suffered heavily from the earthquake.

"Alexandropol, mentioned as one of the cities suffering most in the Russian area was described as follows in a communication to the National Geographic Society after the Turks had retreated from it in one of their post-war raids:

"Alexandropol is a blasted town (the handiwork of the Turk upon retreating, with streets like the Slough of Despond; low, flat houses; long lines of sackclothed people sitting, lying, dozing and dying all in the spring sunlight; not a laborer at work, not a wheel turning save those of the wretched droshky which we commandeered.

"Utter silence brooded over Alexandropol—a silence profound and sinister, as if the whole town were mantled out of respect for continuous burial. We found no violence, no disorder. The people showed the gentle somnolence of lotus-eaters, as they sat there in the long sunbathed streets feeding on hope.

"Refugees whose numbers had grown in six weeks from 26,000 to 50,000, and in ten days from 50,000 to 58,000, filled the Russian barracks, where they were massed like bees in swarming time. As we walked through those dark, cell-like rooms of shattered windows and smoked ceilings, not a bed or chair was to be seen, but only groups of wretched humanity, huddled together on their common of dank flagstones.

"Through the dimness we could see a multitude of hands stretched despairingly forth, and again that low drone of 'Bread, bread, bread!' shook us as we passed. Those who were strong enough stumbled up and followed us out into the sunlight — an unforgettable throng of waxen faces and of wasted bodies that streamed with rags. To them we must have seemed as the bright god Baldur seemed to the damned spirits among whom he passed in dun Hela's realm."

Bushes Blighting Trees.

Large stands of white pine in the New England states are being blighted by pine rust that is spread from tree to tree through the medium of gooseberry and current bushes. Some stands of timber are 46 per cent. infected it is said and a move is on to eradicate the berry bushes, both wild and cultivated, in those vicinities where the blight is at its worst.

Mexico's most famous tree, that under Cortez is supposed to have sought shelter 400 years ago when driven from the Aztec capital, is slowly dying and all efforts of the tree surgeons to arrest the progress of decay have been futile.

Lauder, the Coal Miner

In a poor part of little Portobello, Scotland, Harry Lauder, one of seven children of the meagerly-paid handpotter of pots and jars, helped with the household duties and played in the narrow streets.

At 12 he went to work as flax dresser in the mills at Arbroath, as a "half-timer," attending the school of "Stumpy" Bell every other day. He gave his pay of two shillings and a penny a week to help the household funds.

After he had worked and studied a year, the family moved to the colliery district near Hamilton and Harry got a job as trapper in a coal mine. A few years afterward he became a driver. Later he was a coal hewer.

At 14 he began to court his boss's daughter; at 20 he married her. As a wee laddie he had enjoyed singing and as he grew older he became a favorite at amateur recitals and concerts and was offered two shillings and six pence for an evening's performance. Within four years he was earning as much as 30 shillings a week in addition to the 30 earned in the mine, and thought he was garnering riches.

After ten years work underground, he gave up mining to go on the road as a Scotch comedian with the Kennedys, Scotch entertainers. His singing of Calligan, Call Again, made a hit in London. At 30 his reputation was established. He toured the world, appearing in this country for the first time when he was 37. Royalty approved his ability as a composer and actor and he soon was a world favorite, receiving the highest salary paid a music hall performer.

Then came the world war, which claimed the life of Lauder's only child, John, who was shot while at the front. The affliction set heavily upon Lauder, and he gave up the stage, but the demand for his appearances was so great that he returned. He used his talents and funds and devoted every possible effort to help in winning the war, and the king in recognition of his services, made him a knight.

Sir Harry Lauder is 54. He still makes world tours, his income is immense, and on his beautiful estate at Glen Branden, he chops wood and digs ditches to preserve the physique attained when he was a coal miner.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Police Dog To The Rescue

Hurry Bobbit Redvest,
Let nothing stop nor hinder.
That wicked robber, Danny Fox
Has broken in the winder.

Goodness gracious me, your Uncle Dave is spelling words all his own way. But when a fox is breaking into the little Red School House to catch my bunny boy rabbit, I can't stop to find a word to rhyme with "hinder." No indeedy, I just spell "window" another way.

At this very moment, Bobbie Redvest had reached the Police Station in

Dennis "You bad old Robber!"

Rabbitville, and without waiting to take off his little feather cap he flew right through the open window and into the room in which sat the kind Policeman Dog at his desk, his big helmet on the hat rack and his stout hickory on the table.

"Quick, quick!" cried the little messenger bird. "Danny Fox is breaking into the Little Red School House. Little Jack Rabbit and all the scholars have locked the door and Professor Jim Crow has sharpened his fountain pen to use for a sword. But how can he fight that wicked old fox?"

Without taking time to answer, that noble Policeman Dog clapped his helmet on his head and picking up his big hickory stick, dashed out of the Station House and across the Sunny Meadow, his silver shield glittering in the sun and his blue coattails trailing out behind him. Faster and faster he ran, the pretty robin winging his way through the air, and in less time than I can take to tell it, they came to the Little Red School House. Dear me, what a commotion was going on in the school house. Shrill cries and sounds of things striking the walls; bumpity bumps of chairs and stools and crashety crash of ink bottles against the door.

With a bound,—my, it was a wonderful leap,—the big Policeman Dog went right through the window and the next minute he had Danny Fox by the collar. Yes, he had him all right and all wrong for that wicked animal.

"You bad old robber!" growled the Policeman Dog, twisting the collar until Danny Fox's eyes blinked and winked and his long husky tail dropped to the floor. "You come along with me. How dare you break into a school?" And how dare you upset the Arithmetic Table," and again the big policeman dog shook the old fox until his teeth rattled.

"Oh, I'm glad you arrived in time," gasped poor old Professor Crow, unscrewing his fountain pen and putting on the cap. "A fountain pen is a poor sword for a fighting man."

By this time, seeing that Danny Fox was handcuffed, the little people of the Shady Forest crept out from beneath the desks and chairs to pick up their school books.

"School is dismissed for the day," said Professor Crow. "I hope you'll lock up Danny Fox for a year and a day," he added, turning to the kind Policeman Dog.

"Leave it to me," answered that kind protector of law and order as he dragged the old fox out of the door and away to Rabbitville.

"Three cheers for Bobbie Redvest," cried the little rabbit. "If it hadn't been for him I guess there'd be no school tomorrow." And the next minute the schoolroom was empty and all the furry and feathered coated little people were scurrying to their homes.

POETRY

CAMP MATES.

What is the bond that binds us,
Friend of the long, long years?
It isn't the gold luck finds us,
It isn't those the tears.
We have shared the heart, we have share the bread,
We have shared the crush of the crowded street,
But our hearts are held by a better bond—
The hills, the woods, and the hill beyond.

We have camped, we have hiked together,
We have followed the winding streams,
We have faced the woodland weather
And have had the woodland dreams,
We have fared afar from the crushing crowd,
From the rich, the poor, and the mush the proud,
And little we cared what the world might do
With a world our own, in a world for Two.

We have slept by the fading embers
Of a fire in a woodland vale,
And the heart of a man remembers
A friend of the camp and trail.
We have slipped away from the world o man
And have closer drawn to our God again,
And closer come to the heart of each

Just this: We have shared the weather
We have slumbered side-by-side,
And friends who have camped together
Will never again divide—
Never again till the world is done,
And even then, at the setting sun,
Is that other world we shall feel the bond
Of the earthly hills on the Hill Beyond.

—Douglas Malloch, in Outing Magazine

THE STAR WOMEN.

The sun and moon become for us
More fair when they are nigh,
The wild birds more melodious
In carole sweet and shy;
The summer breeze hath softer wings,
And we forget our wrongs
In thoughts of dear and vanished springs
And old forgotten songs.

Alack-a-day, they are but few—
And that is why we prize
These women with their souls like dew
With heaven in their eyes.
We love their winsome witchery,
It haunts us when afar,
As fragrant as a potpourri,
As lovely as a star.

—Samuel Minturn Peck, in Boston Transcript.

New German Oil Sold Under Written Guarantee Rubs Out Rheumatism

A remarkable new discovery of German chemistry, called Buhler Oil, for the relief of rheumatism, gout and neuralgia, is astonishing the medical world. This marvelous oil seems to kill rheumatic pains just as effectively as these other German pain killers—Novocain for painless dentistry and Aspirin for headache pains.

Rheumatism in very many cases is due to internal abscesses (such as a blind pus pocket in a tooth) which give off poisons, and which are carried in the blood to the joints and muscles. Buhler Oil when applied to the affected parts seems to quickly penetrate and be absorbed by the body tissue. Even in the most severe and stubborn cases almost instant relief has been obtained.

So remarkable have been the results from the use of Buhler Oil that the American distributors have authorized local druggists to dispense it to rheumatic, gout and neuralgia sufferers in this city with a positive written guarantee to return the full purchase price of the first bottle if it does not bring wonderful relief. All sufferers should promptly take advantage of this guarantee. For sale at Lee & Osgood Co.'s, Andrew McLaughlin's, J. A. Morgan's, G. G. Engler's, Geo. M. Rathbone's.

On Charge of Tampering With Auto

On a charge of tampering with an automobile Thomas Devoe, 25 years of age, was arrested Wednesday night by Officer Patrick Shahan and later released on bonds for his appearance in the city court this (Thursday) morning. The arrest was made on Willow street near the Broadway theatre. Devoe was seen to open the door of the automobile, lean inside and peer all about the interior of the machine and then to shut the door. As the car did not belong to him he was taken in charge. He denies the charge.

HEARINGS ON NAVY YARD WAGE SCALE

Washington, Dec. 3.—Preliminary hearings on navy yard wage scale schedules were completed today by the navy department wage board, preparatory to a review of recommendations of local wage boards on the basis of which Secretary Wilbur will be advised in connection with fixing pay in the yards for the coming calendar year.

The hearings, at which presentations were received in behalf of various classifications of employes at nearly every navy yard in the country, lasted three days. The board now will go over the independent reports of the local boards to correlate them.

Warns Against Dangerous High Blood Pressure

A Physician's Recommendation.

High blood pressure indicates conditions that are taking thousands of lives every year. Most, if not all, of this can be stopped and perfect health established if the public will only heed the warnings of physicians and hospitals and take a few simple precautions.

Most sick people already know they have high blood pressure because the doctors have already warned them. But for those who are ill the following symptoms usually indicate dangerous high blood pressure: Dizziness, palpitation of the heart, shortness of breath on exertion, ringing in the ears and frequent headaches.

The quickest and safest way to overcome these dangerous symptoms of high blood pressure is through the use of Bi-a-lin, a noted doctor's prescription. Bi-a-lin acts to cleanse the system of poisons that clog the blood vessels and overtax the heart. Bi-a-lin quickly brings a new feeling of well being, is harmless, easy to take, and can be had at The Lee & Osgood Co.'s.

PERSONALS

Daniel Peck of Plain Hill was in Willimantic Saturday afternoon to attend the funeral of Mrs. Lucy Peck, formerly of Hartford.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Philip Miller.

Taken ill four weeks ago, Caroline Berberick, widow of Philip Miller, died Nov. 28 at her home, No. 28 Winchester street. She was born in Germany, 56 years ago, and came to Norwich when she was 13 years of age. For 13 years she resided at Quaker Hill and since that time had made her home in this city. In 1892 she was united in marriage with the late Philip Miller, a veteran of the Civil war.

Mr. Miller died in 1917 and the family then moved to No. 258 Asylum street. Two weeks ago Mrs. Miller purchased a residence at No. 28 Winchester street. She was a member of St. Patrick's church, and was a loving wife and mother and a loyal friend. Funeral arrangements will be completed upon the arrival of John G. Miller, whose vessel is expected to dock in New York this week.

Mrs. Miller is survived by two sons, John G. Miller and George A. Miller. The former is an engineer on the freight steamer Robin Goodfellow of the Isthmian line of New York and the latter is an engineer on the Argwisea of the International Shipping Corporation of New York. There are also four brothers, Frank B., Albert and Joseph Berberick of Norwich, and Charles B. Berberick of Grosvenordale, and two sisters, Mrs. L. Hoffman of Norwich, and Mrs. Theresa Buck of Florida.

Adam Rokowski.

After an illness of two years, Adam Rokowski died early Wednesday morning at his home, 29 Barnes street. He was born in Poland about 60 years ago and came to this country 33 years ago. He was married in Webster and shortly after then came to Norwich, having made his home here since.

For a number of years he was employed by the Norwich Belt Mfg. Co., but lately had been employed by the J. B. Martin Co. He was a member of St. Joseph's church and of the St. George society of that church. Surviving are his widow and five sons, Stephen, Stanley, Anthony, Leo and Peter Rokowski, all of this city, and four daughters, Mrs. Josephine Dido of Lisbon, Mrs. Lena Zuzicliwicz, and the Misses Martha and Rose Rokowski of this city. There are also several grandchildren.

FUNERALS

John Cyr

At 8.15 o'clock Wednesday morning the funeral of John Cyr, son of Mrs. Annie Cyr and the late John B. Cyr, was held from the home of his mother, No. 171 Boswell avenue. There was a very large attendance of relatives and friends. The casket was covered with an American flag. At 9 o'clock there was a solemn high requiem mass at St. Mary's Memorial church, with Rev. William A. Keefe, celebrant, Rev. Father Paradis of Voluntown deacon and Rev. Frederick Coholan, subdeacon. Henry LaFontaine presided at the organ and as a waiting hymn he sang Lead Kindly Light. At the offertory Mr. LaFontaine sang Ils Jesu and at the processional, Nearer, My God to Thee. The bearers were Arthur and George Cyr, Howard Keeley, Edward Gaynon, Earle Whitehead and Arthur Pedesto. Burial took place in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery and the committal service was conducted by Rev. Father Keefe and Rev. Father Paradis.

A firing squad from the Submarine Base at the Navy Yard fired a volley over the grave and Taps was blown by a bugler accompanying the squad. The firing squad marched from the home to the church and went from the church to the cemetery by automobile cortege.

Mr. Cyr was a member of the United States regular army and was stationed at Fort Ontario, N. Y. He was seized with an attack of appendicitis and died at a hospital in Oswego, N. Y.

RADIO CLUB INSPECTS CITY ELECTRIC PLANT

The Norwich Radio club, in place of the regular meeting on Wednesday evening, were the guests of Charles W. Taggart in a tour of inspection of the Norwich gas and electric plant. Mr. Taggart showed the members of the club through the power plant, explaining the operation of the electrical department and also showed them the process of making gas.

The club is planning these inspection trips for every month during the year until all the principal manufacturing plants in Norwich and vicinity have been visited. Classes in elementary electricity are being conducted twice a month by H. E. Robbins, while Jean Reiffer and Lewis Smith are conducting classes in code work two nights a month. The third meeting night in the month is devoted to business. One new member, A. W. Martin, was added to the club membership at the last meeting.

MISS LAURA BOTTINELLI ABLE TO COME HOME

Miss Laura Bottinelli, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Battista Bottinelli of New London who was injured early Thanksgiving morning in an automobile accident at Ten Curves, Hartford turnpike, in which Miss Alice Lyons of New London was fatally injured, was removed to her home Tuesday, after being confined at St. Francis hospital, Hartford, since the accident.

Miss Bottinelli, who sustained a wrenched back in the accident, is much improved, although she is not yet regarded in fit condition to appear in court.

William Riordan of Norwich, driver of the car in which the girls were riding and James Crawford, one of those in the car, will be arraigned in court at Glastonbury as soon as Miss Bottinelli is able to make the journey there, although no definite date has been set.

MOOSE LADIES' NIGHT WITH PLAY AT CARDS

Ladies' night was held Wednesday evening at the Moose club on Laurel Hill. It was the first in a series of five similar gatherings to be held during the season. There were 25 tables of whist and pinochle and prizes were awarded as follows:

Pinochle: Ladies — First, Miss Gresser; second, Mrs. Retkowski; third, Mrs. Larkin. Gentlemen—First, Mr. Gresser; second, Mr. Christensen.

Whist: Ladies—First, Mrs. Frank Hunter; second, Miss Tylender; third, Mrs. Heibel. Gentlemen—First, Henry Keeley and Walter Tylender.

The evening proved a most enjoyable one for the large number present.

JAMES M'KEE FATALLY INJURED WHEN STRUCK BY AUTOMOBILE

The death of James McKee, 83, a well known retired machinist and Civil war veteran, occurred Wednesday evening about 5.30 at the Backus hospital, from a fractured skull, received when he was struck by an automobile on Washington street, near the corner of Julian street, about a block and a half from his home at 16 Bliss place, where he resided with his son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Ernest J. Jones.

The automobile was driven and owned by Joseph W. Dalleywater, 950 Baldwin street, Waterbury, who was accompanied by Eugene Schiabone, also of Waterbury. Both men were held at police headquarters for an investigation by Coroner J. J. Desmond and Medical Examiner Dr. C. C. Gildersleeve. After hearing the evidence in the case, Coroner Desmond placed Dalleywater under a $2,000 bond pending his final finding. The automobile, a Dodge coupe, and the driving license of Mr. Dalleywater remained in the custody of the police.

Mr. McKee had left his home a few minutes before the accident to catch the 5.15 trolley car at the hospital, switch, intending to attend an entertainment at Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, of which he was one of the most faithful members and regular attendants. The only part of the automobile that showed where he had been struck was the right door in which the glass was shattered and where there was a mark on the door frame. Coroner Desmond and Medical Examiner Gildersleeve came to the conclusion that Mr. McKee had started to cross Washington street at Julian street and had walked into the side of the automobile, the door frame of which struck him in the left temple and at the same time the glass in the door was broken. The two men in the machine told him they had seen no one, but thought someone had thrown a stone through the glass when they heard it break. They drove on for about 175 feet when Schiabone suggested to Dalleywater that they stop, which they did, turning around and going back. Not till then, they said, did they know they had hit anyone. Assisted by a man who came from a store nearby, they took Mr. McKee into the machine and to the Backus hospital.

At the hospital they were directed to report at once to the police. It was learned later that they drove to a Norwich Town garage before going to police headquarters, this being because they were so much shaken up by the accident, according to the explanation they made to Medical Examiner Gildersleeve, Dalleywater and Schiabone are employed by a contractor at the state hospital and were on their way to Hartford at the time of the accident.

Long Resident of Norwich.

The news of the death of Mr. McKee came with a great shock to his many friends in the city and brought forth many expressions of sympathy for his family in their sudden bereavement.

Mr. McKee was 83 on his last birthday, July 15, having been born in Killehea, County Down, Ireland, and coming to this country when he was nine years old. He had lived in this city for seventy years, most of the time on Williams street, but since his retirement from active occupation when he was 71 his home has been with his son-in-law and daughter. He was married in 1866 in this city to Jennie Humes by Rev. James Dunn, pastor of Broadway Congregational church. Mrs. McKee passed away in 1917.

Mr. McKee was a machinist by trade and for thirty years was foreman of a department in the Hopkins & Allen Arms Co. He had a long and distinguished service in the Union army during the Civil war, enlisting at the first call for three months service and then with the 18th Connecticut Volunteers, with which he served until his honorable discharge in April, 1865. He participated in twenty-three different battles and skirmishes, without being wounded, was in the first battle of Bull Run and saw service in Maryland, Virginia and the Shenandoah valley, including the battle of Winchester.

Mr. McKee joined Sedgwick post, No. 1, G. A. R., Dec. 5, 1879, and at the time of his death had been chaplain for three or four years and was junior vice commander. He was elected in 1923 and was on the legislative committee of the state department. He was a member of Somerset lodge, No. 34, F. and A. M., and of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, where he rarely missed a service.

He is survived by his daughter, a grandson and two granddaughters. He also leaves a brother-in-law, Philo Humes, of Hartford. Genial and companionable, he was held in loving esteem by his many friends while his affectionate and kindly disposition made him a beloved member of a home circle to which his death will bring an abiding sense of loss.

CHRISTMAS BAZAAR HELD AT METHODIST CHURCH

The annual three days' Christmas bazaar was opened Wednesday evening at Trinity Methodist Episcopal church with a supper followed by a minstrel show. The supper was well patronized. It was served at prettily decorated tables and the menu was as follows:

This (Thursday) evening the entertainment will comprise a three-act play, The Trials of a Hostess, with a cast of ten people.

EAGLES INCREASE LEAD OVER JIBBOOM CLUB

The fast Eagles Pinochle team journeyed to New London Tuesday night and strengthened their lead over the Jibboom Club in the second evening's play of a five night's series of pinochle.

The final score for the evening was Eagles 58,825, Jibboom 46,890.

High single was C. Downes, 6910 on the Jibboom team and F. Hunter on the Eagles' with the score 7290. The Eagles now lead the series by 8865.

Next Tuesday the Jibboom Club will play at the Eagles Club.

MOVEMENT TO FORM CIRCUIT FOR DRAMATICS

Willimantic, Dec. 3.—Covers for 85 were laid at the dinner given in Grange hall, Andover, Wednesday evening by the Andover Dramatic club to Prof. and Mrs. H. A. Seckerson and the state players from the Connecticut Agricultural college and representatives from the towns of Lebanon, Windham, Columbia and Hebron. The players presented a one-act tragedy, Sea Life. The play was exceptionally well rendered and intensely dramatic. All the interpretations were very keen. Special mention should be made of Martin O'Neill as the captive and Phyllis Smith, who played the part of the wife.

Following the play, Mr. Seckerson gave a short talk on The Importance of Dramatics in the Community. Mr. Seckerson said in every town we have a church and a schoolhouse, but we leave without opportunity one very important side of our development, the social side, and we grow to give the best that is in us largely through our social contact with others. There is perhaps no more mutually helpful social relationship that will so bring out the best elements in our community life as will dramatics.

At the informal meeting which followed it was voted to establish a league or circuit of towns, each of which is to organize a dramatic club for the production of good drama. Each town will produce its plays not only at home but in each other town in the circuit, thus establishing not only a friendly rivalry and a growing enthusiasm for drama but bringing the people into contact with something in which they are mutually interested.

Mr. Seckerson spoke of "The Model Country Theatre" organized by Prof. Drummond of Cornell university, which has had the surprising result in its introduction five years ago at the annual New York state fair of leaving the midway deserted and leaving the fakirs to hang hungrily around the outskirts while the fair crowd flocked to see the New York state fair in groups of one-act plays. As many as 35,000 people have attended during the week. The general manager of the Eastern States exposition suggests that Storrs may have an opportunity to establish at Springfield something like that which Cornell has done at Syracuse.

It was voted to form a circuit, subject to ratification, with a nucleus of the towns of Hebron, Andover, Columbia, Windham and Lebanon. It was suggested that a prize well worth working for be awarded to the group producing the best piece of work during the year. A committee with a representative from each town was appointed to draw up a constitution by which the object of the circuit should be obtained. Among those present from out of town were Mrs. Grace Bixby, Eden Cook, Clarence Beckwith, Miss Marie Rizeo, Mrs. E. K. Leffingwell and Mrs. Frederick Baker, all of Windham; Mrs. Elizabeth Troland, Miss Doris Troland and Revere Edde of Lebanon, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Clark and Miss Madeline Holmes of Columbia, Miss Susan Pendleton, Mary Cummings and Helen Gilbert of Hebron.

PENDLETON PASSED PARKER IN WEST SIDE PINOCHLE

Parker lost first place to Pendleton in the West Side Pinochle club standing as the result of play Wednesday night. Parker went back to second place, and J. Jordan moved up from fourth to third place. The latter made high score for the evening, 8330. The scores Wednesday evening:

J. Jordan 8330; Pendleton 7960; Peckham 7930; A. Jordan 7585; H. Pettis 7575; Parker 7565; Dr. Lewis 7375; Schuler 7130; Dr. Boynton 6590; Underwood 6330; Bailey 6225; E. Peckham 6025.

Pendleton 23,540; Parker 23,475; J. Jordan 22,955; Pettis 22,075; Dr. N. B. Lewis 21,825; C. S. Peckham 21,810; E. Peckham 21,575; A. Jordan 20,875; Dr. J. Boynton 20,405; E. C. Underwood 18,800; Con. Schuler 19,065; A. J. Bailey 18,435.

Eagles Play Pinochle

HEARING EVIDENCE IN AUTOMOBILE DAMAGE SUIT

While the jury was out Wednesday afternoon in the superior court in the case of Mrs. Sarah Mengel of New London against the Flanders Garage, Inc., trial of the suit of Shadan Courey against William M. Eastwood, both of this city, was begun before Judge G. E. Hinman. The case was originally assigned for jury trial but was tried to the court by agreement of counsel.

It was brought for recovery of about $800 for loss of services and damages to the motor truck of the plaintiff, received when it was in collision on the Norwich-Westerly highway with the touring car of Mr. Eastwood. Attorney J. J. Desmond appears for the plaintiff and Attorney E. W. Perkins for the defendant.

The plaintiff had about concluded his testimony when court adjourned for the day to continue the trial this (Thursday) afternoon. Attorney Desmond has asked that Judge Hinman view the scene of the accident, and the judge indicated that he might do this Friday if it is still desired.

Shahdan Courey of 86 Orchard St., this city, the plaintiff testified that in June, 1923, he was in the retail fruit and grocery business with his brother in which they operated a one-ton motor truck, which was duly registered and he had an operator's license. On Sunday the 17th of the month, he made a trip to Westerly and Watch Hill, collecting strawberries, of which he had 10 crates, containing 320 quarts. On the state road between Norwich and Westerly near the Mell house there is a road on the right leading to Sheldon's place, where he got the berries, for which he paid $100. The witness drove the truck away from Sheldon's and as they came out on the main highway where the ground is high and there is a high stone wall on the left, he was driving at second speed because the road was rough. The witness said he was blowing his horn for some distance in the side road. As he came out onto the main road to turn to his left he saw the other machine, a Cadillac touring car, coming on his left driven by Wm. M. Eastwood. The witness said he kept on going across the road and Eastwood turned from the right to the left of the road where the cars came together. It was impossible, the witness testified, for him to see the Eastwood car coming on the main road, as the witness was coming out of the side road and he heard no horn blown by the Eastwood car.

Mr. Courey described the damage to his car for which he paid $62.95 in having repairs made. The witness said he was unable to peddle the strawberries and they were a total loss. The truck was in the repair shop for three weeks, causing the defendant loss of business as he couldn't get another truck.

On cross examination, Attorney Perkins drew a diagram of the roads at the point of collision on the black board in the court room and the witness agreed that the Ledyard Center road from which he was driving onto the main road is a hidden road and there was no clear view at the corner for him or for Mr. Eastwood. Neither could see the other until the Courey car came out onto the main road. Mr. Courey said there were ten persons riding in his truck. Nobody was thrown out of either car. The witness denied that he sold any of the Sheldon lot of berries.

Joseph Nejime of this city, a theatre manager and also engaged in the automobile repair business, described the damage to the front end of the Courey truck, which consisted of left side of frame dented, hole torn in radiator by fan, fan bracket broken off and two fenders bent. Mr. Nejime estimated the truck had lost $300 in value because of the accident.

On cross examination the witness said the truck was worth about $300 after the repairs after the accident.

Elias J. Courey, a brother of the plaintiff and his partner in the grocery business, testified to the use they had for the truck in peddling about the city, but they were not able to sell any of the Sheldon berries because they did not have the truck to use.

Frank Mell of Preston, residing about 800 feet west from the corner of the main road and the Ledyard Center road, testified that a person coming out of the Ledyard Center road could not see any traffic on the main road to his left. He heard the crash and hollering after the Courey-Eastwood accident and he went to the place and saw the truck across the road and the damage to the truck which he described. He helped to take the bumper off so that the truck could be moved off the road.

On cross examination the witness said the Eastwood car was entirely off the traveled portion of the road after the accident. There is no state highway sign to indicate the Ledyard Center road.

Theresa Massad of this city who was riding in the back of the truck on the right hand side, testified Courey blew his horn so much that she told him he would make her deaf. She came back to the city in the truck when it was restored to running order to get it to the city.

Farsoon Massad of 165 Main street, sister-in-law of the preceding witness, who also was in the truck, testified that Courey was driving slowly and blowing his horn as he approached the corner.

The plaintiff was recalled and testified that he couldn't deliver orders or do peddling without the truck and he estimated his loss at $450. He said he was blowing his horn near the corner because he knew it was a bad corner.

On cross examination he admitted he hired a truck one day for a trip to Providence and he also hired a team for two days to do peddling. He said he couldn't hire a truck at any other time, having tried two persons.

SCHOONER MASTER HELD WITHOUT CLEARANCE PAPERS

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Dec. 3—Louis Andren, master of a schooner, that was found in the vicinity of "Rum Row", off Block Island, was taken into custody late this afternoon by revenue men, charged with violation of the navigation laws in proceeding upon a foreign voyag without obtaining the necessary clearance papers and filing manifest. Andren was brought into port and was made a prisoner at the police station pending a hearing tomorrow morning before United States Commissioner Earl Matthewson at the customs house.

The schooner, the name of which and the hailing port were not obtained, was sighted close to the rumsupply fleet by one of the scout boats. Going alongside the schooner a revenue officer went aboard and demanded of Captain Andren his papers when a search of the craft failed to reveal any signs of liquor being stored in the hold. When Andren could not produce the required papers he was brought into port to await hearing.

Mercier Assembly Election.

The election at Mercier Assembly, No. 12, Catholic Ladies of Columbus, Tuesday evening included Miss Mary Corcoran, organist; Miss Mary Carney, Miss Agnes Bresnehan, Miss Dora Peloquin, trustees, and Mrs. Julia Sweeney, Mrs. Mary Simons and Mrs. Nora Carney, auditors.

RECEPTION AND SUPPER GIVEN FOR LADIES

A reception and supper for the ladies of Park Congregational church given Wednesday evening by the Men's club of the church made a delightful programme for the attendance of 125. The reception at 6 o'clock in the Osgood memorial was followed by the supper at 6.30 which was arranged for and served by the men.

During the reception and supper selections were rendered by the club quartette, including George A. Turner, Lyle Fillmore, W. A. Lund and Mr. Hynd.

The nine supper tables were attractively decorated with flowers and potted plants and the following menu was served:

Grape Fruit Cocktail
Escalloped Oysters Cabbage Salad
Hot Rolls Potato Chips Coffee
Ice Cream Cake

James M. Morton, president of the club, was toastmaster for the evening, and interesting responses were made by Mrs. F. W. Cary on What the Women Have Done for the Church; Mrs. A. N. H. Vaughn on What the Men Can Do for the Church; Mrs. H. D. Johnson, on What We Owe Our Church; and Miss Amy Cogswell on Some Reflections on the Work of the Nominating Committee.

DISPLAYING POSTERS FOR NEAR EAST RELIEF

From the state headquarters of the Near East Relief in Hartford some attractive posters, window cards and illustrated leaflets have been received which are being displayed in the schools and other public places. They show thousands of refugee children, now gathered in great orphanages where they receive food, shelter and clothing for the body and training for eye, hand and heart. This all important work for future citizens, perhaps leaders of the world, can not go on without continued help from America. The Near East treasury is now empty. There are still thousands of homeless orphans clamoring for admission to the orphanages for whose support there is no money. "Let each of us give through our personal self-denial on Golden Rule Sunday, Dec. 7. Let us measure our gift by the Golden Rule."

WATERFORD MAN GIVEN FINE AND JAIL SENTENCE

John W. Worrall of Waterford pleaded guilty in the court of common pleas at New London, Wednesday morning, to illegal possession of liquor and Judge Charles B. Waller imposed a fine of $200 and a jail sentence of 10 days. Worrall was arrested last August, when Deputy Sheriffs J. H. Tubbs and Manuel Martin and Constable F. N. Dimock raided his residence in Waterford and found 275 quarts of William Penn whiskey. He was first tried before Justice of the Peace J. James Floyd, who fined him $200 and sentenced him to ten days in jail, but suspended execution of the jail sentence. Worrall appealed.

Harry B. Morton of Waterford pleaded guilty to two counts, charging violation of the milk laws and was fined $7 on the first count and $5 on the second.

WILL AID AUTOISTS OF NORWICH, GROTON, MYSTIC

An arrangement has been made by C. F. Willard of Groton with the motor vehicle department to facilitate the distribution of motor vehicle registration plates for 1925 at Norwich, Groton and Mystic. He will have offices in each place where he will be able to furnish the plates the day after he has received the applications, charging a small fee for the service.

Mr. Willard is prepared to open his office in Groton at once, but probably the Norwich and Mystic offices will not be open until Friday.

Colchester Well Baby Conference

Twelve children and babies attended the Well Child Conference in Colchester in November. This number is small compared with many holding Conferences.

If every mother familiar with Conference Work will make it her responsibility to increase the attendance at the Conference, she will be doing a very real and personal piece of health work for the town of Colchester. A half hour of observation and a talk with the nurse will furnish definite information and knowledge about this kind of Health Work and of the way in which it is carried on in this town. Health is not a matter of chance but of education. The next Conference will be held in Grange Hall on Thursday, December 11, from 2 to 4 p. m.

AETNA FIVE WINS INTER-CITY MATCH FROM CHAMPION CHARTER OAK TEAM

(Special to The Bulletin)

Hartford, Dec. 3.—A five man team representing the Aetna alleys of Norwich demonstrated before a capacity crowd at the Charter Oak alleys tonight that they rank with the leading teams of the state when they defeated the Charter Oak five, 1580 to 1530 pins, the match being rolled on a total pinfall basis. On the Hartford team were three members of the state champions last year, Light, Lee and Orsini.

The match was close during the first string but in the second string the Norwich team piled up a 54 lead which the local team was unable to overcome as they barely nosed out the visitors by four pins.

Fillmore, anchor man for the Norwich five, was in good form and crashed through for a total of 350 pins. Michael Aldi, also of the visitors, captured the high string honors when he hit 137 in the second string. Peckham also of the visitors, was in good form, collogin a total of 334.

The local bowlers will get a chance to redeem themselves next Tuesday evening when they go to Norwich for a return match. The scores:

TWENTY GIVEN LETTERS AT CHAPMAN TECH

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Dec. 3.—Football took its last stand here today at Chapman Technical High school and the last thoughts of football left the minds of Tech players until next season as 20 students and players received their letter C for playing a required number of games during the past season. Besides the record number of athletes receiving their first team letter, nine players which in most cases were freshmen received their second string letters. It is the largest number of letters yet to be given at the local institution.

To qualify for the letter C, players were required to participate in a required number of league contests or in the deciding championship contest. Besides the C which is awarded each player he also receives a certificate entitling him to wear the letter legally on his sweater. Of the number of players to receive their letter, three were from the freshmen class, making it the first time in Chapman Tech history that this number of players received their C in their first year on the squad.

The players who were awarded their letter for playing in a required number of games are as follows: Manager Howland Vibber; James Martin, captain; Joseph Zaparniok, Charles White, Paul McGuire, Francis R. Courtois, Robert Davey, Bernard Hewitt, Donald Cruise, all seniors.

BULKELEY POSTPONES OPENING OF BASKETBALL SEASON

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Dec. 3.—Bulkeley's debut on the marked court with High schools at least will be deferred until a later date than Saturday. It was the original plan of the Bulkeley management to play South Kingston High at Peacedale, R. I., but this morning the contest which was to be played at the Y. M. C. A. Saturday was cancelled by the South Kingston manager over a telephone late this morning.

But while the plans laid for the opening game were temporarily wrecked by the announcement of the South Kingston High that it would be unable to play here on Saturday, plans are under way whereas the Orange and Black quintet which is anxious to get started will play one of the local quintet Saturday. The Mobs or the Coast Guard teams will be the most likely opponent. Why the South Kingston management called off the pending game with Bulkeley could not be ascertained for the Rhode Islanders gave no excuse for the sudden cancellation of the contest. But maybe it is just as well for the Bulkeley five, for it will give them additional time to round into shape for the games which follow with High schools.

The rather lax eligibility rules which were in force during the last basketball season have been strengthened with the strong rule which disallows all team members of a High school quintet to perform with other amateur teams in the vicinity. That question was debated during the last meeting of the state athletic committee and after a heated argument was passed to be enforced by the various high schools in the state. It has been an open fact that several of the Bulkeley court players were playing with outside organizations while the Bulkeley team was idle. Choice will have to be made by the players as to the team they would like to represent, either Bulkley or some outside quintet.

Whether the above rule will also be enforced in baseball circles and football as well is a question which is under advisement for future reference. But high school players very seldom play with outside teams other than during the basketball season and the rule which may prohibit baseball and football playing in the future by High school athletes while the High school season is on, is not likely to be one of the rules governing all year sports in the state.

School work has disqualified two promising players, Taylor a forward and Lonergan a center, but it is expected that Taylor will be able to straighten out his differences within a week or so. Lonergan however will never get into a uniform until the next quarterly examinations which end up March 1. Outside of these two players the remaining candidates out for the quintet are eligible until March 1.

LEADERS HOLD ONE LAP ON FIELD IN BIKE RACE

New York, Dec. 3.—Belloni and Deruyter, Belgian-Italian team in the six day bicycle race at Madison Square Garden, retained their one-lap lead, gained earlier in the day at 10 o'clock tonight. Beckman and Madden gained a lap during the afternoon and were among the eight teams one round behind the leaders. Norman Hill, youthful partner of the Sengalese, Nefarti, quit the race from exhaustion early in the evening and Nefatti had four hours under the rules, in which to obtain a new partner.

At 10 o'clock the leaders had covered 1188 miles, 8 laps, against the record of 1428 miles, 3 laps, made by Lawson and Drobach in 1914. McNamara and Kempen led in the sprint points with 181.

DARTMOUTH CLOSES SEASON AT CHICAGO IN 1925

Hanover, N. H., Dec. 3.—Dartmouth, according to the football schedule announced today, will close its 1925 season on November 14 at Chicago when it plays the University of Chicago, this year's western conference champions.

Cornell will be the last big home game while the Dartmouth team will journey to Harvard and Brown for other important contests. Hobart, which comes to Hanover, is the only new opponent beside the Chicago team.

The schedule: September 26, Norwich; October 3, Hobart; 10, Vermont; 17, Maine; 24, Harvard at Cambridge; 31, Brown at Providence; Nov. 7, Cornell; 14, Chicago at Chicago.

TILLY BROOKE IS SOLD FOR $18,000 AT NEW YORK

New York, Dec. 3.—Tilly Brooke, holder of the best harness time for the mile this season, 1.59, and winner of every race in which she was entered on the grand circuit, tonight was sold for $18,000 to the Walnut Hall farm of Lexington, Ky., at the second day's session of the annual Old Glory auction.

Princeton Wrestling Schedule.

Princeton, N. J., Dec. 3.—The Princeton wrestling schedule, announced today by Manager E. B. Harvey includes seven meets in addition to the intercollegiates at New York March 20. The Tiger mat men will open the season December 13 with the Boys' club at Newark. Other dates follow: January 17, Pennsylvania at Philadelphia; January 24, Lehigh; February 21, Stevens; February 24, Harvard at Cambridge; March 7, Yale and March 14, Columbia.

TWELVE COLLEGES ENTERED IN BOWLING LEAGUE

New Haven, Dec. 3.—Charles A. Moore, Yale 1925, secretary of the intercollegiate bowling association, announced tonight that the following colleges and universities have entered the association: Yale, Navy, Rensselaer Polytechnic, Carnegie Tech, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, University of Kentucky, Pauw university, Tufts, University of Minnesota, University of Indiana, and Syracuse university.

The teams in the association, Mr. Moore said, will be grouped in eastern and western divisions the winner in each division meeting to determine the championship. Neutral alleys will be chosen for the championship games.

It is hoped that other schools will enter the association, the secretary said, and announced that the association will receive entries up to December 20. The schedule for both eastern and western divisions will be announced immediately after the Christmas holidays.

The intercollegiate championship was won by the University of Michigan last year.

CINCINNATI DICKERING WITH GIANTS FOR BILL TERRY

New York, Dec. 3—Garry Herrman of the Cincinnati Club of the National League and his manager, Jack Hendricks, intimated today that they would like to exchange several players with the giants for first baseman Bill Terry. The Reds lack a regular first baseman, due to the death of Jake Daubert.

The Cincinnati officials were disinclined, however, to talk of parting with Ed Rousch, centerfielder of the Reds, in order to obtain George Kelly's understudy. It is well known that the New York magnates have their eyes on Rousch.

Discussing the minor league meetings at Hartford, Herrman declared: "They are asking as much for a second class infielder who can't hit as they used to for a whole ball club."

SHADE OUTPOINTS KRUG IN SLASHING BOUT

Newark, Dec. 3—Dave Shade of California, outpointed Phil Krug, of Harrison in a 12-round bout at the Newark armory tonight, according to the decision of newspaper men at the ring side. No knockdowns were scored. The decision was given to the Californian because of his aggressiveness.

Shade carried the fight to Krug most of the way but lacked the punch to floor him. Early in the first Krug's left eye was partly closed but he shook up the Californian once or twice while the latter in turn was stirred to fury that forced the Harrison fighter to the ropes.

In the final two rounds Shade slashed into Krug, who took considerable beating but was able to keep on his feet.

M'MILLAN ELECTED TO LEAD PRINCETON GRIDSTERS

Princeton, N. J., Dec. 3.—Edward L. McMillan of Pittsburgh, today was elected captain of the Princeton University football team for the 1925 season.

The selection of McMillan, who alternated at center with Bartel on this year's eleven and was in action against both Yale and Harvard, was made at a meeting of the 25 letter men and will be ratified by the Athletic Association at its next meeting.

The new captain weighs 210 pounds and is six feet tall. Coming to Princeton from Allegheny High school of Pittsburgh where he was a three letter man, McMillan first gained distinction as a member of the freshman football and basketball teams. Last year he was kept from football activities by a pre-season injury, McMillan is a junior.

NEW GAME TO BE TRIED AT N. Y. UNIVERSITY

New York, Dec. 3.—Takraw, a Siamese game, will be played for the first time in America in the New York University gymnasium tomorrow under the instruction of Siamese players. If the try-out proves successful the game will be added to the University's list of sports, Henry C. Hathaway, chairman of the Athletic council, said today.

The exhibition of the sport, which is said to be as popular in Siam as baseball in the United States, will be witnessed by several hundred students, including members of the football and baseketball teams.

BRAVES BUY WELSH FOR $50,000 AND PLAYERS

Hartford, Conn., Dec. 3—The Boston Braves tonight announced at the baseball convention here that they had agreed to pay the Seattle club of the Pacific Coast League $50,000 in cash for players for James D. Welsh, utility infielder and regular outfielder. Players Strycker and Yeargin of Boston have already been named in the deal, which is by far the largest of the meetings here to date.

Vermont Has Stiff Schedule

Burlington, Vt., Dec. 3—Syracuse and Dartmouth are named in the 1925 football schedule of the University of Vermont, announced here today as follows:

September 26, Clarkson Tech; October 3, Syracuse at Syracuse; 10, Dartmouth at Hanover; 17, Springfield College at Springfield; 24, Holy Cross; 31, Norwich at Northfield; November 7, Rensselaer at Troy, N. Y.; 14, Middlebury.

Beede to Lead Georgia

Quebec to Play Yale.

Kingston, Ont., Dec. 3.—The Quebec senior hockey team will play a two game series with Yale university in Pittsburgh on January 2 and 3, it was announced today. These two games to form part of a hockey tour which is now being arranged by the Queen's team.

PLAYER TRADES FEATURE WEDNESDAY'S SESSION AT BASEBALL MEETING

Hartford, Dec. 3.—(By The A. P.)—The National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues in session here today appointed a committee to investigate Ban Johnson's charges of gambling in baseball on the Pacific coast. The committee was instructed to report on what course of action was necessary to get to the foundation of Johnson's charges.

The magnates also voted to eliminate the two per cent. deduction on all options, sales, agreements and transfers to take effect at the close of the 1924 season. Heretofore the two per cent has been deducted to go into the national association treasury but in view of the large balance on hand the magnates decided to eliminate this tariff.

The magnates, meeting in executive session behind closed doors, instructed Secretary Farrell to notify all minor league clubs when a major league club has exhausted its quota of eight optional players sent to the minors. Any minor league club using an optional player from a club who already has eight men on option will forfeit all games in which the ninth optional player participates.

President M. H. Sexton announced that he had appointed John D. Martin, of Memphis, Tenn.; W. G. Bramham, of Durham, N. C., and Oscar Reichow, of Los Angeles, on the committee to investigate the charges of Ban Johnson on gambling in Pacific coast baseball circles. The committee was instructed to report at tomorrow's meeting.

The convention also passed a resolution directing the 1925 delegates to vote for Asheville, N. C., for the 1926 convention. This resolution is not mandatory, however, and can be changed at the 1925 meeting at the discretion of the magnates.

Trading in the player market was lively today, many deals, trades and options being made by the magnates. One of the most important deals was a trade which sent Danny Clark, third baseman of the Boston Red Sox to San Antonio of the Texas league in exchange for Ewell Gross, shortstop.

San Antonio also announced the purchase of Leroy Grassett outfielder who was on the voluntary retired list from the Portland, Ore., Pacific coast team.

Thomas Turner, president of the Portland club, sold Catcher Wray Quary and Shortstop Gene Distel to Wichita Falls, of the Texas league. Indianapolis of the American Association announced the purchase of Outfielder Sumpter Clark of the Cleveland Americans.

Manager Kitty Bransfield, of the Wilkesbarry Eastern league club, announced the purchase of John V. Mathewes, a left handed pitcher, from Rochester of the International league. He also announced the sale of Shortstop Walter Keating, former Syracuse International leaguer to Jersey City of the International league. Keating, together with Ray "Snooks" Dowd, who was purchased today by the Jersey City club, will form the combination around second case. These two worked the keystone combination in the International league when they both played at Buffalo. This is Dowd's twelfth different minor league affiliation since 1919.

Jerry Donovan, Jersey City manager, purchased Jake Miller from Portland club of the Coast league. Miller is an outfielder and was sold with conditions that he must make good.

Eusebio Gonzales, Rochester second baseman, was sold to San Antonio of the Texas league. A. W. Bernsen, manager of the Beaumont club of the Texas league, purchased First Baseman H. A. Schwab from the Wichita Falls club of the same league.

Minneapolis, of the American Association bought J. M. Corridon, an outfielder from the Des Moines club of the Western league.

Bernard (Mike) Kelly former Toledo catcher but now manager of the Spartanburg club of the South Atlantic league, was the most industrious trader of the day. Kelly announced the purchase of six new players including Catcher George Kaufman and Outfielder Carl Shoots from the Kansas City club of the American association, Pitcher W. W. Hackney from the Birmingham club of the Southern association, Infielder E. H. Behrens from the Beaumont club of the Texas league, Pitcher Lloyd Smith of the Syracuse club of the International league and shortstop Jay Boggs of the Reading club of the International league. This by far the most pretentious deal of the day.

Other deals made late today include the purchase of Pitcher L. F. Thompson of the Omaha club of the Western league by the Pittsburgh National league club. The Pirates paid some money and included Pitcher Arnold Stone, a left hander, in the deal. Stone will go to Omaha at the start of the 1925 season.

Charles Hall of the Sacramento club of the Pacific coast league was sold to Birmingham of the Southern Association and Edward Hemingway of the Sacramento team was traded to Vernon of the coast league for Frank Shellenback.

The battle over the proposed amendments to the major-minor agreement continued today with John Conway Toole, president of the International league, the storm center of the argument aimed at the administration of John H. Farrell, secretary of the national association. Today's meeting was made into an executive session and was held behind closed doors but reports came out that Toole had continued his attacks on Farrell which he started yesterday when the amendments first came up for consideration. The result of the controversy was the adoption of a resolution by the association directing secretary Farrell to keep an accurate count of all optional agreements entered into by major league clubs and to keep minor league clubs informed as to the count. Furthermore, Farrell was instructed to notify every club in the association when a major league club had exhausted its supply of options. This resolution was followed by an amendment to the minor league rules that any club using an optional player from a major league club, which club has already placed eight previous players on option, will forfeit all games in which the ineligible player participates.

This ruling was made in face of Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis' edict that major league clubs can place 15 players out to the minors by the option route. Although the minor league rules contain a clause which limits the number of optional players to eight, this has never been strictly enforced, according to Mr. Toole, and in order to bring about an enforcement of the rule, this measure was adopted.

Secretary Farrell said Commissioner Landis had ruled that the minor leagues had abrogated the agreement by refusing to meet the major leagues in an open meeting to discuss a change in the agreement whereby the number of optional players could be increased to 15 and therefore he had ruled that the 15 limit was established. Minor league presidents from coast to coast, tonight, were reluctant to discuss the outcome of the new minor league ruling when it was officially received by Commissioner Landis.

The first economical measure to be announced by the association was the elimination of the two per cent deduction on all player transfers either by sale trade or option, since the close of the 1924 season. This money is placed in the treasury of the association, but the magnates said that inasmuch as the treasury shows a balance of over $115,000, this deduction could be easily eliminated until such time when the balance reaches low ebb when it would be placed into effect again. Secretary Farrell estimated that it meant a loss of $40,000 a year to the association treasury. The new measure is retrogative.

The battle over the side for the 1925 convention proved to be shortlived. In addition to Los Angeles, four other cities officially extended invitations to the association to meet in their cities. These include Atlanta, Ga., Toronto, Ont., Asheville, N. C., and Richmond Va. Los Angeles was unanimously selected after a brief debate. The association also passed a resolution directing the 1925 session to select Asheville, N. C., the place for the 1926 convention. This legislation, however, is not mandatory, secretary Farrell announced, and it can be changed at the discretion of the delegates next year. The convention adjourned until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Olin Perritt of the Greenville, S. C., team of the South Atlantic league, was sold today to the Columbia team of the same league. It is understood that the deal was consummated to enable Perritt to act as manager of the Columbia team.

John Miljus, former Brooklyn pitcher, was sold by the Bridgeport Eastern league club to Seattle of the Pacific Coast league, according to an announcement made by Wade Killifer, Seattle manager tonight.

LEO KORETZ PLEADED GUILTY OF SWINDLING

Chicago, Dec. 3—Leo Koretz, suave swindler who collected $2,000,000 from relatives and friends through his Panama oil bubble today pleaded guilty to four various counts of swindling. As a year to the day from the time the promoter of the Bayano oil scene fled from Chicago with upwards of half a million dollars stuffed in a brief case, he stood before the bar of justice, admitted his guilt and laid himself liable to a maximum penalty of 40 years in the penitentiary.

Tomorrow he will appear in court for sentence and by Saturday less than two weeks since his arrest at Halifax, he probably will be in the penitentiary at Stateville.

Koretz looked pale and tired. He licked his lips nervously and his eyes moved restlessly, for in the densely packed courtroom were many of his victims, including his three brothers and a sister. He retained his composure, however, and answered clearly when Judge Hopkins inquired what a plea he desired to enter.

Koretz taken to the county jail tonight is looking forward to life in prison with something akin to relief, it was learned today. He is suffering from diabetes and hopes to come out of prison a well man.

Joseph Connolly, the Halifax attorney who came here with Koretz, said he expected an appeal for a light sentence on the ground that Koretz had not resisted the law after he was captured.

CHINESE IN NEW HAVEN FORFEITED $300 CASH BOND

New Haven, Dec. 3.—Ah Wung, alias On Wing, alias Jim Lee, a Chinaman who conducted a laundry in this city, failed to appear in criminal common pleas court today and his $300 cash bond was declared forfeited. Ah Wung was arrested on November 3 when his laundry was raided and was charged with assaulting a woman. Found guilty in city court he appealed, but failed to put in an appearance when his case was called in the highest court. It is said that Ah Wung is in the hands of the immigration authorities and may be deported.

CHARGE MADE AGAINST CHAIN STORE ENTERPRISE

Philadelphia, Dec. 3.—Charges of using the mails to defraud in connection with the sale of stock in the Universal Tire company, a chain stores enterprise, were made today against Geo. W. Odell, E. B. Doran and W. A. Riland, all of South Bend, ind., in an indictment returned by the federal grand jury. The concern operated retail stores throughout the country.

Odell formerly was president of the company, Doran is now its president and Riland is its secretary and treasurer and business manager.

AMERICA'S HEALTHIEST GIRL IS INEZ HARDING

Chicago, Dec. 3.—Inez Harding, 16 years old, of Marigold, Miss., today was selected as America's healthiest girl by the boys and girls' club division of the International Livestock exposition. The club is composed of farm youngsters in 41 states.

GOVERNOR AND STAFF AT STATE ARMORY DEDICATION

Manchester, Conn., Dec. 3.—With Governor Templeton and his staff and Lieutenant Governor-elect Trumbull present, the new state armory was dedicated here tonight. The drill shed is 175 feet long and cost $75,000. It is the first unit of the military plant and the second unit will be erected when an additional appropriation is received.

WILLIAM DETTE FOUND DEAD IN HIS APARTMENT

New York, Dec. 3—William Dette, 55, clubman and member of the firm of Crocker Brothers, pig iron dealers, was found dead in his apartment today. An assistant medical examiner said his death was caused by heart failure. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Dette, said to be at the family summer home in Litchfield, Conn., and by two daughters, the Misses Esther K., and Susan M. Dette, the latter a student at Westover.

RESUMPTION OF HEARING OF THE GOULD ESTATE

New York, Dec. 3.—George Gould had enough money to pay off all his indebtedness to the Jay Gould estate after investing $1,080,000 in the so-called "Pacific Express stock transaction, 55 William Wallace, attorney for the George Gould estate, contended today at the resumption of the $82,000,000 accounting suit hearing before Referee James A. O'Gorman.

One of the principal objections to the accounting on the part of Walter B. Walker and former Justice Samuel Seaburry, representing Frank Gould, and Philip E. Miller of counsel for the children of Anna Gould, the Duchess De Talleyrand, has been the George, as managing executor and trustee of his father's estate, used estate funds in the Pacific Express deal and realized a profit of $1,022,000 appropriating to himself all the dividends. At the time of the transaction, according to the books of the estate, George had in his possession $2,472,494 of estate money, Wallace said.

Attorney Wallace, submitted check stubs to prove his contention that George loaned his wife, Edith Kingdon Gould, $1,080,000 from his personal account to purchase 24,000 shares of Pacific Express stock from the Union Pacific railroad.

ADMITS SLAYING EIGHT MEMBERS OF HOUSEHOLD

Berlin, Dec. 3.—(By the A. P.)—"I murdered all eight of them," was the confession exacted from Director Angerstein of a cement factory at Siegen, Westphalia, in which home eight members of the household were found dead yesterday and Angerstein himself wounded.

At the time of the discovery of the crime Angerstein said that a band of 25 robbers had attacked his home seeking the payroll of the factory and killed the eight persons and seriously wounded him and afterward set fire to the building and fled. Angerstein is a paralytic and is suspected of having committed the murders owing to the fact that he was in financial difficulties.

Angerstein, according to the police, enticed his victims, who included his wife and her mother and sister, into a room separately and killed them with an axe and a hunting knife. He then spured petroleum around and set fire to the house, cut himself with the axe and stabbed himself with the dagger and then screamed for help.

MISSING SCHOONER IS SAFE WITH ALL HANDS

St. John's, N. F., Dec. 3.—Word of the safety of Captain Noseworthy and the crew of the five of the Newfoundland schooner Freedom, which had been given up for lost with all hands, was received here today. The schooner left Carbonear, N. F., on October 17 for Sydney, N. S., but terrific storms caught her and carried her south to the West Indies.

For days she was helpless, stripped of sails and gear, and finally, hit by a final gale, she foundered 600 miles from Barbados. The six men took to the open boats and finally landed today on Barbados, easternmost of the Lesser Antilles. When they were cast away and other details of their experience was not included in the brief message received here.

FRENCH COMMUNISTS AROUSE IRE OF HERRIOT

Paris, Dec. 3. — Premier Herriot walked out of the chamber in which the foreign affairs commission was in session today for the third successive time because at each meeting called for the purpose of hearing the premier tell the true inwardness of the Russian and Moroccan situations and the working of the Dawes plan, some of the communist deputies refused to observe the conventional rules of absolute secrecy.

FAVOR AMENDMENT TO NATIONAL DEFENSE ACT

Philadelphia, Dec. 3.—A resolution forcing an amendment to the national defense act designed to keep politics out of the national guard and to keep its officers up to a set standard of efficiency was adopted today at the closing session of the National Guard association of the United States.

The resolution, which provides that the efficiency of an officer of the national guard shall be ascertained by a board of three senior officers to be appointed by the secretary of war and that its findings be approved by the secretary of war, carried by a vote of 221 to 115.

Brigadier General Milton A. Reckford, of Maryland, president of the association, said the resolution had been drawn up at the suggestion of General Pershing and Major General John L. Hines, chief of staff of the army.

Other resolutions adopted asked congress to re-instate General Pershing on the active list for life in an advisory capacity; urged that the age limit for reenlistment in the national guard be increased and advocated a budget of $33,000,000 for militia purposes in 1926.

TODAY'S EVENTS

Austen Chamberlain, the new British secretary for foreign affairs, leaves London today to attend the League of Nations Council meeting in Rome.

The program arranged for President Coolidge's stay in Chicago today calls for him to address the Commercial Club at noon, to visit the stock yards in the afternoon and to address the stockmen this evening.

The conference has been called to meet in Chicago today, the auspices of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, to consider the scope, organization, conduct and support of agricultural radiocasting.

Leading men of science will gather in New York City this evening, under the auspices of the Engineering Foundation, to celebrate the centenary of the announcement in 1824 by Nicholas Leonard Sadi Carnot of the Second law of thermodynamics and the Carnot cycle.

To celebrate the 150th anniversary of the matriculation of Alexander Hamilton, several thousand Columbia alumni will gather at a memorial dinner to be given this evening at the Hotel Commodore, in New York City. In 1774, Hamilton, the most distinguished of Columbia's sons, entered King's College, as the present Columbia University was then known. Secretary of the Treasurer Andrew W. Mellon is to be the guest of honor at the dinner.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Slater Hall Musical Course.

A delightful programme of unusual beauty and artistic merit is offered to music lovers this season in the Slater hall musical course by the world's greatest artists.

The object in promoting this course is not for the purpose of financial profit, but solely to bring the best music to Norwich and make the concerts self-sustaining.

Patrons that have not sent in their subscriptions for course tickets are urged to do this immediately that these concerts may be successful.

The artists will appear as follows:

As a member of the Metropolitan Opera company, Lambert Murphy won high honors. Few artists can claim the distinction won by Lambert Murphy in the fields of opera oratorio and recital.

Marcel Grandjany, in the front rank of the great harpists of the world.

On Friday, Feb. 27th, the American Grand Operatic Trio. This trio is composed of artists of the highest fame in operatic fields.

In the twenty-one years of its existence the Flonzaley Quartet has made its name the standard in chamber music by which all other string quartets are judged. This quartet has aptly been called "The Incomparable Flonzaley Quartet."

Course tickets $6, tax exempt. Tickets are on sale at The Franklin Co 'phone or mail orders will be given prompt attention.

Broadway Theatre

When you see an advertisement for the Broadway theater you can rest assured that you'll see, as nearly as is humanly possible just what is advertised. Every show stands on its own merits.

Milton Pollock & Co offer George Ade's Comedy Satire Speaking to Father. George Ade's name is enough to insure perfect entertainment.

McGrath and Deeds are artistic designers of songs and comedy.

Lyceum Theater, New London

At the Lyceum theater, New London, on Dec. 10, will be seen the first time in that city Cecil B. De Mille's magnificent photo-dramatic spectacle, The Ten Commandments, which was shown last season only in five of the largest American cities and in London. This year it is being presented by Adolph Zukor and Jesse L. Lasky through the agency of a dozen travelling units, each carrying its own orchestra and technical staff. The engagement at the Lyceum is for four days only. Mail orders are now received and the box office sale opens on Monday.

The Symington Company Financing

Boston—A fortnight ago the simultaneous offering by banking houses of three railroad common share issues marked the opening of a new era of investment confidence in the railroad equipment industry through the offering by a syndicate headed by Hornblower & Weeks and Hambleton & Co. of 200,000 shares class "A" and 66,666 shares of common stock of the Symington Co.

In contrast with the transportation field, the railroad equipment industry is noted for the small number of companies engaged in supplying the demands of the transportation world. In the manufacture of the smaller products it is quite usual for a single concern to dominate its line. This is the position enjoyed, to a considerable degree, by the Symington Co. business established in 1901.

This Rochester, New York company is the largest single producer of journal boxes necessary to every freight car in the country, and in addition to various other devices it also controls the Farlow Draft Gear Attachment which was equipment on 50 per cent of all cars ordered in 1923 and 68 per cent of cars ordered this year to date. Incidentally this is the largest percentage of any essential item to car construction supplied by a single American equipment manufacturer.

Earnings of the Symington Co. have been notably steady. In 1923 the company earned $1,164,950 net after taxes, equivalent to $5.77 a share on the Class "A" common stock and net for the 1924 (ten months) of $823,161. On the basis of planned expenditure by the railroads in 1925 of $1,000,000,000 for new equipment it is expected that 1925 profits will equal or exceed those of the current year.

Broadway Theatre

Forbidden Paradise, an Ernst Lubitsch-Paramount production starring Pola Negri, will be the feature at the Broadway theater next Sunday for a run of four days.

The story, adapted from the stage play, The Czarina, is a romance of love and intrigue in an unnamed Balkan kingdom. Rod La Rocque, Adolphe Menjou and Pauline Starke are featured in support of the star.

Here's Pola in the kind of a role that made her famous in a production directed by the man who first discovered her and introduced her to the American public in Passion.

Agnes Christine Johnson and Hans Kraly adapted the story for the screen. Fred Malatesta, Nick De Ruis, Mme. D'Aurigny and others have important roles in the cast. If you liked Pola in her earlier picture, you'll fairly rave over her in Forbidden Paradise. It's a real entertainer by a master-producer.

Breed Theater

Picturing a story that never grows old—one that is immeasurably richer in romance, dramatic values and other desirable qualifications than the great majority of modern stories written directly for the movies—Barbara Fritchie which comes to the Breed theater Sunday is entertainment not to be overlooked by the jaded picturegoer. It strikes a different note in photoplay "styles" so courageously

TEXT OF PRESIDENT COOLIDGE'S ANNUAL MESSAGE AS DELIVERED TO CONGRESS

The present state of the Union upon which it is customary for the president to report to the Congress under the provisions of the constitution, is such that it may be regarded with encouragement and satisfaction by every American. Our country is almost unique in its ability to discharge fully and promptly all its obligations at home and abroad, and provide for all its inhabitants an increase in material resources, in intellectual vigor and in moral power. The nation holds a position unsurpassed in all former human experience. This does not mean that we do not have any problems. It is elementary that the increasing breadth of our experience necessarily increases the problems of our national life. But it does mean that if we will but apply ourselves industriously and honestly, we have ample powers with which to meet our problems and provide for their speedy solution. I do not profess that we can secure an era of perfection in human existence, but we can provide an era of peace and prosperity, attended with freedom and justice and made more and more satisfying by the ministrations of the charities and humanities of life.

Our domestic problems are for the most part economic. We have our enormous debt to pay, and we are paying it. We have the high cost of government to diminish, and we are diminishing it. We have a heavy burden of taxation to reduce, and we are reducing it. But while remarkable progress has been made in these directions, the work is yet far from accomplished. We still owe over $21,000,000,000, the cost of the national government is still about $3,500,000,000, and the national taxes still amount to about $27 for each one of our inhabitants. There yet exists this enormous field for the application of economy.

In my opinion the government can do more to remedy the economic ills of the people by a system of rigid economy in public expenditure than can be accomplished through any other action. The costs of our national and local governments combined now stand at a sum close to $100 for each inhabitant of the land. A little less than one-third of this is represented by national expenditure, and a little more than two-thirds by local expenditure. It is an ominous fact that only the national government is reducing its debt. Others are increasing theirs at about $1,000,000,000 each year. The depression that overtook business, the disaster experienced in agriculture, the lack of employment and the terrific shrinkage in all values which our country experienced in a most acute form in 1920, resulted in no small measure from the prohibitive taxes which were then levied on all productive effort. The establishment of a system of drastic economy in public expenditure, which has enabled us to pay off about one-fifth of the national debt since 1919, and almost cut in two the national tax burden since 1921, has been one of the main causes in reestablishing a prosperity which has come to include within its benefits almost every one of our inhabitants. Economy reaches everywhere. It carries a blessing to everybody.

The fallacy of the claim that the costs of government are borne by the rich and those who make a direct contribution to the national treasury can not be too often exposed. No system has been devised, I do not think any system could be devised, under which any person living in this country could escape being affected by the cost of our government. It has a direct effect upon the rate and the purchasing power of wages. It is felt in the price of those prime necessities of existence, food, clothing, fuel and shelter. It would appear to be elementary that the more the government expends the more it must require every producer to contribute out of his production to the public treasury, and the less he will have for his own benefit. The continuing costs of public administration can be met in only one way—by the work of the people. The higher they become, the more the people must work for the government. The less they are, the more the people can work for themselves.

The present estimated margin between public receipts and expenditures for this fiscal year is very small. Perhaps the most important work that this session of the congress can do is to continue a policy of economy and further reduce the cost of government, in order that we may have a reduction of taxes for the next fiscal year. Nothing is more likely to produce that public confidence which is the forerunner and the maintenance of prosperity, encourage and enlarge business opportunity with ample opportunity for employment at good wages, provide a larger market for agricultural products, and put our country in a stronger position to be able to meet the world competition in trade, than a continuing policy of economy. Of course necessary costs must be met, proper functions of the government performed, and constant investments for capital account and reproductive effort must be carried on by our various departments. But the people must know that their government is placing upon them no unnecessary burden.

Taxes

Everyone desires a reduction of taxes, and there is a great preponderance of sentiment in favor of taxation reform. When I approved the present tax law I stated publicly that I did so in spite of certain provisions which I believed unwise and harmful. One of the most glaring of these was the making public of the amounts assessed against different income-tax payers. Although that damage has been done, I believe its continuation to be detrimental to the public welfare and bound to decrease public revenues, so that it ought to be repealed.

Anybody can reduce taxes, but it is not get easy to stand in the gap and resist the passage of increasing appropriation bills which would make tax reduction impossible. It will be very easy to measure the strength of the attachment to reduced taxation by the power with which increased appropriations are resisted. If at the close of the present session the congress has kept within the budget which I propose to present, it will then be possible to have a moderate amount of tax reduction and all the tax reform that the congress may wish for during the next fiscal year. The country is now feeling the direct stimulus which came from the passage of the last revenue bill, and under the assurance of a reasonable system of taxation there is every prospect of an era of prosperity of unprecedented proportions. But it would be idle to expect any such results unless business can continue free from excess profits taxation and be accorded a system of surtaxes at rates which have for their object not the punishment of success or the discouragement of business, but the production of the greatest amount of revenue from large incomes. I am convinced that the larger incomes of the country would actually yield more revenue to the government if the basis of taxation were scientifically revised downward. Moreover the effect of the present method of this taxation is to increase the cost of interest on productive enterprise and to increase the burden of rent. It is altogether likely that such reduction would so encourage and stimulate investment that it would firmly establish our country in the economic leadership of the world.

Waterways

Meantime our internal development should go on. Provision should be made for flood control of such rivers as the Mississippi and the Colorado, and for the opening up of our inland waterways to commerce. Consideration is due to the project of better navigation from the Great Lakes to the gulf. Every effort is being made to promote an agreement with Canada to build the St. Lawrence waterway. There are pending before the congress bills for further development of the Mississippi basin, for the taking over of the Cape Cod canal in accordance with a moral obligation which seems to have been incurred during the war, and for the improvement of harbors on both the Pacific and the Atlantic coasts. While this last should be divested of some of its projects and we must proceed slowly, these bills in general have my approval. Such works are productive of wealth and in the long run tend to a reduction of the tax burden.

Reclamation

Our country has a well-defined policy of reclamation established under statutory authority. This policy should be continued and made a self-sustaining activity administered in a manner that will meet local requirements and bring our arid lands into a profitable state of cultivation as fast as there is a market for their products. Legislation is pending based on the report of the Fact Finding committee for the proper relief of those needing extension of time in which to meet their payments on irrigated land, and for additional amendments and reforms of our reclamation laws, which are all exceedingly important and should be enacted at once.

Agriculture

No more important development has taken place in the last year than the beginning of a restoration of agriculture to a prosperous condition. We must permit no division of classes in this country, with one occupation striving to secure advantage over another. Each must proceed under open opportunities and with a fair prospect of economic equality. The government can not successfully insure prosperity or fix prices by legislative fiat. Every business has its risk and its times of depression. It is well known that in the long run there will be a more even prosperity and a more satisfactory range of prices under the natural working out of economic laws than when the government undertakes the artificial support of markets and industries. Still we can do order our affairs, so protect our own people from foreign competition, so arrange our national finances, so administer our monetary system, so provide for the extension of credits, so improve methods of distribution, as to provide a better working machinery for the transaction of the business of the nation with the least possible friction and loss. The government has been constantly increasing its efforts in these directions for the relief and permanent establishment of agriculture on a sound and equal basis with other business.

It is estimated that the value of the crops for this harvest year may reach $13,000,000,000, which is an increase of over $3,000,000,000 in three years. It compares with $7,100,000,000 in 1913, and if we make deduction from the figures of 1924 for the comparatively decreased value of the dollar, the yield this year still exceeds 1913 in purchasing power by over $1,000,000,000, and in this interval there has been no increase in the number of farmers. Mostly by his own effort the farmer has decreased the cost of production. A marked increase in the price of his products and some decrease in the price of his supplies has brought him about to a parity with the rest of the nation. The crop area of this season is estimated at 370,000,000 acres, which is a decline of 8,000,000 acres from last year, and 6,000,000 acres from 1919. This has been a normal and natural application of economic laws, which has placed agriculture on a foundation which is undeniably sound and beginning to be satisfactory.

A decrease in the world supply of wheat has resulted in a very large increase in the price of that commodity. The position of all agricultural products indicates a better balanced supply, but we can not yet conclude that agriculture is recovered from the effects of the war period or that it is permanently on a prosperous basis. The cattle industry has not yet recovered and in some sections has been suffering from dry weather. Every effort must be made, both by government activity and by private agencies, to restore and maintain agriculture to a complete normal relationship with other industries.

It was on account of past depression, and in spite of present more encouraging conditions, that I have assembled an agricultural conference made up of those who are representative of this great industry in both its operating and economic sides. Everyone knows that the great need of the farmer is markets. The country is not suffering on the side of production. Almost the entire difficulty is on the side of distribution. This reaches back, of course, to unit costs and diversification, and many allied subjects. It is exceedingly intricate, for our domestic and foreign trade, transportation and banking, and in fact our entire economic system are closely related to it. In time for action at this session, I hope to report to the congress such legislative remedies as the conference may recommend. An appropriation should be made to defray their necessary expenses.

Muscle Shoals

The production of nitrogen for plant food in peace and explosives in war is more and more important. It is one of the chief sustaining elements of life. It is estimated that soil exhaustion each year is represented by about 9,000,000 tons and replenishment by 5,450,000 tons. The deficit of 3,550,000 tons is reported to represent the impairment of 118,000,000 acres of farm lands each year.

To meet these necessities the government has been developing a water power project at Muscle Shoals to be equipped to produce nitrogen for explosives and fertilizer. It is my opinion that the support of agriculture is the chief problem to consider in connection with this property. It could by no means supply the present needs for nitrogen, but it would help and its development would encourage bringing other water powers into like use.

Several offers have been made for the purchase of this property. Probably none of them represent final terms. Much costly experimentation is necessary to produce commercial nitrogen. For that reason it is a field better suited to private enterprise than to government operation. I should favor a sale of this property, or long-time lease under rigid guaranties of commercial nitrogen production at reasonable prices for agricultural use. There would be a surplus of power for many years over any possibility of its application to a developing manufacture of nitrogen. It may be found advantageous to dispose of the right to surplus power separately with such reservations as will allow its gradual withdrawal and separately with such reservations as will allow its gradual withdrawal and application to nitrogen manufacture. A subcommittee of the committees on agriculture should investigate this field and negotiate with prospective purchasers. If no advantageous offer be made, the development should continue and the plant should be dedicated primarily to the production of materials for the fertilization of the soil.

Railways

The railways during the past year have made still further progress in recuperation from the war, with large gains in efficiency and ability expeditiously to handle the traffic of the country. We have now passed through several periods of peak traffic without the car shortages which so frequently in the past have brought havoc to our agriculture and industries. The condition of many of our great freight terminals is still one of difficulty and results in imposing large costs on the public for inward-bound freight and on the railways for outward-bound freight. Owing to the growth of our large cities and the great increase in the volume of traffic, particularly in perishables, the problem is not only difficult of solution, but in some cases not wholly solvable by railway action alone.

In my message last year I emphasized the necessity for further legislation with a view to expediting the consolidation of our railways into larger systems. The principle of government control of rates and profits, now thoroughly imbedded in our governmental attitude toward natural monopolies such as the railways at once eliminates the need of competition by small units as a method of rate adjustment. Competition must be preserved as a stimulus to service, but this will exist and can be increased under enlarged systems. Consequently the consolidation of the railways into larger units for the purpose of securing the substantial values to the public which will come from larger operation has been the logical conclusion of congress in its previous enactments, and is also supported by the best opinion in the country. Such consolidation will assure not only a greater element of competition as to service, but it will afford economy in operation, greater stability in railway earnings, and more economical financing. It opens large possibilities of better equalization rates between different classes of traffic so as to relieve undue burdens upon agricultural products and raw materials generally, which are now not possible without ruin to small units owing to the lack of diversity of traffic. It would also tend to equalize earnings in such fashion as to reduce the importance of section 15A, at which criticism often misapplied, has been directed. A smaller number of units would offer less difficulties in labor adjustments and would contribute much to the solution of terminal difficulties.

The consolidations need to be carried out with due regard to public interest and to the rights and established life of various communities in our country. It does not seem to me necessary that we endeavor to anticipate any final plan or adhere to any artificial and unchangeable system which shall stipulate a fixed number of systems, but rather we ought to approach the problem with such a latitude of action that it can be worked out step by step in accordance with a comprehensive consideration of public interest. Whether the number of ultimate systems shall be more or less seems to me can only be determined by time and actual experience in the development of such consolidations.

Those portions of the present law contemplating consolidations are not sufficiently effective in producing expeditious action and need amplification of the authority of the Interstate Commerce commission, particularly in affording a period for voluntary proposals to the commission and in supplying government pressure to secure action after the expiration of such a period.

There are other proposals before congress for amending the transportation acts. One of these contemplates a revision of the method of valuation for rate-making purposes to be followed by a renewed valuation of the railways. The valuations instituted by the Interstate Commerce commission 10 years ago have not yet been completed. They have cost the government an enormous sum, and they have imposed great expenditure upon the railways, most of which has in effect come out of the public in increased rates. This work should not be abandoned or suspended until its results are known and can be considered.

Another matter before the congress is legislation affecting the labor sections of the transportation act. Much criticism has been directed at the workings of this section and experience has shown that some useful amendment could be made to these provisions.

It would be helpful if a plan could be adopted which, while retaining the practice of systematic collective bargaining with conciliation and voluntary arbitration of labor differences, could also provide simplicity in relations and more direct local responsibility of employees and managers. But such legislation will not meet the requirements of the situation unless it recognizes the principle that the public has a right to the uninterrupted service of transportation, and therefore a right to be heard when there is danger that the nation may suffer great injury through the interruption of operations because of labor disputes. If these elements are not comprehended in proposed legislation, it would be better to gain further experience with the present organization for dealing with these questions before undertaking a change.

Shipping Board

The form of the organization of the shipping board was based originally on its functions as a semijudicial body in regulation of rates. During the war it was loaded with enormous administrative duties. It has been demonstrated time and again that this form of organization results in indecision, division of opinion and administrative functions, which make a wholly inadequate foundation for the conduct of a great business enterprise. The first principle in securing the objective set out by congress in building up the American merchant marine upon the great trade routes and subsequently disposing of it into private operation can not proceed with effectiveness until the entire functions of the board are reorganized. The immediate requirement is to transfer into the Emergency Fleet Corporation the whole responsibility of operation of the fleet and other property, leaving to the shipping board solely the duty of determining certain major policies which require deliberative action.

The procedure under section 28 of the merchant marine act has created great difficulty and threatened friction during the past 12 months. Its attempted application developed not only great opposition from exporters, particularly as to burdens that may be imposed upon agricultural products, but also great anxiety in the different seaports as to the effect upon their relative rate structures. This trouble will certainly recur if action is attempted under this section. It is uncertain in some of its terms and of great difficulty in interpretation.

It is my belief that action under this section should be suspended until the congress can reconsider the entire question in the light of the experience that has been developed since its enactment.

National Elections

Nothing is so fundamental to the integrity of a republican form of government as honesty in all that related to the conduct of elections. I am of the opinion that the national laws governing the choice of members of the congress should be extended to include appropriate representation of the respective parties at the ballot box and equality of representation on the various registration boards, wherever they exist.

The Judiciary

The docket of the Supreme court is becoming congested. At the opening term last year it had 592 cases, while this year it had 687 cases. Justice long delayed is justice refused. Unless the court be given power by preliminary and summary consideration to determine the importance of cases, and by disposing of those which are not of public moment reserve its time for the more extended consideration of the remainder, the congestion of the docket is likely to increase. It is also desirable that the supreme court should have power to improve and reform procedure in suits at law in the federal courts through the adoption of appropriate rules. The judiciary committee of the senate has reported favorably upon two bills providing for these reforms which should have the immediate favorable consideration of the congress.

I further recommend that provision be made for the appointment of a commission to consist of two or three members of the federal judiciary and as many members of the bar, to examine the present criminal code of procedure and recommend to the congress measures which may reform and expedite court procedure in the administration and enforcement of our criminal laws.

Prison Reform

Pending before the congress is a bill which has already passed one house providing for a reformatory to which could be committed first offenders and young men for the purpose of segregating them from contact with hardened criminals and providing them with special training in order to reestablish in them the power to pursue a law-abiding existence in the social and economic life of the nation. This is a matter of so much importance as to warrant the early attention of the present session. Further provision should also be made, for a like reason, for a separate reformatory for women.

National Police Bureau

Representatives of the International Police conference will bring to the attention of the congress a proposal for the establishment of a national police bureau. Such action would provide a central point for gathering, compiling, and later distributing to local police authorities much information which would be helpful in the prevention and detection of crime. I believe this bureau is needed, and I recommend favorable consideration of this proposal.

District of Columbia Welfare

The welfare work of the District of Columbia is administered by several different boards dealing with charities and various correctional efforts. It would be an improvement if this work were consolidated and placed under the direction of a single commission.

French Spoliation Claims

During the last session of the congress legislation was introduced looking to the payment of the remaining claims generally referred to as the French spoliation claims. The congress has provided for the payment of many similar claims. Those that remain unpaid have been long pending. The beneficiaries thereunder have every reason to expect payment. These claims have been examined by the court of claims and their validity and amount determined. The United States ought to pay its debts. I recommend action by the congress which will permit of the payment of these remaining claims.

The Wage Earner

Two very important policies have been adopted by this country which, while extending their benefits also in other directions, have been of the utmost importance to the wage earners. One of these is the protective tariff, which enables our people to live according to a better standard and receive a better rate of compensation than any people, any time, anywhere on earth, ever enjoyed. This saves the American market for the products of the American workmen. The other is a policy of more recent origin and seeks to shield our wage earners from the disastrous competition of great influx of foreign peoples. This has been done by the restrictive immigration law. This saves the American job for the American workmen. I should like to see the administrative features of this law rendered a little more humane for the purpose of permitting those already here a greater latitude in securing admission of members of their own families. But I believe this law in principle is necessary and sound, and destined to increase greatly the public welfare. We must maintain our own economic position, we must defend our own national integrity.

It is gratifying to report that the progress of industry, the enormous increase in individual productivity through labor-saving devices, and the high rate of wages have all combined to furnish our people in general with such an abundance not only of the necessaries but of the conveniences of life that we are by a natural evolution solving our problems of economic and social justice.

The Negro

These developments have brought about a very remarkable improvement in the condition of the negro race. Gradually, but surely, with the almost universal sympathy of those among whom they live, the colored people are working out their own destiny. I firmly believe that it is better for all concerned that they should be cheerfully accorded their full constitutional rights, that they should be protected from all of those impositions to which, from their position, they naturally fall a prey, especially from the crime of lynching, and that they should receive every encouragement to become full partakers in all the blessings of our common American citizenship.

Civil Service

The merit system has long been recognized as the correct basis for employment in our civil service. I believe that first, second and third class that first, second, and third class postmasters, and without covering in the present membership the field of prohibition enforcement, should be brought within the classified service by statute law. Otherwise the executive order of one administration is changed by the executive order of another administration, and little real progress is made. Whatever its defects, the merit system is certainly to be preferred to the spoils system.

Departmental Reorganization

One way to save public money would be to pass the pending bill for the reorganization of the various departments. This project has been pending for some time, and has had the most careful consideration of experts and the thorough study of a special congressional committee. This legislation is vital as a companion piece to the Budget law. Legal authority for a thorough reorganization of the federal structure with some latitude of action to the executive in the rearrangement of secondary functions would make for continuing economy in the shift of government activities which must follow every change in a developing country. Beyond this many of the independent agencies of the government must be placed under responsible cabinet officials, if we are to have safeguards of efficiency, economy, and probity.

Army and Navy

Little has developed in relation to our national defense which needs special attention. Progress is constantly being made in air navigation and requires encouragement and development. Army aviators have made a successfull trip around the world, for which I recommend suitable recognition through provisions for promotion, compensation, and retirement. Under the direction of the navy a new zeppelin has been successfully brought from Europe across the Atlantic to our own country.

Due to the efficient supervision of the secretary of war the army of the United States has been organized with a small body of regulars and a moderate national guard and reserve. The defense test of September 12 demonstrated the efficiency of the operating plans. These methods and operations are well worthy of congressional support.

Under the limitation of armaments treaty a large saving in outlay and a considerable decrease in maintenance of the navy has been accomplished. We should maintain the policy of constantly working toward the full treaty strength of the navy. Careful investigation is being made in this department of the relative importance of aircraft, surface and submarine vessels, in order that we may not fail to take advantage of all modern improvements for our national defense. A special commission also is investigating the problem of petroleum oil for the navy, considering the best policy to insure the future supply of fuel oil and prevent the threatened drainage of naval oil reserves. Legislative action is required to carry on experiments in oil shale reduction, as large deposits of this type have been set aside for the use of the navy.

We have been constantly besought to engage in competitive armaments. Frequent reports will reach us of the magnitude of the military equipment of other nations. We shall do well to be little impressed by such reports or such actions. Any nation undertaking to maintain a military establishment with aggressive and imperialistic designs will find itself severely handicapped in the economic development of the world. I believe thoroughly in the army and navy, in adequate defense and preparation. But I am opposed to any policy of competition in building and maintaining land or sea armaments.

Our country has definitely relinquished the old standard of dealing with other countries by terror and force, and is definitely committed to the new standard of dealing with them through friendship and understanding. This new policy should be constantly kept in mind by the guiding forces of the army and navy, by the congress and by the country at large. I believe it holds a promise of great benefit to humanity. I shall resist any attempt to resort to the old methods and the old standards. I am especially solicitous that foreign nations should comprehend the candor and sincerity with which we have adopted this position. While we propose to maintain defensive and supplementary police forces by land and sea, and to train them through inspections and maneuvers upon appropriate occasions in order to maintain their efficiency, I wish every other nation to understand that this does not express any hostile intent. I want the armed forces of America to be considered by all peoples not as enemies but as friends, as the contribution which is made by this country for the maintenance of the peace and security of the world.

Veterans

With the authorization for general hospitalization of the veterans of all wars provided during the present year, the care and treatment of those who have served their country in time of peril and the attitude of the government toward them is not now so much one of needed legislation as one of careful, generous and humane administration. It will ever be recognized that their welfare is of the first concern and always entitled to the most solicitous consideration on the part of their fellow citizens. They are organized in various associations, of which the chief and most representative is the American Legion. Through its officers the legion will present to the congress numerous suggestions for legislation. They cover such a wide variety of subjects that it is impossible to discuss them within the scope of this message. With many of the proposals I join in hearty approval and commend them all to the sympathetic investigation and consideration of the congress.

Foreign Relations

At no period in the past 12 years have our foreign relations been in such a satisfactory condition as they are at the present time. Our actions in the recent months have greatly strengthened the American policy of permanent peace with independence. The attitude which our government took and maintained toward an adjustment of European reparations, by pointing out that it was not a political but a business problem, has demonstrated its wisdom by its actual results. We desire to see Europe restored that it may resume its productivity in the increase of industry and its support in the advance of civilization. We look with great gratification at the hopeful prospect of recuperation in Europe through the Dawes plan. Such assistance as can be given through the action of the public authorities and of our private citizens, through friendly counsel and cooperation, and through economic and financial support, not for any warlike effort but for reproductive enterprise, not to provide means for unsound government financing but to establish sound business administration, should be unhesitatingly provided.

Ultimately nations, like individuals, can not depend upon each other but must depend upon themselves. Each one must work out its own salvation. We have every desire to help. But with all our resources we are powerless to save unless our efforts meet with a constructive response. The situation in our own country and all over the world is one that can be improved only by hard work and self-denial. It is necessary to reduce expenditures, increase savings and liquidate debts. It is in this direction that there lies the greatest hope of domestic tranquility and international peace. Our own country ought to furnish the leading example in this effort. Our past adherence to this policy, our constant refusal to maintain a military establishment that could be thought to menace the security of others, our honorable dealings with other nations whether great or small, has left us in the almost constant enjoyment of peace.

It is not necessary to stress the general desire of all the people of this country for the promotion of peace. It is the leading principle of all our foreign relations. We have on every occasion tried to cooperate to this end in all ways that were consistent with our proper independence and our traditional policies. It will be independent and free. Right and truth and justice and humanitarian efforts will have the moral support of this country all over the world. But we do not wish to become involved in the political controversies of others. Nor is the country disposed to become a member of the league of nations, or to assume the obligations imposed by its covenant.

International Court

America has been one of the foremost nations in advocating tribunals for the settlement of international disputes of a justiciable character. Our representatives took a leading part in those conferences which resulted in the establishment of The Hague Tribunal, and later in providing for a Permanent Court of International Justice. I believe it would be for the advantage of this country and helpful to the stability of other nations for us to adhere to the protocol establishing that court upon the conditions stated in the recommendation which is now before the senate, and further that our country shall not be bound by advisory opinions which may be rendered by the court upon questions which we have not voluntarily submitted for its judgment. This court would provide a practical and convenient tribunal before which we could go voluntarily, but to which we could not be summoned for a determination of justiciable questions when they fail to be resolved by diplomatic negotiations.

Disarmament Conference

Many times I have expressed my desire to see the work of the Washington Conference on Limitation of Armaments appropriately supplemented by further agreements for a further reduction and for the purpose of diminishing the menace and waste of the competition in preparing instruments of international war. It has been and is my expectation that we might hopefully approach other great powers for further conference on this subject as soon as the carrying out of the present reparation plan as the established and settled policy of Europe has created a favorable opportunity. But on account of proposals which have already been made by other governments for a European conference, it will be necessary to wait to see what the outcome of their actions may be. I should not wish to propose or have representatives attend a conference which would contemplate commitments opposed to the freedom of action we desire to maintain unimpaired with respect to our purely domestic policies.

International Law

Our country should also support efforts which are being made toward the codification of international law. We can look more hopefully, in the first instance, for research and studies that are likely to be productive of results, to a cooperation among representatives of the bar and members of international law institutes and societies, than to a conference of those who are technically representative of their respective governments for their approval. These expert professional studies are going on in certain quarters and should have our constant encouragement and approval.

Outlaw of War

Much interest has of late been manifested in this country in the discussion of various proposals to outlaw aggressive war. I look with great sympathy upon the examination of this subject. It is in harmony with the traditional policy of our country, which is against aggressive war and for the maintenance of permanent and honorable peace. While, as I have said, we must safeguard our liberty to deal according to our own judgment with our domestic policies, we can not fail to view with sympathetic interest all progress to this desired end or carefully to study the measures that may be proposed to attain it.

Latin America

While we are desirous of promoting peace in every quarter of the globe, we have a special interest in the peace of this hemisphere. It is our constant desire that all causes of dispute in this area may be tranquilly and satisfactorily adjusted. Along with our desire for peace is the earnest hope for the increased prosperity of our sister republics of Latin America, and our constant purpose to promote cooperation with them which may be mutually beneficial and always inspired by the most cordial friendships.

Foreign Debts

About $12,000,000,000 is due to our government from abroad, mostly from European governments. Great Britain, Finland, Hungary, Lithuania and Poland have negotiated settlements amounting close to $5,000,000,000. This represents the funding of over 42 per cent of the debt since the creation of the special Foreign Debt commission. As the life of this commission is about to expire, its term should be extended. I am opposed to the cancellation of these debts and believe it for the best welfare of the world that they should be liquidated and paid as far as possible. I do not favor oppressive measures, but unless money that is borrowed is repaid credit can not be secured in time of necessity, and there exists besides a moral obligation which our country can not ignore and no other country can evade. Terms and conditions may have to conform to differences in the financial abilities of the countries concerned, but the principle that each country should meet its obligation admits of no differences and is of universal application.

It is axiomatic that our country can not stand still. It would seem to be perfectly plain from recent events that it is determined to go forward. But it wants no pretenses, it wants no vagaries. It is determined to advance in an orderly, sound and common-sense way. It does not propose to abandon the theory of the declaration that the people have inalienable rights which no majority and no power of government can destroy. It does not propose to abandon the practice of the constitution that provides for the protection of these rights. It believes that within these limitations, which are imposed not by the fiat of man but by the law of the Creator, self-government is just and wise. It is convinced that it will be impossible for the people to provide their own government unless they continue to own their own property.

These are the very foundations of America. On them has been erected a government of freedom and equality, of justice and mercy, of education and charity. Living under it and supporting it the people have come into great possessions on the material and spiritual sides of life. I want our institutions to be more and more expressive of these principles. I want the people of all the earth to see in the American flag the symbol of a government which intends no oppression at home and no aggression abroad, which in the spirit of a common brotherhood provides assistance in time of distress.

CITY MANAGER HOLT NAMES COMMITTEE FOR NEW LONDON POLICE DEPT. PROBE

New London, Dec. 3.—City Manager Holt today got about the task the city council has set for him to accomplish and appointed a committee of three councilors to inquire into the efficiency of the police department of New London. The language of the resolution adopted by the city council gives the manager a wide field in which to pursue his search for irregularities or failure to do duty on the part of the guardians of the peace. How far afield the committee will go remains to be seen. Councilor Streeter, who brought the matter of police inefficiency to the attention of the council soon after he was elected, is a member of the committee to probe into how the department has been conducted. The other members are Lucius E. Whiton, the chairman, and John F. Murray, the latter for several years chairman of the police department committee in the common council when the city knew nothing about the commission form of government. The original resolution for the probe was intended to be very much more thorough than it would seem the case under the more moderate language of the resolution to "inquire into the efficiency of the police department." It is understood that Councilor Streeter has not the highest regard for the way things have been allowed to move in the department for some years, during which time it is claimed the rules and regulations the police are working under have been lost sight of in great degree. It is also claimed that the officers have not been supplied with printed rules and regulations and that if they ever had such they are not now in their possession. Obviously it would be unreasonable to insist on the enforcement of rules that were not known to the officers. The statement is semi-officially made that no officer is to be allowed to remain on the force who cannot display intelligence that will enable him to show legible handwriting and enable an intelligent response to questions that a school boy would be supposed to be familiar with. Some thing like military discipline will be sought for the force if gossip that is current is to be relied upon. In other words, the police system in New London is to get a sort of shaking up that will be beneficial to the officers and which will bring good results to the city. Officers are now among the best paid men in the city, they have a fortnight's vacation every year and they receive pay when they are incapacitated for duty by sickness on the production of a doctor's certificate of illness. So appointment to the police force is a desirable position. There is work occasionally for members of the force in other capacities when they are not on duty regularly for the city, and they are so engaged but eight hours a day. The council recently adopted an ordinance which prevents any man 70 years of age from holding a police's position and it restricts the age of appointment to 35 years. Retirement upon incapacity or upon reaching the age limit further restricts the list of eligibles and makes the position all the more desirable. When retirement comes with a good record, the pay of the officer so retired is one-half what has been the compensation for regular service.

The funeral of William E. Patterson, former contractor, whose sudden death of heart disease occurred last Sunday afternoon while addressing a meeting of the Men's club of the Methodist Episcopal church, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at his former residence, 10 Adelaide street and was attended by a large assemblage of mourners. The services were conducted by Rev. Myron E. Genter, pastor of the church. Members of the church and former intimate acquaintances of Mr. Patterson, acted as bearers. Interment was in Jordan cemetery.

An automobile truck of the United States Coast Guard Academy, Fort Trumbull, was in collision this morning on Bank street with a trolley car of the Connecticut Company. The impact of the collision caused the truck to be forced against a commercial truck owned by Harry Weinstein, 37 Hamilton street, that was parked alongside the curb. Weinstein claimed that the truck had been damaged, but the driver of the coast guard truck declared that Weinstein's damage would not exceed $5.

Manuel Perry, a lodger at 43 Bank street, complained to the police this morning that the room he occupied with a friend, Anthony Mendoza, was entered by a thief Tuesday afternoon or night and a suit case containing wearing apparel belonging to both was stolen.

Patrolman John Hogan, who has been confined to his home, Montauk avenue, a week by grip, resumed his duties on the night shift tonight.

Mrs. Frances Buttolph, 82, widow of John Buttolph, and mother of Mrs. Frail, wife of Lieutenant Commander Whitney Frail, instructor at the United States Coast Guard Academy, died at Lawrence hospital Monday midnight after having been under treatment at the institution ten months. Mrs. Buttolph is survived by five sons besides her daughter.

Miss Roberta King returned to her home, Denison avenue, today after having been under treatment several days at Home Memorial hospital.

Daniel S. Marsh, Jr., Bellevue place and Edgar T. Thomas, State street, are spending a fortnight in South Carolina where they are devoting the greater part of their time to hunting.

Hadley Larrabee, son of Prof. and Mrs. Benjamin R. Larrabee, instructor at Bulkeley school, is a patient at Home Memorial hospital, having undergone a serious operation there yesterday afternoon. The condition of the patient was reported this afternoon as being comfortable.

Mrs. Imogene Hall, Lee avenue, has returned to her home, concluding a several weeks' visit with relatives at Wickford, R. I.

The state police and County Detective William Lewis are now nearer a solution of the mystery attending the death of Peter A. Toolin, Jr., former assistant paymaster in the employ of the Robert Gair company, Montville, whose lifeless body was found in the highway at Station 1-2, Waterford, early Thanksgiving day morning, than when the body was found. The state police still contend that Toolin was either pushed or fell from the running board of an automobile, but their opinion is not shared by Detective Lewis and many others.

If Toolin sustained his injuries in an accidental manner it is more than strange that those who have knowledge of the facts pertaining to his death do not come forward and reveal them and permit the clearing up of the mystery.

Later yesterday and today the state police determined the ownership of a cap, the name of the owner having been in the sweatband. The owner of the hat proved conclusively that he had not been in possession of the hat for six months and that it had since been used by someone else. The last custodian of the hat was located and satisfactorily explained how the headpiece was found in the highway.

The fatality occurred a week ago and to date the state police with a dozen or more men available have, or at least they claim, not obtained a solitary tangible clue, nor has Detective Lewis.

Mrs. Donald Tobin and son, Elliti and daughter, Constance, Middlebury, Vt., are visiting Mrs. Tobin's mother, Mrs. M. E. Colgrove, 20 Nameaug avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac G. Browne have vacated their home, Lee avenue, and have gone to Flushing, L. I., where they will make their future home with their son, Harry C. Browne, well known actor.

Mrs. Charles B. Greene, Waterford, has gone to St. Petersburg, Fla., where she will remain until spring.

NEW HAVEN SALESMAN CHARGED WITH LARCENY

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Dec. 3.—James McHugh, 358 Center street, New Haven, a lingerie salesman, was taken into custody this evening by Sergeant Samuel Hick charged with larceny of $100 from George Findlay, a Bank street merchant. McHugh was unable to provide a surety on his bond and was placed in a cell to await the convening of the police court tomorrow morning.

McHugh, who has made a practice of coming to New London at frequent intervals and who was stopping at the Crocker House, went to O'Leary's restaurant about 7 o'clock and there displayed ladies' silk stockings and underthings to some of the waitresses. While he displayed his merchandise, Findlay entered the restaurant, and, as he inspected some of the raiment from McHugh's stock, inquiry was made of Findlay if the latter desired to make a purchase. Findlay replied that he did if the goods were of merit. At the same time one of waitresses made it known that she desired to make a purchase. As the statement was made Findlay pulled five $100 bills from his pocket and throwing them among the merchandise remarked to the waitresses to "stock themselves up." When McHugh and one of the waitresses picked up the money from the counter it was handed to Findlay and as he inspected the money he discovered that one of the $100 bills was missing. McHugh denied having retained the bill and naturally the girls all professed their innocence. Findlay finally accused McHugh of retaining the bill and when McHugh steadfastly pronounced his innocence, Findlay telephoned to the police station and requested that an officer be sent to the restaurant. Sergeant Hick was assigned to the complaint and arriving at the restaurant and hearing the stories of Findlay, McHugh and the waitresses, McHugh was taken into custody. McHugh continued to deny his guilt and finally consented to be searched. When the search of his clothing and person was being made Sergeant Hick observed McHugh pull his hand from his shoe and reach for his hip pocket, which pocket the officer had already searched. Sergeant Hick at once gave his attention to the pocket a second time and in it was found the missing certificate.

McHugh declared that he did not intend to keep the money and would have returned it had not the police been summoned.

McHugh is well known among restaurant employes because of his frequent visits to the places where he sold a considerable quantity of wearing apparel to the waitresses.

AWARDS AT INTERNATIONAL LIVESTOCK EXPOSITION

Chicago, Dec. 3—(By the A. P.)—Stockmen and grain growers divided laurels today at the international livestock exposition. While new champions were selected in the annual rings new world masters in field crop production were named in the hay and grain division and a dozen states figured in the grand championship awards.

Indiana produced the corn champions of the year and Montana brought the oats championship back to America after a six year sojourn in Canada.

J. E. Mumert, Astoria, Ills., won the reserve championship, second highest honor, with yellow dent. He was world champion last year.

Grand champion honors in the oats division went to L. E. Peterson Victor, Mont., for an exhibit of victory white.

The grand champion wether of the show, the highest award for non-breeding lambs, was won by the Iroquois Farms, Cooperstown, N. Y., with a Shropshire.

Entries of the Wenonah Farms, of Shelbyville, Tenn., won one of the most remarkable victories of the silver jubilee show by sweeping the boards in the breeding Hampshire class in the hog pens, exhibits from the Tennessee herd won eight blue ribbons, and two reserve championships, the ten highest awards in the class. Included in the first were grand championship for boars and sows of all ages.

SUBJECTS AT FORUM OF MECHANICAL ENGINEERS

New York, Dec. 3.—Development of the X-ray to a point where it will render impossible the explosion of big guns such as have resulted in large loss of life in recent years, was predicted today at the national defense forum of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers convened here, at which Dwight F. Davis, assistant secretary of war, and several army officers outlined the war department's plans for national preparedness.

To prevent the acceptance of unsound metal in the construction of big guns, a 280,000 X-ray equipment has been installed at the Watertown, Mass., arsenal, Colonel T. C. Dickson told the delegates. The machine, he said, had proved to be of great practical value as an instrument of inspection, he said that from the X-ray films of steel castings the location and cause of defects could be told without the necessity of cutting up the castings to ascertain their soundness.

Mr. Davis reminded the engineers that in the next war the burdens would be equally distributed on all classes and professions, and warned that there would be "no slackers and no profiteers."

Walter M. McFarland of New York made the speech of presentation this afternoon when the bust of Admiral George Wallace Melville was unveiled before the society. Admiral Melville was a former president of the society, and also a former chief engineer of the navy.

The aeronautic division of the society, presided over by S. A. Moss, will discuss problems of the air at its session tomorrow. Professor Alexander Klemin of New York university will describe the development of the helicopter.

SEVEN BROKERS WERE SENTENCED IN NEW YORK

New York, Dec. 3.—Seven brokers, including William S. Silkworth, former president of the Consolidated Stock Exchange, were sentenced today by Judge Augustus N. Hand in United States district court.

Convicted of using the mails to defraud, after the failure of numerous brokerage firms in 1922 from which arose charges of bucketing, Silkworth was sent to Essex County, N. J. jail for 90 days and ordered to pay a $1,000 fine.

Blaine J. Nicholas and Earl H. Truesdell were ordered to Atlanta penitentiary for two years. Their partner, De Witt C. Raynor of Raynor, Nicholas and Truesdell, who pleaded guilty and turned state's witness, will accompany Silkworth to the Essex County institution for a 90-day term.

Edward A. McQuade and Francis X. Quillan of the curb brokerage firm of McQuade Brothers & Quillan were fined $500 each and sent to Essex County jail for 90 days. Sentence to the same institution for a like period, with a $1,000 fine, was imposed upon Louis Gilbough, former member of the ways and means committee of the Consolidated Exchange and a floor trader for Raynor, Nicholas & Truesdell.

The French debt was the subject of further discussion between Ambassador Jusserand and Secretary Mellon.

Announcement was made of the signing of a treaty with Great Britain for equal rights for Americans in Palestine.

Postmaster-General New informed the senate the government is losing money on all postal services except first-class mail and postal savings.

The District of Columbia supreme court declined to prevent the internal revenue bureau from making tax returns available for public inspection.

State republicans and democrats adjusted committee assignments made necessary by deaths, Senator Borah of Idaho, becoming head of the foreign relations committee.

YOUTH NEARLY STRANGLED HIMSELF IN PRISON PEN

Bridgeport, Dec. 3—George Dubord, 19 years old of Bridgeport, pulled his four-in-hand necktie taut and nearly strangled in the prisoners' pen in the criminal superior court here this afternoon. He had just been committed to the state reformatory with three companions, all of whom pleaded guilty to participation in forty robberies.

Judge William M. Maltbie suspended Dubord's sentence after a physician informed the court Dubord was suffering from a heart ailment which might bring on mental and physical collapse were he subjected to confinement.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germ that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

PHASES OF PROBE INTO DEATH OF MRS. SHEATSLEY

Columbus, Ohio, Dec. 3.—Confronted with the report of experts that a living thing could not be cast into a pit of fire and be cremated without an analysis revealing carbon monoxide gas in the blood, Coroner Joseph A. Murphy tomorrow is to render his official verdict in the Bexley furnace mystery.

A few hours after the body of Mrs. Addie Sheatsley, wife of the Rev. C. S. Sheatsley, pastor of Christ Lutheran church was discovered in the furnace of the parsonage on November 17, Coroner Murphy issued a statement expressing the belief that the woman was a suicide. Whether the reports of experts has changed his views will be revealed in the report. Officials pointed out that Coroner Murphy could accept the testimony of the experts and still return a verdict of suicide.

Supported by the findings of a chemist and pathologist, County Prosecutor John R. King is continuing his investigation, but admits that no clues have been found. He places little credence in a letter turned over to the police by the minister today. Postmarked from Buffalo, N. Y., the writer confessed the murder and said that an attempt to convict any other person would be futile. The letter, written in a crude hand, was unsigned. A rough sketch of a skull and crosebones was affixed at the bottom.

REVOLUTIONARY MOVEMENT IN PERU WAS UNSUCCESSFUL

Buenos Aires, Dec. 3—Belated news of an unsuccessful revolutionary movement in Peru was made public today by the official newspaper La Prenza of Lima, says a dispatch to the Nacion from Lima. The movement broke out in the town of Chota on Nov. 20 and was suppressed by government forces after fighting on Nov. 27 and 28. Two of the leaders were captured and executed Nov. 30.

The revolutionaries were Andean Mountaineers who suddenly swept down and seized Chota, in northern Peru.

The account does not give the number of rebels, but says the government forces captured Chota after a "big battle" lasting two days, taking prisoner two leaders, Colonel Samuel Alcazar and Lieutenant Barreda, who were courtmartialed and shot in the public square.

STATE PRISON SENTENCE FOR $2,000 SILK ROBBER

Bridgeport, Dec. 3—Frank De Marco, 23, alleged principal in robbery of $2,000 worth of silk from the plant of the Salts Textile Company in this city on October 16, was today sentenced to State's prison for from two to four years by Judge William M. Maltbie in Superior court. De Marco and two companions, Carlo Fratteralo, 19, and Fred Abbott, 23, pleaded guilty to theft of the silk.

Fratteralo was given a suspended sentence to the Connecticut reformatory and Abbott was given a suspended one year sentence to the county jail.

John De Vaney, 21, charged with a statutory offense against a ten years old girl, was sentenced to State's prison for a term of one to 20 years when he pleaded guilty.

Joseph Katuska, 16; Frank Turecheck, 18; George Dirga, 18 and George Dubard, 19, who pleaded guilty to nearly forty store and house robberies, were committed to the state reformatory.

MYSTERIOUS "MR. A." IS TO BE CALLED AS WITNESS

Paris, Dec. 3—(By the A. P.)—The mysterious "Mr. A." who was connected with the recent Robinson blackmailing case, will be called as a witness in the British courts should James Charles Arthur, former British army officer, who was the aide-de-camp to "Mr. A." and who is under arrest in Paris, be unsuccessful in his attempt to prevent extradition to London.

"Mr. A." as announced today in London, is Rajah Sir Hari Singh, a nephew of the Maharaja of Jammu and Kashmir. Previous the potentate's name had been held secret for "reasons of state."

Counsel for Arthur announced tonight that the essentials for his defense were the identification of the potentate and proof through the rajah's testimony that the aide-de-camp acted fully in accord with him in the settlement of the blackmail. Arthur the attorney said, also was responsible for the expulsion from Nice of Mrs. C. E. Robinson, the wife of a former bookmaker, in whose room the rajah was found by the blackmailers, when she went to Nice allegedly to renew her relations with the rajah.

A general strike, including the railroad men, is threatened in Exypt, says a despatch to the London Daily Express from Cairo.

Quick Action for Piles

If you suffer with the pain, strain itching, bleeding and soreness of protruding piles, no matter how severe, send to the nearest drug store for a 75-cent box of Pyramid Pile Suppositories. It is a wonder. You get the kind of relief that puts you on your feet and gladly tell about it.

ARGENTINA ARRANGES FOR AN EXTERNAL GOLD LOAN

New York, Dec. 3—The government of Argentina which has been one of the most frequent foreign borrowers in the United States this year, today completed arrangements with New York bankers for the sale of a $30,000,000 long-term external gold loan. Sale of the issue tomorrow will bring the Argentine nation's total bond offerings here during 1924 to more than $100,000,000.

Proceeds from the loan will be applied toward payment of the government's floating debt, which at the end of October amounted to 962,710,000 gold pesos. The financing will represent a consolidation of several short term issues, maturing within the next few years.

Public offering of the bonds, which bear 6 per cent interest and mature in twenty-four years, will be made through a syndicate headed by Blair & Co., which handled most of Argentina's recent financing. The bonds are priced at 96 to yield over 6.30 per cent. Operations of a cumulative sinking fund is expected to be retired the issue before maturity.

WOULD REVOKE CHARTERS OF DEFIANT COAL MINERS

Scranton, Pa., Dec. 3—Proceedings were instituted today by officials of District 1, United Mine Workers of America, to revoke charters of the locals of the 12,000 miners of the Pennsylvania and Hillside Coal and Iron Company, who have defied the international and district officers by refusing to call off their strike and return to work. Notices to this effect were sent to the secretary of each local.

A meeting of the striking miners of the Underwood Colliery of the company, held this afternoon in the Labor Temple, Olyphant, ended with several persons being injured and the Olyphant police being called to quell the disturbance. In the melee a man described as A. Balderson, who is said to have called the meeting without proper authority, received a broken arm and slight body injuries. The trouble started when Balderson refused the request of the secretary of the Underwood Union to call off the meeting.

FOUR BURNED TO DEATH IN AN INTERURBAN CAR

Detroit, Dec. 3—Four persons were burned to death here tonight when an interurban car en route to Toledo and Cleveland crashed into a truck loaded with turpentine at Wyandotte a suburb. The dead were so badly burned that identification was impossible.

The more than a score of injured were taken from this burning wreckage.

Do Your Friends Say These Things About You?

No confidence in himself.
He has lost his grip.
He is getting old.
He is all in.
He is timid.
He is dull headed.
He has no ambition.
Notice how nervous he is.

Ambition? What a mighty word—for despite what people may tell you—ambition means success — without it you are doomed to a commonplace existence.

For Ambition—an honest ambition—brings confidence, stamina, keeness of mind, nerve force and power.

You may be weak in body; dull in mind; backward in action; but if you still have enough energy to beat yourself today and follow this advice you can in 21 days restore Confidence in yourself, take on strength, have more power and endurance and best of all—ambition.

If you lack ambition; there's a reason—something is wrong with your body or mind—perhaps with both.

But don't lose your courage. Get today to Lee & Osgood Co., or any good druggist and for $1.00 get a package of 72 Lifetone Tablets, take 3 a day as directed for 21 days and then if you don't have more endurance, strength, energy, nerve force and are not chock full of Ambition get your money back.

Weak, nervous, underweight, backward men and women need Lifetone Tablets. They bring to you a feeling of sureness and confidence—they make you look, feel and act younger.

Why Suffer From Bronchial Asthma?

Simple Home Treatment Makes Breathing Easy

Just because you start the day tired, lifeless, worn-out from loss of rest and the difficult breathing of miserable Asthma—do not think you have to stay this way long.

Be strong and well, breathe clearly and easily again by using this simple treatment known as Oxidase, the prescription of a Worcester, Mass., physician.

For any form of Asthma where the bronchial tubes are irritated, the breathing short and difficult, its healing, relieving action is really wonderful. Sufferers who can't breathe at night and who gasp for a good, clear breath will appreciate the relief and comfort Oxidase gives.

Oxidase is a tablet made from essential oils which, when the patient dissolves in the mouth, almost immediately soothes the irritation, clears out the choked up air passages and enables the sufferer to breathe easily and get a real comfortable night's sleep.

It is sold by leading druggists, including Lee & Osgood, who agree to refund the full purchase price of the first package to any sufferer who does not obtain satisfactory relief. Asthmatic sufferers should give Oxidase a trial. It is harmless and inexpensive.

WESTERLY

The annual meeting of the Westerly Fire district was called to order in the Westerly town hall on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock by Carl E. Burdick, elected clerk at the meeting held on Dec. 5, 1923, who stated that a vacancy existed in the office of moderator as the death of Moderator Eugene B. Pendleton occurred July 24th and nominations were in order for that office.

Treasurer and Collector Everett E. Whipple read his annual report showing total receipts of $28,504.94 from use of fire apparatus outside the fire district, $145; from notes at bank, $15,000; from taxes, $12,306.13; from interest on taxes, $53.01, and from interest on bank balances $4.97. Balance on hand from last year $990.78. Expenditures for salaries, supplies, repairs, equipment and miscellaneous items amounted to $28,014.50, the cash on hand being $490.44. The net debt Nov. 30, 1923, was $8,509.22 and the net debt Nov. 30, 1924, was $6,-000.56, showing a decrease during the year of $3,493.66. The report was voted approved and placed on file.

The report of the board of engineers was read by Second Assistant Engineer Geo— A. McKenzie and it was received, approved, placed on file and recommendations adopted.

A summary of the report of the board of engineers follows: Total fires for year, 53; regular alarms, 29; still alarms, 9; false alarms, 4; out of district, 11. Total loss by fire in district $13,475.

The board reported the fire cisterns to be in good condition and that there was on hand 1,500 feet of good hose and 1,500 feet of hose in fair condition; that the apparatus was in good condition and that two steamers are stored in the old pumping station.

The membership reported was as follows: Board of engineers, 3 men; Rhode Island Ones, 37 men; Alert Hook and Ladder, 37 men; Cyclone Engine, 37 men; fire police, 12 men.

The board's recommendations were as follows: salaries and appropriations: Chief engineer, $600; assistant engineers, $200 each; treasurer and collector, $150; R. I. Ones, $400; Alert Hook & Ladder Co., $400; Cyclone Engine Co., $400; fire police, $150.

The report was submitted by George E. Egger, chief; George A. McAuslr, first assistant, and Columbus Pasetti, second assistant.

Collector Everett Whipple moved that the same vote as last year ordering a tax of 15 cents on each $100 be passed, but Everett Kingsley offered the following: "Moved that the matter of assessing a tax be continued to a future meeting of this district to be held on the second Wednesday of February 1925 at 8 p. m." and it was so voted.

Samuel H. Dunn moved that the treasurer be authorized and it was so voted to raise such sums of money as it may be necessary.

A report of the board of tax assessors as to the advisability of extending the boundaries of the district was not ready and Assessor Crandall was the only member present at the meeting.

The resignation of John Lynch on Dec. 7, 1923, was voted accepted as first assistant engineer and a vote passed to proceed with the election of his successor.

Fire Chief George E. Egger presented a petition from residents of Central Park, East avenue, High street to Burdick homestead, Franklin street, Beach street, and also reported that the Bradford district was desirous of entering the Westerly fire district. A considerable discussion concerning a general revision of the district charter was indulged in by Everett Kingsley, Samuel H. Davis, Chief Egger and then John Dunn moved and it was voted: "That a committee of three be appointed to draft amendments to the charter to provide for the enlarging of the district of the area mentioned in the petition filed by Chief Egger and to draft such other amendments as may be necessary." Richard J. Rooney asked what the increase in tax would be, saying that company members were involved in the scheme which Attorney Dunn said was not so.

A bond of $5,000 for the collector and treasurer was voted for the ensuing year.

R. J. Bugler was elected auditor to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Eugene B. Pendleton.

Charles J. Butler presented the following vote which was passed: "That the members of the general assembly from Westerly be requested to use their good offices to secure such legislation as is necessary to enlarge the bounds of the Westerly fire district as voted at the annual meeting of the district held Dec. 3 1924, and also such other amendments as pass at this meeting."

To fill the vacancy of First Engineer Everett Kingsley the name of Moses Payne Jr. and John Dunn nominated Robert Boner. A paper ballot was ordered, the tellers being Maurice Laing and John Dunn. Moderator Stanton read the requirements for voting and voting proceeded with a check list which resulted in 104 votes being cast of which Payne received 45 and Boner 58 and he was declared elected.

The meeting voted to adjourn until February 11. There was an attendance of 200 at the meeting.

Beauty

A Gleamy Mass of Hair

35c "Danderine" does Wonders for Any Girl's Hair

Girls! Try this! When combing and dressing your hair, just moisten your hair-brush with a little "Danderine" and brush it through your hair. The effect is startling! You can do your hair up immediately and it will appear twice as thick and heavy—a mass of gleamy hair, sparkling with life and possessing that incomparable softness, freshness and luxuriance.

While beautifying the hair "Danderine" is also toning and stimulating each single hair to grow thick, long and strong. Hair stops falling out and dandruff disappears. Get a bottle of "Danderine" at any drug or toilet counter and just see how healthy and youthful your hair becomes.

PROTEST BY CHINESE DELEGATION AT GENEVA

Geneva, Dec. 3—(By the A. P.)—Charging that China had been badly treated by the powers, especially by their inaction, Alfred Sze, head of the Chinese delegation, at another lively session of the international opium conference today, failed in his attempt to keep on the conference agenda the problem of extra territoriality in its relation to narcotic drugs.

Although the delegates decided the conference was incompetent to discuss Mr. Sze's proposal, they appointed a special commission which will sit semi-officially and judge whether the Chinese measure can be added to the proposed Geneva opium convention in the form of an annex.

Mr. Sze maintained that China was being flooded from abroad with narcotic drugs like morphine and cocaine. He accused the powers of not passing adequate laws which would operate in the Chinese district which still have the regime of extraterritoriality.

Speaking for the United States, Stephen G. Porter, head of the American delegation, said that his country would be happy to comply with China's desire and examine the situation, he added, however, that congress had not yet had time to consider the question.

The conference today gave preliminary approval to a draft convention containing fifteen clauses and including one that embodies the agreement recently reached by Great Britain and Japan on Japan's freedom to import opium.

Under this agreement Japan gets the right to transship opium at far eastern territories providing the Japanese government issues import certificates which will afford sufficient guarantee against possibility of the illegitimate use of the drug transshipped. The preamble of the convention emphasizes that the increase in Opium smuggling is greatly hampering the suppression of opium smoking in the far east.

The convention stipulates that opium shall be a state monopoly and the right to sell the narcotic shall not be leased to private individuals.

It is generally admitted, however, that the convention fails to provide anything effective for the eventual suppression of opium smoking, which was the main object for which the first conference was convoked. This lapse affects the main international opium conference at which the head of the United States delegation, Stephen G. Porter, had given notice that unless the first conference provided an effective system for suppression, he would bring up the question at the main conference.

An animated discussion took place on the protocol attached to the convention which leaves to the contracting powers the duty of selecting the most propitious moment for inaugurating the system of the registration and rationing of all opium smokers. China had been fighting for obligatory resignation as one of the most effective means of suppressing smoking, but was unsuccessful.

Mr. Sugimura, head of the Japanese delegation, accepted the protocol after some modifications had been made, but declared "instead of a fine chicken we have hatched a wild duck which has taken to water."

Another meeting of the first conference will be held at some future date not yet fixed.

VEGETABLE GROWERS IN SESSION IN HARTFORD

Hartford, Dec. 3—With a number of speakers of note to address them at their two days session, vegetable growers from all over Connecticut gathered here today for the annual convention of the Connecticut Vegetable Growers' Association. A program of discussions of various problems confronting the vegetable growers is arranged, with a banquet at the Hotel Garde this evening as one of the feature attractions. H. F. Thompson, of Attleboro, Mass., junior vice-president of the National Association of Vegetable Growers is among those to address the convention today, with a message from the national body as to what it will expect from Connecticut at the next annual meeting of the National Association. "Intensive vegetable growing" was the first subject taken up, for round table discussion led by A. E. Wilkinson, vegetable specialist at the Connecticut Agricultural College.

A politician's idea of a public need is something that will enable him to feed at the public trough.

PLAN FOR COMMUTERS' RELIEF TO BE SUBMITTED

New Rochelle, N. Y., Dec. 3.—Features of a plan for commuters' relief in Westchester county were revealed today by John G. Agar, member of the Westchester County Transit Commission, who said that the proposition, entailing an expense approximating $500,-000,000, would be presented to the commission at its meeting December 11th.

In brief, the plan is to converge at 149th street on the East Side or 138th street on the West Side the five railroads which drain Westchester county and to route the combined traffic through subways on Third or Eleventh avenues to city hall or the Battery.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

RAILS FEATURED MARKET

New York, Dec. 1.—Stock prices surged upward today under the leadership of the railroad shares, which were heavily bought following publication of President Coolidge's message to congress recommending legislation to expedite rail consolidation. More than seventy issues, 16 of them rails were lifted to new peak prices for the year on total sales than ran above two million shares for the fourteenth time since election day.

Other constructive developments which had an important bearing on price movements included a forecast of an increase of at least 300,000 tons in the unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation, scattering price advances for steel and copper products and publication of several unusually favorable earnings statements.

Inauguration of dividends on the common stock of the St. Louis-San Francisco at the annual rate of $5, which was announced after the close, fulfilled another Wall Street prophesy. The stock, which sold as low as 19 1-8 last April, closed today at 62, or 5-8 above yesterday's closing quotation. Among the issues to attain new maximum prices today were Pennsylvania, Atlantic Coast Line, Atchison, Baltimore and Ohio, Erie first and second preferred, Southern Railway and the Wabash and Gulf, Mobile and Northern issues. Texas and Pacific was one of the individual features, rising nearly three points to 46 7-8, the highest price since 1920.

Heavy profit taking took place in the pivotal industrials just before the close, United States Steel common and American Can closing fractionally lower while Baldwin sold off about a point from the top.

Activity and strength of the Pan-American issues was one of the outstanding features of the session, the "B" stock showing an extreme gain of two points on the announcement that the company had renewed its contract for the sale of marine fuel oil for delivery in 1925 with the big trans-Atlantic steamship companies at $1.80 a barrel as compared with $1.40 a year ago. More than ten million barrels are involved. Pure Oil was another outstanding strong spot, touching a new high at 29 1-4.

Some of the large industrial gains were United States Realty common and preferred, Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit, Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlanta, General Cigar, Kelsey Wheel, Iron Products preferred, Kinney and Company, Pierce Arrow prior preferred, Pittsburgh and West Virginia and United States Distributing preferred, all of which closed 3 to 7 points higher on the day.

Strength of H. R. Mallinson, which touched a new top at 39, reflected the market improvement in the silk business. Jordan Motors continued to respond to reports of record-breaking earnings by advancing more than three points to another top at 48. Douglas-Pectin moved up more than two points to 18, also a new maximum, on reports of heavily increased sales.

Revival of speculative interests in the copper shares sent Cerro De Pasco, Utah and Chino to new high prices. Good buying also was noted in the amusement company stocks, Famous players common and preferred, Loew's, Inc., and Metro-Goldwyn preferred all selling at the year's best prices.

Call money opened at 3 1-2 per cent. but relaxed to three during the afternoon, closing at that figure. Time money and commercial paper rates held firm.

Establishment of new high records for the year by demand sterling, Swiss francs, Swedish kroner and Dutch guilders was the feature of the foreign exchange market. Demand sterling climbed more than 1 1-2 cents to $4.66 3-8, Swiss francs sold at 19.34 cents, Swedish kroner at 26.93 cents and Dutch guilders at 40.41 cents. French francs were active around 5 1-2 cents.

BOND MARKET

New York, Dec. 3.—Railroad, industrial and public utility bonds rallied smartly today in response to favorable developments affecting these companies, while U. S. government issues reacted sharply on the announcement of a $200,000,000 long term loan by the terasury. Sales expanded to more than $21,000,000.

The initial response to the treasruy's financing indicated that the issue would be over-subscribed. Many cash subscriptions were received here and bond dealers prepared for a rush in exchanging the third Liberty 4 1-4's and other government certificates for the new obligations. The impending offering of the 4 per cent. bonds at par, however, caused heavy selling of present issues, which at current prices have been yielding less than 4 per cent. The treasury 4 1-4's broke more than half a point but later recorded a part of this loss. The declines in Libertys were less pronounced.

The favorable construction placed on President Coolidge's recommendations regarding rail legislation in his message to congress contributed to the strength of railroad bonds as well as of stocks.

Prices of both investment and semi-speculative issues forged ahead, although some of the low-priced liens failed to maintain their full gains until the close. St. Paul, New Haven, Frisco, Peoria & Eastern and Hudson and Manhattan bonds were conspicuously active.

Prospects of improving trade were reflected in the advances of various industrial issues, including U. S. Rubber 5's, Magma Copper 6's, Rogers-Brown 7's and Pierce-Arrow 8's which moved up one to two points, some to new 1924 top prices.

Bonds of the local transit companies, stimulated by the state investigation of the transit situation, extended their recent gains, with New York railways and Interborough issues leading the advance.

The International Power securities corporation which recently made an initial investment in Italian public utilities, announced today that it would aid in financing the Union D'Electricite of Paris. A $4,000,000 issue of 6 1-2 per cent. collateral trust bonds will be hold at 93 3-4 to yield about 7 per cent.

CURB MARKET

New York, Dec. 3.—Constructive forces were at work in today's curb market with the result that the general list pointed to higher ground on an increased volume of trading.

Oil shares stiffened on reports that 1925 contracts for fuel oil were being made at substantial increases over the rates prevailing this year, net gain of a point or more being recorded by Prairie Oil and Gas (old and new stocks), Red Bank, and a few inactive shares, most of the popular issues improving fractionally.

Heavy trading took place in the new "Nickel Plate" issues, the common showing an extreme gain of more than 3 points at 84 and the preferred selling as high as 87 3-4. Denver and Rio Grande climbed more than two points to 40 3-4.

Radio shares moved within narrow and irregular limits. Sleeper Radio, 50,000 shares of which were recently sold to the public will be traded in for the first time tomorrow.

Lehigh Valley Coal certificates were the most active feature of the industrial list, closing about a point higher at 41 7-8. Childs Company (new stock) advanced a point. Baking issues were slightly reactionary.

Public utilities were mixed, Commonwealth 1 1-2 points to 106 1-2, while American Gas & Electric closed a point lower at 1[illegible] 1-2 after selling three points above that figure.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Dec. 3.—Influenced by prospective sudden falling off in the movement of spring wheat northwest and by notable strength in the corn market, all grain scored an advance today. Wheat closed unsettled 3-8 to 2 3-8c net higher, May 1.61 to 1.61 1-8 and July 1.41 7-8 to 1.42, with corn 1 1-4 to 8c up, oats showing 1 to 2c gain and provisions varying from unchanged figures to a raise of 42 cents.

According to reports which were current, arrivals of spring wheat both south and north of the Canadian boundary were expected to decrease to a great extent within the next ten days. Messages at hand said many Canadian elevators were scheduled to close, that, broadly speaking, the Canadian crop had already been marketed, and the last ocean bound ships of the season had left Montreal.

Brisk upturns in the price of corn were due largely to damage reports from Argentina, the outcome of frost and drought. Besides there were predictions of stormy weather west of Chicago. Eastern interests were said to have bought rather freely. Houses with eastern connections were also reported to have been buyers of oats.

Provisions advanced notwithstanding heavy receipts of hogs.

STUYVESANT NOT SLAYER OF NEW BRITAIN POLICEMAN

New York, Dec. 3.—George Stuyvesant, of Troy, held without bail for two weeks as a fugitive from New Britain, Conn., where he was said to be wanted for the killing of Patrolman James Skel[illegible] was discharged in Tombs court today. Assistant District Attorney McKenna told Magistrate Brodsky that Chief of Police Hart of New Britain had informed the New York authorities he was satisfied Stuyvesant was not the man wanted.

Stuyvesant, who has contended that he was in Troy on the night of October 13, the date of the murder, was rearrested by a headquarters detective on a warrant charging him with violating a parole from Sing Sing.

TURKEY ACCEPTS PROPOSAL OF THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Geneva, Dec. 3—(By the A. P.)—Turkey today notified the league of nations that she accepts the proposal that the world court of justice be asked to interpret the Lausanne convention for the compulsory exchange of Grecian-Turkish populations.

Whether some hundreds of Greek residents in Constantinople may remain there to be deported to Greece depends on the meaning the world court gives to the word "established," for the convention says that all the Greeks established in Constantinople before the armistice have the right to stay there.

EIGHT BODIES WASHED ASHORE FROM WRECK

La Rochelle, France, Dec. 3—Eight bodies were washed ashore today from the wreck of the Finnish freighter, Port Caledonia, which ran ashore on the reefs outside of here yesterday morning. Hope for the rescue of the crew of twenty seven, which had taken refuge in the rigging when the vessel broke in two, was abandoned.

The Port Caledonia had been 117 days at sea, coming from Chile. Rescuing boats answered her call of distress but the high sea prevented approach close enough to throw a line to the imperilled men.

Reversal of the action by which congress approved the child labor movement at its last session was proposed in a resolution by Senator Dial, democrat, South Carolina.

NEW ISSUE

200,000 shares Class "A"
66,666 shares Common

The Symington Company

CAPITALIZATION

	To be outstanding
Funded debt	None
Class "A" shares (no par value)	200,000 shares
Common (no par value)	300,000 shares

Class "A" shares are entitled to $2 cumulative dividends accruing from date of issue payable January, April, July and October 1 and are callable at $32.50 a share on 30 days' notice.

We summarize from the letter of Mr. Charles J. Symington, the President of the Company, as follows:

MANAGEMENT

The Symington Company organized under Maryland laws succeeds to the railway equipment business started by the Symington family 53 years ago. The management continues under direction of Mr. Charles J. Symington, President, who has been in active charge of the company for the past seven years.

PLANT

The plant, located at Rochester, N. Y., normally employs 1000 men and is one of the largest and best equipped malleable iron foundries in the country.

PRODUCT

The company manufactures standard railway equipment, including journal boxes, draft gear attachments, center bearings, side bearings and miscellaneous devices for cars and locomotives, and also malleable iron castings for railway equipment and other purposes. The company is best known as the manufacturer of the Farlow draft gear attachment with which 26% of the 2,500,000 cars now in operation are equipped. Of the cars ordered in 1923, over 56% were so equipped, while in 1924 this percentage is in excess of 68%.

EARNINGS

Net earnings as shown by the books of the predecessor company adjusted by Ernst & Ernst to show the elimination of all items not applicable to the new company, are as follows:

Year	Net after taxes at present rate	Per Share Class "A"
1924 (2 months estimated)	$ 923,161	$4.61
1923	1,154,950	5.77
1922	854,350	4.27
Average
4 years and 10 months	620,266	3.10
8 years and 10 months	518,331	2.59
13 years and 10 months	415,782	2.08

On the basis of the capitalization of the new company, 1924 earnings, after allowance for dividends on Class "A" shares, would leave about $1.75 per share on the common shares.

ASSETS

Balance sheet of November 1 as shown by the predecessor company's books adjusted to the provisions of the purchase contract and subject to audit now being carried on by Messrs. Ernst & Ernst, shows net tangible assets of $4,250,000 or $21.25 a share for the Class "A" shares including $7.50 a share of net quick assets. All patents, goodwill, and other intangible items are carried on the books at $1.00.

All offerings are made "when, as and if issued and received by us," and subject to approval of counsel.

It is expected that application will be made to list these shares on the New York, Boston, and Baltimore Stock Exchanges

A COMPLETE DESCRIPTIVE CIRCULAR WILL BE MAILED ON REQUEST

THOUSANDS HAVE KIDNEY TROUBLE AND NEVER SUSPECT IT

APPLICANTS FOR INSURANCE OFTEN REJECTED

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview of the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.

BUOYANT MARKET CAUSED BY PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

New York, Dec. 3.—President Coolidge's message to congress urging economy in government expenditures and the expedition of railroad consolidations was the signal for another outburst of bullish enthusiasm in the stock market, 73 issues being boosted to new high prices for the year on total sales that ran above the two million share mark for the fourteenth time since election day. The general average of leading railroad stocks was carried to the highest level in several years with the industrials showing a substantial gain on the day despite the heavy profit taking in some of the popular issues.

Sixteen rails bettered their previous high prices, the list including Atchison, Atlantic Coast Line, Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio, Southern Railway; Erie first and second preferred, Wabash preferred A and B, Texas & Pacific, Gulf, Mobile & Northern common and preferred and Kansas City Southern preferred. The extreme gains in this group ran from 1 to 3 1-2 points. Additional evidence of the prosperity that the roads have enjoyed this year and the prospects for the future was furnished after the market closed by the directors of the St. Louis-San Francisco railroad, who inaugurated dividends on the common stock at the rate of $6 annually, and declared the full year's dividends on the preferred for 1925.

Brokers are almost unanimous in reporting that public interest in the market is the greatest in years. Failure of any sharp reactions to develop is generally attributed to the unusually heavy buying orders placed on the "scale down," this demand apparently taking care of all the short selling and profit taking to date. Bear traders have been heavy sellers of stocks in which spirited advances have occurred on that territory that they may be purchased cheaper later, but they have failed to attract a following among the smaller operators.

Among the many issues to sell at new peak prices today were High and Chino Coppers, Jordan Motors, Famous Players, common and preferred, H. R. Mallinson, Douglas Pectin, Pure Oil, Mathieson Alkali common and preferred, American Tobacco B and the new stock, Ligrett & Myers B, Air Reduction, Hudson & Manhattan Transit and G. R. Kinney.

Texas & Pacific Land Trust, selling for the first time in weeks, jumped 20 points to 300. U. S. Realty common and preferred continued their sensational gains, each closing more than six points higher on the day, a net gain of about 35 points in the last two weeks. Net gains of 3 to 7 points also were recorded by General Cigar, Iron Products preferred, Kelsey Wheel, Pierce-Arrow prior preferred and U. S. Distributing common and preferred.

U. S. DISTRICT ATTORNEY REMOVED FROM OFFICE

Boston Dec. 3—United States District Attorney Robert O. Harris was removed from office today by President Coolidge, Assistant United States Attorney General Sylvester Rowe, who arrived from Washington today, with a letter from the president, it which Mr. Harris was notified of the decision.

District Attorney Harris' early retirement had been indicated at Washington as a sequel to criticism which re recently directed at certain officials of the department of justice.

It had been reported in Boston that a change in the administration of the department of justice here was imminent with Attorney General Stone

TAFTVILLE

A good old fashioned minstrel show was the entertainment for the second and closing night of the annual fair and bazaar of the Taftville Congregational church Wednesday evening. The unusually large crowd of Tuesday night was duplicated and the signs for standing room only were out early. The booths, seven in number, continued their brisk selling and some reported sold out early in the evening. There is no doubt but what the fair this year will be one of the most successful ever given by the church. The fancy and needlework booth was in charge of Mrs. Clarence J. Nagle, chairman, Mrs. A. E. Pingree, Mrs. Charles R. Adams, Mrs. John D. Sharbles and Mrs. E. Tracy Clark. Mrs. Everett M. Pingree sold Christmas cards at this booth. The home cooking booth was in charge of Mrs. Adam Leopold, Mrs. George Helmboldt, Mrs. Eugene N. Monty, Mrs. James Edwards and Mrs. Walter Barritt.

The O. J. S. Girls, representing the church school, sold home made candy, for which there was a big demand, and the A-o-wa-ki-ya Camp Fire Girls had charge of the ice cream booth. Members of Troop 3, Boy Scouts, took care of the grab bag near the main entrance and the quick lunch counter at the opposite side of the hall.

The minstrel began promptly at 8 o'clock and the audience was treated to one of the finest blackface and musical combinations that has been seen in the town. The jokes were clean and clever, the crossfire between the end men brought howls of delight from those present, and the singing was everything that could be desired. Archibald Torrance, Jr., served as interlocutor and he was ably supported by the four end men, Thomas Parsons, Oscar Mathewson, Jr., Victor H. Davis and John Thoma. The soloists were accompanied on the piano by Miss Dorothy Campbell.

The musical program follows: Opening chorus, Bringing Home the Bacon and Carolina Mammy, entire company; At the End of the Rainbow, Miss Mildred C. Kloss; Kashimira, Archibald Torrance, Jr.; Memory Lane, William Mitchell; selections by the Hollywood Four, composed of Lou Gagnon, George W. Weller, Jr., William O'Brien and Frederick Erlbeck; Smile Through Your Tears, Thomas Grimshaw; Go 'Long, Mule, Oscar Mathewson, Jr., and Thomas Parsons; I'll Take You Home Again, Kathleen, Miss Flossie M. Meyer and Archibald Torrance, Jr.; Laddie, Miss Mary Taggart; It's Not What You Were Yesterday, Peter Devito; You're in Love With Everyone, Miss Nancy Brown; Nightingale, Miss Dorothy Wood; You Can't Fool an Old Horsefly, John Thoma; closing chorus, Where the Lazy Daisies Grow, entire company.

Those taking part in the minstrel were Miss Sadie Newton, Miss Mary Taggart, Miss Dorothy Wood, Miss Bertha Monty, Miss Elsie Heap, Miss Flossie M. Meyer, Miss Nancy Brown, Miss Mildred C. Kloss, Lou Gagnon, George W. Weller, Jr., William O'Brien, Frederick Erlbeck, Archibald Torrance, Jr., John Thoma, Oscar Mathewson, Jr., Victor H. Davis, Thomas Parsons, William H. Whitehead, Peter Devito, William Mitchell, John Wohlleben, Fred Knowles and Thomas Grimshaw.

Local people learned with regret of the death of Mrs. Gavin Wilson in Hartford. Mrs. Wilson for many years resided on North B street in Taftville, when her husband was employed as overseer of the cloth department of the Ponemah mills. For the past several years she has made her home in Hartford. She is survived by her husband, her son, Robert F. Wilson, who married Miss Jessie Bengman, formerly of Occum, and a grandson, Robert F. Wilson, Jr.

COUNTY AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY REPORTED SUCCESSFUL YEAR

Reports of a successful year for the New London County Agricultural Society were made at the annual meeting held Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock in the city court room with an attendance of 46 members. Gate receipts were somewhat smaller than last year and the treasurer's report showed a balance on hand of $38.08. Vice President Simon Brewster presided at the meeting.

Secretary's Report

Secretary Edwin V. Ross gave his annual report as follows, with six important recommendations:

To the Life Members of the Society:

It would indeed be gratifying for your secretary to be able at this time to present you with glowing accounts of the closing year of the society's activity. It has been a busy season. It has been a season of achievement in some directions and repulses in others. The members of the executive committee, whom the directors have appointed, have been obliged to give unsparingly of their time and efforts. This was due first to the challenge of present day conditions and second to the need of a new secretary with the very natural limitations, a new undertaking imposed upon him. To arrive at their decisions the executive committee have met six times since the last annual meeting. In addition the board of directors have held one meeting. You will be interested in some of the directions your chosen representatives have made and the works they have done. The exposition hall at our fair grounds was painted on three sides to harmonize with the new grandstand and other buildings. This was one item that was sadly needed. The result was a much better appearance to our largest structure for exhibition purposes. Over 50 feet of the old wooden fence became so thoroughly rotted as to need immediate replacement. This replacement was made with the same wire mesh fencing as previously had been used along other boundaries and at cost not in excess of pre-war price. The platform used for vaudeville performances was in such condition as to make it unsafe for heavy preformances. It was rebuilt and extended to the south so that at present it more readily accommodates the grandstand patrons. As an incentive to those who owned valuable cattle to bring them to the annual fair the cow sheds were wired for electric lights. These achievements, important as they were secondary to the treatment given our list of premiums offered. Here the sub-committee on premiums did heroic work and their recommendations with few changes were accepted by the executive committee. This premium increase to a level of the progressive fairs in our vicinity had a very marked increase in the number and quality of our exhibits. We had the satisfaction of seeing the largest and most varied entry lists in many years and in most cases the greatest in the history of the society. Those who gave interest to this feature of our annual show were unanimous in their praise of the exhibition.

The farm machinery exhibit was adequate in numbers but no real contribution to this feature will ever be made until steps are taken to house the property brought to the grounds by the dealers. It should be kept in mind as we dwell for a moment upon equipment that our exposition hall is quite inadequate to house the exhibitions offered to us. This year we were obliged to turn away over 400 feet of running foot space because we have no more room in the building used for the purpose. The midway at the 70th annual fair was slightly smaller in number of concessionaires than in 1923 although the receipts from the department were almost equal to the former year. The secretary is pleased to report that this feature of the annual show was conducted with the same regard for the patrons of the fair as heretofore and the policing of the grounds by the state police was constant and alert. The receipts at the gate fell below last year and this item alone is sufficient to justify the treasurer's report. Expenses were less than in 1923 but so were receipts. In all but the matter of entry fees and premiums paid out, Labor day was the hottest day in the history of the local weather bureau and no doubt many decided to forego the fair on account of the heat. In conclusion may I remind you of the serious loss to the society through the death of the late President Elmer R. Pierson. His was a very unusual interest in all that pertained to the welfare of the society. His capacity for the office to which you had elected him was marked. His passing has placed a serious burden upon all of us. During the year also George Kahn, a member of the executive committee met an untimely end. He had been a large exhibitor for years and his going left a big place to be filled. In conclusion may I not call to your attention the most inspiring cooperation of the executive committee, the superintendents and the several others in supervisory capacities at the time of the fair. Every last one was on the job to make the 1924 effort as advertised, the best show in 70 years.

Recommendations

1—That the Society approve the offer made by the farm machinery dealers to finance the building of suitable quarters for their exhibits, the Society to give rentals free for a period long enough to reimburse the dealers.

2—That the hay ban be removed from its present location near the front entrance to a location near the stables.

3—That the building used for years as a dining hall be turned over to the flower exhibitors for a flower show giving us their old space in the big hall.

4—That the $15 life membership be discontinued.

5—That there should be some method of determining the extent of free entry for life members to the cattle department as is done in the horse and the poultry departments.

6—That the dates of our annual fair be so arranged as not to conflict with the state fair and the Elks' fair at Willimantic.

Report by Treasurer.

Treasurer Albert J. Bailey made the following report:

Total, $16,326.91.

Officers Elected.

Charles P. Bushnell of Norwich was elected president to succeed Elmer R. Pierson, whose death occurred a few days before the fair last September.

Three new directors were elected, these being President Bushnell, as ex-officio, W. A. Gordan, Uncasville; John Curry, Yantic, and Fred B. Aimes of Salem. The balance of the directors for last year were elected for another year. The only other change in the officers was in the auditors, Casper K. Bailey being elected to this position with Charles D. Greenman and Gilbert S. Raymond.

The officers for the coming year follow:

President, Charles P. Bushnell, of Norwich; vice presidents, Simon Brewster Griswold; Samuel E. Holdridge, Ledyard; George G. Avery, New London; Lyman L. Chapman, Norwich; Sidney A. Brown, New London; Elisha R. Waterman, Bozrah; secretary, Edwin V. Ross, Norwich; treasurer and speed secretary, Albert J. Bailey, Norwich; directors, Albert W. Lillibridge, Norwich; Griswold H. Morgan, Salem; Joseph A. Clark, Ledyard; Allison B. Ladd, Jr., Sprague; John D. Avery, North Stonington; Edward N. O'Brien, Montville; Clark Woodmansee, Preston; Dan D. Home, Montville; Edward A. Hoxie, Lebanon; Charles I. Beebe, Salem; Frank E. Fitch, Norwich; Charles D. Greenman, Norwich; Casper K. Bailey, Norwich; J. Laurence Raymond, Lyme; George G. Grant, Taftville; Walter C. Tanner, Voluntown; James E. Lathrop, Montville; Hiram W. Shriver, Groton; Gilbert S. Raymond, Norwich; W. A. Gordan, Uncasville; John Curry, Yantic; Fred B. Aimes, Salem; auditors, Casper K. Bailey, Norwich; Charles D. Greenman, Norwich; Gilbert S. Raymond, Norwich.

Upon motion of Carl W. Brown, Miss Hattie R. Clark was elected as assistant secretary of the society. This is a new office created in appreciation of her great assistance at the last fair.

Charles P. Bushnell, newly elected president, took the chair, expressing his appreciation for the honor conferred upon him in electing him as president of the society.

The meeting adjourned at 11.45 o'clock.

Grass and Chimney Fires.

A grass fire on the Laurel Hill road on land owned by Mrs. Celia W. [illegible] caused the fire department to be called out at 6.35 o'clock Wednesday morning. The blaze was quickly extinguished. Another call for a chimney fire in the garage at 84 Thames street, owned by Charles Yoselevsky, was received at 9.03 in the evening, one can of chemical being sufficient to extinguish the blaze.

A word to the wise may be sufficient, [illegible] we receive are written at great length.

RECOMMEND BOND ISSUE FOR STATE FORESTS

The directors of the Connecticut Forestry Association met recently in New Haven and decided to recommend to the state legislature that it issue bonds to the extent of $5,000,000 for the acquisition and development of an adequate system of state forests and parks, $3,000,000 of this sum being for parks and the rest for forests. It was reported at the meeting that the state of New York recently authorized a $15,000,000 bond issue for purchase of forest and park land, the general assembly of that state having submitted the issue to the people for action at the last election. Of particular interest to Connecticut is the action of Westchester County in New York which has authorized the expenditure of park projects to the extent of $6,900,000, to be paid for by county bond issues. One of their parks of particular interest to Connecticut is a shore park at Munursing Island in the town of Portchester, just over the Connecticut line, where they are developing a large beach park on the lines of the Hammonasset Beach State Park in Connecticut. Among the Connecticut Park and Forest Commissions projects of particular importance is the development of the shore park at Sherwood Island in Fairfield County. The town beaches in that county are becoming too small to meet the needs of the people of the county and are gradually being restricted to the townspeople themselves. The development of a large state shore park in this county will afford adequate outlets to the shore for people of the interior of Fairfield County as well as Litchfield County to the north. The Fairfield County Planning Association has been particularly active in advocating a shore park for Fairfield County.

Although the State Commission on Parks and Forests has not yet committed itself to asking for a bond issue in view of the backing of the Forestry Association, it may do so. The association has an active membership of 1,200 persons in the state, and has local organizations in each county. During the past year it has held several large forestry rallies. The one held at Pleasant Valley on October 4th, when the People's Forest was dedicated which was attended by 2,500 people showed the extent of public interest in its work. The location was four miles from the nearest State road. Last spring 400 people attended a field meeting at the Devil's Hop Yard in the rain, reaching there by dirt roads. During the past year, the Association has alone or in cooperation with local forestry associations added nearly 1500 acres to the public parks and forests of the state.

The annual meeting will be held in Hartford on January 31, 1925. Speakers of national repute will be on the program.

Alain C. White of Litchfield is the President of the Association and Colonel H. S. Graves, Provost of Yale University, is its vice president.

Fannie Parker Hall, who was the grandmother of Clara Hall Smith, wife of F. Russell Smith of this city, left a net estate of $1,066,769.80—$61,795.54 being in this state—when a resident of South Willington, Conn., she died on Nov. 13, 1923, according to a transfer tax state appraisal of her property, on file in New York in the surrogates' court.

Because of her failure to leave a will her three children, Elizabeth Hall Paige of Springfield, Mass., Rosa O. Hall and Ida Hall Jones, both of South Willington, Conn., receive each one-quarter. The remaining quarter goes equally between five grand children, Doris Hall McBee of Adams, Mass.; Gardiner H. Hall, Frances H. Hall, both of South Willington, Conn.; Clara Hall Smith, and Holman H. Hall, the latter being since deceased, Alice H. Hall of South Willington, his widow, being the administrator of his estate.

The gross value of the estate left by Mrs. Hall, amounted to $1,216,480.17. The expenses $149,710.37 as charged up against the gross value, are for the funeral, $1,870; attorneys $5,000; administration, $128,596.80 and debts $14,243.57.

FOREST FIRE SEASON NOW HAS PASSED

The dryest fall for many years resulted in many forest fires throughout the east. Preliminary reports from the state forester's office indicate, that Connecticut came off better than her neighbors. From October 28th, when the governor, acting on the advice of the state forester, closed the hunting season to November 17th, when it was reopened after a slight rain, 122 forest fires were reported. These burned over a total of 4,186 acres of woodland, averaging 34 acres per fire except for a few fires of several hundred acres most of them, however, were but an acre or two in extent. That Connecticut had no large fires of several thousand acres as had some of her neighbor states is a tribute to her fire wardens service which is entirely non-political, and not tied up to town or county boundary lines, each warden reporting direct to the state forester.

During the period of the ban on hunting 16 fires were reported as started by hunters—who evidently broke both game and forestry laws. The railway engines, however, were the chief cause of fires, being responsible for 28. Smokers started 21, brush burners 16, the remainder being due to miscellaneous causes or of unknown origin.

The good effect of the land-owners forest protective association; one in Hartford County and two in Fairfield County who co-operate with the State Forester in hiring special forest patrol men is shown by the small percentage of fires starting on patrolled areas.

ROTARIANS HEAR TALK FROM TELEGRAPH MAN

At the weekly luncheon of the Norwich Rotary club held Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel a very interesting talk on How We Can Conserve Our Time was given by J. C. Hale of the Western Union Telegraph Company. Mr. Hale in his talk showed that by adopting a business schedule we can so regulate our businesses and lives that we can make every minute, hour and day count for more than it does on a haphazard schedule. Mr. Hale also recommended the more consistent use of the telegraph as a means of speeding up business and saving time. At the conclusion of his talk he was given a rising vote of appreciation.

At the business session President Hugh B. Campbell presided and F. Russell Smith was the song-leader. There were the usual group selections and chorus singing.

F. Russell Smith reported on the Brown Glee club entertainment and the club voted to sponsor this club in a concert sometime after the first of the year, the date to be set by the directors.

Lewis M. Carpenter was the five-minute speaker on Current Topics, taking for his subject Tong Warfare. In a very comprehensive manner Mr. Carpenter explained the origin of the Tong, its working and the motives that are behind this warfare.

Joseph C. Worth was selected to read a poem, Give Me Flowers Now. There's No Fun in a Graveyard. The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

INCREASES FOR PUTNAM AND MYSTIC BUILDINGS

Four Connecticut building projects are included in the Fletcher bill introduced in the senate at Washington, Wednesday to increase allowances for buildings already authorized by $15,000,000 and to authorize new structures estimated to cost $23,500,000.

At Branford, where $45,000 has been allowed for a site and building, the bill proposes an increase in the maximum cost of $75,000.

At Putnam, where $65,000 expenditure has been authorized for a site and building, the measure would increase the allowance $50,000.

At Mystic $85,000 has been allowed for a building and the Fletcher bill proposes to increase this $50,00.

FEDERAL COURTS TOTTERING UNDER INCREASED BURDEN

Attorney General Stone in his Annual Report Tells of Difficulty in Keeping Pace With the Growth of Federal Court Business—Declares That Prohibition Legislation and "Diverse and Complex Tax Laws" Have Added Greatly to the Task—The Courts Disposed of 46,609 Liquor and Tax Law Cases Last Year—Work Calls For Larger Personnel, With Increase in Salaries.

Washington, Dec. 4.—The department of justice daily is finding its task more difficult in keeping pace with the growth of the federal business it must transact and there is urgent need for remedial legislation applicable to various phases of law enforcement, Attorney General Stone declared in his annual report submitted today to congress.

Federal courts are "staggering under the load imposed on them by prohibition legislation," the report stated, and added that "diverse and complex tax laws" also have increased greatly the burden which the courts must bear. The situation necessarily affects the offices of United States attorneys and there is need, the attorney general said, not only for a greater personnel in those offices but in the salaries paid to them.

While there was a small decrease as compared with the previous year in the number of liquor cases taken into court, the decrease was termed inconsequential, and it is said had not been felt in the work of those charges with enforcement. The courts disposed of 46,609 liquor and tax law cases in the year ending last June 30, an increase over the previous year of nearly 4,000, it was stated, and the aggregate amount of fines and forfeitures resulting from these cases was $7,347,000, almost $2,000,000 greater than the previous year.

The attorney general advocated greater use of the jail sentence as a "real deterrent" for violators of the prohibition laws, basing his remarks on a discussion of enforcement by Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general in charge of prohibition and taxation, which was included in the report.

"While the added fines are encouraging as indicating a heavier money punishment, which helps to make the illicit traffic less profitable," Mrs. Willebrandt said, "the real deterrent to this class of violators is the jail sentence. In that respect a great advance has been made, the average jail sentence jumping from 21 to 34 days.

"The penalties for violation of the prohibition laws at best are not severe for first offenses, particularly when compared with the penal features of the old internal revenue laws which were enacted to compel observance of the liquor taxing laws. To meet this situation, the department has been invoking, in such cases as the facts warrant, the use of internal revenue, customs and tariff laws."

In the division handling anti-trust laws, the department has been engaged in the last year in working mainly toward the solution of two major problems, the report said. One of them has to do with selection of cases for prosecution involving organization of trade associations, and in these it has been found that most of the trade associations are entirely legal and of great value to their members, although others have been found to be in the "twilight zone," while a third group has been found to be entirely outside the law. Final determination of legal points involved in these cases will clarify the law for all, the attorney general believed.

The second problem involves application of the anti-trust laws to restraint of trade and monopolies based upon the acquisition and pooling of patents. The effort in this phase of the work also has been to obtain cases that will clarify the law and remove doubt.

Mr. Stone renewed recommendations made by previous attorneys general for enactment or amendment of many laws to simplify enforcement. He favored this for the reason that many of them vet are subject to judicial construction, and until that is done neither the public nor the department can know definitely the meaning.

There should be statutes, the report declared, making it a crime for a single individual to attempt to commit any crime against the government. He asked for explicit legal authority for the presence of stenographers in grand jury rooms and for amendment to the bankruptcy laws making it a crime to conceal assets involved in bankruptcy proceedings. He also said there should be a federal statute to deal with the crime fo assaulting or killing a federal officer and another extending punishment to the sending of letters threatening bodily harm through the United States mails.

ENGLAND CALLS "HANDS OFF" ON THE EGYPTIAN PROBLEM

Geneva, Dec. 4 (By the A. P.)—Flashing suddenly into prominence again, the Geneva protocol for the pacific settlement of international disputes was made the subject today of two governmental communications to the League of Nations—one from Great Britain concerning Egypt, and the other from the United States.

The note from Great Britain is regarded in Geneva as a polite but stern reminder to Egypt and the powers generally that England wants the "hands off" slogan to be applied to the Egyptian problem.

The note from the United States was merely a courteous acknowledgment of Washington's receipt of a codified copy of the protocol and of the fact that states not members of the league may sign it. However, while the League of Nations officials are hoping to have later some detailed expression of Washington's views on the protocol itself, they seem content that the United States, in continuing her collaboration with the league, has promptly taken notice of the protocol's arrival.

Coming virtually on the eve of the session of the league council which opens Monday in Rome, Great Britain's note on Egypt has created extraordinary interest. Like the United States, Egypt, as a non-member state, has officially received a copy of the protocol. Briefly, England has told the league that if Egypt signs the protocol, Egypt does not thereby, in the view of England, acquire any right to invoke league intervention on those matters which were expressly reserved by England when the British protectorate over Egypt was terminated.

With the receipt of the British note there is the greatest speculation in Geneva as to whether any power represented in the council will open the Egyptian question.

One of the chief features of the note to the league is a passage from Great Britain's notification to the powers when Egypt's independence was proclaimed. This extract emphasized the special relations between Great Britain and Egypt, long recognized by other countries. The extract insisted that these relations concerned matters vitally involving the rights and interests of the British empire and affirmed that interference in the affairs of Egypt by any other power would be regarded by England as "an unfriendly act."

The British note to Geneva was dated on the very day that the sirdar was murdered. Officials here are of the opinion that the note was prepared before the assassination and that although it bears vitally on the assassination it was not formulated because of that crime

RAIN AND SLEET FOLLOWS BLIZZARD IN NEBRASKA

Omaha, Neb., Dec. 4.—A blizzard, the first of the season, which held Nebraska in its grip today, following a rain and sleet storm that swept the state from the west yesterday and continued until a late hour today, crippled telephone and telegraph communication, resulting in one death and considerable damage throughout the state.

Lincoln the state capitol and a number of south central and western Nebraska towns were virtually shut off from communication with other parts of the state. In Omaha traffic has been greatly impeded. Virtually all highway traffic is blocked.

PROCEEDINGS AT FORBES-THOMPSON CONSPIRACY CASE

Chicago, Dec. 4.—(By The A. P.)—Some of the Washington gossip associated with the Veterans' Bureau under the directorship of Colonel Charles R. Forbes, was drawn into the Forbes-Thompson conspiracy trial today when the name of Mrs. Carlyn Votaw, sister of the late President Harding, was mentioned by Elias H. Mortimer, chief government witness.

Mention of the gossip was ruled out by Judge George H. Carpenter.

In introducing a letter Mortimer identified as having received from John W. Thompson, defendant with Forbes, Mortimer was asked by government counsel to relate a conversation in Washington between himself, Forbes and Mortimer in which Mortimer said Forbes did not wish Mrs. Votaw to learn about a trip of inspection to the Pacific coast planned by Forbes, Mortimer and others. Mortimer replied that "Mr Votaw had threatened to throw Colonel Forbes out of a ten story window, when the justice shut off that statement and entered it stricken out.

There was extended argument about the relevancy of the letter. But after Judge Carpenter had read it, he said he saw no objections to it and it was read to the jury. In it, Mr. Thompson advised Mortimer to concoct a story of Mortimer's western trip which would include a visit to his father in Minneapolis, and to say nothing about having accompanied Forbes.

Thompson's counsel said his only objection to the letter was that it would "drag in scandall," while Forbes' counsel added that the "scandall" was the only purpose of introducing the letter, and objected to it as of no importance.

In closing the incident, John W. H. Crim, special assistant attorney general, asked Mortimer of Forbes' session in concealing the trip from Mrs. Votaw was due to her close standing with President Harding and her official position with the public health service. Mortimer said he supposed that was the reason.

The government then turned to the code adopted by the alleged conspirators on the Pacific coast trip, to be used in telegrams and letters in referring to each other and the sites chosen for veteran's bureau hospitals.

OBITUARY.

Edward W. Beardsley.

Hartford, Dec. 4.—Edward W. Beardsley, prominent insurance man and former fire commissioner of the city of Hartford, died suddenly this morning at Katonah, N. Y., less than three weeks after the death of his partner in the firm of Beardsley and Beardsley, insurance agents.

Mr. Beardsley has held the office of president of both the state and national agents' associations. He was president of the Connecticut Association of Local Fire Insurance Agents during 1902-3, and of the National Association in 1908-9. From 1902 until 1905 he was a member of the board of fire commissioners of the city.

He was married in 1889 to Ida M. Johnson, daughter of Carlvle Johnson, of Hartford. He leaves a wife, a daughter, Arline J. Beardsley, his mother, Mrs. Edward R. Beardsley, and a sister, Miss Grace R. Beardsley. He also leaves a twin brother, Eliot G. Beardsley, of Boston, state agent of the London Assurance corporation.

The funeral will be held at his home, No. 69 North Beacon..., tomorrow afternoon at 2:30.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Wireless Exhibition

Berlin, Dec. 4—President Ebert today opened the wireless exhibition here by sending a message to Honolulu. An acknowledgement of the message was received within six minutes.

Egyptian Affairs.

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 4.—Ziwar Pasha, the premier, today informed the president of the chamber of deputies that the government does not intend to advise Kind Faud to convoke parliament immediately. A petition signed by 113 deputies, requesting the convocation of the chamber, was presented to the king on Wednesday.

POLICE GUARD MEMBERS OF BRITISH CABINET

London, Dec. 4.—The British cabinet members have been placed under special police protection, according to the Daily Mail. This precaution has been taken because of information received from the headquarters of Viscount Alenby, British high commissioner in Egypt, that plot has been discovered to assassinate prominent members of the British government.

The home secretary attached so much importance to the information that he immediately ordered, according to the paper, certain of his cabinet colleagues to be guarded day and night by armed police in plain clothes.

There is every indication, the Daily Mail says, that the plot is the outcome of propaganda fomented by the wafd—the executive of the Egyptian nationalists' organization — whose emissaries are spread throughout Europe, including England.

The discovery has impressed the authorities with the necessity of increasing the police force of England, especially in London, which has been greatly reduced through the economizing reforms set up by the committee of which Sir Eric Geddes was the head. Recent disclosures regarding alien and communist activities in Great Britain have rendered such an increase imperative, adds the Mail, and Sir William Joynson-Hicks, the home secretary, is determined to add to the number.

Many mroe detectives than usual were present at Albert hall tonight to protect the prime minister and other members of the cabinet who attended the meeting there.

JURORS VISIT SCENE WHERE SCHNEIDER WAS MURDERED

New York, Dec. 4—The jury sitting at the second trial of Mrs. Anna Buzzi, charged with first degree murder in connection with the death of Frederick Schneider, wealthy contractor, late today inspected the spot where on February 26, 1923 Schneider's body was found huddled over the steering wheel of an automobile, two bullets in his head.

Guarded by eight court attendants, the jurors were driven over the route Mrs. Buzzi is alleged to have taken after the shooting, halting at the spot where the prosecution alleges the murder was committed.

Returning to Bronx supreme court after inspecting the automobile in which Schneider's body was found, the jurors questioned John Feulner, a farmer, who has previously testified that he saw a woman in a long black coat walking from the death car at 5 o'clock on the afternoon of the murder. Defense witnesses testified to seeing Schneider alive at 5:15 that afternoon.

Feulner admitted that he did not see the woman step out of the car.

Mrs. Buzzi collapsed for the third time today. She fell from her chair and lay unconscious on the floor for several minutes.

Mrs. Rose McGeehan, wife of the Bronx district attorney, whose office is prosecuting the case, testified for the defense that she conversed with Mrs. Buzzi, about 6 o'clock the evening of the murder.

Mrs. McGeehan said that Mrs. Buzzi showed no trace of mental distress or emotion.

COSTS $1.24 TO COLLECT $100 OF FEDERAL TAXES

Washington, Dec. 4.—The bureau of internal revenue spent $1.24 in collecting every $100 of federal taxes in the fiscal year 1924. Commissioner Blair shows in his annual report made public today, which gives the total of six collections for the year as $2,796,179,267. Collections for the fiscal year 1923 were $3,621,745,227, the cost of collection for that year being at the rate of $1.39 for each $100.

Substantial progress is being made, the report discloses, in the auditing of returns, despite the many cases which originated during the war still are pending. In the fiscal year ending last July 1, the bureau's auditors went over 2,329,191 returns, nearly twice the average number received.

Outstanding in the lists of sources of taxation, excluding income and profits, was the total paid under the levies on tobacco. For the fiscal year 1924, the tobacco collections were $325,638,931, a sum declared by the commissioner to have been greater than the total internal revenue collections from all sources for any year prior to 1918. The sum was 6 per cent greater than was collected from this source in the fiscal year 1923 and constituted almost 12 per cent of the government's internal revenue from all sources as compared with an average of about 9 per cent in the preceding two or three years.

RAILROADS TO FIGHT REDUCTION IN RATES

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 4—(By the A. P.—Fifty three railroads launched a fight against a reduction in express rates authorized under an order of the interstate commerce commission May 17 to become effective January 1 in a suit filed in United States district court here today against the federal government and the American Railway Express company.

Virtually all the railroads comprising the Western, Mountain, Pacific and Southern rate groups, which were segregated by a ruling of the interstate commerce commission July 9, 1921, under authority of the so-called interstate commerce act, are plaintiffs in the action.

MATTERS BEFORE FEDERAL COUNCIL OF CHURCHES

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 4 (By the A. P.)—American membership in the permanent court of international justice, congressional action "demanding complete outlawry of war" and prompt adoption of steps necessary for the "re-establishment of right relations with Japan" are among the "concrete tasks" before the Federal Council of Churches, it was disclosed tonight in the report of the commission of international justice and good will.

Mapping Out Bingham Senatorial Campaign

Senator Moses of New Hampshire to Head a Group of Experienced Campaigners.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Washington, Dec. 4.—Senator Moses of New Humpshire, chairman of the senatorial election committee, left here last night to open up the active campaign in Connecticut for the election of Bingham to succeed the late Senator Brandegee. Senator Moses will confer with leading republicans throughout the state and remain in Connecticut over Sunday, mapping out a campaign. He will not only make many speeches himself, but will send a group of the best equipped campaigners from the senate and other sources. Senator Moses said before leaving that he realized the fight in Connecticut would be a hard one on account of factional differences there, but he believed the republicans of Connecticut would realize the need of supporting Coolidge and when the test came would vote for Bingham.

HOW. CHAS. A. GOODWIN VIEWS HAMILTON HOLT

Hartford, Dec. 4.—"Heaven forbid that Hamilton Holt should have an opportunity to let loose in congress the kind of talk he has wished upon his hearers as a private citizen" said Charles A. Goodwin, prominent republican of Hartford, today. It would be a calamity for the state of Connecticut to send Mr. Holt to the senate. The issue is clearly red-blooded Americanism against out-and-out pacifism.

"Mr. Holt's vision is almost entirely limited to the league of nations" Mr. Goodwin went on, "and he sees that through rose-hued glasses. He was a republican when he bolted in 1920 to vote for Cox and the league of nations."

Mr. Goodwin said that at the Free synagogue, Carnegie Hall, New York, on January 23, 1915, Mr. Holt upheld the Japanese protest against the alien land-owning laws of California, severely criticised America's immigration laws as they affect the Japanese, and said "President Roosevelt, it is now known, sent the fleet around the world to impress the Japanese and they turned the other cheek and spent a million dollars entertaining the fleet." "Three years earlier," said Mr. Goodwin, "he spoke at the Lake Mohonk conference, Lake Mohonk, N. Y., and said, 'I repeat, that if there is ever any trouble between the United States and Japan, it will be because we deliberately seek it or else because public opinion in America is allowed to be kept in ignorance of the true attitude toward us of our great and now get this, 'and long-forbearing sister nation across the Pacific.'

"Then in 1917, we find him vigorously shouting, according to The New York Tribune, that 'all the American interests in Mexico aren't worth one day of intervention.'

"Again, on April 17, 1915, we find in The New York Tribune, that Mr. Holt, speaking before the Schoolmasters' association at the Yale club, declared that 'Colonel Theodore Roosevelt did more than any other man to rouse sentiment against the arbitration treaties which former President Taft had pending with Germany, England, France and Japan.'

"Here's the type of talk that Hamilton Holt utters. On January 29, 1917, less than a week before our break with Germany, he spoke at the annual meeting of the New York Federation of Churches and criticised the opposition to the league to enforce peace by William Jennings Bryan and Colonel Theodore Roosevelt. As Mr. Holt concluded, E. P. Farnham, secretary of the church extension board asked, 'Would you call it politics, Mr. Holt, if we were to organize another expedition to Africa and send Colonel Roosevelt as its head?' 'I think it might be better to send the Colonel to rule Germany by divine right and bring the kaiser here to take a position as a contributing editor' said Mr. Holt.

"I shall vote for Hiram Bingham against Hamilton Holt because Colonel Bingham is a true representative of Connecticut and an American, not an internationalist, a pacifist and a professional peacemaker."

COMMITTEE TO INQUIRE INTO COAL MINE STRIKE

Scranton, Pa., Dec. 4.—The committee of international executive board members of the United Mine Workers of America named by President John L. Lewis to investigate the strike situation in Pittston will arrive in Scranton tomorrow and confer at the district union headquarters. The committee will meet with D. W. Davis, international organizer, who was recently placed in charge of the situation by President Lewis.

The commission is comprised of the same men who came here some months ago and received pledges from the Pittston local unions that they would call no more unauthorized strikes.

Rinaldo Cappellini, president of the district, who was attending the American Federation of Labor convention in El Paso, Tex., when the strike started, will not return until next Sunday, it was said.

Local district officials tonight declined to comment on the request of the general grievance committee of the striking miners in the Pittston field to call a special district convention.

USE OF MERCURY VAPOR AS A RIVAL OF STEAM

New York, Dec. 4—Use of mercury vapor, now successfully emerging as a rival of steam, will greatly increase the nation's stores of power, Dr. William LeRoy Emmet of the General Electric Company predicted at the last meeting of the annual convention of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers tonight.

Describing the experiments with the mercury turbines during the past year in Hartford, Conn., Dr. Emmet said this process could be combined with the best steam applications so far developed so as to make a gain of 40 per cent in output from fuel over what could be done with the steam alone.

Dr. Emmet said there was no immediate fear of a shortage of mercury, because the demand has been strictly limited and only the richest ores mined.

Rift in Leaders of The N. Y. Democracy

New York, Dec. 4.—Gov. Alfred E. Smith and Mayor John F. Hylan remained at loggerheads over the question of the approaching investigation of the city's years' old transit muddle tonight.

Just as the governor departed for Albany, the mayor issued a brief statement to newspapermen in which he renewed his objections to the form of the investigation which Governor Smith has instructed Supreme Court Justice McAvoy to make and added:

"I regret for the sake of the people of this city, in whose cause I am serving, that the governor has seen fit to take the stand he has on this question."

The governor's parting word was that the investigation would be as he had originally ordered—wide and far-reaching, and not confined, as the mayor requested, to a hearing of the charges made by city officials against the state transit commissioners.

COUNTRY-WIDE SURVEY OF TRANSPORTATION PROBLEM

New Haven, Dec. 4—A country-wide survey of the transportation problem in its engineering aspects will be made by Yale university, it was announced today by the secretary's office. Beginning in January or February, the university will carry on scientific research as to railway, waterway and airway transportation and through this investigation, Yale expects to discover what program of graduate studies in transportation is best adapted to the personnel and facilities at the command of the university and to the needs of the country.

The investigation, it was announced, will include intensive studies of the work being done by railroad bureaus, organizations interested in traffic regulations, government departments and other public agencies, such as the New York port authority.

The instruction and research done by the universities and technical schools also will come within the scope of the survey, which will be conducted by Winthrop M. Daniels, professor of transportation; Samuel W. Stratton, professor of mechanical engineering and Charles J. Tilden, professor of engineering mechanics.

The professors will have under them five fellows at a stipend of $1,000 each whose appointment is made possible by the fund received by the university in 1914 under the will of Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal. From this fund, which has already provided two professorships, the Yale corporation has also established two undergraduate scholarships, each of $600, assignable to students showing proficiency and promise in the economic or engineering phases of transportation.

MOTION TO INVESTIGATE NAVAL CONSTRUCTION

Washington, Dec. 4—Investigation by the senate naval affairs committee to determine the availability of navy yards and personnel for future naval construction and repair work is proposed in a resolution introduced today by Senator Jones, democrat, New Mexico, for Senator King, democrat, Utah, who was absent.

The resolution stated that the government had expended more than $150,000,000 in the last ten years for submarine construction but that of 124 under-water craft delivered within that time none of approximately 106 built by private shipbuilders "have proven satisfactory."

Asserting that the government "is not obtaining proper and adequate results" from its expenditures for naval construction, the resolution named the Lake Submarine Company of Bridgeport, and the Submarine Boat Company of New London, Conn., as having taken "millions of dollars of profit" on the submarines which have failed to "meet the requirements of the government."

A recent sale of more than 300,000 tons of steel by the navy" at the mere nominal price of about $5 per ton" was cited, with the statement that this amount "would have been adequate for the construction of the new cruiser fleet and four modern airplane carriers to complete our quota" under the Washington Arms treaty.

Charges that the navy department policy regarding the use of navy yards and personnel for naval construction has been affected by "various corporate, foreign and Pacifist propaganda" also are quoted in the resolution.

COOLIDGE AT LIVESTOCK EXPOSITION IN CHICAGO

The President and Mrs. Coolidge Spent a Busy Day Viewing Prize Winning Entries From Every State—The President at the Hay and Grain Show Inspected Exhibits of the Finest Products of American Agriculture—During the Day Mr. Coolidge Addressed a Gathering of Agriculturists, Later Addressing the Chicago Commercial Club.

Chicago, Dec. 4.—(By The A. P.)—President Coolidge visited the International Livestock Hay and Grain show today and there inspected exhibits of the finest products of American agriculture.

Invading the middle west for the first time since he entered the White House, 16 months ago, the President and Mrs. Coolidge ended a busy day by a visit to the blocks of prize winning entries from every state, amid the cheers of prairie stockmen, cattle buyers, and a host of city folk.

The chief executive spent several hours in Chicago's stockyards prior to addressing a gathering of agriculturalists. Earlier in the day he delivered an address to the Chicago Commercial club. Business, he declared, must henceforth consider itself an "integral part of the life of agriculture, of the life," of the country.

"The commercial and industrial side of our nation has been giving too much thought to wheat and hogs and corn, to their transportation and to their prices, and not enough thought to the men and women who are engaged in agriculture, to their welfare and to their prosperity," he asserted.

The same principle of mutual aid, he continued, must be applied to the relationships among the nations. Even among the nations, he said, "there must be mutual understanding, mutual faith and confidence."

He emphasized, however, that in this relationship there should be no sacrifice of "independence and freedom of action."

"I do not believe," he continued "that we are strong enough, to accomplish any permanent good in the world through the indiscriminations of mere unorganized, undirected generosity. We can only help those who will help themselves. In any other rule, I am convinced, would lie disaster for us, and increased misfortune for those we are seeking to serve."

Arriving at the Livestock Exposition just at dusk, after a five mile drive through cheering throngs, the President and Mrs. Coolidge and the members of their party were taken first to the prize car lot exhibitions in the cattle yards. They made their way among the pens over the regular visitors' runways, then stopped at the model meat shop, the headquarters of the Boys' and Girls' club and finally passed between rows of steam heated, electrically lighted stalls where were housed the individual prize exhibits.

The best in American slaughtering and breeding cattle, sheep and hogs was pointed out to the chief executive as he made his way through a crowd that many times almost swept aside the hundreds of police. He asked frequent questions, showing according to his guides that he had not forgotten the days on the farm in New England.

While the president was being entertained at dinner tonight by the exposition officials, Mrs. Coolidge was the guest of honor at another dinner given at the nearby Saddle and Sirloin club. The First Lady was also luncheon guest of the Illinois Republican Women's clubs.

BINGHAM CAMPAIGNING IN NAUGATUCK VALLEY

Waterbury, Dec. 4.—Governor-elect John H. Trumbull, speaking at a dinner of republican workers of the Naugatuck valley here tonight, declared he did not seek the nomination for governor, nor ask anyone to vote for him, but did the opposite. Replying to the argument expressed in the phrase that he "should not ask for two cups of coffee," he said that while it is discourteous to ask one's hostess for a second cup, it is certainly rude to refuse another cup if the hostess offers it to you.

He said he agreed with the statement that when elected governor he had a moral duty to serve in that office and to turn down any other offer from any other source, but added, "unless the same citizens who elected me governor ask me to do something else." The citizens have two ways of expressing themselves, through the polls and through their representatives; they expressed their wish through the polls in electing him governor and their wish through their representatives in nominating him for senator, he said, "and had I refused to accept their nomination it could have then been said that I put my personal feeling before their wishes."

He denounced the League of Nations, declaring that if anyone felt it had not been thoroughly settled in 1920 they could consider it a clear-cut issue in this campaign, as he vigorously opposes it, while Hamilton Holt favors it.

G. F. BAKER, A FINANCIER, NOT A SPEECH-MAKER

New York, Dec. 4 (By the A. P.)—George F. Baker, octogenarian banker and philanthropist, who for almost three-quarters of a century has ruled the destinies of huge financial institutions, railroads and industrial corporations faltered today before the greatest obstacle of his career—his maiden speech.

In exactly 152 words, Mr. Baker confessed to several hundred New York bankers and bond dealers, who honored him at a luncheon, his failure to compose a speech—the first one he had ever promised to make. Elected an honorary member of the Bond Club of New York, he responded in a voice breaking with emotion that he could not put words together to express his gratitude.

"If you continue to conduct your business and live your lives as you have been doing, to gain the respect and love of your fellows," he told his Wall street associates, "you will accomplish the best in life; and withal and most important, if you maintain that integrity for which you are all so noted, it will bring you greater happiness and joy than great wealth."

Mr. Baker was acclaimed the "first citizen of New York" by Elbert H. Gary chairman of the United States Steel corporation.

OBTAINS DIVORCE FROM THIRTEENTH HUSBAND

East St. Louis, Ills., Dec. 4.—The thirteenth martial adventure of Mrs. Henry La Force went on the rocks today when she obtained a divorce from her latest husband on the ground of cruelty.

Mrs. La Forge said her first choice was Joseph Truxler, whom she married 31 years ago when she was 14. Since then she had one marriage annulled, obtained eleven divorces, nine on the ground of cruelty and two for infidelity and was divorced from one husband on grounds of desertion.

One of the objects of Mrs. La Forge's affections entered into three marriages with her, each ending in the divorce court.

SIR THOMAS LIPTON TO SAIL FOR HOME SATURDAY

New York, Dec. 4.—Sir Thomas Lipton, Irish sportsman, will sail for home on the Leviathan Saturday after a six-week visit on this side of the Atlantic. He reiterated his intention of challenging next year for the America's cup in races to be held in 1926.

MUSCLE SHOALS PROBLEM DEBATED IN THE SENATE

Washington, Dec. 4—Debate on the Muscle Shoals issue broke out in the senate today with the authors of the Norris and Underwoods bills both arguing the claims of their respective plans for operation of the project.

Chairman Norris of the senate agriculture committee, which reported the Norris bill providing for government ownership and operation, opened the question on the floor and was followed immediately by Senator Underwood, democrat, Alabama, in support of the bill which he introduced recently as a substitute.

The discussion consumed more than four hours, after which the senate recessed until tomorrow, leaving the subject in preferred position on its calendar. A number of senators are prepared to discuss the problem and it was indicated tonight that the debate would go on for several days.

No indication of the administration's attitude was given today and the senate remained widely divided on the issue. Several southern senators today expressed opposition to the Underwood plan, and administration leaders have openly expressed opposition to the Norris proposal.

The Muscle Shoals question also came up in the house today when Representative Kearns, republican, Ohio, introduced a joint resolution authorizing the appointment of a congressional committee to report to congress a "feasible plan" for the utilization of the properties.

A somewhat similar resolution was introduced a few days ago by Representative Wright, democrat, Georgia, and both are regarded as being in line with the president's recommendation on the subject in his message to congress.

Before debate started in the senate, Senator Bruce, democrat, Maryland, offered an amendment to the Norris bill providing for the appointment of officials to operate Muscle Shoals solely on merit and not from political motives and that employes be subject to civil service regulations.

HOW TO PERCEIVE BEAUTIES OF THE TOTAL ECLIPSE

New York, Dec. 4.—In order to perceive the beauties of the total eclipse of the sun January 25, to the full, it will be necessary for observers to bandage their eyes for an hour before looking at the phenomenon, Professor R. G. Way, secretary of the astronomical division of the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences, told a gathering of scientists at the power show here tonight. Eyes which have not been kept from the light are not capable of recording the eclipse in detail, he said.

Professor Way said that the January eclipse will be nearer to New York than any for 200 years and another will not come so near for another like period. The eclipse will begin at sunrise in the Gulf of Mexico and will be seen all over the North American continent, the northern part of South America, northern Africa, nearly all of Europe and half of Greenland.

ARRESTED FOR FORGING LIQUOR PRESCRIPTIONS

Stamford, Dec. 4.—Hyman Waldorf of this city was arrested late today by federal agents and the police on a charge of forging prescriptions for liquor. It is charged by the police that Waldorf obtained some government prescription blanks, forged the names of physicians and sold the prescriptions to local residents who obtained liquor at the drug stores. His arrest followed several days of investigation. Waldorf was released under bonds of $1,000 for his appearance before United States commissioner in Bridgeport tomorrow morning.

DENIAL OF HEARINGS ON THE CRAMPTON BILL

Washington, Dec. 4.—Requests for hearings on the Crompton bill to include all prohibition administration under a separate bureau were refused today by Chairman Sterling of the senate judiciary committee. He said he would ask for early action on the bill, already passed by the house.

Office Hours: 9:30 to 12 m.; 1:30 to 6 p. m.

Over one hundred delegates of the Catholic Franco-American Federation of New England will attend the convention to be held here Dec. 14 and 15. The first session will be held at the town hall Sunday evening at 7.30 o'clock and on Monday the convention will meet in the Al-Pierre Tabarin. Twenty-five students from the Assumption college, Woonsocket, R. I., will be among the guests of the convention. Acting Mayor George W. Hickey will deliver the opening address on Sunday evening, and music for the occasion will be furnished by the 40-piece Euterpean orchestra of this city under the direction of Miss Mary Rose Blanchette. Selections will be rendered by the Federation quartet of Woonsocket. Prominent speakers will include President Eugene D. Jalbert of Woonsocket; President Henri T. Ledoux of l'Union St. Jean Baptiste d'Amerique; Rev. Louis Leland, rector of St. Mary's college, Montreal, Canada; Alma Forcier of Goodyear, vice president of the federation, and several other prominent French-Americans. President Jalbert is to preside at the opening of the convention. Eli Vezina, secretary of l'Union St. Jean Baptiste d'Amerique, will give a recital of The Story of Arcadia during Sunday evening's program, which is open to the public. Monday morning's session will close with a dinner served by the Ladies of St. Anne society at St. Mary's hall. The election of officers will take place during that session. The local committee to make preparations for the reception of the delegation consists of Joseph F. Gaudreau, president of the local federation, chairman; Alphonse Charnon, secretary; Alexis Caisse, Joseph Lefebvre, Mrs. George Bailligeon, Mrs. Isaac Brindamour, Mrs. Philip Lord.

The visit of the American National Red Cross first aid instruction car No. 1 was successfully carried out here Thursday with a program of lectures at the various schools of the town and in the open by Doctors Grant P. Hartsell of Washington, D. C., and Robert E. Browning of McAllister, Okla., both of whom are surgeons. The basic object of the movement, which was inaugurated in 1911, is to teach railroad employes first aid methods. Car No. 1 has covered the Baltimore and Ohio, Illinois Central, Chicago Great Western, Rock Island and Nickel Plate railroad systems. Its next stop will be in Putnam today (Friday). The lectures include approved instructions in the control of hemorrhages, artificial resuscitations and emergency treatment of fractures and burns. Leroy A. Dissinger, physical director at the local Y. M. C. A., was in charge of the outside program Thursday. At 1 p. m. lectures were given to the railroad employes; at 11.30, at the Windham High school; at 1 p. m., at the State Normal school; at 3 p. m., Natchaug Grammar school, and 4 p. m. at the Y. M. C. A.

A community Christmas celebration is being planned by delegations from the Elks, Knights of Columbus, Y. M. C. A., Willimantic Rotary club, Welfare bureau, Woman's club, Willimantic Exchange club, Windham Girls' club, the Chamber of Commerce, Federation of French societies, Visiting Nurse association and Boy Scouts. The delegates from these bodies met this week at the call of Acting Mayor George W. Hickey to discuss the feasibility of such a movement, and it was generally sanctioned. The organizations are those which took active part in the Fourth of July celebration. The committee appointed for the making of initial steps consists of Albert E. Smith, chairman; M. E. Sullivan, James B. Fullerton, Mrs. John Reilly, Mrs. Robert H. Fenton, P. A. Cournoyer, Aime J. Mertineau and James P. Bath.

A novel attraction has been placed at the Al-Pierre Tabarin in the form of a crystal ball which throws about the hall a profusion of glittering light of hundreds of colors as it revolves majestically in the center of the floor. Four spotlights of different shades are directed on the sphere, which is two feet in diameter. The crystal ball is one of three in this state, there being one in Hartford, and in a New London dance hall. The proprietors of the Tabarin, Albert J. Piche and Pierre J. Marcoux, have been congratulated on their additional feature. Prize fox trots have been conducted every Wednesday night at the hall. The winners of the first week were Miss Gladys Dubois of this city and John Hilderbrand of South Manchester; the second week, Miss Carrie Powell and Clarence Montigney of this city, and the third week, Miss Frazier and Mr. Hurley of New London. The contests will run for three more weeks and the winners will then participate in a state championship prize dance.

Mrs. Lena Tripp was elected to the presidency of the Womans Relief corps at the last regular meeting to succeed Mrs. Margaret McArthur. At the meeting it was voted to donate $5 each t othe Cromwell home, the Noroton home for soldiers and to the Arlington hospital. The charter was draped in mourning in memory of Past National President Belle C. Harris and Mrs. Annie Phillips, past president of the corps.

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Masansky were held at the late home in Storrs Thursday morning with a requiem high mass at St. Mary's church, South Coventry, at 9 o'clock, Rev. William H. Kennedy, the pastor, was the celebrant. Miss Celia Day was at the organ and she rendered three solos in effective manner. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery. The bearers were John Masansky, Andrew Pilhcik, John Tomaskwiz and Ledric Lemator. Arrangements were in charge of Killourey Brothers.

The newly chosen officers of the Catholic Daughters of America are: Grand regent, Veronica McQuillan; vice regent, Mrs. Loretta Costello; prophetess, Miss Mae Connor; historian, Miss Kathleen Colgan; treasurer, Miss Florence Grady; financial secretary, Miss Mildred Fitzgerald; monitor, Mrs. Mary Costello; sentinel, Miss Jennie Moran; organist, Miss Mildred Pickett; chaplain, Rev. Henry A. Quinn; trustees for one year, Miss Kathleen Kennedy and Miss Nellie Foley; trustees for two years, Mrs. Mary Hanson and Miss Gertrude Dennehey.

For the benefit of the boys' work fund of the Willimantic Rotary club, the Pirates of Penzance, a comic opera by Gilbert and Sullivan, will be presented by a group of professionals of Storrs in the high school auditorium next week. The fund is to further extend the great work now being done by Rotary for the welfare of the boys of the community.

Unlike 1923, the icehouse owners in this city are looking forward to a real early harvest, and a good one at that, this year. Joseph Braun, present owner of the old Eaton farm in Mansfield, just over the city line, reports that the ice on that pond has reached a thickness of five inches and as soon as that is doubled he will begin to cut his crop. Twenty thousand tons of ice were harvested from this pond last year.

Two returns of suspended operators' licenses were made by the state motor vehicle department this week in the cases of Mrs. Josephine Marino of the Flanders district, in the town of Coventry, and James Kelley of Chapman street, this city, both suspended for some time past.

Robert Beck, employed by H. H. Lyman as a plumber, has resigned his position and leaves shortly for California, where he will follow his trade in verious sections until he decides upon a location where he will permanently settle.

Hon. Hamilton Holt, democratic candidate for United Sattes senator, who will give an address at the democratic rally in the town hall this (Friday) evening, will first appear as a speaker at the Christmas bazaar and trade exhibit at the state armory as a special attraction.

Only two children took the required tests to secure employment certificates of Archibald W. Buchanan of Mansfield Center, agent for the state board of education, who held a session at the town building here Thursday forenoon.

Forer Chief of Police Edgar H. Richmond of Windham suffered the loss of a prize hound dog recently, when it was struck and run over by a baker cart said to be owned by a local concern.

Despite the approaching bad driving weather, the number of weekly applicants for motor vehicle driver's licenses keeps up a good average. About twenty appeared before State Policeman Henry Heinold of the Stafford Springs barracks Thursday and took the tests.

Mrs. Harry S. Gaucher entertained the Sewing club of which she is a member at her home Wednesday evening.

Visiting in Hartford Wednesday were Mrs. Jennie Fowler, Miss Estella C. Alpaugh, Mrs. George M. Graves, Miss May Shepard, Mrs. T. R. Parker, Mrs. O. B. Robinson, Mrs. R. G. Remington, Mrs. George F. Stiles and Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Boss.

The speedy returns from Bulletin advertising was demonstrated in an unusual manner Thursday morning. A Willimantic man sent in an adv. for the sale of a dog, to be inserted Friday and Saturday. Through a fortunate oversight the advertisement was inserted Thursday morning. Much to his amazement, the owner of the dog received a toll call early Thursday morning from a prospective buyer.

Mrs. Jesse Franch of Carey Hill has as guest Mrs. Henry Larcum of Canterbury.

Miss Helen Barrows, daughter of Mrs. D. C. Barrows, has returned to resume her duties as a teacher in Cromwell.

Miss Josephine C. Jillson and Miss M. H. Templeton have returned to their home here after a visit in Hartford.

The Willimantic Christmas bazaar and trade exhibit, given under the auspices of the Methodist Episcopal church, in the state armory on Pleasant street, opened for a run of three days, Thursday afternoon, with a very good attendance. The special feature of the afternon was the doll exhibit, held in one of the small rooms adjoining the main hall. Dolls of all sorts and sizes were arranged here for the delight of the children. There was Little Boy Blue, Little Jack Horner sitting on an immense pie, the little old Woman who lived in a shoe her house and all her family; Peter-Peter gazing at his wife out of a great pumpkin; Jack and Jill, prostrate at the foot of the hill of Mother Goose fame; Little Bo-peep and her sheep, and a lovely sleeping doll-child lying in a real old-fashioned cradle loaned through the courtesy of Mrs. J. B. Fullerton. The decorations were in Christmas colors, arranged by a committee of which Miss Florence Jones was in charge. Mrs. E. B. Freeman was at the head of the committee for the arrangement of this booth. She was assisted by Mrs. E. A. Lewis, Mrs. Nellie Weeks, Miss Stella Gardiner, Mrs. J. B. Fullerton, Mrs. Florence Kenyon, Mrs. Pearl Burdue, Mrs. Charles Maass, Mrs. Francis Perkins, Mrs. Edward Cross and Mrs. Ruth Greene.

Overhead, the armory is hung heavily with flags, the work of P. D. Donohue. Booths line the wall on the two sides of the stage. Shining motor cars representing the different dealers of the city stand at convenient intervals. There is the Hudson-Essex, from Leonard Brothers, the Reo, from Remington, Studebaker, from Jackson and Sumner; the Dodge from the Jordan Auto company; the Maxwell-Chrysler, from Cotter Brothers; the Buick from the Jordan-Buick company. Following the wall, one passes the booth of L. R. Olin, exhibiting wall papers, paints and interior decoration. Next is the J. C. Lincoln booth arranged to represent a living room, with desk, book shelf center table, divan and chairs and dull orange lights. J. B. Fullerton, exhibiting blankets and warm-looking garments in soft colors of wool and cotton; the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company; the United Music company tuning in on a radio, or, if you prefer, a Victrola, or a player-piano. On the other side of the stage the first thing is the Parcels Post Corner. Here are unopened donations sent by people interested in the bazaar or formerly affiliated with the church, supposed not to be valued at over their selling price of two bits. Next is a country store, where one can buy paint, salt, ink, peanut butter, pickles, writing paper, or any one of a hundred or more heterogeneous articles. The home-cooked food booth shoulders it with pies, cookies, crullers, bread, preserved fruit and cake with thick icing. Then there is Ye Olde Candie Shoppe, with fudge, stuffed dates, fat chocolate peppermints, peanut clusters, lollipops with faces, in gay paper dresses. Donations to this booth were made by the H. C. Murray company, Albro and the Wilson Drug company. The handkerchief booth is resplendent with all sorts of pretty embroidered, colored tatted and crocheted trifles; the fancy work booths contain luncheon sets of all kinds imaginable, sofa cushions, worked doilies and table mats, pocketbooks, ninballs, lingerie, cans for dusting, cans for the boudoir, gues towels. Then there is the apron booth, the booth of fancy bags, the cafeteria, the fish pond, the ice cream and soda booth, run by the Men's club, and the mysterious corner where a mysterious lady tells fortunes.

In the evening a program was given, introduced by Acting Mayor George W. Hickey, who was followed by an address by Frank P. Fenton, and banjo selections by Wesley Needham, of the Connecticut Agricultural College. The fair promises to be one of the most successful ever held in Willimantic.

PUTNAM

In the controversy over the question of how long Hamilton Holt, democratic candidate for senator, has been a resident of Connecticut and the location of his present home The Bulletin corrspondent has been requested to print the following, which has been verified and is believed to be a correct statement of the situation:

"Hamilton Holt has not lived at 163 West 73rd street, New York city, for two years. He has been traveling over the country during much of that period, delivering lectures, and he was in New York such a short time that he gave up his residence there in 1922. In the winter of 1922-23 he stayed in a boarding house in New York for a short time. In the winter of 1923-24 his family occupied a furnished apartment, rented for several months only. For most of that time Mr. Holt was away from New York on lecture tours.

"He has owned and occupied a house in Woodstock for the past 15 years, and has also owned and still owns other property there, on both of which he has paid taxes for that length of time. He has never owned real estate anywhere else."

The annual minstrel show given by the students of Tourtellotte Memorial High School, Thursday night, drew a crowded house, in fact, the tickets were all sold 24 hours before the presentation and the school authorities are considering a request that it be given again. Miss Marguerite C. Burns, one of the faculty of the school, was the director and she added to the laurels gained in the two preceding years as she has stage-managed and directed all of the entertainments that the school has given.

The pianist was Miss Ruth Engles, and the costumes were designed by Miss Helen R. Mack and Miss Ruth Engles.

The cast of characters and the programme was as follows:

Opening chorus, A Little Close Harmony, quartette; Oh We're a Dandy Band, first and second grades; end song, In the Evening, Sam Blackstone; solo, Italian Street Song, Irene Pelletier; end song, Ray and his Little Chevrolet, Rufus Tambo; Cupid Dance, Doris Crandall, Esther Creighton, Nina Lynch, Mildred Prince, Hazel Richardson, Elizabeth Sobosik; duet, Brothers, Isabelle Beauregard, Frances Toohill; medley, Theresa Coderre, Estelle Ravenelle, Lillian Laurion, Lawson Robbins and chorus; end song, Mandalay, Ham Bones; solo and dance, Sunny Jim, Raymond Maheu, Earl Bousquet, Francis McGuiness, James Mangan., Howard Johnson, Russell Nelson, Lester Johnson, Hugo Schener; solo, Rose in the Bud, Isabelle Beauregard; sextette, Sweet Miss Mary, Isabelle Beauregard, Theresa Coderre, Irene Johnson, Irene Leletier, Estelle Ravenelle, Frances Toohill; solo dance, Esther Creighton; solo, Valley of Laughter, Frances Toohill; end song, Doodle-Doo-Doo, Moses Lampblack; solo and dance, Where the Rainbow Ends, Cecille Desaulniers, Leonis Evans, Margaret Langer, Violet Handy, Charlotte Schnolle, Helen Ingraham, Marian Watson; end song, Way Out West in Kansas, end men closing chorus, ensemble.

Miss Rose Dumas is now in the employ of the Mercier Department store at Plainfield.

Mrs. Julius Wilcox has been visiting friends in Stonington.

The Alpha Delta class of the Second Congregational church held their annual banquet and election of officers last Tuesday night at the church parlors. The following officers were elected: Mrs. Charles Franklin, president; Mrs. Justin S. Greene, vice president; Mrs. Ralph Jenkins, secretary; Miss Marion Warren, treasurer; Mrs. C. D. Arnold, assistant treasurer; Mrs. Charles E. Dean, chairman of membership committee; Mrs. William Carpenter, chairman of finance committee; Mrs. Louis Carmack, chairman of entertainment committee.

At the annual meeting of Jessamine chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, called Wednesday evening, officers were elected as follows:

PLAN FOR BIG CROWD IN PUTNAM TODAY

Putnam, Dec. 4.—The general committee of citizens acting under the directions of the Putnam Chamber of Commerce, are planning to entertain thousands of visitors on Come Back Days, Friday and Saturday, December 5th and 6th.

An even one hundred of the retail merchants of Putnam have pledged their co-operation in the movement. The three banks of the city are co-operating with other professional men in helping to make the affair a success.

The business houses of the city are elaborately decorated and the spirit of courage and optimism that prevails is very much at variance with the depression of the past three months.

At the state armory there will be an exhibit of all the products made in Putnam, a free radio show and an orchestra Friday afternoon and Saturday afternoon and evening. Each evening there will be a brief address.

Ralph C. Jenkins, superintendent of schools explaining the meaning of the celebration and emphasizing the courage of Putnam's business men in the face of the disasters of the past half year. The exhibitors of manufactured produce are: Stevenman & Peasley, J. R. Tatem Co., Acorn Greenhouses, Putnam Mfg. Co., Wheaton Building Lumber Co., L. E. Regan, Marcy Tool Works, Waterman Worsted Co., Grosvenordale Mills, State Trade School, Reynolds Suit Case Co., Philip L. Fauncher, Lisber Fur Shop, O. R. Hermanson, Adams Mfg. Co., Maryott's Belt and Roller Works, Guein Mills, Inc., Peachmont Mill, Putnam Woolen Co., General Fireproof Co., Dean Division.

ARTHUR E. SMITH IS NEW BANK CASHIER

Putnam, Dec. 4.—Arthur E. Smith of Hyde Park, Mass., is to be the new cashier of the Citizens National bank, a position which Whitman Danielson has been filling temporarily until an experienced banking man could be secured. Mr. Smith began his banking career 28 years ago as clerk in the bank at West Newton, Mass. For several years he was cashier of the Hyde Park National bank, and for the past four years has been manager of the Hyde Park branch of the First National bank of Boston, leaving that position to come here.

He has had experience in all classes of banking and his credentials are of the highest. The First National bank of Boston endorses him very strongly. Mr. Smith is married and has one daughter, a graduate of Simmons college who is now assistant in the Harvard Medical Laboratory. He will move to Putnam as soon as he finds a suitable house.

Mr. Danielson has been filling the position as cashier with the aid and assistance of Ralph W. Bowen, assistant secretary of the Rhode Island Trust Co., and Harold Kelley of the clerical staff of the same bank.

PUTNAM POLICE AT WORK ON BRAZEN AUTO THEFT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Dec. 4.—An automobile belonging to Dr. S. R. Overlock was stolen at 5 o'clock this evening while parked in Union street, opposite the post office. It is a 1925 model Buick coupe, registry No. 7316. Dr. Overlock is one of the best known physicians in this part of the county, is head of the surgical department of the Day Kimball hospital and a member of the state board of pardons. He had left the car alone but ten minutes. The state police have been notified.

Raisers of goat meat in the southwest have given it the coined name "chevon."

ROTARIAN-EXCHANGE MEETING RIOT OF FUN

Willimantic, Dec. 4.—Rotarians and Exchangites feasted together at a joint meeting of both clubs held on Thursday evening. The attendance of the two organizations was nearly 100 per cent., there being about 65 members present. Rev. Frank H. Haggard of the Asylum Avenue Baptist church, Hartford, was the speaker of the evening. That his address was one of the best heard in some time and that his deliverance of his subject was unusually original, is attested to by the simple remarks of some of his hearers that in their opinion he was a second McCready. John Ahern of Rotary and Charlie Caswell of the Exchange were the song leaders. Judge Foss was the first performer. He filled an order for a song with a touching rendition of the Silent Waltings of the Wind in the Tombs of Tut. The Rotary band, which drew harmony from a collection of tin weapons, consisting of Ray Parker, Jim Mustard, Ellison Smith, Al Smith, Judge Foss, President Standish, Hen Congdon, Doc Jones, John Pickett, Weenie Reth and Mayor Hickey, went over big. The Exchange band, under the leadership of Charlie Caswell blurted a rendition which was a fine likeness of a midnight disturbance in a large dog kennel. The bandsmen were Lyndon Little, Sam Chesebro, Frank Lincoln, Rod Jodoin, George Fraser, President Wilcox, Bob Mitchell, Harold Lincoln, Coach Donnelly, Allen B. Lincoln and Al Fournier. One of the group songs was a composition by "Fritz" Kirkpatrick of C. A. C., on "Eggless Hens" sung to the tune of It Ain't Gonna Rain No Mo'. According to the verdict of Leaders Ahern and Caswell, the song contest was won by both teams. Rotary roll call read by Secretary Hill brought bad news for the Both attendance outfit as absentees owed that lady two points behind the Martineaus. A novel number was the drafting of the sinners of life into a singing crew. The clergyman, Rev. Frederick Williams, was the mainstay. Next came the doctors: Riordan, Hendry Guild, Jones, Wilcox, Ballou, White and Simonds. To cover up the doctors' mistakes came the undertakers, Fred Avery, Martineau and Harold Lincoln. Their timely selection was Lead Kindly Light. The insurance quintet, George Elliott, Jim Mustard, Allen Lincoln, Rod Jodoin and Frank Lincoln was next called to the floor. There will be a hot time in the old town tonight supplemented with Hear Them Fire Bells, was their choice of an appropriate rendition.

A brief Rotary business meeting then took place. Professor Dick Dodge, reported for the play to be given for the benefit of the Boys' Work Fund. The admission price to high and normal school students has been reduced. The reception committee at the play will consist of officers, directors and past presidents of the club. A selection will be made later between Ahern and Charlie Pomeroy for the honors of presenting flowers to the leading lady. President Standish extended a warm welcome to the Exchangites on behalf of Rotary. He expressed the happiness of the Rotarians for the opportunity to meet with the Exchange club and urged the more frequent holding of such joint meetings. In his inimitable manner President George E. Wilcox of the Exchange, made response to the welcome with a beautiful and poetic comparison of the age-long process of the unison of the minute multitudes that make up a glass of water with the equally long intermingling of men, to attain that great builder of brotherhood and prosperity, summed up in the adage, Strength in Unity.

Rev. Haggard, a member of the Hartford Rotary club and familiarly known as "Parson," chose as his subject, The Next Big Job for the Big Men of the Next Generation. Opening with an excellent collection of humorous jokes which brought his audience to a cheerful and attentive state of mind, the Parson led his hearers back to the beginnings when pre-historic men were ever fearful of the elements and beasts. The turning point finally came, and subsequently man developed brains and organized with his fellows to overcome those things which were his superiors. At first man's conquering spirits were to kill and thus much of the world's history is written in blood. Instinct then turned to higher purposes, and, in the generations to follow, the universe was gifted with the use of fire, tools and alphabet, domestic animals, surgery and science, the exploitation of nature for its resources, production and the development of wealth. "American manhood, ingenuity, industry and initiative have combined to make us comfortable, healthy and wealthy," said the speaker, "but one great conquest still remains to be accomplished, and that is not the conquest of nature, but, rather, that of human nature. Let us learn to live together and gain the spirit of brotherhood and the creation of good will among men of all kinds and classes."

"NO TIME TO QUIBBLE."

In connection with the coming special election for United States senator there has been the intimation that there would be a revolt in those sections where the unsuccessful candidates at the republican convention came from. There is no indication that can be seen on the part of the candidates themselves and there are a number of instances where those who supported others than Governor-elect Bingham are now standing by the party nominee.

Perhaps one of the conspicuous instances in this respect is Major [illegible] M. Ullman, of New Haven. Major Ullman was a leader in opposing the candidacy of Mr. Bingham in New Haven. He was a strong advocate of Congressman Tilson for the senatorial nomination. He [illegible] republican organization of the state but there is no getting away from the fact that in [illegible] the welfare of the state and nation [illegible] the right way when he declares, [illegible] election of a democratic senator from Connecticut at this time should be nothing short of a national disaster."

Such a spirit is the proper one to [illegible] Major Ullman in throwing [illegible] to General Bingham in the [illegible] to the importance of giving the president enough votes in the senate to put through his policies. He says [illegible] he stated that I would have [illegible] the nomination of Congressman Tilson for senator. A majority of the delegates to the republican convention preferred Colonel Bingham. They spoke for the republican party of Connecticut — President Coolidge's party. This is no time to quibble. Colonel Bingham has the qualifications to be a good senator. His [illegible] and loyalty to the president were shown throughout his campaign for the governorship and before. His opponent's admiration of the president did not become apparent until [illegible] as the result of the November 4 election. Republicans should make no mistake about electing Colonel Bingham to the senatorship. They will have much opportunity to regret it, if they do."

PRACTICES WHAT HE PREACHES

In his message to congress President Coolidge bore down heavily on the need of economy. It is needed in the various branches of the government and it is needed in congress. [illegible] considering that the government, whether federal, state or [illegible], has limitless financial powers which are incompatible with the [illegible] individual taxation and [illegible] indebtedness.

Time and again President Coolidge has called upon the departments for his cooperation which will result in the economy and efficiency in government that he has advocated. Repeatedly has he disclosed his determination to do his part. He has [illegible] that he not only preaches but actually does practice what he preaches.

In the purpose of eliminating the waste that would be entailed for a president to travel in a manner fitting his station he refrained from going to [illegible], Mass., to vote, remained in Washington and sent his ballot by mail. It was one of those instances where economy was possible and the government was saved an expense. Even though there is a [illegible] allowance of $25,000 provided for the president he doesn't believe in spending it just because it is available.

The president's determination to [illegible] what he urges upon others is again illustrated by taking an ordinary Pullman car in going to Chicago this week instead of piling up the expenses that goes with a private car or a special train. This is one of the best bits of evidence that he does not intend that others are expected to do what he is unwilling to do himself when it comes to practicing economy.

The president is certainly placing strong emphasis upon his words to congress when he leads the way. He sincerely believes that the extravagances which have prevailed in many directions heretofore must be curbed. A mere semblance of this is not enough. He desires the government cotton down to the basic where it belongs, but in setting the example in the limited opportunities he has, it is to be hoped that he is not taking unwarranted chances with his own safety.

FACING A BIG PROBLEM.

In a recent contest for the suggestion of the best ways to reduce automobile accidents the $1,000 prize went to the one who suggested, "Education, regulation and punishment" and the need of impressing children with the fact that "the motor vehicle is a great public benefaction and, like fire and water, has become a necessary element in our civilization, but is likewise most dangerous when not properly handled."

Perhaps words to that effect have been heard before, but from the way in which accidents, deaths and losses from the automobiles are piling up it becomes evident that either it has not made the right impression or else the education, regulation and punishment are grossly inadequate.

When we stop to realize that the deaths each year by autos total 20,000 or more and that there are 400,000 or more injured there is food for serious thought.

When we are told that there is a loss of $300,000,000 in automobile property each year because of automobile accidents we certainly have reason to do some thinking, and particularly so when there can be added thereto the sum of $420,000,000 for the settlement of claims resulting from accidents of non-insured vehicles.

The situation would be bad enough if it were so that the country had acquired all the machines that it was likely to, or if the distribution had been such that production was required only to provide for replacements. It is well understood, of course, that the number of autos is growing each year. If the number of deaths, the number injured and the damage to machines and property stand at the figures mentioned this year, what are we to expect from the increase in the number that can be anticipated in the next five or ten years?

These are matters which well deserve serious thought and attention if there is to be a reduction in deaths, the injured and the losses that are now being sustained. Education, regulation and punishment have much to accomplish.

INCOME TAX PUBLICITY.

Good headway is being made toward getting the law opening a certain part of the income tax returns to inspection before the United States supreme court for a decision as to whether congress has forbidden the publication of the taxes paid and whether such provision prohibiting the publication conflicts with the freedom of the press as set forth in the Constitution.

The early decision of the federal court in one suit that has been brought by the government speeds the matter along. The judge maintains that the law as it now stands is inconsistent, that it provides for inspection and publicity to a certain extent and then prohibits publication. The final decision, of course, rests with the supreme court. It will wrestle with what some declare to be a law unclear and what others regard as confusing.

No one has been able to find that the law has accomplished any good. There was strong opposition to it and that has greatly increased since the publication of income taxes has taken place. It has pleased the meddlers, those who are watching the other fellow's business and those who hope to benefit from knowing such facts.

Perhaps one of the greatest accomplishments of the law thus far is to emphasize the need of repealing it. Even its friends have turned against it and if this didn't happen to be the same congress that passed it it would be surprising if it survived the present session.

EARLY CHRISTMAS SHOPPING.

Procrastination is probably the greatest obstacle standing in the way of a general participating in early Christmas shopping.

Those who have put into practice the suggestions that have been made concerning the filling of shopping lists for Christmas at a time when the stocks of goods are at their best, when there is the freedom from the rush and bustle of the last few days and before the clerks have been worn to a frazzle know that there is no illusion about the value of early shopping. It is all that is claimed for it, and because of its recognized merits there are not a few who have their Christmas presents all selected and in some instances all done up and are in a position to get full enjoyment out of the coming holiday season without the stress and turmoil of struggling through crowds and depleted stocks to find what is needed.

The idea has long since been abandoned that Christmas buying can be delayed until the last minute and get satisfactory results. "Do your shopping early" is excellent advice. There are benefits attached for everyone who has anything to do with the shopping problem. It is a step that easily lends itself to complying with the also important requirement of "early mailing."

The spirit of cooperation may well precede as well as accompany the spirit of Christmas.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The man on the corner says: There are spots which a city beautiful judge never sees.

If Smith and Hylan of New York actually come to grips more than the metropolis will look on with interest.

With Massachusetts in the midst of its deer killing season watch out for an increase of the fatalities in that state.

If you have it in mind to make a bid for our gas and electric plant the indications are that you must act without delay.

The new traffic regulations will need some study if they are going to be carefully observed after the opening of the new year.

An increase in savings bank deposits of 14% per cent in twelve years doesn't make the outlook so bad for those who have practised thrift.

With the federal government showing a saving of nearly $68,000,000 for the year the value of the budget and the keeping down of expenses has been clearly shown.

Automobiles can carry big loads of alcohol but it makes a difference whether it is inside or outside the driver as to the assurance of safely reaching their destinations.

There are those who are opposing Governor-elect Bingham for the senate because they claim Roraback picked him. Whether he did or not Hiram Bingham is a mighty good choice. Connecticut will make a bad mistake if it doesn't insist on sending him to Washington.

FLAT HUNTING

"When I promised to help the Graysons find a flat," sighed Loretta wearily, "I hadn't any idea at all that it was going to be such a job. I am just about worn out. I hope that the next time one of your college chums gets married that he will advertise or do his own hunting."

"He couldn't very well do it himself," explained her brother patiently, "living as he does in Denver and marrying a Boston girl. Of course he wanted to have an apartment all chosen so that they could send the furniture on and the bride needn't be all worn out trotting around Chicago."

"He didn't seem to mind my getting all frazzled," Loretta complained. "And I can't see why they couldn't wait till they got here before they bought all their furniture."

"Their furniture wasn't bought!" cried her brother scornfully. "They inherited it all and there isn't so much as a chair that is younger than a hundred years old. His uncle left him all his pieces as soon as he learned that Jim was engaged and her grandmother stated that everything she had should be stored until Daisy was old enough to be married. She died when Daisy was 3 or something like that and they have been holding the things for Daisy ever since.

"So there is a whole pile of stuff and everything is very valuable. A man from the furniture store is coming up to unpack everything and set it in place, so of course they have to have a flat all ready. I call the whole thing a great snap, considering the high prices they ask for household goods these days. If some of my grandmothers who had things just like that would leave me a lot of old chairs you'd hear the wedding bells ring out for me, too."

"Yes, and you'd pick out a girl who hated old stuff and wanted to select her own pink and green chairs," said Loretta derisively. "However, I stick to it. I think it's the limit to make your friends select your abode for you and I'm never going to do it again."

"Probably you'll never be asked to," said her brother. "I wouldn't mind the hunting for a flat for Jim though, if he weren't so darn particular."

"I know," sympathized Loretta. "He said he had to have it in just the right neighborhood, with a certain number of rooms a sleeping porch a sun parlor, at least two bathrooms and a lot of other stuff. The real-estate agents don't pay any attention to what you ask for and I have gone miles to look at an apartment only to find that it was in a basement. You can't tell by the price what the location is any more. Well, at last I found a beauty that almost made me wish we didn't own this place, so we could move into it ourselves. The janitor's wife said there was a party had the refusal of it, but she thinks I can have it."

"That's old stuff," laughed her brother. "They just say that to make you hurry up and say you'll take it. It's just as well you couldn't take it, though, for I found exactly the same and $25 down to hold it till you could see it.

"Gracious!" cried Loretta. "Why didn't you tell me you were spending your afternoon off looking at flats? I liked that one I saw so much that I went back and interviewed the janitor's wife again and she was so sure that the party wouldn't take the flat that I paid $10 down to keep it until you had seen it. She said that she could tell by the look of the party that he wasn't in earnest. What can we do with two flats on our hands?"

"The thing is settled," said her brother coolly. "I stopped in at the De Witts and told them I want them to call on my friends."

"The DeWitts?" Loretta exclaimed. "Is the flat near them?"

"Right across the hall," said her brother. "I went back and paid down the money because the agent told me a woman had been in a few minutes after me and said she wanted it.

"Gracious, but I was scared at first!" sighed Loretta relieved. "How was I to know we'd taken the same flat? I rang the DeWitt's bell, but they must have gone out."—Exchange.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Dr. John A. Anderson, who has been awarded the Howard N. Potts medal by the Franklin Institute of Philadelphia, is a well-known astronomer, at present connected with the Mount Wilson Observatory in California. The honor bestowed upon him by the Franklin Institute is in recognition of his invention of a new form of seismograph and for his improvements in the ruling of diffraction gratings used in separating white light into primary colors. His seismograph marked a new departure in earthquake detecting instruments, being light and inexpensive in contrast to the costly and cumbersome devices heretofore used. Dr. Anderson is a native of Minnesota and received his early education in schools and colleges in that state. Subsequently he went to Johns Hopkins University, where he received his Ph. D. in 1907. For some years after his graduation he remained at Johns Hopkins as a associate professor of astronomy.

Amundsen Did the Next Best Thing

After giving up one vocation, Roald Amundsen chose his lifework and great ambition, but was beaten in his efforts and had to do what else he could.

Born at Borgi, Norway, the son of a ship owner, who died when the lad was 14, Roald attended public schools, then for two years studied medicine, but gave up the calling when the lure of the sea proved irresistible.

After acting as examining first officer at the Christiana Public Sailors' school until he was 25, he became first officer of the Belgica of the Belgian South Polar expedition. At the end of the two-year expiration, he returned and resolved to be an Arctic explorer and find the North Pole.

First he made oceanographic researches off the coast of Greenland from his tiny boat the Gjoa, then studied terrestrial magnetism at Wilhelmshaven, Hamburg and Potsdam; and then sought the North Pole. After 19 months of hardship he proved that it had no stationary position, then completed the first voyage ever made through the Northwest Passage.

Receiving high honors for his achievement, he spent nearly four years making plans to discover the North Pole. When within $40,000 of the funds necessary to be raised, he heard that Peary had reached the Pole. Having sufficient equipment to reach the South Pole, Amundsen believed that success there would later aid him in obtaining funds for his northern explorations.

With a small crew and scanty equipment he started south. Scott, with his complete outfit, and others also were headed toward his goal, but by superb courage and endurance and the utmost attention to details Amundsen was able to plant the Norwegian flag at the South Pole December 16, 1911, the first to reach the spot.

Honored by the world, Amundsen prepared to cross the Arctic Ocean, but at the outbreak of the world war gave up the expedition because he felt his government could use its $40,000 appropriation for other purposes.

Trying again in 1918, he abandoned the trip. Last year he conducted further explorations in the Arctic and now is planning to make a flight across the North Pole region by airplane.

Connecticut's Attitude

Would Be "National Disaster."

"The election of a democratic senator from Connecticut at this time, giving President Coolidge a majority of only two republican votes in the United States, would be nothing short of a national disaster," says Major Louis Ullman of New Haven, one of the chief backers of Congressman Tilson. "Such a majority could be easily upset, including as it does, some republicans whose sympathies are open to question. Three republican senators have died within the past few months. No one can tell what the future has in store. If Hamilton Holt were to be elected United States senator from Connecticut, and the republicans were to lose two senators by illness, death or other unavoidable absence, President Coolidge, after having received the greatest vote of confidence ever given to an occupant of the white house in the history of the nation, would be left at the mercy of the democrats and radicals in congress.

The experience of the present congress, wherein the democrats have been able to combine against the republicans and block constructive legislation attempted, was a lesson to the country. The country rose to the occasion and asserted itself in no uncertain terms. But the administration majority is dangerously close in the senate, and it behooves all good citizens, be they republicans or democrats, to give the president enough votes in the senate to carry out his policies; otherwise he will be powerless. The people are always the ones who suffer when the national legislature is deadlocked.

"It is no secret that I would have preferred the nomination of Congressman Tilson for senator. A majority of the delegates in the republican convention preferred Colonel Bingham. They spoke for the republican party of Connecticut — President Coolidge's party. This is no time to quibble. Colonel Bingham has the qualifications to be a good senator. His admiration and loyalty to the president were shown throughout his campaign for the governorship and before. His opponent's admiration of the president did not become apparent until he saw the result of the November 4 election. Republicans should make no mistake about electing Colonel Bingham to the senatorship. They will have much opportunity to regret it, if they do."

State Senator Brooks' View.

"A few days ago a representative of one of the democratic newspapers of the state asked me whom I was going to support and vote for United States senator. I replied by saying 'I am a republican and intend to work and vote for Hiram Bingham, republican candidate for senator.' I further added that to my mind Hamilton Holt as a candidate for this office is unspeakable.'"

This was the statement given out Wednesday by Senator John M. Brooks of Torrington.

"Mr. Holt has stated that he would stand behind President Coolidge," continued Mr. Brooks. "This is obviously impossible because if Mr Holt were elected and expected to have any standing in the United States senate he would have to be bound by democratic party rules. He says that he is 'with President Coolidge on the world court issue,' and yet during the last campaign, speaking at Hartford under the date of October 21st he referred to international affairs by saying that 'President Coolidge has no remedies.'

"He pussyfoots on the league of nations issue. Yet if anyone desires to see Mr. Holt in New York and goes to 6 East 39th street where his office is located, the elevator man will direct him saying 'Mr. Holt?' 'Yes sir—seventh floor.' Upon reaching the office on the seventh floor it is discovered that Mr. Holt's office is the office of the League of Nations Association.

"I have been reading a number of copies of editorials of The Independent, the paper of which Mr. Holt was the editor before and during the war. I have found editorial after editorial written by Mr. Holt advocating the League of Nations and stating that 'We cannot scrap the league. It must and will live and sooner or later the United States will be a member whether it be in the year 1921 or 1925.'

"I have read with interest his statements that the 'Fight for the league must begin all over again'; that 'the country cannot accept the league issue as being settled.'

"I recollect that Mr. Holt was a republican up until 1920. I remember that he bolted the republican party because of the League of Nations. I have read with interest his statement calling the United States the 'biker nation of the world.' I have also read of his activities with Morris Hillquit, well known socialist, Louis Lochner, another socialist and secretary of the International Federation of Students before the war, and of his address before a body of socialists in Chicago known as the 'Emergency Peace Federation' where he referred to preparedness, mob hysteria' and countless other articles, speeches and statements which prove to be thoroughly unfitted to represent Connecticut in the United States senate, in my opinion.

"It is the absolute duty of every republican voter and every citizen of the state that wants Connecticut to have the representation it needs to go to the polls and vote for the republican nominee and see that everybody else does the same."

PEKING

Peking, where the imperial palace is reported to have been invaded by troops of the provisional government, is described in the following bulletin from the Washington D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic society:

"Peking is a 'city within a city.'

"As one passes within the walls he expects to find bannered signs of shopkeepers; instead he beholds broad avenues three miles long, making boulevards as fine as those of a checkerboard.

"Then the visitor begins to suspect that Peking is the one spacious Chinese city because it is not a Chinese city at all, but a Tartar city, built north.

"The Chinese portion of the city, dating back to 1543, is the commercial center. The Tatar city is about 300 years older and it is the Tartar city which includes the famous 'Forbidden City' of which the Dragon Throne of the Son of Heaven, Emperor of the Middle Kingdom, is the center.

"The famous throne is of rare wood, exquisitely carved. Behind it is a screen of golden lacquer so dainty in design that it seems a bit of filmy lace. Around this throne room are the palaces, shut in by purple walls. The streets of Peking reflect the city's infinite variety. Every thoroughfare is alive with beasts and vehicles and humans.

"Down the smooth, tree-lined roads go automobiles, cabs, rickshaws, and bicycles, all speeding past the slower moving catafalques and wedding processions on the sides. Between sidewalks and trees, along a highway of turf, go mule-mounted equestrians, soldiers on sturdy Manchurian ponies, triplets of donkeys hauling lumber, brick, coal, and crockery, portly old gentlemen straddling diminutive asses, blue-canopied Peking carts, and caravans of camels out of the north.

"Imagine a city where camels go up and down the streets upon legitimate business, not in a circus parade! The visitor strolls along Hatamen street after breakfast and there they are, on their knees, blinking in the morning sun—fine, shaggy, brown beasts, an occasional white one—rather dirty white — among them, chewing their cuds in leisure. The pavement before the shops whither they have carried merchandise has been their caravansary for the night. There are dozens upon dozens of them lining the sidewalk, up the street and down.

"By and by the drivers come forth, throw their empty sacks between the humps of the animals, rouse them, and lead them off down the street, slowly and softly stepping, in single file, out beneath the great stone arches of the Hata Gate then westward beside the frowning buttresses of the city wall.

"Almost as fascinating as the camels are the carts of Peking, or rather the little beasts which pull them—ponies, donkeys, mules, and nondescript elusive creatures that are neither horse, mule, nor ass, but subtle, indistinguishable mixtures. On first sight one is sure they are horses, on the second he is sure they are mules, on the third he is equally sure they are zebras with the stripes worn off. One historian of China speaks of the ancient Tatars as possessing horses, asses, mules, and 'other peculiar breeds of the equine family.' These ancient other breeds still trot about the Tartar city."

NEWCASTLE

Newcastle, England, which was a diplomatic irritant a year ago when local business interests became critical and the United States closed the consul's office, has come quietly back into the American consular fold. A bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society describes this east coast British industrial center and shipping point.

"Lying almost directly across the North Sea from the mouth of the Skagerrack, and strategically located with reference to Norwegian, Danish, German and Dutch ports, Newcastle grew up with a sort of commercial silver spoon in its mouth," says the bulletin. "The mouth of the Tyne on which the city lies makes an excellent port, and huge deposits of coal underlie the region, so that in growing to be a great industrial and commercial center the city merely followed the easiest path. Newcastle is situated about ten miles up the Tyne and for almost the entire distance to the sea both banks of the river are lined with quays, docks and factories.

"A familiar English proverb has firmly linked Newcastle with coal, and it is no surprise to the traveler who ascends the Tyne to see scores of smudgy barges as well as numerous ocean-going ships taking on their black cargoes. The Britons are believed to have been the first people of Europe to discover that certain "black stones" would burn, and it is probable that this discovery was made in the Newcastle region.

"Newcastle's name casts a fascinating side light on the relativity of time. The 'new castle' whose erection gave the spot its present designation was built in 1172 and is now a weatherbeaten old pile partly in ruins. The city owns the 'new castle' and maintains in it a museum of antiquities! Before this historic building boom gave Newcastle a new spurt and a new name it was known as Monkchester. It first came into existence as a Roman bridge-head in the days of Emperor Hadrian—Pons Aelii was its appellation then—and its fortifications guarded the eastern end of the wall erected by his legions.

"Newcastle was the birthplace of the railway. George Stephenson was born there. The old colliery roads with wooden and steel-shod rails, on which horses pulled carts, set him to thinking and he built a locomotive to take the place of the animals. With such a start Newcastle has become an important locomotive building center. Shipyards, ordnance factories, general steel and iron mills, chemical works, and other industries that always cluster about a center of cheap coal, have also helped build Newcastle. The city has a population of about 280,000.

"Newcastle has a number of well-preserved Elizabethan houses which give it a quaint old touch, but it is predominantly a city of fairly modern construction. One street stands out markedly in constrast to the architectural hodge-podges of most cities. It is Grey street, the buildings of which are entirely of Grecian architecture. Most ships in the British-Norwegian service make Newcastle the sole or the principal port of call in Great Britain. In the summer thousands of tourists bound for Norway and Sweden pass through the city."

Stories That Recall Others

Preserve the Surface

Billy, age three and a half, had been taught by his father to bring his little garden tools into the garage every evening, so they would not be left out in the dew and rain and rust.

Shortly after this habit had been established his mother heard a commotion at the back door. She went to the door and there found Billy dragging and pulling his little brother Bobby up the steps and out of the rain which had begun to fall.

"What are you doing, Billy?" asked the mother.

"I'm trying to get Bobby out of the rain so he won't rust," said Billy.

'Twas Jack Rabbit

A few days ago Tom and some friends were rabbit hunting. They had bagged a few and were resting when a big one suddenly hopped out of the thicket. Two hunters at once drew head on the bunny. Then Tom shouted: "Don't do it—don't you see it's Jack Rabbit? We mustn't kill him.

Guns were lowered and the bunny, with a look of gratitude from his big soft eyes and twinkle of his pink nose, hopped away for further adventuring.

"Maybe I'm getting soft," said the life saver, "but rabbit killing has some how lost its interest. I fear Jack Rabbit has got under my hide."

"BULLS" ON RAMPAGE IN STOCK MARKET

New York, Dec. 4 (By the A. P.)—Wall street "bulls" went on another rampage in today's stock market, boosting 101 stocks to new maximum quotations for the year on total sales that ran above the two-million share mark for the 15th time since election day. Net gains in the active issues ranged from one to eight and one-half points.

Veteran traders and market analysts had to turn back the pages of financial history nearly 25 years when Gould and Keene were in the heyday of their power to find a "railroad market" to equal the present one in volume and strength. Thirty-seven separate railroad issues today broke through their previous 1924 quotations, some of them attaining the highest prices in history while many others changed hands at the highest quotations in years.

The first great buying movement in the rail shares started on the day after election when it became apparent that the so-called "radical bloc" had lost the "balance of power" leaving the railroads free to carry out consolidation and development plans that had been held up by fear of adverse legislation.

Inauguration of dividends on St. Louis-San Francisco common and preferred with indications that similar action will be taken in the near future on the senior issues of the "Katy" and Wabash systems, added fuel to the speculative flame, which burned with increased fury today as a result of the favorable impression created by the president's message to congress yesterday in which he looked with approval on railroad consolidations and urged the passage of legislation to expedite them on the grounds of economy.

Southwestern carriers led the advance in the rail group, Frisco common and preferred, "Katy" common and preferred, the three Wabash issues, St. Louis Southwestern, Omaha and Texas being bid up one to nearly six points. High grade dividend payers followed in their wake, Pennsylvania, Atlantic Coast Line, Illinois Central common and preferred, Chesapeake and Ohio and Baltimore and Ohio being among the long list of new tops.

At the close of the market, both the rail and industrial averages were at the highest level in years.

While the "railroad boom" was at its height, there was not much interest in the industrials, except in the coppers, which responded to the hardening of commodity prices and merger rumors, and several specialties in which pools are believed to be active. Just before the close, however, a spirited demand developed for General Electric, which was boosted 8 1-2 points to 275 1-2, largely at the expense of an overcrowded short interest. Radio Corporation stock also developed new lease of life, being run up three points in a few minutes. Other stocks which stood out were Allied Chemical, Seaboard Air Line preferred, U. S. Realty common and preferred, Omaha common and preferred and Frisco preferred, all of which closed 4 1-2 to 7 1-2 points higher.

VOLUNTOWN

A wedding of local interest took place at St. Patrick's Cathedral, New York city, at 12 noon, on Thanksgiving day when Miss Alpha E. Gaudette, daughter of Mrs. Aline Gaudette of this village, was united in marriage with Lloyd Tracy Herbert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse L. Herbert of Norwich. Rev. Bernard McQuaide, assistant rector, performed the ceremony. The couple was attended by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Chamberland of Sterling, Conn.

GALES FERRY

The Xmas sale and roast pork supper held in the vestry of the M. E. church Wednesday evening from 6 to 8 o'clock, was largely attended, guests being present from Norwich, New London and Ledyard. The receipts of the affair were upwards of seventy dollars.

The second all-day session of the class in basketry, under the direction of Miss Gladys Stratton, home demonstration agent for New London county was held at Grange hall, Ledyard Center, Tuesday. Among those attending the class from this vicinity were Mrs. R. Irving Hurlbutt and party, Mrs. Ellie Stoddard, Mrs. Alton Stoddard, Mrs. Charles Hoyt, and Mrs. Andrew P. Miller, who motored there in Mrs. Hurlbutt's car. Mrs. Avery Main, Miss Mabel Smith, Mrs. Billings F. S. Crandall, Mrs. Billings T. Avery. A fine dinner was served at the hall.

At the Sunday school board meeting held at the M. E. parsonage, with Rev. George Smith Brown Monday evening, Superintendent C. E. Colver presiding, the goal of Sunday school attendance was set for 60 for the month of December. The attendance for both morning and evening services, of the church has also been set for 60 for the month, with the Epworth league's goal as 40. It is hoped every member of the organizations will do all they can to support the services of the church during December. Other more aggressive plans for January are being formulated.

Activities at the Country club for December include a salmagundi party given by the Village Improvement association and a community Xmas tree, announced for the evening of Dec. 22, and the singing of carols around the village, December 24 at 6.15 o'clock in the evening.

Noyes B. Allyn, who has passed his 86th birthday, can be seen at his home these pleasant days busy at the wood pile containing 12 cords of wood, which has been sawed in stove lengths by a portable saw mill. Mr. Allyn is splitting them with his axe for fuel. Mr. Allyn enjoyed the work, which he does splendidly, and says it makes him fit. All the wood, when split, will be packed by Mr. Allyn. A pageant, The Wise and Foolish Virgins, will be given Sunday evening, December 7, in the M. E. church at 7 o'clock, under the auspices of the Epworth League.

CLARK'S FALLS

Ernest Kenyon of Providence was the guest of his uncle, E. P. Chapman, over Thursday night and attended the funeral of his aunt, Mrs. Fidelia Chapman Gallup, on Friday with his cousin, Postmaster Ernest D. Chapman, who motored to the Voluntown Baptist church, where the funeral was held.

A large number of relatives and friends were present to show the love and esteem in which she was held. After the solemn service, burial took place in Gallup cemetery.

The deceased was a daughter of the late Prentice and Martha Church Chapman. Her beautiful spirit has returned to the God who gave it, to go no more out forever. Mrs. Gallup was president of the Ladies' Aid society for many years and after she was less active was honorary president during her lifetime. Her presence brought happiness; her kindnesses will long be remembered by her friends here and elsewhere. It might be said of her that she lived for others.

There was a masquerade party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Maine Saturday evening, given by their daughter, Mrs. John Lawrence, of Westerly. Prizes were given for best costumes. About forty-five attended and dancing was enjoyed until a late hour. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Frank Harris and family were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. Frank Palmer on Sunday evening.

Stephen H. Palmer motored to Storrs Friday.

Elbert W. Clark, Mrs. Adelaide Chapman Clark, Mrs. Hannah Babcock and Mrs. Nellie Palmer attended the funeral of Mrs. Fidelia Chapman Gallup at Voluntown. Mrs. Clark carried the rose piece to Moosup, where it was fastened to the casket, with white ribbons, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Congdon, a granddaughter, who cared for her in her last illness. The roses were the choice of Mrs. Gallup's brother, Edgar P. Chapman, of this place, who was not able to attend the funeral.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Burdick and daughters, Flora and Evelyn, were guests of Mrs. Horace F. Palmer, Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. George Jones has been canvassing for the Red Cross.

NOANK

Mr. Scanlan would like to start a band in the village. He used to lead the Konomoc and would like very much to see it revived again.

The sum of $1,500 was realized from the recent firemen's bazaar. This is to be used in defray some of the expense, which was caused by the shipyard fire, last summer, at which they lost heavily on hose and damage to the new engine.

NEW LAMP BURNS 94% AIR

BEATS ELECTRIC OR GAS

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and 85 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up; is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94 per cent. air and 6 per cent. common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor, O. N. Johnson, 642 N. Broad St., Philadelphia, is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Mention him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.

THE FAILURE TO MAKE THE MOST OF OPPORTUNITIES

(Written Specially for The Bulletin.)

"Tall oaks from little acorns grow," as we all know or ought to know. We've been told so often enough, surely.

We also have Sunday school authority for believing that little drops of water make the mighty ocean and little grains of sand the more or less beautious land.

Ben Franklin, in a universally familiar sort of House-that-Jack-built apologue, made clear how the fate of an empire might depend on a horse shoe nail. "For want of a nail the shoe was lost," etc. You all remember it.

In truth, so far as sermonizings and wise saws can go, we are all of us made aware, from our youth up, of the importance of small things. "It's the first step that counts." "Mony a mickle mak's a muckle," as the Scotch say. "Well begun is half done." "A stitch in time saves nine." "Small beginnings make big endings." "As the twig is bent the tree's inclined." "Save pennies; have pounds." "The constant dripping of water wears away stones."—Why, whole pages in any Book of Proverbs are filled with teachings about the eventual importance of little things, little words, little deeds.

Sometime early last season, some little screw went wrong in the meteorological combination off the Kurile islands. A stubborn wind that ought to have blown from the northwest persisted in blubbing away from the southeast. The result was an unusual deflection of the Great Japan current. That caused trouble with the weather over Saskatchewan and Alberta and a few other million square miles of the northwest territories. Just when the wheat needed the right kind of weather, too. It didn't rain when it oughter, or it rained too much when it didn't oughter. Wherefore the expected bumper crop of the great northwest — [illegible] to come up to mark.

But that vagrom breeze off the Kuriles hadn't enough git-up-and-git-it to put the kibosh on the weather over the Dakotas and Nebraska and Kansas and the rest. In those and neighboring states the season turned out a good one for wheat and the crop harvested was simply a humdinger, record-breaking in quantity and superlative in quality.

If the Canadian provinces had had their usual crops, the markets of the world would have been glutted and the price of wheat might have sunk below the level of contempt. As it was, the markets of the world found there wasn't going to be quite enough wheat to meet their demands, despite the whack-up yields of Kansas, Nebraska, et al. Wherefore and whereupon the aforesaid markets got panicky and began bawling like hungry babies for wheat at any price. They bought all that was offered at all that was asked and begged for more, even if that more should cost higher.

And so the wheat-growers of Kansas, Nebraska, et al., are "sitting pretty," and smiling with yard-wide smiles.

One Federal Reserve bank, that at Kansas City, reports that in a period of three weeks following the 1924 wheat harvest 2,351 farmers' notes, discounted by 53 Kansas banks for amounts exceeding $4,000,000, were taken up by the farmers and paid before they fell due. Similar stories come from other wheat-growing states.

As one result, good nature and optimism took the place of grouchiness over the whole Wheat Empire of the United States.

As another result, general sanity [illegible] the minds of [illegible] describes of [illegible] one new able to tell a forbank from a granite mountain.

As another result, instead of flocking [illegible] the United States are assured, for at least four years more, of fairly sane and reasonable [illegible] instead of an era of semi-anarchy and hopeless attempts to build castles in the clouds.

—All because of a trifling mix-up in the meteorological arrangements of the upper air, off the Kurile islands, many months ago.

Who'll deny, after this, that Providence works in mysterious ways its wonders to perform?

We knew that before however, without this fresh witness to its truth. In fact, we already know, in theory, a good many things that we don't work out in practice. We know a good deal more truth than we tell and a whole lot more facts than we make sensible use of. The really significant question is how many of us will be impressed enough by this latest testimony to the power of small and apparently unimportant happenings to pick up a few more of the trifling details that lie at loose ends around all our farms and see what service we might get out of them.

It isn't likely that a single one of the hardy Japanese fishermen trawling or seining off the Kuriles ever appreciated in the slightest degree the fact that the somewhat unusual weather which for a few days interfered with his fishing was going to involve the prosperity of a distant nation and stiffen the stability of its political institutions.

It wasn't likely, when Ben Franklin's courier discovered that one nail was missing from one shoe of his horse, that he appreciated the imperial disaster which that small lack was fated to evolve.

"Heaven from all creatures hides the book of fate." Very true. At present, we don't quite understand how a shift in the winds off the Kurile islands should have assured the election of Calvin Coolidge as president and the salvation of a nation from the imbecilities of Bryanism and the delirium of LaFollettism. Nor do we possess the power to control those winds,—or any others.

But, coming down to Gen. Dawes' famous brass tacks, we do know a number of things about the way in which seeds and soils act when committed to each others' embrace. We also know a number of things about the part we can play in steering the growth and development of our seeds into fruitful plants and useful harvests. We likewise know a number of things about bugs and blights and bacteria, from cutworms and the spores of potato-rot up to Prof. Esten's trained and domesticated hordes of helpful bacteria, that are waiting just outside for us to let down the bars and invite them in to provide us with nitrates and potash free gratis, for nothin'.

The really practical question is, not what mysterious ends has inscrutable Providence in view, but what immediate and serviceable results can we effect by the full and wise use of the means which lie right at our hands and which we know, if not all, at least something about.

Are we using to the utmost extent and in the wisest way the knowledge we already have? Are we thriftily taking advantage of the opportunities we can plainly see? Are we making the most of the means which we can grasp and control?

If you are, you're doing more and better than any farmer in my bishopric. You can give yourself any sort of medal you feel you deserve. You can nod yourself on your own back and hold up your head till it bumps the moon. You're a shining exception.

Do you know what started me off on this sort of talk? It was the sudden bursting, last night, of a conviction which has been growing bigger and bigger for a long time that I, John Farmer of Wayback Farm, failed, in the years when health and strength were mine, to make the most of the opportunities I saw,—and let slip. I didn't act as wisely as I knew. Nor can I find one fellow farmer in the long lists I reckon over on my fingers who acted up to his full light. We, all of us, let trifling impediments check us; let imaginary bugbears scare us; ignored details too often in reaching over-greedily after results that could only be attained by painstaking care in the management of those very details.

Now, we've all of us so made that we have to climb ladders round by round. We haven't stretch enough to step from the lowest to the uppermost round of a twenty-four foot ladder at one stride. And farming is a long, long ladder made up of innumerable rounds. The only earthly way any of us can get to the top is by taking one round at a time,—the round next above that we happen to be standing on.

It is a matter of detail of almost infinite detail. The top of the ladder may be wholly out of present reach and almost out of sight. But the next round is usually plainly visible and easily reached by one little step up. Every man's present duty, and opportunity, is to take that one little step, first making sure that we do, see it clearly and that we can trust our weight on the round.

But,—we've got to keep on climbing. "There is no discharge in that war." We shall go farther and perch higher, at the end, if we make every step c[illegible] for the utmost possible. To do t[illegible] we need to use every bit of all the knowledge we can rake and scrape, beg and borrow and buy. We must watch out for even the smallest details and see that they're made to count for all that's in them.

It isn't so often faintheartedness that loses battles as lack of care in planning and preparing for them. Lack of care for and of attention to little things.

We don't know how to control meteorological conditions off the Kurile islands. We haven't the power to control them, even if we knew how. But we know how to save manure, know a great deal better than we actually do in practice. We know how to select and keep good seed, know much better than we get, as a rule. We know how to make millions and billions of bacteria help feed our growing crops,—if we'd only use our knowledge. Etc., etc.

Why don't we? Why didn't we, years and years ago? Why aren't we going to, next year?

You tell, please. I'm a has-been now, and have time left only for regrets over plainly remembered failures. But you're not has-beens; you're come-ons.

Come on, then, not haltingly and doubtfully and grudgingly, but with both feet!

THE FARMER.

PLAINFIELD

The second night of the big annual Congregational bazaar opened Thursday. The eleven booths consisting of the food booth of the Bible class; household booth of the Ladies' Aid; grab booth of Cecil Butler; Camp Fire Girls' booth of novelty gifts; ice cream booth of the O. J. S.; Handy booth of the Order of Joyful Servers; Lincoln club booth of vegetables; Friendly Helper booth, and the pretty gift booth were still swamped with buyers. The Lincoln club members served the supper Wednesday night, having 103 guests. Carl Mathewson and Clarence Windsor supervised the serving of the supper and with the help of Messrs Harold Lewis, Fred and Harry Copper, William Hall, Ernest Struthers, Charles Hopkins, Marden Prentis and Fred Jeffers the supper was served in regular style. A real live wire entertainment followed the supper, the first number being a baritone solo by James Royal, who sang One Fleeting Hour, was accompanied by Louis Beaudrey at the piano and an obligato by Alfred Royal. This was followed by a piano selection by Miss Helen Gallup, an accomplished musician who played Polonaise by Chopin, and a selection by the church choir, Oars of Flashing Lightning. James Royal favored with the baritone solo "And Yet" accompanied by Mrs. Henry Linch at the piano and cello accompanied by his son, Alfred. The bazaar was declared by the pastor, Rev. W. C. Prentis to be a wonderful success in all respects.

The Plainfield brass band held its weekly rehearsal at the Community house hall Wednesday evening.

George Lacourse has finally found the cause of his troubles the past two months Wednesday morning, when he looked over his traps, he found the pest caught, a good sized skunk.

Many of the townspeople fail to make use of the Plainfield public library at the Community house. Miss Edith Birtwistle states that there are over 1900 books for public use. As there are many citizens of the French descent, there are books in their native tongue to read. The library is open Monday, Wednesday and Saturday afternoons. The Community house has a reading room that is is open every afternoon and evening with the exception of Sunday. Miss Birtwistle will assist any one in difficulty over books.

A number of the employes of the state highway construction company were laid off Wednesday as the road work has come to a close. All work on the cement has been stopped and will be resumed next spring. A few men are still working endeavoring to put the road way in condition for winter traffic.

The crew of the power company is doing great work on the Main street of the town. The line foreman has received permission of the property owners along the feed line to cut branches which overhang or pass through the electric wires or hinder the town lighting system in any way.

Two truck drivers of the Connecticut National Pavement company, Earle and Clifford Gerad and Louis Omer of New Haven have driven the two trucks which were used in hauling cement to the highway back to Hartford, where the trucks will be overhauled and stowed for the winter ready for work when weather permits next spring.

Misses Blanche Gangneau and Lillian Deschamps spent Wednesday with relatives in Norwich.

Henry Betteman with many local hunters spent Thursday in the woods of Canterbury trying their luck with game in that section.

Hunters returning from Canterbury district Wednesday reported that a big flock of geese were seen in the marsh land close to Canterbury.

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Boulais, Mrs George Russel and Mrs. Dr. Herman Bouvier attended the concert, in Providence, Wednesday, given by Professor Synder.

Eugene Dessert of the New Village received a telegram Thursday morning saying his father was seriously ill in New Bedford. Mr. Dessert left on the morning train for that city.

Frank Vandale has returned from an extended hunting trip north of Dover, New Hampshire. He says that game is very plentiful throughout that district.

Frank Chartier of New Bedford is spending a few days with relatives in the New Village.

Rev. W. C. Prentis, pastor of the Congregational church, attended the funeral of his aunt, Mrs. Selden Spencer, in East Hartford Wednesday.

G. N. Morris, selling agent of the Lawton Mill Corporation spent Wednesday in Plainfield.

Miss Neisie Hartwell, manager of the Community house, Mrs. Charlotte Weston and George Weston, author and short story writer, motored to New London to take a train for New York, where they will spend the week end.

Louis Guyotte, superintendent of all roads under construction for the Connecticut National Pavement company of New Haven, was in Plainfield Thursday inspecting the road work.

The Women's Bowling league at the supper Tuesday night wrote a Round Robin letter to Miss Lillian Heap who is a student at the Catherine Gibbs Secretarial school in Boston.

Elton Nolan and John W. Davis motored to Worcester on business Thursday.

The lecture by Miss Agatha Burdick given at the high school auditorium Wednesday night was a big success. She showed the pupils slides on living conditions in Alaska, coal condition, gold placer claims, oil wells, Indian relics, Alaskan Eskimo shoes, canoes, seal tusks, white rabbit fur, eskimo drums and many articles of interest.

The students of the senior class of Plainfield High school planned a farce to be given at the auditorium Friday night. This is to be one of many lively entertainments to be given by the students of the school.

The women were instructed in swimming by Instructor Vincent, at the Community house swimming tank Thursday afternoon.

The house committee met at the Community house rooms, Wednesday night when plans for a big entertainment to be given in the near future were discussed.

A new bulletin board was installed at the Community house club rooms Thursday. This board will be used for all bulletins on scout, work for girls and boys.

William Gelinas, a former Central Village resident, leader of Bills Radio broadcasting band, has been visiting friends in Plainfield the past two days.

Arthur Fortier's blue ribbon collie is suffering from an acute attack of poisoning. Everything possible is being done to save the collie, which is a valuable thoroughbred.

Mrs. Philip Phanuf of Nashua, N. H., is spending the week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fortier.

Ted Harrington, former football star of the University of Georgetown was a business caller in Plainfield Thursday.

Mrs. George Levine entertained the Pastime Sewing Circle Wednesday evening at her home on Spring street. There was a full attendance. Lunch was served.

Among those to attend the auction bridge given Thursday afternoon at the City club, Hartford, by Mrs. William Trumbull were Mrs. J. Edmund Hurley, Mrs. Owen O'Neill, Mrs. Fred M. Smith, Mrs. Margaret Brick Church and Mrs. Elizabeth Hardmann.

WILLIMANTIC HUNTERS GET BACK THEIR LICENSES

Willimantic, Dec. 4.—Lost according to a notification received on November 29 the hunting licenses of John T. Meikle and Edward P. Lyman of this city have been returned to date, it was made known Thursday. The men were convicted of a trespassing charge before Justice of the Peace Charles A. Faulkner in the Andover town court on Nov. 22. The local men and the third member of the party, Charles Lyon of New York were fined $10 and costs for trespassing on land owned by Merwin A Berry during a hunting trip. Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton was notified on Nov 29 that the hunting licenses of the two men had been revoked for violation of the hunting laws. Town Clerk Fenton had attended the court session in Andover and knew the facts in the case. He informed Superintendent John W. Titcomb of the state fisheries and game that the charge was merely a technical one, only for trespassing and had no reference to the hunting laws. In his reply, stating that the hunting privileges of the men stood restored, Superintendent Titcomb expressed sorrow at the incident and stated that his information was due to a clerical error.

TEACHERS' ASSOCIATIONS DISCUSS RURAL PROBLEMS

Rural education is progressing. All the state teachers' associations now have special sections devoted to the discussion of problems directly concerned with the improvement of country schools. Even Rhode Island the most urban of all the states, has a large and enthusiastic village and rural section in its state association. At a meeting held recently several hundred members of that section showed vital interest in school consolidation, transportation, and other problems usually associated with states which have a large rural population.

MODERN METHODS ARE BETTER THAN THE OLD

Nine-year-old pupils today spell better than pupils of the same age 45 years ago, according to reports from studies made by Boston University. A survey conducted in 1879 in Norfolk County, Mass., included three words common to those of the recent survey. The average spelling scores of 9-year-old pupils on "which," "whose" and "too," in 1879 were 69, 54, and 23, respectively. A spelling contest recently conducted in 78 Massachusetts towns and cities showed that pupils of like age scored 76, 60, and 79, respectively, on the same words.

Kellogg's Bran delights father by bringing health to children

Poor little kids—they needed bran badly. But they wouldn't eat ordinary brans. They didn't like them. Most folks don't. Then their father tried Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled. What a difference! He tells the story in his letter:

"Dear Sirs:

I wish to express my appreciation of your krumbled bran, which I have used for my children this summer. We had a great deal of trouble with them through constipation, and bran had been the most satisfactory remedy but they could not be induced to take the old varieties . . . because they disliked them so. They enjoy the krumbled bran and consider it an essential ingredient of their porridge. No one whose children have not been troubled in this way can appreciate the relief there is in having their bowels move regularly."

Constipation is a dangerous disease. It should not be neglected. But do not try halfway measures in seeking relief. Kellogg's Bran is ALL bran. And it takes ALL bran to be 100% effective. Kellogg's Bran is guaranteed to bring permanent relief, if eaten regularly, in the most chronic cases. If it fails, your grocer will return your money.

Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. Eat it with milk or cream. The flavor is delicious. Sprinkle it on other cereals. Cook it with hot cereals. Try it in the recipes on every package. It will bring you health. Begin eating it to-day. Made in Battle Creek. Sold by all grocers.

Women's Minor Ills come from one cause

Chronic constipation is the plague of their lives, but thousands keep healthy with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin

WOMEN are so accustomed to finding themselves constipated that they are apt to make matters worse by indifference. Unfortunately many seem to think that it is easier to give the appearance of health with cosmetics, or stifle a headache with an opiate, than to remove the real cause by taking a good laxative.

The pill habit, of course, is not to be recommended, but any woman can take such a mild laxative as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin with assurance that the dose can gradually be decreased and that there will be no shock or weakening of the system.

As is generally known, Syrup Pepsin is a simple vegetable compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and pleasant-tasting aromatics. A spoonful will clean out the impacted matter and make you feel well by morning.

You should take a dose when you feel the slightest symptom of constipation, such as biliousness, flatulency, lassitude, loss of appetite, restless sleep, bad breath, dull eyes, sallow skin, and to stop fevers and colds. Many do not wait for these symptoms, but take Syrup Pepsin regularly once a week. Mrs. Mary J. White, 122 Cedar Ave., Camden, N. J., and Mrs. L. H. Edwards, Palisade, Colo., say that much of their excellent health can be ascribed to Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. The other members of the family also use it as, being free from opiates and narcotics, it is perfectly safe, even for infants.

More than ten million bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are sold annually, the largest sale in the world. If you have been in the habit of using strong cathartic pills, salt waters or "candy cathartics," which contain a coal-tar drug called phenolphthalein, we especially urge you to try this milder method. You will have a better, freer passage and without strain or gripe. A bottle can be had at any drug store and the average cost is less than a cent a dose.

Free Sample Bottle Coupon

There are people who very rightly prefer to try a thing before they buy it. Let them clip this coupon, pin their name and address to it, and send it to the Pepsin Syrup Co., 518 Washington Street, Monticello, Illinois, and a free sample bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will be sent them postpaid by mail. Do not inclose postage. It is free.

WEDDINGS.

Robish—Ladd

A very pretty wedding took place at Ashlawn, Hanover, last Monday afternoon at two o'clock when Miss Louise Breed Ladd, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allison B. Ladd, Jr., became the bride of John Robish, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John Robish of Norwich Town.

Before the ceremony, Mrs. Roderick MacLeod sweetly sang "There's a Little Brown Bird Singing in My Heart." As Mrs. William G. Park played the bridal chorus from Lohengrin, the bridal party descended the stairs. At the foot of the stairs, Rev. Roderick MacLeod was met by Mrs. MacLeod, matron of honor, who led the procession to the parlor. The little flower girls, the Misses Finis and Jessie MacLeod, carrying baskets of pink and white carnations, preceded the bride and her sister, Miss Gertrude Huntsman Ladd. The groom and his best man, William E. Babbitt, followed the bride and her maid of honor.

The bride was charming in white crepe de chine with lace trimmings and a tulle veil caught with orange blossoms and carrying a shower bouquet of white roses. A pearl necklace, the groom's, was her only ornament. The maid of honor wore peach crepe de chine with white trimmings and carried an arm bouquet of pink roses. Mrs. MacLeod was dressed in blue and gold with a corsage bouquet of pink roses. The flower girls wore blue and pink.

Following the reception, a buffet lunch consisting of chicken salad, rolls, coffee, ice cream and assorted cakes, was served to 75 relatives and friends. Guests were present from Westerly, Putnam, Willimantic, Franklin, Watch Hill, Broad Brook, Norwich Town, Occum and Hanover and included the bride's grandfather who celebrated his 92nd birthday in November.

The bride is a member of the Hanover Congregational church, a member of its choir, and primary superintendent of the Sunday school. She graduated from the Norwich Free Academy in 1920. The groom is a successful young farmer and for a number of years has operated a thriving milk route in Occum and Taftville.

Both the bride and groom are very popular and have the best wishes of a host of friends. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful gifts, including furniture, an electric lighting plant, a piano lamp, pictures, cut glass, linen and money.

The bride's gift to her maid of honor was a golden topaz ring, to her matron of honor, a picture, and to the flower girls, gold necklaces with lockets. The groom gave his best man a silver shaving set.

The bridal couple left by auto early in the evening amid a shower of confetti for a short honeymoon trip which will include Hartford, Providence and Portsmouth, R. I. The bride's going away suit was of navy blue poiret twill with a powder blue blouse and hat to match. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Robish will make their home at Ashlawn.

PROGRESSING WITH PLANS FOR COMMUNITY CHRISTMAS

Plans for the community Christmas tree and festival are progressing well in the hands of the several committees of the Norwich Rural association under the general chairmanship of President Francis Gilman.

The selectmen of Norwich have granted permission to hold the exercises on the Norwich Town green, the same as last year. President James L. Case of the gas and electric commission has promised the same support as last year; and a letter has been forwarded Mr. Taggart soliciting his assistance, which doubtless will be granted.

H. D. Larrabee has been approached to render aid in providing stays to support the tree after the tree has been set up under the direction of Bartholomew Sullivan.

Rex. Alexander H. Abbott, chairman on music, has that part of the program well under way. The date has been set for Thursday, December 25th, (Christmas night) to give many who have to work Christmas eve, an opportunity to join in the festivities.

NO JURY VERDICT IN PRESTON LIQUOR CASE

A jury in the criminal common pleas court at New London, Thursday struggled for four hours and three quarters in an attempt to reach a verdict in the case of Morris Pastor of Preston, accused of violation of the liquor law. At the end of that time they announced that it was impossible to agree and Judge C. B. Waller discharged them from further consideration of the case.

Attorney John H. Barnes represented the defendant at whose place in Preston a raid was made by officers on the night of July 3, 1924 and a jug said to contain cider was seized.

The committee plans to make this ceremonial one of the largest in the history of the shrine and a large class of candidates from Norwich will be initiated into the mysteries of the order.

The nomination of Howard M. Gore to the secretary of agriculture was confirmed by the president.

ATTORNEYS CLASH SHARPLY IN TRIAL OF SUIT OVER FUR COAT

Clashes between attorneys for plaintiff and defendant and the excitability and volubility of two of the defense witnesses in the trial of a suit over a fur coat provided an unusually lively session of the superior court here Thursday afternoon. More than once Judge G. E. Hinman came to the rescue and brought quiet out of the confusion with his quiet but authoritative voice, when Mrs. Sadie Machol, the official stenographer, threw both hands in the air and declared her inability to take the notes while two attorneys and the witness were all talking at once.

The trial was on the suit of Mrs. Winifred B. Douglass of 130 Squire street, New London, wife of William B. Douglass, against Sidney Hart of Hartford, proprietor of a fur shop in that city and New London. She asked damages of $1,000 for non-delivery of a Hudson seal coat, which she had bought and paid $600 for from the concern, had subsequently taken back to have it remodeled to the style of another coat. For this the charge was to be $300. She alleged that she had paid $250 receiving a receipt in full, but the company is retaining the coat and also a number of pieces of skunk fur that belong to her.

Mr. Hart makes a counter claim for a $50 balance on the repairs, alleging that Mrs. Douglass obtained the receipt in full by trickery, and he also claims $40 more for two hats he alleges she bought and never paid for.

Attorney G. C. Mogran appears for the plaintiff and Attorney A. S. Weisman of New Haven for the defendant. The jury on the case comprises: Henry Gebrath, Norwich; Daniel Lynch, Preston; William A. Edmond, Griswold; James A. Thomas, George L. Randall, Lebanon; William Church, Jabez Bailey, Bozrah; Charles Frink, Roland Browning, Franklin; James McCann, James Graham, Lisbon and Ernest L. Spencer, Salem.

Mrs. Douglass was the first witness to testify. She said she bought a Hudson seal coat of Mr. Hart himself in his New London shop for $600 in the summer of 1920. She wore it several times the following winter, she said, and the winter following wore it on various occasions. In August, 1923, she took the coat to Mr. Hart's fur shop in Hartford, where she made a deal with him personally to alter the coat and adding small trimmings at a price of $250. In December of that year the coat was returned to her and she accepted it, the garment looking all right to her. Trying it on she found that the buttons were not on in the right order. Mr. Hart stated that if she would take the Hudson seal to his New London establishment that it would be fixed. She stated that she did not like the manager there, Mr. Harris, and did not wish to have any dealing with him.

The first day afterward she wore the coat and it ripped out at the back and under the arm. She went back to Hartford with it. Seven or eight trips, at a cost of $5 per trip were made to Hartford by Mrs. Douglass to have the coat repaired, as it ripped out that many times. It always tore through the back. It was at Mr. Hart's suggestion she said, that she went to Hartford so many times. On one occasion it was alleged that one of the salesmen in the Hart store told her that the coat was made too small for her and could not be remodeled again. April, 1924 was the last time that she went to Hartford with the coat, which is still in possession of Hart.

Sarah K. Sims, sister of the plaintiff, told of residing in East Hartford for a time and of her sister coming up to visit her, and they both going to the Hartford store. She said she was there when the salesman stated that the coat was too small. She went there four or five times with Mrs. Douglass.

After testimony on fur coat values by J. C. Macpherson of this city, the plaintiff rested.

Defense Testimony

Sidney Hart, the defendant and Samson Harris, manager of his New London store, furnished the excitement in the court session when they came to testify and clashed repeatedly with Attorney Morgan. Mr. Hart testified that Mrs. Douglass got the receipt in full by telling one of his clerks that the price was to be $250 when the charge was $300. He put the value of her coat at $300 to $350 after it had been remodeled.

Mr. Harris testified that the reason Mrs. Douglass did not like him was because he insisted that she pay for a $35 squirrel choker that she took from the store, kept it nine months and then returned it. He also told of a $22.50 hat that she had bought and never paid for. He related a telephone conversation with her in which he had asked why they couldn't have a chance to fix it up about the seal coat, but he said that her response was that she was going to have a jury trial and the jury would give her a verdict and that would hurt his business.

Sidney Buriack, general manager of the Hartford fur store, testified to the times Mrs. Douglass came back to have a button readjusted, claiming the coat should be made snugger. He denied that he ever told her the coat couldn't be made to fit and there was no sense in her trying to wear it.

Mrs. Frances Fuessenich, an employe at the Hartford store, told of the repairs that were made to the coat to cost $300. She was the one who gave the receipt for $250, saying that she took the word of Mrs. Douglass that this was the amount. She said the coat that was the model they were altering Mrs. Douglass coat after was priced at $550 and Mrs. Douglass coat was worth between $350 and $400.

In rebuttal Mrs. Sims said she was present and heard Mr. Hart tell Mrs. Fuessenich to give Mrs. Douglass a receipt for $250 in full.

The evidence closed with Mrs. Douglass reading a letter she had written to Mr. Hart, which he had been unable to read and which had baffled the attempts of both attorneys in the case to read through to the end.

The trial will be resumed on next Tuesday morning.

WEEKLY MEETING OF NORWICH LIONS CLUB

The weekly luncheon and meeting of the Norwich Lions Club was held Thursday at noon in the Wauregan hotel dining room with a large attendance of members and President Edward Carpenter presiding. Lion Doc Thompson acted as song leader. There were a number of guests present and after their introduction there were group songs and solos by the club members. A feature of the programme was a trio, Ed Rich, Doc Markoff and Herbert Corey.

At the business meeting the following committee was appointed to make plans for a Christmas entertainment for the children of Norwich on or about December 18th: J. B. Caron, Louis Fontaine, and John Barry. During the session it was voted that the club purchase a tuberculosis fund bond.

Fred Johnson of the Ford Motor Company of New York, a guest at the meeting, gave a very interesting and educational talk on the details of the Ford Motor Company's business and its many branches. He spoke particularly of the two main plants in Detroit where 140,000 people are employed six days a week the year round. In Detroit there is a 600 bed hospital built by Henry Ford. A rising vote of thanks was given Mr. Johnson for his address.

Just before the meeting came to a close, Rev. Robert B. Day paid a brief and fitting tribute to the late James McKee, the civil war veteran who was killed in an accident Wednesday evening and out of respect to him the club members stood in silent prayer. The singing of The Star Spangled Banner and the salute to the flag brought the meeting to a close.

COURT REPORTER RETIRES ON $4,500 PENSION

At the meeting of the state board of control Thursday James P. Andrews was retired as reporter of supreme court of errors on a pension of $4,500 a year. The action is in accordance with the provision made at the last session of the general assembly for his retirement.

The position has been filled by Mr. Andrews for thirty-one years. He was first appointed on the retirement of the late John Hooker. The retirement allowance of Mr. Andrews is three-quarters of his salary as reporter. The retirement will go into effect January 1, 1925. His successor will be John M. Comley of Bridgeport, whose brother, former Senator William H. Comley has been appointed state's attorney for Fairfield county in succession to Homer S. Cummings, resigned.

HIGH POWER ELECTRICAL TRANSMISSION LINES

Syracuse, N. Y., Dec. 4.—A vision of a giant network of high power electrical transmission lines, interconnected one with the other and embracing nearly the whole state of New York, most of New England, and eventually much of Pennsylvania, was unveiled before members of the Empire State Gas and Electric association at the afternoon session of the annual convention here today.

C. A. Bacon of Schenectady, engineer of the Adirondack Power and Light croporation of that city, outlined the so-called "super-power" system in the course of an address on "Technical Preblems Involved in Interconnection of Transmission Systems."

Although the interconnection of adjoining power transmission lines in itself does not comprise the super-power system, he explained, it was the preliminary step, and had been taken in New York state and Massachusetts to the extent of leaving but a single break in transmission lines between Niagara Falls and Boston.

PREMIER HERRIOT AGAIN SUSTAINED BY DEPUTIES

Paris, Dec. 4 (By the A. P.)—The chamber of deputies today sustained Premier Herriot in his demand for indefinite postponement of discussion of the question of amnesty for Jacques Sadoul, the vote being 344 to 92.

Andre Berthon, the communist deputy who is also attorney for Sadoul, had interpellated the premier upon the arrest today of the former French army captain who in 1919 was sentenced to death by default by a courtmartial on the charge of treason.

The deputy had demanded that the government apply the general amnesty to Sadoul which was voted by the chamber some months ago and later rejected by the senate. Premier Herriot requested the chamber to adjourn the decision to the bottom of the order of the day and M. Berthon then asked for an immediate debate.

BODIES OF TWO CHILDREN WERE FOUND IN BROOK

Waterbury, Vt., Dec. 4.—The bodies of two children were found in a brook here today by the mother of one of them. The children were Raymond Guptil, 5, and Gordon Graves, 4. They were neighbors and playmates They were coasting near their homes all afternoon and were not missed until evening.

Marks in the snow on the bank of the brook showed where the boys had slipped into the three feet of water but the frantic mother of Gordon, who waded in the icy waters until she recovered both bodies, had trampeled the snow so that it was impossible to tell what caused the children to fall in.

BILL FOR EXECUTIVE DEP'T OF EDUCATION AND RELIEF

Washington, Dec. 4.—A bill providing for the creation of an executive department of education and relief was introduced today by Chairman Dallinger of the house education committee.

A secretary, appointed by the president, would head the department, aided by three assistants heading education, public health and veterans' relief agencies which would take over the duties of numerous bureau now under the jurisdiction of other departments. Representative Dallinger said the bill was drawn along lines approved by the White House.

FATALLY INJURED BY SWITCHING ENGINE

New Britain, Dec. 4.—Michael Hollywood, 71 years old, a former employe of the Stanley Works, was fatally injured by a switching engine while walking along the tracks near the High street crossing tonight. He was taken to the New Britain General hospital where it was found that he received a fracture of the skull and internal injuries. He died a short time after the accident.

Mr. Hollywood leaves one daughter, Mrs. Fred Gray, with whom he made his home.

HOLT AT DEMOCRATIC RALLY IN MERIDEN

Meriden, Dec. 4—Hamilton Holt, democratic nominee for United States senator, continuing his campaign at a democratic rally held here tonight, took up each proposal advanced by President Coolidge in his annual message to congress and stated his position on each.

Counting by Hands

Many a lad could get "E" in arithmetic and yet be excused if found wanting in a counting match with the natives of Guina in South Africa. Indeed, it might puzzle even a good arithmetician to add together the numbers expressed by two men, hand and first finger, and two hands and two fingers.

The Indians of that quarter of the world have a system of enumeration of their own, of which the human hand is the basis. They count upon the fingers until five is reached, when they denote the number by a hand. Six is a hand and first finger, and 10 is two hands, but when 20 is reached a new time is used. Twenty is denoted by a man and 40 by two men.

Forty-five would be two men, and a hand, and 46, two men, hand, and first finger. It is not a complicated system, but it requires practice to use it freely.

Gnats Like Smoke

A swarm of gnats, estimated at several millions, lodged in a corner of the First National Bank Building at Connellsville, Pa., and resulted in a fire alarm being sounded. A pedestrian saw what he believed to be smoke issuing from the cornice, but the firemen could discover no blaze. It was found that the swarming of the gnats appeared from the sidewalk to be just like smoke.

BAN JOHNSON RAKED OVER THE COALS AT LAST SESSION OF MINOR LEAGUES

Hartford, Conn., Dec. 4.—(By The A. P.)—In one of the stormiest sessions in its history, the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, involving the 35 minor leagues in the country, closed up its annual meeting today by adopting resolutions denouncing Byron Bancroft Johnson, president of the American League, for his utterings in respect to gambling conditions in the Pacific Coast League, reiterating its faith and confidence in Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis as head of organized baseball and by ignoring the proposed amendments to the major-minor agreement, knifed at the major leagues for their apparent attempts to dominate baseball in the minor leagues.

Flaying "a major league president," the first resolution adopted today for creating "doubt, confusion and a condition inimical to the welfare of baseball" and branding those who by "harrassment, guerilla tactics and otherwise" increase the perplexities of the office of Commissioner Landis, the magnates went on record as saying that baseball was in a "chaotic condition" because of what they termed were "unwarranted attacks."

The parting shot taken at President Johnson in the second resolution was characterized by some of the more prominent league presidents as the most drastic measure ever adopted by baseball to clean up the haze of suspicion against the national game, created by Johnson's insinuations. Harry A Williams, president of the Pacific Coast League, whose circuit introduced the first resolution yesterday which resulted in the general resolution adopted by the convention as a whole today, said that Johnson's charges of gambling on the coast would be probed to the roots of their sources and that he would be forced publicly to prove his charges or withdraw them.

Several economical measures which were brought up for consideration at the final meeting were tabled because "the hidden hand of the major leagues" was seen behind the apparent veil of economy.

The first resolution adopted today was termed by one magnate as a shot at Johnson for his utterings concerning Landis while the second resolution dealing spesifically with the Pacific coast situation was adopted at the request of Pacific Coast League officials which supplements a previous resolution adopted yesterday at a special meeting of the coast wheel.

The major-minor agreement amendment proposals were completely ignored by the association today which met in an executive session behind closed doors and Secretary Farrell said the only business transacted was the adoption of the resolutions.

The other resolutions were likewise adopted, one thanking the city of Hartford for its hospitality in entertaining the delegates and the other expressing heartfelt sympathy to Commissioner Landis for the death of Mrs. Landis' sister and the consequent illness of Mrs. Landis.

Resolutions Adopted.

"Resolved further, that we have a full appreciation of the unusual duties and difficulties which attend the office of commissioner; that we decry and condemn the attempts of any or all who seek through harrassment, guerilla tactics and otherwise needlessly increase the perplexities of the office and add to the troubles of baseball which is very near and dear to the hearts of all of us, therefore, be it further

"Resolved, that we take this occasion to re-affirm publicly our continued faith and confidence in the integrity and ability of Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, who was, owing to the chaotic condition of baseball, drafted from a high and honorable position in the federal government in the service of baseball, and be it

"Resolved further that as a result of recent attacks on the commissioner by a major league president doubt, confusion, and a condition inimical to the welfare of baseball has been created, and firmly believing that the game's greatest security and safeguard for the future lies in fullest cooperation between the members of the association, the two major leagues and Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis; be it

"Resolved further, that this association give its fullest and unqualified support and endorsement to Commissioner Landis in his methods of conduct and leadership in organized baseball, convinced and knowing that he has the fullest approval and confidence of the baseball public and the country at large."

The special committee appointed last night to draw up resolutions directing the course of action the association shall take to force President Johnson to prove or withdraw his charges of gambling in Pacific coast baseball circles, reported the following resolution which was adopted:

"Whereas newspaper interviews attributed to Byron B. Johnson, president of the American League, have been broadcast through the country charging that conditions in the Pacific Coast League are rotten and that open gambling on baseball for high stakes is in vogue and that such conditions exist with the knowledge and approval of the club officials of the circuit.

"Now therefore, the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, demands that Ban B. Johnson state whether or not he gave out any such interviews, and if he did that he prove his charges before the commissioner of baseball, not by innuendo, insinuation, hearsay, and gossip but by sworn statements of reputable persons.

"And we further take this occasion to express our complete confidence in the administration of the national game in the Pacific Coast League and our strong belief in the honesty, integrity and sportsmanship of its officials."

Players Sold and Traded.

Clyde Milan, manager of the Memphis club of the Southern Association, announced the outright purchase of Third Baseman Taylor and First Baseman Wade Lefler from the Washington Americans. He also purchased Shortstop John R. Jenkins from the Rochester club of the International.

Dan Howley, manager of the Toronto Internationals, purchased Pitchers Gibson and Smith from the Detroit Americans. The two pitchers were with Asheville, N. C., in the South Atlantic League last season.

Billy Webb, Buffalo International manager, bought Chant Farkes, a right handed pitcher, from the Ottawa club of the Quebec and Ontario League. Zinn Beck, manager of the Greeneville, S. C., "Sally" League club announced the sale of Arthur Ritter, a second baseman to the Danville, Ill., "Three I" league club.

Reading of the International League sold Huck Ormund, an outfielder to the Beaumont club of the Texas League. Reading also purchased Sam Hyman, of the New Haven club of the Eastern League.

Oscar Tuero, Cuban twirler and former member of the St. Louis Cardinals, was sold by the Reading Internationals to the Mobile club of the Southern Association.

Thomas L. Turner, president of the Portland club of the Pacific Coast club, announced the sale of Ed Lennon to the Williamsport club of the New York-Pennsylvania League. He also bought William Crosby, a catcher, from the Tulsa club of the Western League.

Zip Sloan, Hartford Eastern League pitcher, was sold to the New Orleans club of the Southern Association.

Two other big league transactions were reported. The first one sent Frankie Ellerbe, former Washington and St. Louis American infielder from the Cleveland Americans to the Kansas City club of the American Association and the other transferred Pitcher Joe Lucey from Jersey City to the International League to the Boston Red Sox.

CONTEMPLATES NO CHANGES IN LINEUP OF GIANTS

New York, Dec. 4.—Discussing his 1925 prospects for the first time since returning from his European tour, John McGraw declared that he was satisfied with the lineup that carried the New York Giants to their fourth straight National league pennant and contemplated no changes now for next season.

"I have a fine young club," said McGraw, "and am satisfied with it and confident it will make a good showing next year. I do not intend to initiate any deals in connection with the major league meetings here next week but am ready to listen to the proposals of any other managers."

McGraw admitted Cincinnati had bid for Bill Terry to succeed the late Jake Daubert at first base but said no deal had been made.

The Giants will do their spring training again at Sarasota, Fla., according to McGraw, who also announced the dates of eleven exhibitions games in the south with the world's champion Washington Senators. The dates follow:

March 11, Miami, Fla.; 12, Palm Beach; Sarasota, 13, Tampa; April 6, Birmingham, Ala.; 7 and 8, Augusta, Ga.; 9 and 10, Washington; 11 and 12, New York.

On April 4 and 5, the Giants will play the Memphis club of the Southern association while the Senators will meet the New Orleans club of the same circuit.

BALTIC WANDERERS OPEN TONIGHT AT BALTIC

On Friday the Baltic Wanderers will open their basketball season at Baltic with the Headquarters Battalion service team from New London who are sending up a strong team to try and take the opening game. The Wanderers will have a strong team on the floor with Captain Coady, formerly of the State Hospital team, Simoneau, Charron, Ridgeway, Ralph Robertaille, Sullivan and Walter Robertaille to pick from, at last men. The team in practice has shown good pass work and good all around playing.

For the preliminary game the Bantams will have the Army and Navy ends who defeated them Tuesday night, and hope to turn the tables and even up the count.

MOOSUP SUFFERS SETBACK AT HANDS OF TAFTVILLE

Moosup, runners-up in the Eastern Connecticut Bowling league, suffered a severe setback at the hands of the Taftville five Thursday evening at the Taftville alleys when Taftville took three straight games from the upstate team. The Moosup bowlers were far from championship form, especially McKenzie, who last Monday night knocked off a league record, but last night was only able to do better than 86. Chip Dugas was the mainstay of his team, getting 132 for high single and 333 for high total for the evening. The scores:

SCHEDULE MEETING FOR WEST. FOOTBALL CONFERENCE

Chicago, Dec. 2.—The schedule meeting of the Western Conference, to be held here Friday and Saturday, when the football dates for 1925 will be agreed upon promised to be an interesting scramble for games.

In addition to the schedule making, the big ten coaches and faculty representatives will meet to vote on amendments to the rules governing athletics, if any are presented for consideration. The program of the faculty representatives had not been made public but they may consider abolishing the rule prohibiting postseason intersectional games.

There are more east-west intersectional games scheduled for the 1925 season of the "Big Ten" than in any ordinary year. Chicago, Michigan, Illinois and Ohio all have intersectional contests booked. Illinois, in addition to meeting Pennsylvania, may attempt to arrange a game with the undefeated Notre Dame team, according to reports from Champaign.

Chicago also will meet Pennsylvania next season, while Ohio State has been dickering for a game with a leading eastern eleven. Michigan already has booked a game with the Navy, while Wisconsin hopes to arrange a game with Cornell or Dartmouth.

MANY INDIVIDUAL STARS DEVELOPED DURING THE 1924 FOOTBALL SEASON

New York, Dec. 4.—(By the A. P.)—The 1924 football season was replete with brilliant individual scoring achievements, according to an elaborate compilation of records from 250 colleges and universities in various parts of the country, made by Parke H. Davis, of Easton, Pa., noted gridiron authority and statistician.

The rarest of scoring plays, the runback of a kick-off for touchdown, was achieved only twelve times this fall, according to the compilation, which shows that the honor of reeling off the longest run fell to two players, Ernest B. MacLane of Wesleyan dashed 100 yards against the Massachusetts Aggies and John M. Brown of Alabama covered the same distance, the full length of the gridiron, in a game against Kentucky state.

Of approximately 10,000 points during the season, only 25 were run back for touchdowns, the list reveals, and again two players tie for the longest distance covered. Louis B. Massinkoff of Gillaudet college returned a punt ninety yards for a touchdown against Drexel and William Bone of Tennessee duplicated the feat against Emory and Henry.

Long scoring runs for scrimmage were unusually abundant with Henry M. Benkert of Rutgers east's high scorer, setting the pace with an 88 yard run through Lebanon Valley. David Rosenfield of Alabama raced only three yards less to score against Mississippi. For consistent brilliance in this respect, however, the palm is awarded to Harold (Red) Grange of Illinois, with runs of 30, 65, 55 and 50; John M. Brown of Alabama with dashes of 83, 80, 58 and 48 yards; and Rosenfield, who besides his 85 yard dash hung up other distances of 82, 76 and 59 yards.

Edwin B. Dooley, Dartmouth quarterback and captain-elect for 1925, flung the longest forward pass, fifty yards to Henry Bjorkman, who raced 15 more yards to make a touchdown against Cornell.

The longest run with a completed pass, 75 yards, was achieved by Carl B. Merrill of Western Maryland against Catholic university. This run also figured in the longest forward pass play for Merrill made his run after a 15 yards pass from A. Carroll, thus making a total advance of 90 yards. This feat was tied when Aloys Papke of Middlebury threw a pass forty yards to Walter Patton who ran fifty yards more through Tufts to score.

The longest runs with an intercepted pass were made by Ernest C. Cadigan of Amherst who caught a Hamilton aerial and raced 98 yards to score, and Charles T. Hughes of Kentuck who duplicated the feat against Alabama.

Two players also shared the distinction of making the longest runs for touchdowns after picking up fumbles. Gale Bullman of West Virginia Wesleyan running 94 yards against Syracuse and Lynn Bomar of Vanderbilt covering the same distance on a similar play against the Qautico Marines.

The longest scoring run with a blocked kick was only 25 yards. The records show this distinction going to Benjamin Soule of Colby, who beat Trinity with two of these plays.

Cataloging the field goal achievements, Mr. Davis finds that Donald H. Rutherford of Virginia Polytechnic leads with the longest goal, a dropkick of 52 yards against Maryland. Ernest E. Williams of Auburn leads the place-kickers with a drive of 50 yards against Clemson.

John F. McBride of Syracuse, who conquered Columbia "single-footed" with three field goals, sent eleven kicks altogether through the crossbars for the highest total of any performer. All were from placement. Ralph Baker of Northeastern and Pat Dawson of Beloit led the dropkickers with seven each.

Two players, both dropkickers, gained the honor kicking four goals in a single game, a season's record. Dawson performed the feat against Carleton and Edgar W. Garbisch, Army captain, sank the Navy with a duplicate performance.

LARRY DOYLE MAY RETURN TO GIANTS AS COACH

New York, Dec. 4.—Larry Doyle, former captain and second baseman of the New York Giants, may return to the National league champions as coach next season, replacing Cozy Dolan, who has been barred from baseball for his alleged part with Jimmy O'Connell in the attempted bribery of Heinie Sand, Philadelphia shortstop. Doyle's appointment is said to be under consideration although Manager McGraw refused to confirm this offer.

Except for a season with the Chicago Cubs in 1917 Doyle was with the Giants from 1907 to 1920, playing on four of McGraw's pennant winners and being rated among the best keystone sackers in the game. He has figured in minor league and independent ranks since then.

TILLIE DANIELS ELECTED B. B. CAPTAIN AT BULKELEY

New London, Dec. 4.—Hardly had the moleskins been placed away when other matters of an athletic nature took place at Bulkeley High School this afternoon. A meeting of ten members of last year's strong baseball team was held in the school assembly after school was dismissed. The purpose for the meeting was to elect a captain for the nine this coming season. While this important matter was not taken care of at the termination of last year's season, yet almost every member of that fast Orange and Black nine of last season was present this afternoon with the exception of Sanforth Tuttle, first base man and Manager William Reeves. These men who would have been eligible to vote for a captain were unable to do so because they were away at school.

Out of the afternoon's voting, Tillotson Daniels of the senior class was unanimously chosen to lead the 1925 baseball nine. His name was the only one to be put up for the position and he was the unanimous choice of his teammates. The meeting was orderly and in charge of Coach William R. Carty, and it is believed this evening to be the first time a Bulkeley player was elected to the captaincy by a unanimous decision. It is indeed a great honor to pay Tillie Daniels, and he deserves the honor which was conferred upon him.

Tillotson Daniels, a member of the senior class, will see his third season of baseball this coming year. His position on the baseball team which is the most important of the nine men and that a pitcher's, will see Daniels at his best this year. His playing throughout last year and the year before drew favorable comment from the leading sporting critics. Daniels hung up a most unusual record during his reign on the mound. In two years of active service under the colors of the Orange and Black, Daniels has been ranked as the leading pitcher. He was selected for the important games of the season and when he beat Hartford High almost single handed two years ago he also won Bulkeley their second State High School championship in two years. Daniels in this game pounded out a brace of doubles, and a like amount of triples. His pitching was superb, and he allowed but a single run. It was this game which really brought Daniels into prominence and elevated his name to new high levels in high school activities.

In all the time Daniels has been on the mound for Bulkeley he has lost but one game out of thirteen starts. The only game he lost was at the Hotel Griswold diamond with Springfield Technical High School of Massachusetts defeating him in the tenth inning. But even in this game the Bulkeley captain-elect showed unusual skill as a pitcher and allowed but three hits until the tenth inning. Regardless of the fact that Springfield had scored runs on that measly amount of safe bingles. The team behind Daniels refused to play errorless ball and his record which was clean up until that contest was besmirched.

Daniels besides playing with Bulkeley was one of the mainstays with the Duwell club of Norwich during the past season. With the Duwells, Daniels lost but one game and defeated the strong Moosup club. Other teams fell before his slants, and he earned an enviable reputation as a pitcher. His efforts this season will be watched carefully, for he is in for a big year with this coming season.

Besides palying baseball, one of the fastest ends in the state, Daniels has been accorded this honor and has been picked by several sport writers on the mythical All-State football team. With the termination of the present season it marked the third season Daniels has played the wing position. Passing out of the football picture, Daniels will be remembered as one of the finest ends turned out at Bulkeley.

Those who were present at the meeting and who were awarded their baseball letter last year are as follows: Walter Rice, last year's captain, Geo. Sheflott, Tillotson Daniels, Joseph Parisi, Joseph Gaetano, Edward Mansfield, Walter J. Barry, Harold Hutchison, William Booth and Geno Montali.

"KID" TEAM LEADS FIELD IN SIX-DAY BIKE RACE

New York, Dec. 5.—Walthour and Georgetti, the "kid" team of the six-day bicycle race at Madison Square Garden, still led the field at 10 o'clock tonight by virtue of their high total in points gained during the scheduled sprints. The Hanley-McBeath and Belloni-Deruyter combinations had covered an equal distance, however, 1582 miles, 9 laps. Drobach and Lawson made the record for 24 hours with 1846 miles, 3 laps, in 1914.

The following teams were one lap behind the leaders: Goullet-Horan, McNamara-Van Kempen, Egg-Girardengo, Beckman-Madden, Goosens-Taylor and Zenesatto-Taylor.

Next season's baseball, swimming, track and football schedules for the ten universities comprising the Western Intercollegiate Conference will be arranged on December 5 and 6, when the athletic directors and coaches will gather in Chicago for their annual session.

Golfers who are planning to seek the warmth of the Sunny South for their winter game will find more than a score of tournaments of considerable importance awaiting them. Between now and the middle of April it will be a busy season south of the Mason and Dixon line, while the links in the north are lying beneath a blanket of snow and ice.

The new amphitheater now nearing completion in Montreal for hockey and other indoor winter sports is designed to be one of the largest and best equipped buildings of its kind in the world. Ten miles of pipes are laid over the arena surface and after the first ice is supplied it will take only a matter of an hour or two to make a new surface, so that after each hockey game the ice may be hardened at will.

The game of billiards has been played in many queer places, but by far the most exciting match on record was that which took place between two men some years ago in a lions' cage. The billiard table was placed in the cage when the lions lay resting, and the two men entered and began to play. Both men played nervously, making many misses, while the lions looked on carelessly. At one time one of the ivory balls fell from the table and rolled near one of the lions. The great beast sniffed at it and growled ominously. After that both players hastened to finish their game.

ANNUAL REPORT OF SEC'Y MELLON OF THE UNITED STATES TREASURY

Washington, Dec. 4. — Years of "prosperous and healthy conditions such as succeeded the election of 1896" were forecast for the United States, by Secretary Mellon in the annual report of the treasury sent to congress today.

The secretary's views are based, he said, on the repudiation of "various theories inconsistent with economic laws" and the indorsement of a programme of constructive handling of government affairs given in the last election. He counselled the nation, however, to approach its problem with intelligence that the progress made and the groundwork laid in the last four years may not come to naught.

The United States, he asserted, was the first world power to come through the post-war transition stage successfully and the first to be able to present "reasonable assurance" that "true progress" will continue within its borders. Mr. Mellon urged perpetuation of the programme adopted by "the great majority of our people in the last election" which he interpreted as one of "hard work, economy and sound policies."

In general economic conditions as well as in the domain of federal fiscal operations, Mr. Mellon recounted how complete the transition had been. He said that in the last four years the per capita tax on citizens of the United States had been cut from $51 to $27, or exactly one-half; public expenditures which in 1920 exceeded $6,500,000,000, were only $3,500,000,000 in the fiscal year which ended last July 1, and the "complete disorganization" of the economic structure by the collapse of prices in 190 and 1921 has been rectified.

The lifting of the tax burden, although slight as the decrease has been, has done much for business, Mr. Mellon said, and he expressed the hope that more could be done soon. He said the desired tax reform as well as tax reduction and warned against using the field of taxation as a field "for socialistic success." If this were done, he said, the conditions of a few years ago may come back.

"While it has taken time for this work" the secretary continued, "the adjustment has now been made, and both banking and business conditions are in a thoroughly sound position. Prices have been comparatively stable for two or three years, production has increased twenty or twenty-five per cent., bank debts, fifteen or twenty per cent., and employments eight or ten per cent. Interest and discount rates, as a rule, have been reduced more than half. Discount rates of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York for example, have been reduced from seven and one-half to three and one-half per cent. Bank deposits have increased six or eight billion dollars from the low point of 1921, or over twenty per cent.

"At the same time reserves are unusually high, frozen loans have been almost completely liquidated and the country's banking and credit structure was never in a stronger position and more able to support continued business and industrial expansion. The traffic handled by the railroads continues at almost record levels, and many roads are returning to a dividend-paying basis after years of financial difficulties and struggles to build up road and equipment to a basis of efficiency. The building and automotive industries are prosperous and in turn are big factors in maintaining the country's general prosperity.

"While recovery of agriculture has been slow, it has been substantial, and today, due largely to changing conditions in world crops and world markets, faces a new era. The maladjustment between agriculture and other industries has been removed, and the farmer is nearly restored to his proper status in the economic system."

But American commerce and industry must maintain an anchor to the windward in future world trade, the secretary said, for, as America has recovered so now Europe is becoming stabilized. Mr. Mellon gave credit to the Dawes reparation plan as providing a foundation of economic recovery there. While declaring improved conditions in Europe meant benefits to the United States, Mr. Mellon argued that cheaper production and lower living standards abroad would force closer calculation here in world market selling.

"Those countries (concerned with the reparation question) have already developed a new mental attitude and outlook" the treasury chief said, "and something of the old-time industrial vigor and thrift are returning. The effect of a more prosperous Europe means the broadening of our markets and opportunities and a quickening of our economic development. The situation in America looks more favorable for sound and orderly economics development than at any time since the war."

Turning to the purely domestic question of taxation policy, Mr. Mellon suggested that since the power to tax was the power to destroy, it seemed the advisable course to lay down a programme for levying taxes that would permit commerce and industry to expand rather than to suck its lifeblood. He reiterated his views, those which caused the bitter political battles of the last session of congress, and called attention to recommendations from the "same economic viewpoint" by two previous secretaries of the treasury, both under another political administration.

Mr. Mellon again attacked the continued issue of tax exempt securities as a menace, saying that surely it will mean in the end continued heavy tax burdens for the states and municipalities. For the federal government he said, it means that so long as high surtax rates are effective the possessors of large fortunes will continue to avoid the federal levy by investment in the tax exempt paper. He renewed his recommendation for a constitutional amendment limiting the issue of tax exempt obligations, but suggested a more immediate remedy in the form or changes in surtaxes, as proposed a year ago by the treasury.

"A reasonable tax rate will make elaborate, expensive methods of avoidance unprofitable," said Mr. Mellon. "A reasonable rate of tax will make the administration of the tax laws more simple of accomplishment.

"There is, in addition to the intricacies of our income tax and the impossibility of a strict enforcement, a much more serious effect of excessive taxation, both income and estate, on our industry and initiative. To make a new venture, to start a new business, to build a new building to construct and not just sit passive, means risk. Whether that risk involves capital, the probable rate of return must compensate for the risk. Yet the law now says to the man of large income: 'If you lose on your venture, you will pay 100 per cent. of the loss; if you win, the law will take 50 per cent. of your profit.'"

The gift tax provision of the present law was characterized by the secretary as one of the futile attempts to check avoidance of the high tax rates and yet not penalize legitimate transactions. He said there was "grave doubt" as to the right of congress to impose a tax on gifts at all, and that the matter in which the provision was phrased had placed on the internal revenue bureau the duty of passing judgment on countless straight business deals to determine whether there had been a "gift" involved since the statute compelled the interpretation of a payment by cash, in an exchange of property, as gift and therefore taxable.

Publicity provisions of the present law should be repealed, the secretary said, adding that they were included in the law when sections penalizing publication by newspapers of their income tax returns were enacted alongside of them.

"Aside from the question of the unnecessary violation of the right of privacy which should be insured to all citizens in the spirit of the fifth amendment to the constitution," Mr. Mellon said "it would be interesting to know what good can be accomplished by the provision."

While discussing the question of taxation, the secretary renewed his appeal that congress should not launch on any new programme that would call for additional outlays of money.

WINNER OF $25,000 WOODROW WILSON FOUNDATION AWARD

New York, Dec. 4.—Viscount Cecil of Chelwood, formerly Lord Robert Cecil, was today declared winner of the first $25,000 award of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation.

Norman H. Davis, president of the foundation board of trustees, announced that Viscount Cecil was chosen unanimously by the jury of award as the person "who had rendered the most meritorious service of a public character looking toward the establishment of peace through justice, and who had done most to give effect to the ideals and the great plan for world peace to which Mr. Wilson gave so much thought and effort."

The jury sat at Boston under the chairmanship of Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard university. Highlights in the Englishman's qualifications for the $25,000 prize were listed as:

"In the Italo-Grecian crisis a year ago he fought for peace, for mediation, for a fair settlement with an honesty and a rightness which could not be denied.

"He was instrumental in gaining statehood for Albania, thereby tending to assure peace in the Balkans.

"He has aided in the development of an international conscience in the matter of mandates—'the sacred trusts of civilization' dreamed of by Woodrow Wilson.

"He has been unceasingly active in behalf of racial, religious and linguistic minorities."

In a cablegram to Mr. Davis today, Viscount Cecil said: "I am deeply gratified by the award of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation, which I gladly accept." Mr. Davis said the viscount would come to New York to receive the prize at a dinner in his honor Dec. 28, the anniversary of Wilson's birth.

"It was as Lord Robert, third son of the third Masquis of Salisbury, that Viscount Cecil built his great fame as a British statesman and his greater renown as an advocate of peace between nations," said Mr. Davis. "It was as Lord Robert that he attended the Paris peace conference, where he instantly won the admiration of the large corps of American newspaper correspondents; nor had he yet been elevated to an earldom when he visited the United States two years ago.

DOROTHY MARTIN HILLMAN KEEPING IN SECLUSION

New York, Dec. 4.—Dorothy Martin Hillman, former chorus girl, whose flight from Chicago was punctuated with interruptions by police who attempted to stop her under telegraphic instructions from her husband, a department store owner, was in seclusion today on the top floor of the Cumberland hotel here.

Even her mother, Mrs. George W. Martin, of Evanston, Ill., who arrived today, could not penetrate the guard kept over the door of the bride of a month by Mrs. O. L. Moore, her traveling companion.

MRS. ADDIE SHEATSLEY ENDED HER OWN LIFE

Columbus, O., Dec. 4.—Mrs. Addie Sheatsley, wife of a prominent Lutheran minister, ended her own life by casting herself, feet first, into the heating furnace of the parsonage, according to the verdict of Coroner Joseph A. Murphy, filed here tonight. Prosecutor John R. King, who disregarded the coroner's preliminary report and ordered an investigation into the woman's mysterious death, refust to comment on the verdict.

In returning his verdict of suicide, the coroner disregarded the findings of experts who analyzed blood taken from the lungs of Mrs. Sheatsley and who conducted other experiments to substantiate a murder theory.

Coroner Murphy assigned "immediate asphyxiation" as the cause of death, explaining that the sudden contact of the body with the fire caused a reflex spasm of the vocal cords of the glottis. This spasm resulted in the lungs being filled with dark blood while the heart was dilated, the report said. His examination showed the verdict said, that the presence of no blood in the heart was proof that the organ did not cease to beat until breathing had stopped.

The coroner took issue with the reports of a chemist and pathologist, who stated after an analysis of Mrs. Sheatsley's blood that no trace of carbon-monoxide was found.

They insisted that the gas would have been in evidence if the woman had breathed after entering the furnace. The coroner answered this report with the statement that the reflex action probably halted breathing and consequently there could have been no carbon-monoxide, smoke, dust or other debris in the blood or lungs. The coroner expressed the belief that the woman, while in an unusually nervous state, entered the furnace feet first, holding to the upper door until her body was inside.

RUSSIA MUST RELY ON HER OWN RESOURCES

Moscow, Dec. 4.—(By the A. P.)—Alexis I. Rykoff, president of the council of commisars, today told a gathering of engineers that the failure to obtain capital abroad compelled Russia to rely on her own resources, but that Great Britain's refusal to accept the Anglo-Russian treaty and commercial agreement did not necessarily mean an entire break with the British government.

"We shall continue our efforts to obtain foreign capital," declared M. Rykoff, "but only upon two conditions, first, that we retain full sovereignty over our state institutions, and second that we yield none of our gains derived from the revolution.

"According to Secretary of State Hughes, America is willign to recognize us only on condition that the 'holy light' or private property shall be restored. This means that we would need to re-establish a bourgeoisie regime. To this we will never consent.

"I consider that the soviet regime will greatly outlast the present regime in the United States, and we have therefore only to rely on our own resources to realize all our economic aims.'

HARVESTER PLANT ON OUTSKIRTS OF MOSCOW

Moscow, Dec. 4.—The supreme economy council has concluded an agreement with a group of German workers for the manufacture of blades and other accessories for mowing machines at a plant of the International Harvester company on the outskirts of Moscow. The American plant is one of the finest in Russia, but has been closed for the last four years.

Piles

Can't Be Cured From the Outside.

Internal treatments seldom cure Piles.

Nor do surgical operations.

The cause is inside—bad circulation.

The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send a fresh current through the stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safe method.

J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., set at work some years ago to find a real internal Pile remedy. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in 1000 cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It's easy to take, and can always be found at Lee & Osgood's, who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.

INTERIOR DEPARTMENT APPROPRIATION BILL

Washington, Dec. 4—A section proposing abolition of 39 land offices was eliminated today from the interior department appropriation bill by the house.

The vote was 68 to 47 on the amendment, offered by Representative Sinnott, republican, Oregon, to strike out the section.

The house also accepted without amendment a provision to consolidate the offices of registrar and receiver at 45 land offices.

Another section, providing for the abolition of the office of surveyor general and the consolidation of his work with the field service, as recommended by the department, was approved.

The offices at which such consolidations would be effected July 1, are all in the far west and south.

The Sinnott amendment as well as the other proposals adopted today, under house rules, are subject to another vote before final passage of the bill, and it was indicated that the fight on the former would be reopened at that time.

Representative Cramton of Michigan, chairman of the sub-committee of the appropriations committee in charge of the measure, made an effort to stave off a vote on the Sinnott proposal by moving to adjourn. This move, however, was rejected by a vote of 61 to 47.

Mr. Cramton charged that western members from districts where land offices were situated had initiated a movement to kill the section and asserted that these members were not observing President Coolidge's recommendations of economy. He described the proposal as an "old fashioned pork barrel project," asserting that discontinuance of the offices was only "a question of abolishing a few political offices."

COMMERCIAL TREATY OF BRITAIN AND GERMANY

London, Dec. 4 (By the A. P.).—The Anglo-German commercial treaty, signed by the representatives of both countries Tuesday, was published textually today. It ends the abnormal situation which lasted over a quarter of a century, as there had been no definite treaty of commerce between Great Britain and Germany since 1898, pre-war relations having been governed by formal arrangements which gave substantially most favored nation treatment.

The treaty gives extensive mutual advantages and, before it can become operative, certain forms of disability affecting German citizens and companies resulting from war legislation will need to be removed by legislative action. These disabilities chiefly affect the engaging in banking and the nonferrous metal industries by German citizens and the employment of Germans on British ships.

The agreement is to remain in force for five years.

Lloyd-Creame, president of the borad of trade, said the question of reparations was outside the treaty, but that England maintained that the 26 per cent. recovery tax is subject to a revision, "provided some alternative method can be produced which has the assent of all the necessary parties and which gives the same amount of cash to the Britsh government with the same rights of priority."

Mr. Lloyd-Creame pointed out that the dominions and colonies have the power to adhere to the treaty whenever they wish and that there is a provision in the agreement that as long as any dominion gives most favored nation treatment to Germany it should have full rights under the treaty for a period of two years.

GRAND JURORS' PROBE INTO DEATH OF CHAS. G. ROGERS

New Haven, Dec. 4.—After examination of four witnesses at a secret grand jurors' inquiry in the North Haven town hall today into the death of Charles G. Rogers, bond salesman and nephew of Mrs. Ogden M. Reid, of New York, fatally injured while riding toward this city Nov. 1 in an automobile with Miss Marjorie Schneider, after dining at the Long Hill inn, Wallingford, Ward Church, grand juror and town prosecutor, said he was well satisfied with the day's results. The inquiry was adjourned late this afternpon following a four-hour continuous session, to an indefinite date. Mr. Church said it would probably be resumed some time next week, when more witnesses would be summoned.

Present at the inquiry today were Supt. Robert T. Hurley and Captain Frank M. Nichols of the state police department, and a stenographer who came with them.

PARIS TEMPS COMMENT ON COOLIDGE'S MESSAGE

Paris, Dec. 4.—The Temps, commenting on President Coolidge's message to congress, declares that the recent American elections did not change the foreign policy of the Washington government toward the settlement of the European peace problems.

"President Coolidge affirmed once more his resolution not to enter the League of Nations and the opposition of the Washington government to the league remains entirely unchanged," the newspaper states. "We must regret it, from a general point of view, because the absence of the great American republic will always be a source of weakness to an organism of this sort. There seems to be little hope that the United States will accept the Geneva proto . President Coolidge favors organizing for peace, as well as Geneva, but in a different manner."

ITALO-GERMAN COMMERCIAL CONFERENCE HAS OPENED

He declared that "if it is true that good political relations are based on good economic relations, it is all the more true for our two countries which are compelled by several economic necessities to intensify their mutual trade."

Baron Constantine Von Neurath, the German ambassador to Rome, speaking on behalf of the delegates from his country, replied that Germany was desirable of finding an equitable compromise profitable to both nations which should also help to guarantee good political relationship.

DISCUSSION OF FRENCH DEBT IS UNOFFICIAL

Paris, Dec. 4—(By the A. P.)—After a cabinet council held this evening the following communication was issued by the government with relation to the French debt of the United States.

"The conversations of the past few days between the French ambassador in Washington and the secretary of the treasury of the American government concerning the settlement of the French debt to the United States, cannot but present, in spite of certain statements to the contrary, any other character than were unofficial exchanges of views."

Public land reserved as valuable for water power purposes and held for disposal now totals 4,762,844 acres, situated along rivers and streams in twenty states.

HOW TO EASILY LOSE FAT

Paris Sends Us Simple Formula to Get Thin

Prominent American Specialists, Doctors and Former Health Commissioner Exclusively Recommends New French Discovery to FAT PEOPLE.

Without injuring your health or having to diet or exercise, you can to-day easily take off 5 to 6 pounds a week with a French prescription conveniently put up in a small tablet called SAN-GRI-NA. Since SAN-GRI-NA has been introduced in America, it has met with such tremendous success that Doctors, Specialists, Nurses, and Dr. Rudolph, former Health Commissioner, have thoroughly investigated it, and now exclusively recommend it to fat people as absolutely harmless and most effective. If you have been fat for years; if your case is most obstinate; if you have tried everything advertised without success; if you suffer from puffing, high blood pressure, tired feeling—simply do this: Get a package of SAN-GRI-NA, take two small tablets before each meal, and watch your weight gradually go down and your health improve. Not only will SAN-GRI-NA do away with fat, but almost from the minute you start taking it you will feel a wonderful change in your entire system. Thousands of people already have been benefited by SAN-GRI-NA, and are sending in most gratifying reports. These cases vary in reducing from 10 to 70 pounds in a remarkably short time, and may say that "almost immediately after taking SAN-GRI-NA they felt 100 per cent. better."

Mrs. Koster, of Brooklyn, writes: "With SAN-GRI-NA, in six weeks I lost 39 pounds of ugly fat, and suffering I was relieved from heart trouble. I now can climb the stairs without puffing, and I have found wonderful relief. You can use my letter, as well as my name, as I am grateful, and wish to help as many of my sisters as I can."

"When I first sent for SAN-GRI-NA I had been under the Doctor's care for heart trouble and high blood pressure. After I used SAN-GRI-NA for two weeks I was much better."—Mrs. Fonquerney.

"SAN-GRI-NA is a great help to me. I have reduced 20 pounds since I first started to use it."—Mrs. Wm. Parker.

"I have used 2 boxes of SAN-GRI-NA and I have lost 20 lbs."—Mrs. Dull, Oklahoma.

"I lost 8 pounds with one box of SAN-GRI-NA."—Mrs. Whiting, Springfield, Mass.

"I am very pleased with results. I have lost 14 pounds in 10 days."—Mrs. Hay, Vancouver.

NOTE.—Since SAN-GRI-NA has been introduced in America, it has met with such tremendous success that imitations cannot be avoided. Save yourself a disappointment. Ask for SAN-GRI-NA. Do not accept a substitute claimed "just as good."

MYSTIC

At a meeting of the Fanny Ledyard chapter, Daughter of the American Revolution, held Wednesday afternoon in Masonic Temple, the committee appointed some time ago to consider the matter of a permanent honor roll for those who participated in the World war was authorized to proceed with the formation of a general committee to carry on this work. The D. A. R. committee who are to proceed with the forming of a general committee are Mrs. Ida F. Crandall, Mrs. Elizabeth M. N. Morgan, Mrs. Addie B. P. Batty, Mrs. Minnie E. B. Phillips, Mrs. Mary R. Leonard and Miss M. Josephine Dickinson. The idea of this committee is to ask the various organizations of the village to appoint a representative and send in the name of that representative to the above committee and when this is done a meeting of these various representatives will be called, at which time a permanent working organization will be effected, for carrying on this work. This is a community affair and the D. A. R. is simply taking the initiative in getting an organization together and will bring this matter to the attention of the various organizations as rapidly as possible, but, owing to the large number and the different nights of meeting, it will probably consume considerable time. The Christmas tree for Ellis Island brought forth a generous donation of materials of various kinds for the use of the D. A. R. worker at Ellis Island. These materials are intended to furnish work for the women who are detained on Ellis Island pending the settlement of their status by the immigration authorities for it gives the women something to do while they are waiting. Another item of business was a donation made toward the work of the Berry school, Rome, Georgia, a school of mountaineers conducted by Miss Martha Berry, this being a work to which the local chapter has been a contributor for many years. Another donation was voted to the work of the States D. A. R. library for the purchase of books. Mrs. Amie Bradley read an interesting article relative to immigration.

This (Friday) afternoon the children of the Sunday school of the Methodist church are invited to a "pad and pencil party" given by the Woman's Home Missionary society. Games and other features will be provided that will be of interest to children and the pads and pencils they bring will be used in one of the missionary homes of the church. The chair of this church meets this evening for rehearsal and the preparation of Christmas music will behgun.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Roe of New Bedford are guests of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Wilcox.

Phoebe Packer Rathbun tent Daughters of Veterans, met Wednesday evening in G. A. R. hall.

Mrs. Florine Larkin and Mrs. Alice Ledwidge of Westerly were guests Tuesday of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mabeth.

A successful sale and turkey supper was held Friday afternoon and evening by the Women of the Union Baptist church. This turkey supper has been an annual event for several years an dis looked forward to each each by a large number of patrons.

The funeral of Eben C. Duerr, son of the late Nicholas Duerr and Katheryn Conlin Duerr, was held Thursday afternoon from his late home on Godfrey street and was conducted by Rev. J. Garfield Sallis, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, and interment was in Elm Grove cemetery. Mr. Duerr is survived by his wife, Lillian Payne Duerr and six children, E. Carlyle, Lillian A., John Leon, Virginia K., Lois Mildred and Eben, by his mother, Mrs. Kathryn Conlin Duerr and the following brothers and sisters: Nicholas Duerr, Edward Duerr, John Duerr, Fred Duerr, Mrs. Melvin Gilleney, Minnie Duerr, Fannie Duerr, all of this place and Mrs. John John, of Waterford.

The December covenant meeting of the Union Baptist church will be held Friday evening.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Methodist church met Thursday afternoon in the chapel.

There was an attendance of 63 at the church school of missions held in the Union Baptist church, Wednesday evening and this course is proving very interesting and instructive. At the conclusion of the instruction an exhibit of Chinese arts and crafts was held, after which Mrs. Carl Cutler served tea brought from China, genuine Chinese candy and genuine Chinese candy and genuine Chinese wafers. Mrs. Marion O. Pomeroy, in behalf of the members of the class taught by Mrs. Cutler, presented Mrs. Cutler with a handsome imported silk scarf, as a token of their appreciation of her work in instructing them. Another interesting feature was an exhibition of Chinese silk just as it comes from China and a talk on the process of manufacturing silk by John Macy.

Mrs. Fannie Trevena has entered the employ of the Mystic Variety store.

SENT TO JAIL FOR LIQUOR LAW VIOLATION

George Sabagh, proprietor of a New London pool room, was sentenced to 3 days in the county jail and ordered to pay a fine of $200 when he pleaded guilty to violation of the liquor laws before Judge Charles B. Waller in the criminal court of common pleas at New London Thursday. The case was one appealed from the city court, in which Sabagh was similarly penalized following his arrest by County Detective William E. Lewis on evidence uncovered by William Tuttle employed by Detective Lewis for the purpose.

Sabagh was represented by Attorneys Frank S. Shea and John M. Garry, who told the court that he was the sole support of three children, his parents and a tubercular brother, and said that if deprived of his liberty he would be unable to contribute further to their support, and they would suffer hardships as a result.

Bonus for Babies

With the idea of increasing the birth rate in Greater Berlin, which is below normal, the German city decided that every new baby is to be given a savings account of three marks by the municipality. When twins, triplets or quadruplets are born, extra bonuses are to be bestowed. The savings account will be made out in the name of the baby itself and will draw interest. The money may be withdrawn from the bank only when the child reaches the age of 14.

ANNUAL REPORT SEC'Y OF LABOR DAVIS

Washington, Dec. 4—The application of the present American immigration policy and proposed alterations in that policy constitute a large part of the material on which the Labor Department's annual report, as made public today by Secretary Davis, is based.

Three salient changes in immigration practice are suggested by Mr. Davis. The first would apply to citizens of Canada, Mexico and other North American countries outside the United States the quota restrictions now governing the entrance of aliens from other lands. The second would allow temporary increase in the admission of aliens in times of established and particularized labor shortage in the United States, and permit administrative restriction of all immigration under existing legal limits in times of unemployment. The third major proposal would require the registration and enrollment of all aliens admitted to the country.

Along with the discussion of these points, however, Mr. Davis deals at considerable length with the department's other work including mediation in labor disputes, the assembling of the statistics of wages and commodity costs, asiting employment and supervising naturalization. With respect to these domestic functions of the department, he stresses particularly the necessity for expansion of the collection of labor statistics relating to accident rates and safety in industry and urges that the present federal employment service be placed on a more permanent basis as "insurance against unemployment."

In presenting his immigration recommendations, Mr. Davis cites statistics showing that, while the present law allows a quota immigration into the United tSates of but 164,000 persons a year from countries exclusive of North America, non-quota provisions affecting relatives of aliens already in the United States, and foreigners coming under professional, deucational and commercial status classifications, make it possible for a much greater number of aliens to enter the country.

The present large inflow of immigrants from Canada and Mexico, unrestricted by the law so far as native citizens of those countries are concerned, is putting a premium, says Mr. Davis on "bootlegging of aliens." Europeans in large numbers gaining entrance to those countries, he asserts, are being smuggled unlawfully to the United States, and he believes that placing them under the quota provisions of the law would allow effective steps to be taken to shut out the evaders.

The expense of regulating immigration into the United States, Mr. Davis reports, amounted to $3,732,315 in the fiscal yera 1924 but was more than met by receipts from taxes on immigrants, fines and other income of the department, which totalled $6,334,756.

"We have taken steps toward selective immigration in the act of 1924," Secretary Davis said in summarizing his departmental recommendations. "We should go the whole way and make sure that all applicant, for admission are qualified before they leave their homes. We should make our quota law applicable to Canada, Mexico, and Central and South America, thus closing a door which now invite the activities of the smuggler of aliens. We should provide for the admission regardless of quota limitation of farmers and skilled and unskilled laborers needed in the United States when labor of like kind cannot be found unemployed in this country, and when no strike or lockout exists or impends in the industry which needs such labor. To balance this, the president should be given power to prohibit or further limit immigration whenever unemployment in this country makes such suspension desirable.

"We should proceed to humanize our immigration laws, wherever that is possible. Our laws should not operate to keep members of families apart.

"Further we need a complete revision and codification of our naturalization laws. To do this I would provide for the annual enrollment of our alien population, and through this enrollment would provide means of educating every alien in American customs, our language, our ideals, and our institutions. If is true that this enrollment plan would enable us to know the alien who is here in violation of our laws. We should know them. This plan is probably the only available means of putting an end to the scandalous bootlegging of aliens through our seaports and over our borders."

The United States Employment Service, Mr. Davis says, is "by cooperating with and coordinating public employment offices throughout the country, to a limited extent, bringing together the manless job and the jobless man."

"General sentiment has crystallized into belief that this undertaking is an important function of the federal government," he adds. "In my opinion, the service should be made a statutory bureau of the Department of aLbor."

The record of the department in seeking settlement of industrial disputes is illustrated by Mr. Davis with a series of detailed accounts of situation considered, and he asks that more money be appropriated to "make the conciliation service still more effective as the industrial peace-making agency of the government."

"It is time to set down to facts in our effort to make industry safe for America," he says in introducing his proposals relating to the Bureau of Labor Statistics. "Our whole struggle for safety in industry from a national point of view, is a fight in a fog. We do not realize that no human being on the face of the earth today can tell within thousands how many American workers were killed in industry last year. The American people are entitled to know exactly what price they pay in human life and limb for prosperity. We should make effort to get the facts and all the facts as to industrial accidents in the United States. I wish to recommend to the congress the necessity of giving to the department the authority, the men and the money to enable it to undertake real industrial safety research work."

The duty of winding up one of the lines of heavy war expenditure is still being taken by the department, the report shows in a section devoted to the United States Housing Corporation, which built extensively during 1917 and 1918 around the government's greater munition plants and bases. Mr. Davis' figures disclose that $105,618,595 had been provided by government appropriation for the corporation, and that to date $74,512,000 has been returned to the treasury from salvage, sales and operating of its property. A probable final loss of $31,000,000 for the government, out of the total of its expenditures for the purpose, is indicated.

CONTINUING TO MODIFY SOVIET ECONOMIC POLICY

Moscow, Dec. 4—(By the A. P.)—Soviet economic policy appears to be undergoing gradual modifications. The government of late has adopted a much more lenient attitude toward private trading, private capital, foreign imports and concessions.

This change of tactics to bolster up the soviet economic structure received official emphasis today when Felix Djerjinsky, head of the supreme economic council, declared at a meeting of the council that soviet legislation and communist party instructions had gone too far in suppressing private capital.

The speaker urged the re-introduction of private funds into trade and recommended a less drastic policy toward foreign importations.

He also stressed the desirability of granting concessions to foreigners. This he asserted, was a sounder economic policy than seeking loans from abroad. The government, previous attitude toward private capital, he states had promoted state industries which curtailed their capital for production purposes and investment in trade. He advocated a complete reversal of this policy, urging the state trusts to withdraw their capital from trade and replace it with private capital.

MARGARET SANGER TALKED TO YALE DIVINITY STUDENTS

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 4—Considerable surprise was manifest on the Yale campus today among students and professors when announcement was made that Margaret Sanger, well known advocate of birth control and president of the Birth Control League of America, had addressed a meeting of 200 students of the Yale Divinity school Tuesday afternoon. After her address, it was stated, steps were taken by the graduate divinity school students to organize a special class for discussion of the subject. An invitation was extended to Mrs. Sanger to appear again and address the entire undergraduate body of the school. Stuart Sanger, son of Mrs. Sanger, is a member of the freshman class at the divinity school.

JAMES CHARLES ARTHUR MAINTAINS HIS INNOCENCE

Paris, Dec. 4—James Charles Arthur, former British army officer and aide-de-camp to Rajah Sir Hari Singh, the Indian potentate who was the central figure in the London blackmailing case, underwent a three-hour examination before a French magistrate here today and maintained his innocence of any complicity in the alleged plot to blackmail the rajah out of a huge fortune.

Arthur, who is being here here on a British warrant, it is understood, will oppose extradition on the gound that the crime, if any, was committed in Parish and that the British courts are incompeetnt under the circumstances.

The French magistrate has requested the British embassy to submit further evidence and documents. It is expected that the extradition proceedings will drag on some weeks.

Concerning the Opal

According to recent reports from Australia, the diggers for opal, the Australian national gem, are experiencing very hard times. Opal, in fact, seems to have lost the popularity which a few years ago made it a principal feature of the jewelers' windows of London, Paris and New York.

Coober Pedy, the home of the famous South Australian black opal, is 100 miles from anywhere and probably the most primitive village in the British Empire. The Australian blacks christened it Coober Pedw or "white man living in a hole," and it is said to well deserve its name.

Of all the rough "outback" jobs in Australia, digging for opal is about the worst. Coober Pedy lies in the heart of the stewart range, 170 miles from the nearest station on the East-West Railway, and its whole population of between 70 and 80 diggers lives underground in burrows scratched out of the hillside. A tin shanty in which the diggers keep their tools, is the only sign of life showing above grounnd.

Every morning the diggers come out of their holes and set out for the opal fields, to cut patiently through the rock in the hope of finding the beautiful black diamonds lying beneath. Between them they have dug many thousands of pounds' worth of opal in the last four years, though they have worked only a small area of a field said to be 40 miles long. In normal times opal is worth about 30 pounds sterling an ounce, but now that there is practically no demand for the gems the diggers have opal, but no money.

Machine-Blown Bottles.

The ancient and picturesque craft of the glassblower, which for so many centuries continued the employment of its original and primative methods, is nowadays a matter of modern machinery. It was a Frenchman who invented and perfected a machine for blowing bottles that completely does away with the necessity of blowing with the mouth. This machine is so simple in its operation that an unskilled workman can very soon become proficient in its use, and each machine will turn out 1,800 finished bottles in 24 hours, as against the best mouth-blower's 600. The finished product is of a much higher grade also, being more perfect in form, and able to withstand a much greater pressure.

In operating the machine liquid glass is allowed to flow into a mold to form the mouth and neck of a bottle. The mold is then reversed, so that the rest of the liquid mass flows away from the part already formed. When the mold is opened the bottle, bug-like in form is seen suspended by the neck. Other molds then incluse the glass bag, giving it the desired shape, while a strong air-pressure is permitted to play in the semi-liquid glass evenly and smoothly against the walls of the mold.

Write 2,000 Words a Day.

Readers of novels often wonder how long it takes a writer of a best seller to turn out his book. One of the best known has recently said that about 2,000 words a day was a good average and never more than 15,000 a week. A good week's work is placed at 12,000 words, and, while there are exceptions to every rule, he says that few writers can keep up a pace of writing 3,000 words a day. The writing is usually done in stretches of one or two hours at a time.

ONE-STREET

"It's a one-street burg!" we heard them say,
As their motor threw burned miles away,
But, O! the joys they passed by today
In dear little One-Street town.
They glimpsed a hamlet of humble size,
Let missed the feel of its friendly ties;
Missed all the blue of its far-flung skies
And the sunbeams dancing down.

They hurried through One-Street's arching shade,
Missed one good laugh at a duck's parade;
Missed fragrance of catsup housewives made,
As little town housewives do.
They missed a zinnia-box on a stump,
Enjoyed no draft from the old town pump,
But what they said of a One-Street bump
Is left to be guessed by you.

They missed the jesting of One-Street's clown,
Too tired to work and too glad to frown,
Still, daily, he chops Life's worries down
In postoffice, shop and store.
They missed the songs of the town quartet,
Which, down at the barber's, will "set an' set"
And sing and sing till we all forget
The world and its woes galore.

One church, one school and the old town hall—
Yet hearts are big and the envies small,
Which ,somehow, keeps taxes down,
So you that bow to the blindman, Speed,
From his dark rule may your souls be free;
Just lift your eyes to the joys they need—
You'll find them in One-Street Town!

The activity of the South African diamond mining industry has been steadily increasing. Further development is being undertaken. The diamond production in the Union of South Africa in 1923 is officially stated at 2,053,994 karats, three times that of 1922, and its value showed a corresponding increase. The output for the six months ended June 30 was 1,216,416 karats, valued at 3,926,066; sales totaled 1,019,377 karats, valued at 3,283,465 pounds.

A live fox and fur show, open to the world, is to be held in Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, in 1925, according to a decision reached here by the Silver Black Fox Breeder's Association at its annual meeting. The meeting expressed the opinion that inasmuch as the island was the cradle of the fox industry, its capital city was the proper place for the holding of such an exhibition, at which it is expected there will be several thousand animals on show.

An automatic sun gun, the only one known to be in existence in the world, is at the Pena castle at Cintra, Portugal, some twenty miles from Lisbon. This sun dial and gun give the correct time to the surrounding towns and hamlets from its height of 2,000 feet. The cannon between the quadrant on the front of the dial of bronze and supports a convex lens on adjustable arms, adjustable for twelve months at a time. At noon each day the sun's rays are focused on the touch hole of the cannon and thus it is automatically fired. Pena Castle was the summer palace of the late king of Portugal, from which he fled in 1910.

Cabbage, with a market output of more than 30,000 carloads a year, has become one of the three most important vegetables in the United States, ranking next to potatoes and tomatoes. About two-fifths of the market crop is early southern cabbage mainly from Florida, Texas, South Carolina, Virginia and Alabama. Three-fifths is shipped from the north and west, mainly from New York, Wisconsin, Michigan, Colorado and California. Kraut manufacturers take about one-seventh of the commercial crop, it is said. Kraut is made from northern cabbage of the large domestic type and the factories are located mainly in New York, Wisconsin and Michigan.

Quick Relief for RHEUMATICS

Local Druggists Sell Rheuma On Money-Back Plan

If you suffer from torturing rheumatic pains, swollen, twisted joints, and suffer intensely because your system is full of uric acid, that dangerous poison that makes thousands helpless and kills thousands years before their time, then you need Rheuma, and need it now.

Start taking it today. Rheuma acts at once on kidneys, liver, stomach and blood, and you can sincerely exclaim: "Good riddance to bad rubbish."

Many people, the most skeptical of skeptics right in this city and in the country hereabouts, bless the day when Lee & Osgood Co. and other good druggists offered Rheuma to the afflicted at a small price and guaranteed money refunded if not entirely satisfied. If you have rheumatism get a bottle today.

"I Am Thin"
Her Friend Say:
"She Is Skinny"

If she only knew that she could put on at least 5 pounds of good, healthy flesh in 30 days she wouldn't be worrynig about her peaked face and run-down looks.

She has tried Cod Liver Oil, but the ill-smelling, nasty tasting stuff upset her stomach and made her feel worse than before.

Doctors and good pharmacists know that Cod Liver Oil is full of vitamines that make flesh, creates appetite, builds up the power to resist disease and chases away nervousness.

But it's horrible tasting stuff and every day fewer people are taking it for doctors are prescribing and the people are fast learning that they can get better results with McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets, which Lee & Osgood Co., and druggists all over the country are having a tremendous demand for.

One woman gained 10 pounds in 22 days and if any skinny man or woman can't put on 5 pounds in 30 days, your druggist will gladly return the purchase price.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

A Visit to Welcome Inn

When Little Jack Rabbit reached the dear Old Bramble Patch after escaping from old Danny Fox, as I mentioned in the last story, he found the Old Red Rooster raking up the leaves on the lawn. He had come over from Uncle Lucky's house to make the bramble path neat and trim. Already he had covered the rose bushes in Lady Love's flower garden so that Jack Frost and Mr. North Wind could do no harm.

"Hello, what makes you so out of

"Dearest me," sighed the little rabbit, "we've just had a dreadful time at school," and he went on to relate all that had happened in the last story: how Danny Fox had broken in through the window and nearly caught Professor Crow and all the scholars.

"Sakes alive!" exclaimed the Old Red Rooster, "how dreadful! What's the world coming to, I should like to know." And so would you and I, little reader, and many a wise man besides.

"Where's mother?" asked the little bunny boy, peeking into the kitchen.

"Did you look at your watch?" asked the bunny boy with a smile and a twinkle of his pink nose.

"Didn't have to," replied the old fowl. "Mr. Merry Sun winked three times just as she hopped through the gate. He always does at three P. M."

Just then who should drive up but dear Uncle Lucky, the little rabbit's kind bunny uncle.

"Don't you want to go for a drive?" said he. "You can come with me for tea. I hardly know what to do today. For Little Miss Mousie has gone away."

"Where has she gone?" asked his small bunny nephew, hopping up beside the dear old bunny uncle.

"Just visiting," answered Uncle Lucky, giving the hoop a honk or two as over the meadow he swiftly flew? Dear me, maybe I should have said "sped," as automobiles don't fly like airships.

"Where are we going?" presently asked the bunny boy, cuddling up to his dear uncle. "Any old place?"

"Maybe and then perhaps not," answered the old gentleman rabbit, smiling down at his small bunny nephew. "We don't care, any old place."

However, one can't go swiftly in the old gentleman bunny's Luckymobile for long without getting somewhere, let me tell you, and pretty soon, not so very far, they came to a little house called "Welcome Inn," kept by an old gander named Gus Gooseberry. There he stood on the front porch, a big white apron hanging down from his chain, with his long gray whiskers well-tucked in. Do ganders have whiskers? Well, this old fellow did. You see, he has never shaved.

CATHOLIC WOMEN'S CLUB ELECTS NEW OFFICERS

When the Catholic Women's club met Thursday afternoon in the rooms of the Ladies of Columbus, the committees for the coming holiday sale all made reports of progress.

As it was the annual meeting, the president, Mrs. James J. Dutton declined nomination for the third time, after very successful terms as head of this active and benevolent organization.

Officers were elected as follows: President, Mrs. Daniel McGillicuddy; vice president, Mrs. William Muir; recording secretary, Mrs. Nelson C. Disco; financial secretary, Mrs. John J. O'Rourke. Executive committee, Mrs. Maurice F. Kelly, chairman; Mrs. William P. Farrell, Mrs. George P. Madden, Mrs. Thomas F. Burns, Mrs. James J. Dutton, Mrs. John B. Gaillivan.

Press committee, Mrs. Alexander John, Mrs. John J. Murphy.

Rev. Michael H. May, rector of St. Patrick's parish, has again consented to act as treasurer for the organization.

During the social hour which followed the well attended business meeting, tea was served by Mrs. James T. Woods, Mrs. John J. O'Rourke, Mrs. Daniel T. Shea and Mrs. Joseph E. Marshall. The table decorations were yellow and white.

For Burial in New Haven

The body of James Dalley of New Haven was sent to his home in that city Thursday afternoon on the 2:35 o'clock train by Undertakers Cummings and Ring. Mr. Dalley who was 54 years of age, died Thursday in Preston.

Two way radio communication has been established between union college in Schenectady, N. Y., and an amateur station at Oaterham, England.

THREE TOWNS AGAINST THE VETO AMENDMENT

The official returns for the vote on the constitutional amendment to allow governor power to veto parts of an appropriation bill, while approving other parts, provide interesting and peculiar voting statistics in many towns and counties of the state. At Hampton, the close vote readily implies that feeling on the measure was intense, although the vote was decisively in favor of the amendment.

Nine other towns were unanimous for the amendment, unopposing votes being cast. The largest vote in favor of its adoption in these nine towns was in Westport, where 99 "yes" votes were cast. The favorable votes in the other towns which cast no opposing votes were: Hartland, 6; Prospect 8; Wolcott, 9; Lyme, 9; Canaan, 31; Roxbury, 56; Old Saybrook, 39; Salem, 15. A close vote was polled at Union, where the amendment prevailed by a majority of one, the vote being ten in favor and nine opposed.

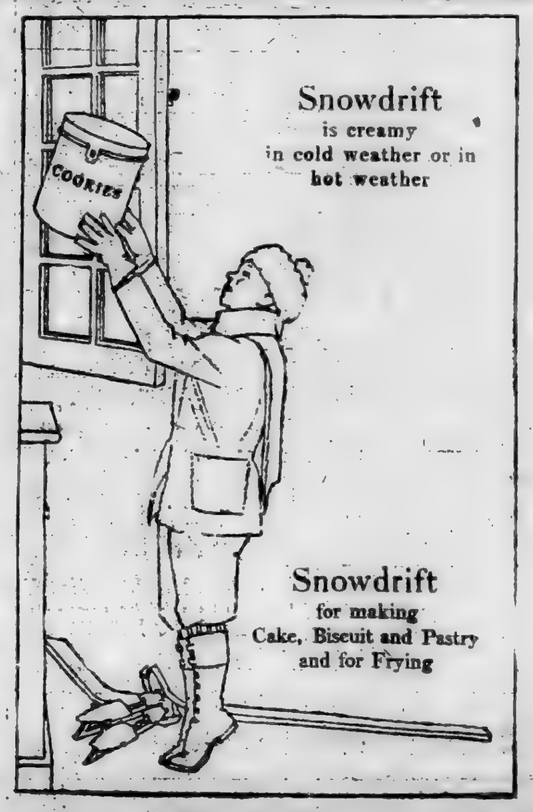
Three towns failed to support adoption of the amendment. Canterbury polled 29 votes against the measure and 27 in favor. Montville opposed it, 53 to 29 while Warren voted 15 to 7 against it.

The largest vote in this county was from New London which registered 736 affirmative and 164 negative ballots. Stonington came second with 521 yes and 95 no votes. Norwich, with 482 affirmatives and 46 negatives, holds third place. Groton gave 193 yes and 37 no votes. Sprague gave 109 for the amendment and 32 against. All other townships in the county polled less than 100 ballots on the issue.

Given Birthday Party

On Wednesday afternoon from 4 to 6 p. m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Symonds, a group of young folks were entertained in honor of the birthday of their nephew, William Symonds, Jr. The table was attractively decorated, the color scheme being pink and white. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Symonds. Those present were Alice and Dorothy Brinkman, Henry Brinkman, Homer Bonville, Caroline Burke, Edward Burke, Dwight Hill, John and James Pillar, John Winter, Russell Lucy, Junior Kilroy, Edward Ravencll and John Spicer.

Elaborate preparations are in the making for the meeting in Rome, beginning next Monday, of the League of Nations council.



PUBLIC WILL BE EXCLUDED FROM NEW LONDON POLICE DEPT. HEARINGS

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Dec. 4—The committee of the city council that is to seek to improve the police force and to make it more efficient than it has heretofore been has organized and has selected Councilor Streeter, who started the inquiry, as its secretary. The first meeting of the committee will be held next week when facts will be solicited and undoubtedly obtained. But the meetings are to be held in chambers so that the public will be given no information except such as it deems should be imparted to the newspapers. The language of the resolution adopted by the council is to "improve the efficiency of the police department." That gives the committee a wide range on which to proceed. Testimony may be taken to show that the department is not operated under such rules as it should have, that it is not conducted under a system of discipline, and that the rules and regulations now in effect, if any are in effect are such as are obsolete and which were adopted some six years ago. The committee has given no hint of what nature the testimony it will receive will be, nor is there any information as to who the witnesses will be aside from officers of the police force. It is known that there has been some wicked gossip concerning the police department in circulation and it is natural to suppose that some of the gossip that has been going the rounds was told to the members of the council either directly or by those who claim to have received it first-handed. Now the facts will come out to a degree that will disclose who the complainants are. The committee has the power to subpoenae any witnesses it desires to hear and the testimony adduced will be written for future reference. In the event that any officer has been an offender against the rules and the regulations of the department then the proceeding must be to arraign the offenders before the constituted board of examiners, and, there, charges must be made on which a hearing shall be had. It is fixed by the charter that charges against any police officer must be in writing and that he, must be given the chance to defend himself and that the hearings must be conducted according to the rules laid down for such hearings. No decision can be reached at an ex parte hearing.

It is believed that the committee will report to the council; that, in the future, all applicants for positions on the police force must go through both a mental and physical examination and that they must convince the committee that examines them that they are familiar with the duties that will come to them as policemen as well as to show that they are physically competent. There is no doubt but the police of the city are to be made to attend to "business" in the future with a greater degree of fidelity than they have ever before displayed. Councilor Streeter is understood to be a firm believer in discipline and he will inject some of his ideas into the management of the police force.

William G. Wilbur, formerly of Fishers Island, died last evening at Fitchburg, Mass., in which city he had resided a number of years. Mr. Wilbur, who was of advanced years, was for many years manager of the grocery store and meat market at Fishers Island, owned by the Ferguson estate.

Mrs. Florence Hammond, Main St., Mrs. Mary McGowan, Groton; Mrs. Marion Armistead, Post Hill place; Mrs. Rene Muscarello, Niantic and Mrs. Julia O'Sullivan, Federal Street; patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were able to return to their respective homes today.

Patrick J. Walsh, a sailor aboard the U. S. S. Savannah, stationed at this port, went to the Salvation Army boarding house last night and procured accomodations for the night. About 4.30 o'clock Walsh appeared at the police station and declared that $84 which was in his clothing, had been stolen. Sergeant Patrick Murphy conducted an investigation, but obtained no clues that would lead to the identity of the thief.

F. M. Greene, 39 Bellevue place, reported to the police this morning that while his automobile was parked in front of his residence last evening a spare tire and rim was stolen.

James McHugh, New Haven, was arraigned in police court this morning charged with the larceny of $100 from George Findlay, Bank street merchant, after being held at the police station overnight in default of a surety on his bond. When arraigned before Judge S. Victor Prince, McHugh pleaded guilty to the larceny charge and explained his act in taking the money as being only "a joke", and that he intended to return Findlay the money. Judge Prince imposed a fine of $25 and ordered McHugh to leave the city by Saturday.

Patrolman Ernest Opperman returned to his beat at Ocean Beach today after having enjoyed his annual vacation of two weeks.

Anthony Mendoza, who reported to the police yesterday that his room at the lodging house, 43 Bank street, was entered by a thief the day before and a suit case containing clothing stolen informed the police today, that he is now located in Norwich, in which city he has obtained employment.

Lieut. Flood and Warrant Officer Elmer Cross, both attached to the submarine base, lodged complaint at the police station at 4 o'clock this morning that a chief petty officer had attacked and assaulted Cross on Main street. Sergeant Patrick Murphy was assigned to the case and a half hour later he arrested Ernest Green, chief petty officer, stationed aboard the rum chaser U. S. S. Jouett, stationed at this port. Lieut. Flood requested that Green be turned over to the naval authorities and that the former would see to it that Green was disciplined. Green was taken to the state pied and delivered into the custody of the executive officer of the Jouett. According to Flood and Cross, they occupied an automobile and alighted at the corner of Church street to obtain a supply of gasoline, while making the purchase, it is alleged, that Green appeared there and after engaging in an argument with Cross, he attacked and administered severe punishment to Cross.

George H. Vassar, engineer in the employ of the Central Vermont railroad and a resident in New London many years, and Mrs. Ida J. Fletcher, Poquonoc Bridge, were married yesterday afternoon at the future residence of the couple, 39 Williams St. The ceremony was performed by Rev. George R. Atha, pastor of the Groton Heights Baptist church.

William A. Emmerich, 205 Connecticut avenue, underwent an operation yesterday afternoon at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital for the removal of cataracts from his eye. It was stated this afternoon that Mr. Emmerich was resting as comfortably as could be expected.

Mrs. William A. Holt, wife of City Manager Holt, is confined to her home, Whittlesey street, by illness.

George Gilmore, 13 Hope street, a veteran employe of the F. H. & A. H. Chappell Co., was admitted to Lawrence Memorial Associated hospital, where he will undergo an operation this week for the removal of cataracts from the eye.

Louis Andren, master of the Steamer Arcadia, hailing from St. Pierre, who was taken into custody late yesterday afternoon by revenue cutter officers charged with violation of the navigation laws in proceeding upon a foreign voyage without filing manifest and obtaining clearance papers, was arraigned before United States Commissioner Earl Mathewson of Norwich at the customs house here late this afternoon and with the conclusion of testimony Andren was released.

The Arcadia is now moored at the state pier and is in charge of the federal authorities. When the Arcadia was seized she was off Block Island and apparently awaiting an opportunity to steam alongside one of the fleet of rum-supply craft that are supplying liquor to small boats for transportation through the sound. A search of the steamer failed to reveal any liquor and neither was there any evidence that liquor had been aboard the craft. The boat was brought into port and Andren held, but the crew of six men were released.

Mrs. Sophie T. Carlisle, 60, widow of William Carlisle, late of 92 Allen St., Groton, died late yesterday at home Memorial hospital. She is survived by a daughter, Miss Dorothy Carlisle, Allen street, Groton and Mrs. Mary Cull, Los Angeles, Cal.

Mrs. Carlisle suffered failing health about eight years ago, but not until 10 weeks ago was her condition serious. Two weeks ago Mrs. Carlisle was removed to the hospital, where an operation was performed, the patient lingering until last night.

Emery E. Rogers, 21 Walbach St., was arrested late this afternoon by Sergeant Samuel Hick and Patrolman Carlos Selesnitsky, charged with a breach of the peace. He was released upon furnishing a surety on his bond of $50 for his appearance in the police court tomorrow morning.

Rogers became involved in a quarrel upon the premises of his home with Augustus Lake, an occupant of the same house in which Rogers resides. Before the quarrel was concluded Rogers is accused of having viciously assaulted Lake.

The condition of Arthur Di Maggio of the firm of DiMaggio Brothers, proprietors of the Hotel Winthrop, who has been confined to his home, Montauk avenue, a week by grip is vastly improved and he will be able to attend to business the latter part of the week.

Milton S. Clancy has sold a parcel of land on Bank street to Thomas F. Moran.

Mrs. James Gillooly, Jr., Smith St., Groton, sustained painful, but not serious injuries this afternoon when she was thrown on the municipal pier while carrying her babe in her arms. Mrs. Gillooly's heel becoming wedged between the planking and causing her to be thrown with considerable force. Mrs. Gillooly's injuries comprise sprains and contusions.

Charles Nott, Jr., residing at the fire headquarters of Niagara Engine company, has been ordered to appear in the police court tomorrow morning. Nott is married, but of late has not resided with his wife.

NEARLY 1000 ARRESTS FOR INTOXICATION ALONE

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Dec. 4—An idea of whether New London has become one of the dry cities of the union is evidenced by the fact that during the year that is soon to end, 1000 arrests will have been made for intoxication. Besides the arrests for drunkenness many other arrests have been made where drink was a contributory factor in the action of the police in making the arrests. Besides the arrests for intoxication and where drink had something to do with the arrests the authorities, both municipal and federal have made many arrests for violation of the liquor law, yet arrests for intoxication continue to be made, the latest one occurring this evening, all of which goes to show that liquor is being dispensed in New London.

JEWETT CITY

A Christmas sale and chicken pie supper brought together a large crowd on Thursday evening at the Methodist church. Chicken pie, cranberry sauce, mashed potato and turnip, pickles, rolls, cake and coffee was the very appetizing menu. It was served by Mrs. L. D. Howe, Mrs. A. W. Harris, Mrs. W. C. Jeffers, Mrs. A. C. Burdick, Mrs. William McDowell, Mrs. Joseph Wharton and Mrs. Mary Howes. The fancy table was in charge of Mrs. R. W. Robertson, Mrs. Thomas Gray and Mrs. George MacFarland. Mrs. Harold Jeffers and Miss Frances Bugbee sold grabs. Mrs. E. B. Cheney, Mrs. Dora Johnson and Mrs. Alice Anthony sold home made candy and Mrs. G. H. Thornton and Mrs. Ella Geere were at the apron table. The tables were decorated with red berries and laurel. Rev. and Mrs. J. B. Aldrich, Lewis and Mark Aldrich, Miss Florence Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Cowan and daughter Janet, Mrs. George MacFarland and Mrs. Susan Lillibridge of Norwich, came up to the supper.

Santa Claus will be in Arremony's window this eve. at 7 and Saturday at 2 p. m. and 7 eve.—adv.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Masse were at St. Josephs hospital in Providence, Thursday, where their daughter Marianna is recovering from an operation on her throat.

Mrs. Edw. J. Farrell of Waureagan spent Thursday at Mrs. E. H. Hiscox's.

Mrs. Abraham Zegeer gave a birthday party Wednesday for her daughter Olga. The children played games, sang and enjoyed the donkey game in which Tomain Anthony won the prize. Ice cream, cake, fancy cookies, rolls, hot chocolate and candy were served. A birthday cake with seven candles held the place of honor on the table. The decorations were carnations and narcissus. The guests received fancy baskets of candy and raisins. The little girl received many gifts. The guests were Margery and Eunice Webster, Charlotte Albertine, Tomain Anthony and Corinne Zegeer. Mrs. Zegeer was assisted by Miss Marianna Kummer and Ethelie Parkhurst.

Has J. C. an A-1 insurance and real estate office? Ans. Yes, indeed! The Wm. M. McNicol Agency in the Maynard Bldg.—adv.

The funeral of Thomas Oldershaw was held at Gilbert's undertaking rooms on Thursday afternoon. Rev E. E. Scates officiated. Burial was in Lisbon in the Read-Horskell cemetery, friends acting as bearers. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Link, his daughter and her husband from Apponaug, R. I., were present.

Mrs. Agatha Burdick of Woonsocket is a guest of Miss M. A. Burdick.

JAIL AND FINE ON LIQUOR SALE ACCUSATION

The continued case against Matthew Gunstamachis of Franklin street, was taken up in the city court Thursday morning before Judge Arthur F. Libby. He was charged with an actual sale of liquor and entered a plea of guilty. The accused was fined $300 with costs of $14.25 and given ten days in jail.

Thomas DeVoe of No. 3 street arrested Wednesday evening on the charge of tampering with an automobile was discharged by the court. Officer Patrick Shahan who made the arrest testified to noticing DeVoe meddling with several automobiles on Willow street near the Broadway theatre. DeVoe, according to the officer looked inside each of the machines and in one case closed the door of a machine in a suspicious manner.

While being escorted to police headquarters DeVoe abused the police force in general. Officer Henry Fenton corroborated Officer Shahan's testimony. DeVoe admitted to saying some hard things about the police force in general. He apologized to Capt. D. J. Twomey and said he had nothing against the force.

Canaries for Canaries

Canary birds have been so greatly changed by their four centuries of domestication in other lands that they are now imported into their native Canary Islands.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

HOMESTEAD EDITOR WILL ADDRESS FARM BUREAU

Glenn C. Sevey, editor of the New England Homestead is to speak at the annual meeting of the New London County Farm Bureau at the Buckingham Memorial, Norwich on Saturday 6th. The meeting is to start promptly at 10.30.

Mr. Sevey is a popular editor of New England's most popular weekly agricultural paper. He has the farmer's interest at heart, understands their conditions and knows what their problems and needs are probably as well as any one in New England. The subject of Mr. Sevey's talk will be "Keeping Our Feet on the Ground."

Miss Jessie M. Hoover of the United States Department of Agriculture will also speak. Miss Hoover is a very interesting speaker and the Farm Bureau is particularly fortunate in receiving her for the program.

The agent's report for the past year will be given with the aid of slides. A discussion of the 1925 program will also take place.

All farmers and their families are welcome to attend and enjoy the program and also enter into the discussions.

Following is the program:

10.30 a. m. Meeting called to order by President H. H. Whitman, Report of officers.

10.50 a. m. Report of Home Demonstration Agent.

11.20 a. m. Report of County Agricultural Agent.

11.50 a. m. Talk by Miss Jessie M. Hoover, U. S. D. A., Washington, D. C.

12.15 p. m. Basket lunch. Coffee served.

1.15 p. m. Election of officers.

1.30 p. m. Suggested program for 1925, B. W. Ellis, Director of Extension Service, Storrs.

2.30 p. m. "Keeping Our Feet on the Ground," by Glenn C. Sevey, editor of the New England Homestead.

3.30 p. m. Adjournment.

THE WOMAN'S EXCHANGE HAS HOLIDAY OPENING

This season a specialty is being made at Woman's Exchange, 68 Broadway, Norwich, of hand embroidered articles. There is also a fine display of leather novelties, Christmas bouquets, straw flowers, baskets, etc. Hand painted wooden novelties attract buyers, while every shopper is interested in the perpetual calendars and the carefully selected line of dainty Christmas cards. Handkerchiefs and aprons are especially featured for gifts. Inexpensive novelties suggest a wise choice to the buyer who feels obliged to economize, yet searches for something reasonable and attractive. Elegant luncheon sets, buffet sets in choice linen, handembroidered scarfs, pillow cases, towels, and the like make ideal gifts. Leather bags, stamped goods, sweaters for adult and children, yarns, embroidery materials, necklaces, there is something to suit every demand. Cooked food for sale, hot lunch served daily in the tea room.

Lyceum Theater New London

The Ten Commandments, which will be presented at the Lyceum theater, New London on Dec. 10, 11, 12 and 13, by Adolph Zukor and Jesse L. Lasky, is the masterwork in moving picture production of Cecil B. De Mille. It is also the fiftieth film that he has produced since entering the cinema field. Mr. De Mille brought to his work a thorough knowledge of stage craft gained through several years of experience as an actor, and also sound theatrical traditions inherited from his father Henry C. De Mille, the noted playwright. The Ten Commandments will be presented at the Lyceum in exact accordance with Mr. De Mille's ideas, which governed the immensely successful presentations of the picture in New York and London.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

This Week in Music

New vocal combinations, particularly among the great voices, are ever interesting. This week Galli-Curci pairs her soprano with Tito Schipa's tenor in two great love duets, the one tragic, the other cheerful. Tornami a dir (Once Again Let Me Hear Thee) from Don Pasquale is extremely simple and melodious in which respect it is not much different from E il sol dell' anima (Love is the Sun) from Rigoletto. None who expects to keep up with things musical can miss hearing these great records.

Ruffo knows his Faust and seems, therefore, to be equally at home whatsoever may be the version of the legend at hand. This week he takes up Berlioz's and records the sardonic measures of Mephistopheles' Serenade (While You at Sleeping,) an opportunity to compare two great conceptions of an identical situation. His second record is the tender melody of the demon in Rubinstein's Arioso —Do Not Weep, Child.

Two splendid seasonal records are sung by the Sistine Chapel Choir this week—the ever beloved Adeste Fideles Oh, Come All Ye Faithful) and a wonderful piece of counterpoint by Palestrina, Exultate Deo (Sing Unto the Lord.) It is interesting, particularly at this time, to hear such selections sung by an organization whose traditions come down through fifteen centuries.

Victor Concert Orchestra records two of Edward MacDowell's orchestral pieces influenced by true American Indian music. From an Indian Lodge and Love Song are softly barbaric and full of quiet color.

Those who like to see the old songs rededicated and perpetuated will rejoice over Shannon Quartet's recordings this week. The melancholy strains of Annie Lisle are presented in this organization's rich and sympathetic style, and hard on it follows Sonny Eloise, the "belle of Mohawk Vale."

Fresh from Chocolate Dandies Noble Sissle and Eubie Blake do some of their own stuff this week. Manda and Dixie Morn have an original sort of "blues" rhythm.

Lewis James makes a solo of All Alone, a waltz-song decidedly in the popular manner. The Heart of a Girl is diagnosed successfully by Franklyn Baur and Elliot Shaw on the other side, with a beautiful orchestral interlude to help them out.

Paul Whiteman leads off with Mandy Make Up Your Mind, a fox-trot in which he utilizes an unusually large choir of wind instruments. Nashville Nightingales by Waring's Pennsylvanians on the other side celebrates with whistling effects.

Now we have the "syncopated waltz," so-called we understand for the introduction of fox-trot rhythms. Come Back to Me is such a number this week, happily entrusted to the capabilities of the Troubadours. Kiss Me Goodnight by Charles Dornberger and His Orchestra on the other side is a smooth, waltz with soft brass melodies, a violin duet and vocal refrains.

Four fox-trots on a big record are recorded this week, two each by George Olsen and his Music and International Novelty Orchestra. Toddles, My Baby's Baby Blue Eyes, Ida, Sweet as Apple Cider, and Roll Them Roly Boly Eyes offer variety enough for most tastes.

Broad Theater

For the feature attraction for today and tomorrow the Broad theater will present Buck Jones in Winner Takes All. Here is a built picture and is one of the best Buck Jones has ever appeared in. Throughout the six reels there is enough realistic combats, gun play and hairbreath escapes to satisfy the most ardent admirer of "red blood" action.

The third chapter of Days of 49, the Pathe news and a Sunshine comedy make up the remainder of the bill.

Coming four days starting Sunday Thomas H. Ince's last and best romantic picture Barbara Frietchie with Florence Vidor and Edmund Low. This Clyde Fitch's great masterpiece, with Julia Marlowe in the title role, was an outstanding stage production, but the screen version is destined to surpass its great success. To miss this is to miss one of the best things the screen has offered in a long time.

Broadway Theater

A Mixologist of first quality is Tom Lane who offers A Musical Cocktail. A variety of instruments are featured and all are played by an expert.

In So Long Letty musical revue with Charlotte Greenwood, Chad and Monte Huber were featured dancers. They present today dance divertissements of Broadway dance celebrities that leaves a lasting impression.

George Ade has written an excellent comedy skit in Speaking to Father and Milton Pollock and Co. get out of it everything that is possible.

McGrath and Deeds, artistic designers of song and comedy scored a touchdown with this clever offering.

Last but not least on Stilts that made an excellent closing number.

Broadway Theater

Forbidden Paradise, the first American-made Paramount picture starring Pola Negri to be directed by Ernst Lubitsch, creator of Passion, The Marriage Circle, etc., comes to the Broadway theater for a run of four days on Sunday next.

Rod La Rocque, Adolphe Menjou and Pauline Starke are featured in the principal supporting roles in the production. Among others are Fred Malatesta, Nick De Ruiz and Mme. D'Aumery.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

STOCKS AT HIGH LEVELS.

New York, Dec. 4.—Stock prices swept forward in today's market to the highest level in several years in reflection of the favorable impression created by the president's message to congress and a large quota of encouraging trade news. One hundred issues, 35 of them rails, were carried to new peak prices for the year on net gains running from 1 to 8 1-2 point.

Publication of the administration's attitude on railroad consolidations created an enormous demand for the carrier shares, particularly the southwestern issues, which have been mentioned in connection with favorable merger or dividend developments. High grade rails, however, were not neglected, Atlantic Coast Line, Illinois Central common and preferred, Pennsylvania, Chesapeake and Ohio and Baltimore and Ohio being among the dividend payers to break through their previous maximum quotations.

Frisco common responded to the inauguration of dividends by advancing 2 1-2 points to 64 1-2, while the preferred closed nearly five points higher at 82 3-8, both selling at the highest prices since the reorganization of the road in 1916. Other low priced carriers to sell at record prices included the three Wabash issues, "Katy" common and preferred, Texas and Pacific, St. Louis Southwestern and Chicago and Northwestern.

Revival of speculative interest in the copper shares followed the stiffening of commodity prices, several issues in that group recording new maximum quotations. The list included Anaconda, Utah, Chino, Ray Consolidated and American Smelting. Net gains, as a rule, were small.

Increased activity also was noted in the oil group, Pan-American issues being in active demand at the close on reports that the increase in fuel oil prices in next year's contracts would approximate two per cent. of the outstanding capital stock.

Standard industrials failed to attract much attention but persistently all of them closed higher on the day. United States Steel showed a net gain of 7-8 at 117 3-8. American Can advanced a point to 148 5-8 and Baldwin climbed 1 1-4 to 128 1-4. Mail reports was held up where 41 on reports that December sales were double those of last year, but heavy profit taking later sent the stock back to 40 where it took off nearly a point on the day. Limited bidding developed for several specialties in the final dealings. General Electric scoring a gain of 3 1-2 points at 275 1-2.

Other call money held steady at 3 per cent. all day. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged with business quiet.

The market buoyancy of sterling exchange, which advanced nearly 3 cents to 4.69, the highest since the spring of last year, was the outstanding feature of the foreign exchange market. Swiss francs and Dutch guilders also sold at new top prices.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Dec. 4.—Expansion of bond trading to near the year's record proportions today was accompanied by several smart rallies in individual issues, although the general movement of prices showed little change. Semi-speculative rail liens captured most of the buying orders, many of them touching to the year's highest levels. Total sales exceeded $24,000,000.

Contributing to the strength of the rail issues was the confidence inspired by the president's message to congress, indicating his approval of consolidations, and the inauguration of common dividends by the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway. Frisco income 6s moved into new high ground for the year, along with Seaboard, Denver and Rio Grande, "Katy," and International Great Northern issues, with gains ranging from one to three points. St. Paul, Missouri Pacific and a variety of other liens were strong, but yielded some of their gains before the close.

Pierce-Arrow Motor 8s responding to reports of improvement in this company's earnings and financial position, gave one of the most spectacular performances of the day, mounting almost six points to par and closing with a net gain of 5 1-4. Rome-Brown 6s jumped 5 points and Virginia-Carolina Chemical 7s, Morris and Company Packing 4 1-2s, Brooklyn Union Gas 7s of 1932 and Chile Copper 6s moved up one to three points.

With Liberty bonds continuing to work lower, it was reported that many holders were disposing of them at their present premiums in order to transfer their funds to the new long-term 4s. Subscriptions for the full amount of the $30,000,000 Argentine 8 per cent. loan were received today, although the books will be held open until tomorrow to obtain the widest possible distribution.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Dec. 4.—Heavy buying of curb stocks was renewed on a broad scale today with new highs being recorded in all groups. Standard Oil of Ohio jumped six points and Prairie Oil and Gas and International Petroleum a point each, most of the other active issues recording fractional gains.

Lehigh Valley Coal certificates, the most active feature in the industrial group, advanced a point "Nickel Plate" common stock was again in active demand closing more than two points higher at 86. The banking issues were moderate gains

Radios were in active demand throughout most of the session. Thednadyne touched a new top at 15, reports of heavy December sales and Deforrest crossed 26 on the announcement that the offering syndicate has been successfully dissolved but receded later to 25. Dubilier crossed 61 to a new top and then fell back to 60 3-4. Sleeper Radio, traded in for the first time, ranged between 15 and 15 1-4.

The feature of the public utility group was a break of more than 5 points in American Gas and Electric common, which sold down as low as 97 1-8. The other issues in that group were limited, Commonwealth closing about apoint higher and most of the others showing only fractional changes

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Dec. 4.—Largely as a result of good rains in the domestic winter wheat belt, but also owing to foreignness of a bearish sort, prices averaged lower here today for wheat, despite relative strength of corn and oats. Wheat closing quotations were unsettled at 1-4 to 1 1-8c net decline. May $1.60 to $1.60 1-8 and July $1.41 1-2, with corn varying from 5-8c off to 1-8c gain, oats unchanged to 3-8@1-c down, and provisions showing 2 to 12 cents advance.

In addition to the fact that rains had removed drought talk as an influence in the wheat market, downturns in wheat quotations at Loverpool counted also as a weight on values here. Export demand was described as slow, and the comparative dearth of business with Europe was attributed to heavy offerings by Argentina, India and Australia. Buying power hoodened, however, on price declines here, and with the corn market strong above yesterday's finish in some cases.

Renewed weakness of wheat developed during the last part of the day owing to a fresh slackening of support from buyers and because of an increase of profit-taking sales on the part of holders. Some of the selling was apparently due to an unofficial crop report which put the 1924 wheat yield in the United States at 870,000,000 bushel, about 13,000,000 bushel more than the government's preliminary figures. The winter wheat acreage was also estimated to show five per cent. increase.

Increased rural offerings to arrive caused the corn market after prices had bulged on accounf of severe weather and of figures indicating that this year's corn crop is the smallest since 1908. Oats duplicated the action of the corn market.

Provisions were responsive to corn strength.

LARGEST ELECTRIC PLANT IN STATE TO OPEN

On the east bank of the Housatonic River, just above the railroad bridge at Devon, there stands a massive new building of red tile above which two towering black chimneys rise to dizzy heights Across the front of the new structure facing the mouth of the river and the railroad is a large electric sign which blazes the words "Connecticut Light & Power," Tomorrow this building which is the newest and the largest electrical generating plant in the state of Connecticut will be formally opened for public inspection and from then on will begin to furnish the greater part of the southwestern section of the state with most of its electrical current.

Four years ago, the Connecticut Light & Power Company completed its mammoth water power dam at Stevenson, and added the power from this structure to that furnished by its existing stations at Bulls Bridge and Waterbury. The discovery of new heating, smelting and annealing copper and the introduction of electric furnaces, however, made the demand for electrical current in the Naugatuck Valley and vicinity so great that the company began to lay plans immediately for the Devon plant.

The site at Devon was selected because the monstrous coal supply necessary to operate the plant can be received by rail or by water and because the 28,000 gallons of condensing water consumed by the plant every minute could be easily obtained. The Devon site is one of the few locations in the state where all of these and other conditions could be met and the inauguration of operations on this site completes a 50-mile equilateral triangle with the massive plants on two of the other sites, Hartford and Montville (near New London) as the other two apexes. The perfect triangle offers untold opportunities for interconnection development.

The present generating capacity of the new plant is 67,500 kilowatts. That amount of power would be sufficient to keep 3,738,000 25-watt lamps burning constantly at all times at maximum illumination. This amount of energy is equal to 90,000 horsepower.

The walls of the plant are hollow tile on steel frame work. The floors are reenforced concrete. The huge smokestacks are 25 feet in diameter at the base and 18 feet at the top and rise up to a height of 357 1-2 feet. At present there are six enormous boilers in the plant although future plans call for 16 which will give the plant a total capacity of 200,000 horsepower. The grates in the furnaces measure 330 square feet, while the fire boxes are 15 feet high. Automatic stokers are used to feed the yawning mouths of these fireboxes, the stokers being timed so as to push new coal onto the grates just as the old fuel has been consumed. The ashes are dropped into freight cars below the floors. The boiler must be heated to over 800 degrees Fahrenheit to create the necessary 320 pounds of steam pressure.

Five hundred tons of coal must be consumed a day to keep the plant in operation, yet there must be no interruption in the fuel supply. The coal storage yard at Devon, however, is ample to care for 100,000 tons—enough to fill the Yale Bowl! With such a supply on hand and with facilities for moving in fuel by rail and water, there is little chance of even a temporary suspension of operation at Devon.

When the final capacity of the Devon plant is reached two lines of 70 foot steel towers running from Devon to Waterbury and New Britain and one line from Devon to Norwalk will be needed to carry the 66,000 volt current to those places.

Upon the Devon site, once a strip of worthless swampland, now stands this $8,000,000 plant, one of the largest and most ultramodern in the United States, ready to serve its Connecticut customers.

FRUIT EXPERTS FOR POMOLOGICAL MEETING

Fruit experts from Wisconsin, Maryland, New York and Connecticut will take part in the program of The Connecticut Pomological Society at its 34th annual meeting, at the Hotel Bond Hartford, Dec. 11 and 12. Advance programs, issued by the secretary, H. C. C. Miles of Milford, indicate that the leading problems of fruit growers will be discussed at this meeting.

To advertise the merits of Connecticut grown fruit, an exhibit of apples and pears is to be made in the main lobby and on the mezzanine floor of the hotel. Prizes are offered for the best exhibits of variety collections and of commercial fruit packages. The exhibit is open to the general public.

Speakers and their subjects during the two-day session include: Dr. B. H. Roberts, associate professor of horticulture, Wisconsin College of Agriculture, How Apples Grow and The Relation of Cultural Practices to Profitable Yields; Dr. E. C. Auchter, professor of horticulture, Maryland Agricultural College, Some New Light on Pollination of Fruit Trees; Prof. S. P. Hollister, Connecticut Agricultural College, A Report of the Recent National Fruit Congress; Dr. W. E. Britton, Connecticut state entomologist, Recent Developments in Insect Control; Dr. Phillip Garman, Connecticut Experiment Station, The Oriental Peach Moth; H. B. Reed, Convers Farm, Greenwich, A Grower's Experience; Prof. H. B. Tukey, New York State Experiment Station, Results of Spraying and Dusting Experiments in the Hudson Valley Fruit Section; Dr. G. P. Clinton, Connecticut Experiment Station, Progress in Fruit Disease Control; brief discussions on Improving the Marketing of Fruits, by Harold M. Rogers, C. G. Billings, James P. Barnes, A. B. Smith, W. H. Baldwin, C. O Young, A. T. Henry and George A. Drew; question box, conducted by W. H. Darrow, fruit specialist for Connecticut Extension Service.

The annual banquet of the society will be held at the Hotel Bond on Thursday evening, Dec. 11.

Coroner Defers Finding.

Coroner J. J. Desmond was busy in court Thursday with other matters so that he was unable to make any further progress in the investigation of the fatal accident to James McKee of Bliss place on Wednesday evening at the corner of Washington street and Julian street.

TAFTVILLE

Following the regular monthly meeting of the Artisans, Monday evening in their rooms in St. Louis hall, the members and their guests enjoyed whist parts, with a number of tables in play. The ladies' first prize was awarded to Miss Albertine Lafond, the second going to Mrs. Alfred Shuinon and the consolation to Miss Delia Pelletier. Alfred Flon was awarded the men's first prize, Alex Bellemare the second and J. C. Marois the consolation. It has been arranged to have a social hour after the regular meeting each month.

The Sunshine Sewing circle held a social Tuesday evening at the home of Miss Coranna Paradis, which proved highly enjoyable to all present. Vocal solos were sung by Miss Florida Germain and Miss Melinda Germain, and there were selections by a quartet composed of Miss Alice Rondeau, Miss Yvonne Phaneuf, Miss Blanche Lamoreux and Miss Helen Breault, accompanied by Miss Coranna Paradis at the piano. Games were played, including the donkey game for which prizes were awarded as follows: First, Miss Lorea Page, second to Miss Alice Lockard and consolation to Miss Alice St. Germain. One of the most interesting numbers was several clever dances by Lorraine Tetreault, age 5 of New Haven, who made a hit with the members of the circle and received hearty encores. The pleasant evening included one of a number which the circle plans to hold during the winter season.

Men employed by the State Highway department were busy Thursday repairing the rough spots on Norwich avenue and the Occum road.

Troop 3, Boy Scouts met Thursday evening in the recreation rooms of the Taftville Congregational church, with Scoutmaster Harold E. Linderson in charge. The troop gave valuable assistance at the annual fair and bazaar of the church which was held this week in Ponmah hall.

Miss Viola Kristek of North Grosvenordale has been a recent visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Linderson of North Third avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Faucher and family are moving from South C street to a house on North Third avenue.

Camp A-o-wa-ki-ya held its regular weekly meeting Thursday evening in the vestry of the Taftville Congregational church. The meeting was in charge of the assistant guardian, Miss Elsie Heap and at the business session, the president, Miss Melba Monty, presided.

Now that the cold weather is here, the fur bearing animals are much sought after by the local hunters and trappers. Muskrats, which are reported as being quite plentiful this season in the smaller streams and brooks surrounding the town, are being eagerly sought, especially by the boys of the town. Skunks are prime at this season, and they are being taken in traps and with dogs. Each cold night sees the start of a party to hunt skunks, and as the animals are quite numerous, hunters rarely return without two or three good pelts.

The annual fair of the Taftville Congregational church, which closed Wednesday evening was very successful and the general fair committee are to meet in the near future to hear the final reports. At no fair has the attendance been so large. Ponemah hall being crowded both nights. Rev. Edwin G. Crowdis is treasurer of the committee, and the distribution of tickets was in charge of Walter L. Parrett and Allan Bogle.

NORWICH TOWN

News of the tragic death of James McKee of Bliss Place, which occurred late Wednesday afternoon, was learned with profound sorrow by the people of Norwich. Such a terrible fatality has cast a gloom over the community in which he lived, as well as other places where he was known. Monday of this week, while in conversation with friends, he talked reminiscently of the days of the Civil War and some of the hardships endured them. It being remarked how well and vigorous he looked, he said in return—Well, I am in my eight-fourth year, and I have had lots of trouble, twice in my life during war time, I knew what it was to be hungry, once for five days.

When asked how many Grand Army men there were in Norwich, Mr. McKee replied, "Not many of us left, twenty or more in our post." It did not seem then, that he would be the next one to reduce the ranks, for he appeared to be in good health and spirits. He had an especially agreeable manner always; and whether in company with his comrades, church affiliations, the home circle, or meeting friends on the trolley or anywhere, it was a pleasure to be in his cherry company.

JOHN E. FITZGERALD
Exalted Ruler

Exalted Ruler John E. Fitzgerald presided and extended a cordial welcome to the visiting brothers who saw the lodge officers work the initiation upon six candidates in the lodge room.

District Deputy O'Loughlin addressed the lodge after the business of the meeting was over, expressing warm admiration for the activity shown by the organization and commending the officers for the conduct of the initiation which he declared had been excellent. His words were seconded by the other visitors, all members of Rockville lodge, and who included Grand Esquire Martin Laubscher, Mayor John P. Cameron, Judge John Fahey, P. E. R. Michael Conway, P. E. R. George H. Williams, Henry W. Gottschalk and Carl B. Herrick.

The evening closed with a social session for which a fine chicken pie supper was served in the hall. During the supper, entertainers from a Hartford bureau gave a programme that was enthusiastically applauded and included Scotch songs and stories cleverly given by Nell Paterson, songs by Gertrude Adams, a sweet singer, with a number of pretty selections, dances by Doris Dewey, a dainty exponent of grace and poetry in motion, and excellent tenor songs by George Wright.

TOWN CLOCK STOPPED— DECEIVED TRAFFIC COP

Policeman Myron O. Morgan, who was doing traffic duty at the bank corner Thursday morning has an unfailing inward monitor which reminds him when it is dinner time. But he thought it was mistaken Thursday. It was time for him to be relieved and he started to move from his post, when suddenly he got a glimpse of the court house clock. It was only 11.15.

The faithful officer returned to his post and it was only when somebody told him, that he discovered his dependable monitor was all right, after all. The town clock had stopped at 11.15 and deceived countless others beside the traffic cop.

Thursday afternoon, John A. Ferguson, custodian of the public timepiece, wound the clock and it was ready to strike when 5 o'clock arrived.

Y. M. C. A. Bible Study.

The largest number of the season thus far were present at the Men's Bible study class at the Y. M. C. A., Wednesday evening, when the study topic was Doing the Truth. The Scripture used was Luke 6:39-49. The following points were developed in the discussion in which the men joined freely: Jesus selected the 12 disciples with the definite purpose of making them leaders of others, and though the men selected were not those who had achieved much thus far, but he saw as he always sees, the great possibilities in them. He told them that blind men cannot lead the blind, meaning that if they were to be leaders of men they must themselves learn and that they must learn of him. When a man thinks he can learn no more, he becomes less and less useful in the world. When Jesus told the disciples to take the beam out of their own eyes before they attempted to remove the mote in the eyes of another, he simply means clean up yourselves before you attempt to clean up others; be consistent. When a man gives us advice and fails to take his own medicine, we lose confidence in him, and rightly so. Jesus calls such a man a hypocrite, and the meaning of hypocrite is "a false pretender, a deceiver, a cheat and a dissembler", such a man is harmful to society. While a man may mislead his friends for a while, eventually the real fruitage of his life will be apparent. You cannot tell what a man's character and life is until the tests come, the problems, the crisis: then and only then can we measure the worth of a man. When Jesus compared the wise and foolish man who built houses, one on the rock and one on the sand he emphasized the great importance of a strong foundation; so in the building of a life, there must be a strong, secure foundation, and that means that his life must be linked to "the rock of ages," even the great Christ of God, and then when the storms of life beat upon the life, it stands unmoved and secure. We should all realize that in every man there are wonderful possibilities waiting for development, and God expects every man to count for the most possible in the world.

Memorial Sunday

The observance of the annual Lodge of Sorrow was announced for the coming Sunday afternoon at 2.30 in Broadway theatre. This will be for the general public and no admission tickets will be required. The annual memorial service will be carried out with the usual impressive programme of the Elks' ritual and the memorial address will be by Attorney John H. Cassidy of Waterbury, a past district deputy of the order. The invocation will be by Rev. C. H. Ricketts of Greeneville and the instrumental music will be by Swahn's Orchestra with the vocal numbers by the Clarion male quartette of Hartford.

The lodge is throwing the meeting open to the public with no formalities of tickets required for admission and it is expected that the seating capacity of the theatre will be taxed to accommodate those who will want to attend.

JUDGE WILL VISIT SCENE OF ACCIDENT

Judge George E. Hinman, who has been hearing the trial of the suit of Shahdan Courey and his brother, grocers of this city, against William M. Eastwood, on a claim for damages to Courey's truck in a collision with Mr. Eastwood's automobile, is to visit the scene of the accident on the Norwich-Westerly road. Evidence in the case was concluded Thursday morning in the superior court here and the judge agreed to accompany the attorneys to the place where the accident occurred after he has finished the business of the short calendar session of the court today (Friday.)

James S. Osten, an automobile salesman, was the final witness for the plaintiff put on by his attorney, J. J. Desmond, on Thursday morning. He testified that the value of the Courey truck had depreciated between $200 and $250 as it was two years old, irrespective of the damage in the collision.

William M. Eastwood of 260 Washington street, the defendant and owner of the automobile, a Cadillac touring car testified he was not in the car at the time of the accident, June 17, 1923, but it cost him about $200 for repairs, including varnishing.

Mrs. Margaret Crowell of this city, who was riding in the Eastwood car stated that it was traveling about 20 to 25 miles an hour on the right of the road and she did not hear any horn blown by the Courey truck. Mrs Mabel Eastwood, wife of W. Manley Eastwood Jr., driver of the car testified that she was riding on the front seat with her husband and she first saw the Courey truck when it came out of the Ledyard Center road and ran into the touring car. She saw no sign of warning of an intersecting road. Mrs. Sadie Whitton, sister-in-law of the younger Mr. Eastwood, who was also in the touring car, testified that the first she knew of there being another road there was when she saw the Courey truck coming out of it.

W. Manley Eastwood, Jr., who was driving the touring car, testified he was going about 25 to 30 miles an hour with a clear road ahead of him and he did not notice the hidden road until he saw the Courey truck coming out directly in his path. He was almost on top of it, he said, and in order to avoid a broadside collision, he stepped on the gas and swung sharply to the left. The truck hit the front fender and scraped along the side of the car on the right. Mr. Eastwood said he applied his brakes and came to a stop about a car length away.

Attorney E. W. Perkins rested the case for the defendant with the testimony of Mr. Eastwood.

PLANNING TO ORGANIZE BIG WEST SIDE ORCHESTRA

Plans have been made by the West End Community association for organizing a large community orchestra under the direction of Robert W. Otis. An abundance of musical talent has been found on the West Side and the aim of the association is an orchestra of 40 to 50 pieces which will make it the largest orchestra in this part of the state. Those in charge of the movement are urging every West Side resident who plays or knows of some one else who plays any kind of instrument to communicate at once with Robert W. Otis, 323 West Main street, Phone 473-4.

The movement to organize this large orchestra is another evidence of what a great factor the West End Community association has become in that section of the city. Its activities cover at least a score of worthwhile projects and every West Sider is a big booster of the organization.

GAS METER EXPLODED IN LOCAL GARAGE

About 2:15 o'clock Thursday afternoon the fire department was called out by telephone following an explosion of a gas meter in the garage of the Irving E. Bogue Co., Inc., on North Main street. Three companies were sent to the scene. Two tanks of chemical kept in the garage put the blaze out and aside from the damage to the gas meter there was no loss.

WEST MAIN STREET COUPLE FOURTEEN YEARS MARRIED

FLAG PRESENTATION AT KNOWLTON MEMORIAL HALL

When a dramatic entertainment is given at the new Knowlton Memorial hall in Warrenville by players from Connecticut Agricultural college, under the direction of Prof. H. A. Seckerson. A feature of the evening's programme will be the presentation to the town of a beautiful flag provided by funds contributed by former pupils of Ashford schools. Mrs. George Platt (Florence Howlett) of Andover has been chiefly instrumental in raising these funds. She has also started a fund to provide a drop curtain and other dramatic equipment for the town hall stage.

Following the evening's program, there will be an "old-fashion country dance," with music under the direction of A. E. Lyman.

The proceeds of this entertainment will be applied toward the social equipment of the town hall, especially the stage equipment.

FAITH TRUMBULL CHAPTER MAKES TWO APPROPRIATIONS

Members of Gen. Ebenezer Huntington society, Children of the American Revolution, were guests Wednesday afternoon at the December meeting of Faith Trumbull chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, which was held at the Community house on Church street, with the regent, Mrs. George A. Ashbey, presiding. Following the opening exercises, which consisted of singing America, with Miss Annie Vaughn at the piano, the Lord's prayer and salute to the flag, the officers' reports were given by Mrs W. H. Dawley, secretary, Mrs. A. S. Comstock, treasurer and Mrs. Hezekiah Perkins, registrar. The last named report gave 164 members and the name of one new member was read. Mrs. Clarence A. Spear. Two names were presented for membership, Mrs. Charles H. Standish and Mrs. Percival W. Chapman.

The chapter voted a $50 scholarship for the Americanization college at Springfield and $25 to make the chapter an honorary member in the Wakefield Association in Virginia, which association has as its object the purchase of property in Virginia along the Potomac river where was the birthplace of George Washington and the rebuilding of the house where he was born.

The chairman of the ways and means committee, Miss Barbara Allen, reported plans for a bridge in January, and further plans for February.

Mrs. William H. Dawley reported the plans for the illustrated lecture by Charles Colax Long upon "Washington, Our National Shrine," were well under way.

Mrs. Charles L. Stewart told of the box which the committee on Patritic Education and Americanization were planning to send to Ellis Island. Gifts were brought for this box.

Mrs. William Tyler Browne reported the museum as being closed for the winter. This closed the business meeting.

The programme of the afternoon was in charge of Mrs. E. S. Burdsall and was as follows:

Mrs. Carrie Doty-Spooner sang "Trees," by Oscar Rasbach, and as an encore "Grandma" by Henry Sachs. Mrs. E. S. Burdsall was at the piano.

Mother Goose Melodies (in costume) Mrs. Mabel Buckingham and Miss Hazel Benfield, with Miss Annie Taft at the piano.

Katinka—a trio from Chauve Souris—presented in costume by Mrs. Reuben Potter, Miss Faith Bonfecy and James Justine Moore. Mrs. Burdsall at the piano.

The hostesses of the afternoon were: Mrs. Arthur M. Thompson, Mrs. Arthur H. Lathrop, Mrs. Archibald Mitchell, Jr., Mrs. Raymond R. Sherman, Mrs. E. Allen Bidwell, Mrs. William H. Oat, Mrs. Louis A. Wheeler, Mrs. Harvey M. Briggs, Mrs. Chas. J. Twist, Mrs. Franklin S. Wilcox, Mrs. Samuel E. Smiley, Miss Anne Strong Brown, Mrs. Henry W. Lanz, Mrs. Alfred M. Haring, Mrs. Herbert M. Lerou, Mrs. William S. Elliott, Mrs. Harry B. Ford, Miss Susan Galup. These hostesses served ice cream and cakes.

Carl Bricchi, of Concord, granite cutter had a narrow escape while deer hunting. As he was roaming the woods a woman hunter, whose name is unknown, thought him to be a deer and fired in his direction. The shot took his hat clean off his head.

GUSTAVE LAMBERT 69 YEARS OLD TODAY

Gustave Lambert, for years a well known boxer and wrestler, of No. 21 Cliff street, will observe his 69th birthday today (Friday). Mr. Lambert was married 51 years ago Thanksgiving Day to his first wife and 30 years ago was united in marriage with his second wife. Mr. Lambert has had 12 children of whom 9 are living. One thing in which Mr. Lambert takes considerable pride is the fact that his children have brought home 27 perfect attendance certificates from school.

Mr. Lambert was born in St. Guillaume, Canada, Dec. 5, 1855. He achieved considerable notoriety in the early eighties as a club swinger, heavy weight lifter, boxer, collar and elbow catch as-catch can, and Graeco-Roman Wrestler.

DEMOCRATIC PARALLEL FOR TRIPARTITE POLITICAL POSITION OF HIRAM BINGHAM

Senator George Moses of New Hampshire Calls Attention to Case of Senator Robinson of Arkansas, Who Within a Few Weeks Was a Congressman, a Governor-Elect, a Governor, Senator-Elect and a Senator — Today Senator Robinson is the Outstanding Democratic Leader in the Country—Meets Charge That Bingham is Attempting to Hold Too Many Positions.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, Dec. 5.—Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire, chairman of the republican senatorial committee, was at republican state headquarters today, assisting in the present senatorial campaign. One of the first things Senator Moses did was to comment on the opposition of the Hartford Times to Colonel Bingham. He seemed especially amused at the argument used so often by the Times that Colonel Bingham was attempting to hold too many offices.

"I observed," said Senator Moses, "that the Hartford Times, which in my newspaper days I had come to regard as always plausible and generally illogical, and which I observe at the present moment is politically strabismic, is considerably exercised over the fact that the next governor of Connecticut and the next senator from Connecticut will be the same man.

"Such a collocation is sanctioned by the highest of democratic tradition, which the Times necessarily should recognize. Woodrow Wilson himself did not hesitate to lay down the governorship of New Jersey to take on national political duties at Washington; and today the leading democrat on Capitol Hill holds in his record an episode which far transcends anything which the Times in its most frenzied moment has sought to bring against Colonel Bingham.

"In 1912 the state of Arkansas rejoiced in the possession of a congressman, one Joe T. Robinson. While holding this office, Mr. Robinson sought and obtained the democratic nomination for governor, and was elected. Resigned his seat in congress and was sworn in as governor. The words of his oath of office had hardly fallen from his lips than he sought and obtained his party nomination as United States senator, and the legislature elected him. He resigned his governorship and took his seat in the senate, and has just been re-elected for a third term. Thus with a very few weeks, Senator Robinson was a congressman, a governor-elect, a governor, a senator-elect and a senator. He is today the floor leader of the democratic party in the United States senate and as such, in consequence of the great democratic disaster on Nov. 4, the outstanding democratic leader in the country.

"Undoubtedly the reference library of the Hartford Times contains copies of the scripture, from which I would counsel its editorial writers to take heed of these words:

"'And why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye but perceivest not the beam that is in thine own eye?'"

PROGRESS OF TESTIMONY IN THE FORBES CONSPIRACY CASE

Chicago, Dec. 5—(By the A. P.)—Testimony of the chief witness and presentation of the chief document in the government's conspiracy charges against Colonel Charles R. Forbes, former director of the Veterans' Bureau, and John W. Thompson, St. Louis contractor, closed the first part of the government's evidence in the Forbes-Thompson trial late today.

Elias H. Mortimer, one of the alleged members of the conspiracy to allot war veterans' hospital to favored contractors and divide the profits, and now the principal witness for the government, finished his testimony and identifying a $15,000 demond note he had signed to Thompson and Black of this Mortimer testified, he gave Forbes $5,000.

The government makes no charges that the conspiracy ever resulted in the division of any profits, and thus far has presented only the $15,000 note and Mortimer's testimony to show that Forbes received money from the contractors as "advances."

James W. Black, partner of John W. Thompson, also of St. Louis, and alleged to have been associated in the conspiracy, is dead.

The note presented today was found by government attorneys in Thompson's papers, when the latter turned over his files to the government last winter for use before the grand jury.

Many other government exhibits also were taken from Thompson's files. The note, government counsel said, was an "impounded paper," it never has been paid, defense counsel asserted.

The note was dated June 20, 1922, and was given to Thompson and Black in Chicago, Mortimer testified he went to the Drake Hotel in Chicago where he called Forbes aside and give him $5,000.

He said at the time he was told that William D. Platt, associated with Thompson and Black in the Colombian (South American) syndicate, a development project which never materialized, had contributed part of the $15,000, "advance."

A letter from Platt to Black was introduced, dated October 19, 1922. It read:

"My dear Black:

"I have been waiting for some word for a long while from either you or Mort (Mortimer), but it seems that the government construction work is being delayed and I presume our prospects of getting anything are very slight.

"Under the circumstances, cannot you arrange to have the advances to your friends taken up and oblige.

"WILLIAM D. PLATT."

RAIDS BY TWO BANDS OF HOLD-UP MEN IN CHICAGO

Chicago, Dec. 5.—Raids by two bands of hold-up men on a bank and a jewelry store here today netted the robbers a total of $86,000 in money, jewelry and negotiable securities.

Four armed men dashed into the lobby of the Berwyn Trust and Savings bank while half a dozen patrons were making deposits and escaped with $6,000 in currency and $30,000 in securities, after imprisoning the depositors in a valut and forcing the employes to lie on the floor.

Early in the day robbers entered the Owen and Ebann jewelry store and fled with jewelry valued at more than $50,000.

TRADING RULES CHANGED BY N. Y. COTTON EXCHANGE

New York, Dec. 5.—The New York cotton exchange has amended its rules so as to provide that trading in the current month shall cease on the tenth day of the month. Notices, however, may be issued thereafter up to the end of the month in accordance with the provisions of the United States cotton futures act. In order not to disturb existing contracts, the new rule will not go into effect on any contracts prior to those of December 1925.

CUTTER IS TOWING A DISABLED SCHOONER

New York, Dec. 5.—A wireless message from the coast guard cutter Seneca announcing it had located the four-master schooner Bluebird, with 16 men aboard, and was towing it to Norfolk, was picked up here tonight by the Independent Wireless Telegraph corporation.

EDITOR'S WIFE ACQUITTED OF THEFT OF DOCUMENTS

Stamford, Dec. 5.—Mrs. Florence M. Waldron, wife of the editor of a Stamford newspaper, who was charged with the theft of certain documents belonging to Harry T. Lutterman of Darien, was acquitted of the charge after a trial before Justice of the Peace John H. Selleck in the Darien town court today. Mrs. Waldron was arrested a few days ago in South Manchester, where she was visiting at the home of her parents, and was brought back to Darien.

Mr. Lutterman was the only witness at the trial today. He testified that Mrs. Waldron had been employed in his office as stenographer for ten days and that on Sept. 15 a certain book, known as the "Black Book," disappeared from his home. He said that the only persons having access to it was his wife, Mrs. Waldron and himself. According to his testimony, the contents of the book was printed in the newspaper of which Mrs. Waldron's husband is editor.

After counsel for Mrs. Waldron had asked for acquittal on the grounds of insufficient evidence, Grand Juror William B. Hines, who was prosecuting the case, admitted that the state had not proved its case and recommended that the woman be acquitted. This was granted by the court.

Grand Juror Hines had drawn the warrant for the arrest of Mrs. Waldron after Grand Juror Martin Shaughnessy had declined to issue the warrant.

PRIVATE FUNERAL FOR "MILLIONAIRE ORPHAN"

Chicago, Dec. 5.—Private funeral services will be held tomorrow for William M. McClintock, known as the "millionaire orphan," who died as his fiancee waited at his bedside with a marriage license.

It was a race between death and love, and death won—the latest time death has snatched away the McClintock millions before they had been long enjoyed by the holder.

McClintock and Miss Isabelle Pope had been sweethearts since schooldays. He attended Dartmouth college but stopped his academic training to take up business courses to fit himself for administration of the $6,000,000 estate which had come to him only seven months ago.

Then he fell ill and he and Miss Pope planned to wed in the hospital.

Young McClintock was the fifth of his family whose life was cut short before the fortune was long enjoyed.

OBITUARY

Dwight P. Mills

Naugatuck, Conn., Dec. 5—Dwight P. Mills, regarded as the oldest manufacturer of woolens in the country when he retired from active service in 1912, died today after a brief illness, aged 90 years and 7 months. He had spent recent winters at St. Petersburg, Fla., and was preparing for a visit there when taken ill.

Mr. Mills was an incorporator of the Naugatuck National bank and one of its directors, and a director of the Naugatuck Savings bank. He was long agent of the Dunham Company formerly the Dunham Hosiery company. In political life he was once burgess for several years.

Mr. Mills is survived by two daughters, the Misses Annie A., and Susie Mills of Naugatuck, and a son, William of Bridgeport.

The funeral will be held on Monday afternoon.

MAY SOLVE MYSTERIOUS "BABY CARRIAGE" FIRES

New York, Dec. 5.—Through a plea of guilty to a charge of arson, entered in the Morisania court today by Jacob Rosenthal, police believe they will be able to solve the recent mysterious "baby carriage" fires in the Bronx. Rosenthal is alleged to have set fire to a baby carriage in the basement of a twenty-four family apartment house last night.

According to detectives, who examined the prisoner in the station house, Rosenthal said he had a mania for starting fires and that he "might have started several hundred of them."

Rosenthal was held in $15,000 bail for the grand jury.

Men seldom die for women, but women frequently die for men.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Sentenced to Death

Reval, Esthonia, Dec. 5—Two air force officers were sentenced to death and shot today for remaining inactive during the communist outbreak last Monday.

Aviation Salon in Paris

Paris, Dec. 5—The showing of monoplanes and sesquiplanes, with biplanes practically absent, was the feature of the aviation salon opening today. From the exhibits, the manufacturers appeared to have specialized in small fast pursuit planes, instead of the heavy weight-carrying machines. A motor developing 480 horsepower and weighing only 330 kilograms attracted much attention.

OPIUM CONFERENCE CONCLUDES ITS WORK

Geneva, Dec. 5 (By the A. P.)—The first opium conference, whose membership is confined to opium-producing countries, concluded its work tonight, except for the formal signing of the agreement and protocol, both of which were adopted today. The documents will be signed at a session to be held Dec. 13.

China's unsuccessful attempt to make reservations to the protocol and Japan's success in getting an addition to one of the articles of the agreement were the features of today's session.

Alfred Sze, head of the Chinese delegation, asked permission to insert a statement on China's dissent to the protocol's conclusion, that in some far eastern countries the contraband opium trade equals and even excells the legitimate trade. Sir Malcolm Delevingne of Great Britain, Mr. Sugimura of Japan and Leon Bourgeois of France reminded him that inasmuch as China was not going to sign that part of the protocol, his proposal was out of order.

Japan's move, to which there was unanimous agreement, was to enlarge Article 2 of the protocol which bore the statement that "the sale of opium to minors shall be prohibited." To this the Japanese added "all possible steps shall be taken by the contracting powers to prevent the spread of the opium smoking habit among minors."

SQUADRON OF GENERAL WRANGEL DISARMED

Bizetra, Tunis, Dec. 5—The squadron of General Baron Peter Wrangel, who was at the head of the anti-Bolshevik campaign in the Crimea, which has been plying in Bizerta Roade since December, 1920, was disarmed today.

All the guns, torpedo tubes and other armaments were removed from the two battleships, two cruisers, nine torpedo boats and four submarines comprising the squadron. Part of the crews were dispersed, while the remainder have been given shelter in the French naval barracks at Sida Ames.

A soviet commission recently was appointed by the Moscow government to come to Bizerta and demand the return of the warcraft to the soviet government. A treaty by Admiral Exelmans, port admiral of Bizerta and commander-in-chief of the French naval forces in North African waters, that he would have the Russian commission thrown into the sea if it called on him, resulted in the admiral being removed from his post by the French government.

After the defeat of Wrangel's army and the advance of the bolshevik forces on Sebastopol, Baron Wrangel fled with his fleet, which later took refuge in the port of Bizerta. The anti-soviet army which Wrangel had headed scattered to various parts of Europe and the near eastern countries.

SIX MEN RESCUED FROM AN ABANDONED STEAMER

New York, Dec. 5.—The Pacific line steamer Ebro at noon today picked up a boat with the captain and six men from the abandoned schooner Rachel W. Stevens at a point thirty miles north of Diamond Shoals lightship, said a wireless message received late this afternoon by the liner's agents here. The Ebro's captain said he would land the shipwrecked men at Havana, where the Ebro is due on Monday.

The hulk of the Rachel W. Stevens, which was wrecked en route from Jacksonville to Philadelphia, is being towed to Norfolk by the tanker Shenandoah.

BOOTLEG SCANDAL COMES TO LIGHT IN WEEHAWKEN

Jersey City, N. J., Dec. 5.—Indictment of Police Commissioner Harry J. Stearns of Weehawken, William Griffin, a Jersey City broker, and ten Weehawken policemen, including two superior officers, early tonight by the Hudson county grand jury climaxed a day of many developments in Weehawken's bootleg scandal.

Having its origin in an affidavit by a man who admitted he formerly engaged in bootlegging activities, the investigation has spread until now it threatens to reach throughout Hudson county.

ANNULMENT PETITION FROM SECRET MARRIAGE

New York, Dec. 5.—Declaring that he was married secretly in 1919 at a New England summer resort when he was 18 and his bride 17, William R. Gunn of Amaroneck applied to Supreme Court Justice Tompkins in White Plains today for annulment of his marriage to Mrs. Grace Copeland Gunn of Troy, N. Y.

Justice Tompkins adjourned hearing on the application indefinitely and directed that the parents of both be summoned to testify.

DIVINITY STUDENT SUICIDED BY SWALLOWING POISON

New York, Dec. 5.—Edgar Reading, 25, of Niles, Mich., a divinity student, committed suicide in his room at the Union Theological seminary today by swallowing poison. In two notes, one to the school authorities and the other to his mother, he explained that his act was due to ill health.

Actions of some men remind us of a comic opera without a plot.

Stock Prices Broke Under Heavy Selling

New York, Dec. 5 (By the A. P.)—Stock prices crumbled under an avalanche of selling orders today after an early outburst of bullish enthusiasm had carried 113 individual issues to new peak prices for the year. A record high for all time, and five above the previous record established a couple of weeks ago.

The volume of trading, which totalled 2,585,000 shares, has been exceeded only once since the current bull movement started. On Nov. 20 total sales aggregated 2,594,000 shares—the highest since the famous 3,000,000 share day which followed the "leak" on President Wilson's peace note in December, 1916.

There was no special news to account for the enormous volume of selling, which originated with professional bear traders, working for a technical reaction, and gained added stimulus by unusually heavy weekend profit taking and the touching off of "stop-loss" orders placed just below the market by traders who had built up substantial paper profits in a number of popular issues.

Despite the tremendous volume of offerings, the decline, with a few conspicuous exceptions, was an orderly one, net losses in most of the active issues ranging from small fractions to two points.

Bear attacks centered largely on the U. S. realty issues, which were hammered down ten points as a result of contradictory report concerning the consolidation of the real estate holdings of that company with the duPont interests, involving several valuable office buildings and hotel properties in this city, Philadelphia, Washington, D. C. and Boston. H. R. Mallinson was depressed to 34 1-2, or nearly 7 points below the maximum quotation established yesterday, and then rallied slightly.

The list of new highs included 33 rails, 19 public utilities, 13 non-ferrous metals, 10 motors and six foods. The number of individual issues dealt in was 746 as compared with the record of 674 established about two weeks ago.

What Advertising Will Do!

When Rome was under attack and about to be seized it was saved by the loud cackling of the fowls. Advertising is constantly saving something for someone. It will save for you, too, if you use it properly.

It will save you money by pointing out real bargains, by telling you of true values, by giving you prices to compare and by telling you how much you should pay.

It will save you time and effort by telling you exactly where and when to go for what you want to buy. You don't have to "shop around."

It will save you disappointment by telling you just what you can expect from your purchases. Every time a merchant or manufacturer advertises, he obligates himself to sell you goods that fulfill his claims. He knows it doesn't pay to advertise unworthy goods.

Read The Bulletin's advertisements as a plain, every-day business proposition. It is a duty you owe yourself and your purse.

Bulletin advertisements will help you save.

PRESIDENT PLEASED WITH TRIP ON REGULAR TRAIN

Washington, Dec. 5.—Having set a precedent in manner of travel, President and Mrs. Coolidge returned to Washington at 8 o'clock tonight after their visit to the Chicago Livestock Exposition.

The executive seemed wel satisfied with his economy experiment in the use of regular trains and the usual accommodations rather than special trains or private cars, and members of the party that accompanied him to Chicago declared it would not be surprising if on all future trips he would choose to travel as he did on the one ended tonight.

Railroad officials, however, sighed with relief when the train drew into the Union Station. The consternation of a presidential party always places the greatest responsibility on the railroad over which the executive chooses to travel, and the trainmen who took Mr. Coolidge to and from Chicago frankly asserted that his use of regular equipment hardly lessened this responsibility.

The executive passed most of the long day's ride resting after the busy hours in Chicago. He and Mrs. Coolidge as on the westward trip, took their meals in the diner, and at breakfast he discussed the dining car steward, with one of his dry bits of humor.

That official appeared near the end of the meal to inquire if the president and the First Lady had found their coffee to their liking.

"It was delicious" replied Mrs. Coolidge, smilingly, whereupon the president with solemn face asked:

"Why, did you think there was something wrong with it?"

GOVERNOR LEN SMALL IN AUTOMOBILE MISHAP

Kanakee, Ill., Dec. 5 (By the A. A bulletin issued at the hospital tonight said the condition of the patient was satisfactory.

Prodical in Straits Would Become Slave

Discovery Made Through an Advertisement in a Boston Newspaper.

Boston, Dec. 5.—An advertisement headed "Slave," which appeared in newspapers under the head "Situations Wanted" led to discovery today that Cuvier Grover Flint, a grandson of John Fiske, the historian, and son of Governor Flint, author of "Marching With Gomez" (Cuba, 1896) was the subject. "Male, 24 (white) sound, intelligent, gentle; belonged to aristocratic family; lease by the year $1,000," the advertisement read in part.

In the shadow of Harvard college, where his father was graduated and to which he was to have gone until the World war took him to France, Young Flint said he spent $15,000 last year, but would be glad to hire himself out, by lease or otherwise, for $1,000 next year. Depending on an aunt in Petersham, whose estate he managed, to leave him her fortune, he learned after her death that it was willed to a cousin of his, he said.

MARY MILES MINTER FIGURES IN ROMANCE

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 5.—Mary Miles Minter, moving picture actress, and Lieutenant Commander H. H. Ridder, have arrived here and with them came whisperings of a romance. According to one report they are to be married soon.

Miss Minter told hotel employes to deny that she was in the hotel. When reporters located her suite, she declined to be interviewed.

Commander Ridder who commands the U. S. S. Jason, in dock here, denied that they had been married, but did not deny that an engagement existed.

MRS. ANNA BUZZI WAS ACQUITTED OF MURDER

New York, Dec. 5.—Mrs. Anna Buzzi, twice tried on trial for the murder in 1923 of Frederick Schneller, a wealthy Bronx contractor whose companion was his wife she had been, was tonight acquitted by a jury in Bronx supreme court.

ON TRIAL FOR THE SLAYING OF 27 YOUNG MEN

Hanover, Germany, Dec. 5 (By the A. P.).—The second day of the trial of Fritz Haarmann, the Hanover butcher accused of the murders of 27 young men since 1918, was marked by numerous clashes between the defendant and Hans Grans, who is charged with being an accomplice in the many crimes.

Haarmann at first wanted to shield Grans, who appears to have exercised an influence almost hypnotic on the mass-murderer, but when Grans failed to reciprocate Haarmann grew furious, declaring:

"If Grans denies he took things and money from me, I'll testify to something much more serious."

Much of the trial is being conducted behind closed doors because of the revolting details. All the witnesses are searched before entering the courtroom, as the feeling here is so bitter against Haarmann that the authorities fear an attempt may be made to kill the defendant.

AMBASSADOR SHEFFIELD STILL CONFINED TO HOME

Mexico City, Dec. 5—(By the A. P.)—American Ambassador Sheffield still is confined to his home in consequence of an illness which for more than a fortnight has prevented his presence at the embassy here, although his condition is not causing alarm, it was stated at the embassy today. It was added that nothing was known which would warrant reports that the continued illness of the ambassador might result in his retirement from Mexico.

A combination of overwork and the altitude, during his first month in Mexico, forced the ambassador to abandon his duties temporarily, making it impossible to present personally his credentials as special ambassador or to attend the Calles inauguration ceremonies.

MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR LATE JUDGE PRENTICE

Waterbury, Dec. 5.—Practically every member of the local bar association attended the memorial service in the superior court here today for the late Chief Justice Samuel O. Prentice of the supreme court. Resolutions were read and Attorneys John H. Cassidy, Dennis J. Coleman and Patrick Healey delivered orations dealing with his youth, his practice as an attorney and his career as chief justice.

HEAVY SHIPMENTS OF GOLD ARE BEING MADE TO EUROPE

Flow or Gold is Eastward After Heavy Importations by the United States For Four Years—America Has Been Holding More Than a Third of the World's Supply—Shipments Made to Germany and Great Britain.

New York, Dec. 5—First evidences of a return flow of gold to Europe, after four years of heavy importations by the United States which have given this nation more than a third of the world's supply, were seen today when two shipments aggregating $12,000,000 were consigned to Germany and Great Britain. An initial shipment of $5,000,000 in gold coin by J. P. Morgan & Company to the German reichsbank represented the first transfer of proceeds of the German loan. Weekly withdrawals of about $5,000,000 will be made by Germany until a substantial portion of the balances created by the sale of $110,300,000 German bonds in this country have been transferred.

Exportation of $7,000,000 in gold bars by the International Acceptance Bank to London constituted what was said to be the largest single shipment of gold from the United States this year. The metal was consigned to a London bank for reshipment.

SEC'Y GORE SUFFERS AN ATTACK OF BRONCHITIS

Chicago, Decs. 5 (By the A. P.).—Howard M. Gore, secretary of agriculture and governor-elect of West Virginia, was taken to a hospital here today suffering from an attack of bronchitis. Doctors at St. Luke's hospital, where he is a patient, said his condition is not serious and that he will probably be able to leave the institution in a few days.

The secretary was in Chicago to attend the International Livestock exposition and yesterday accompanied President Coolidge and the president's party on its visit to the show.

QUESTIONS EFFIENCY OF CHLORINE GAS TREATMENT

New York, Dec. 5.—In reply to criticism of a recent report of the department of health here that the Chlorine gas treatment for cold had proved to be overrated, Health Commissioner Frank J. Monaghan said today that the city would welcome the gas cure if it could be proved efficatious.

The health department report called forth a letter from Colonel Vedder of the medical research division of the United States army in which it was said that the treatment had not been given a fair trial here and protesting against the publicity given the report.

CASTRO, FORMER VENEZUELAN DICTATOR, DIES IN EXILE

General Castro, who was 66 years old, had been here since 1916.

General Castro, who was frequently called the "stormy petrel of South America" was president of Venezuela from 1899 to 1908, when he started for Germany for an operation which the Venezuelan physicians were unwilling to perform.

When on this off shore Juan Vicente Gomez to whom Castro had left at the head of the government, sent word to his former chief not to return and ordered the Castro family to leave Venezuela within twenty-four hours.

The big period in Cipriano Castro's life began in 1899 when at the head of a successful revolution he drove out President Andrade and entered Caracas Oct. 24. From then on until the coup by which he was ousted in 1908 he held full sway in Venezuela, although his persistently belligerent disposition led him into a country into many scrapes.

Besides contending with several powerful revolutionary movements at home he had to withstand combined action against him by those of Germany, Great Britain, France and Italy in 1902 to make Venezuela comply with the demands made by those powers for fulfillment of obligations.

TO HELP SAVE LIFE OF LIFE INSURANCE CO.

New York, Dec. 5.—Clarence H. Kelsey, chairman of the board of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company here, who with Julius Rosenwald of Chicago and others, has taken steps to save the Standard Life Insurance Company of Atlanta, a negro run institution for negroes, from falling into the hands of white money lenders, issued a statement today in which he said the move was merely the action of believers in giving the colored race a fair opportunity.

The subscribers of the loan, he said, were actuated by a desire to prevent the Standard Life Insurance Company from falling into hostile hands and for preserving it as one of the best examples of a negro institution and administration by colored people.

The insurance company is entirely solvent, he said, and has a "clean bill of health" from the insurance commissioner of Georgia.

NEW YORK CITY OFFICIALS DISCUSS SUBWAY SITUATION

New York, Dec. 5.—Where Mayor Hylan and the board of estimate met today to discuss the subway situation 200 women, representing Brooklyn and Washington Heights organizations, emitted prolonged boos and hisses.

The mayor, Comptroller Charles L. Craig and Chairman John H. Delaney of the board of transportation informed the women that the Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit company, republican legislators and a local "banker-clique" were responsible for frustration of administration plans for more subways.

When the session ended Mayor Hylan asked how many of the chairwomen still were opposed to the program. One hand was raised. All the rest were clapping in accompaniment to vocal praises of the mayor and his administration. "Build Subways Now" banners had disappeared.

CYRUS E. WOODS DEPRECATES JAPANESE EXCLUSION ACT

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 5 (By the A. P.).—"The Japanese exclusion act was an international disaster of the first magnitude, a disaster to American diplomacy in the far east; a disaster to religion and effective work of our American churches in Japan," Cyrus E. Woods, former United States ambassador to Japan, said in a letter sent the Federal Council of Churches, in session here, for reading tonight.

The exclusion act also was brought to the attention of the council by Dr. A. K. Reischauer, Tokio representing the National Christian council of Japan, who recommended the appointment of a "high commission" composed of "representative Americans and Japanese," to work out a readjustment of the present situation.

NAVAL ARCHITECTS OPEN BIDS OF FIVE SHIPYARDS

New York, Dec. 5.—Bids of five shipyards for the building of a 19,000 ton 23-knott steam turbine passenger ship for the American-Hawaiian line were opened today in the office of Gibbs Bros., naval architects here. Final decision will not be reached before Monday. The ship, which is to ply between San Francisco and Hawaii, will late be turned over to the Matson Steamship Company.

$10,000 DAMAGE SUIT AGAINST CHARLES G. MORRIS

New Haven, Dec. 5.—A $10,000 damage suit has been instituted against Charles G. Morris, president of the New Haven Dairy Company, by Alex Kiss, of Wallingford. It is alleged that on October 22, Mr. Morris' automobile struck and killed Mary, daughter of the plaintiff. Coroner E. J. Mix, who investigated the accident, exonerated Mr. Morris from blame.

Office Hours: 9:30 to 12 m.; 1:30 to 5 p. m.

Unemployment, or a downright crooked turn of mind, is regarded as responsible for a peculiar series of events in this city during the past month. There is a man whose fancy for an easy living has been turned to appropriating womens' pocketbooks, the first report was of an attempted holdup on Valley street Tuesday evening when a well known local woman was followed through the darkness by a man who made a show of attacking her, but was frightened away by her screams. The woman noticed, as she came on Valley street about 10:50 o'clock, that a man appeared to be following her. Near the foot of Pearl street she turned to see who it was and he approached and blocked his way with his open hands. Her screams were heard by several men in a nearby building but they took no notice. The yells were sufficient, however, to cause the unwelcome caller to run off. The woman noted that he wore a black mask over his face. A woman resident of Summit street had a somewhat similar experience on a secluded stretch of Church street recently when a man grabbed her pocketbook which she was carrying, but he failed to secure it, and fled. A third woman was similarly annoyed near the railroad crossing on Bridge street about two weeks ago, by a man who was frightened away when the crossing tender rushed out to answer her call for help. Still a fourth case relates to a man who walked into a local millinery parlor Thursday afternoon and appropriated a pocketbook which had been left on a chair. The first and last mentioned cases have been reported to the authorities.

For the eighteenth consecutive year, Alexis Caisse received re-election to the presidency of St. Jean Baptiste society, which met at St. Mary's hall this week. The organization won the silk flag awarded by St. Mary's Choir Boys for the largest representation in the parade opening the recent Novelty Tournar and a vote of thanks was accordingly sent to the boys. The election of officers resulted as follows: Chaplain, Rev. J. J. Papillon; president, Alexis Caisse; honorary president, Joseph E. Gaudreau; vice president, Edmond Sylvestre; recording secretary, Wilfred Gervie; financial secretary, Armand Perreault; assistant financial secretary, Arthur Cartier; corresponding secretary, F. J. Bergeron; treasurer, Alphonse Chaanon; entertainment committee, Napoleon Gingras, Arthur Cartier, D. Sylvestre, Armand Perreault and O. LaFontaine; delegates to the local federation, Alexis Caisse, Joseph Faulhus, Arthur Carriere, wardens, Wilfred Pageau, Joseph Lariviere, Ludger Sylvestre; trustees, J. B. X. Caisse, Napoleon Gingras and Ovelle Labbe.

A civil suit for $3,000 damages has been filed by Francis Bellwire of South Windham, against the Johnson Container Cracker Company of Cambridge, Mass. The suit is the outcome of an accident on the forenoon of July 2, last, when Bellwire was struck and badly injured while crossing the highway an eighth of a mile east of the Willimantic Cahon Ground entrance, Windham road, by a motor truck owned by the defendant concern and driven by an employe, Albert S. Chadbourne of 59 Blossom street, Arlington, Mass. Chadbourne was placed under arrest for reckless driving and was released under a bond of $1,000 pending the outcome of Bellwire's injuries. A hearing was held August 29, and Chadbourne was found guilty of reckless driving and was fined $25 and costs. He took an appeal to the superior court. Bellwire has not yet recovered from the injuries which he sustained. The papers were served on Chadbourne Friday morning by Constable William D. Kelley and an attachment for $3,000 was placed on the truck, which is the same that struck Bellwire.

Mrs. Concettina Insalaco, 30, wife of Charles Insalaco of Windham road, died at New Haven Thursday night after a few days' illness. She was born in Italy, but had made her home in this city for the past thirteen years. In addition to her husband she leaves six children all of this city and her mother, who resides in Italy. The body has been brought to this city.

Heart failure caused the sudden death Friday morning, at nine o'clock, of Miss Teresa Eaton 83, at her home in Mansfield Center. She was one of the best know residents of the community. Miss Eaton was born in Mansfield, July 24, 1841, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steadman Eaton. Surviving her are several nephews and nieces. She was a school teacher for thirty years, in the Bricktop district, in South Windham and Mansfield.

James Kirkpatrick, who died at his home in South Coventry, Friday morning, was born in Dundasart, Ireland, April 15, 1844, a son of John and Margaret Kirkpatrick. Surviving him are three daughters, Mrs. S. A. Hall and Miss Julia Kirkpatrick of South Coventry and Mrs. Clarence Foster of this city; also one grandson.

Herbert Bebbington, 72, died at his home in Ashford, Thursday evening. He was born in Mansfield, December 28, 1851, a son of John and Eunice Gurley Bebbington. He leaves two sons, Frank and Thomas of Ashford, a grandchild, Charles, also of Ashford, and two brothers, Gurley, of North Windham, and Robert of Kansas.

The Willimantic City Medical society met this week with Dr. O. B. Simonds. The attendance was one of the best in some time. Dr. Edward Smith of the Travelers Insurance Company, of Hartford, delivered a fine talk on Life Insurance. Mrs. Simonds served luncheon at the close of the address and discussions.

The Helping Hand of the First Society of Spiritualists held a successful Christmas sale of fancy articles, cakes and candies at the Lincoln Furniture store, Friday afternoon.

Celebrating her twenty-second birth-day, Miss Vivian Sylvester was given a party Thursday evening and presented a beautiful ivory manicure set. Present were Misses Yvonne Annette and Loretta Bonin, Yvonne Therrien, Lilnah Deltine and Leona Sylvester, Mrs. Rose Sylvester, Mrs. Ida Lussier and Misses Esther and Lena Sylvester.

The Pythian Sisters and Mary Todd Lincoln Tent, Daughters of Veterans, met Friday evening.

Under the auspices of the D. A. R., Charles Colfax Long is to be heard in his illustrated lecture on Washington—Our National Shrine, at Windham High School Auditorium next week. Mrs. Ward Holman is chairman of the committee in charge.

The snow fences in sections of the highways where drifts usually occur during the winter season are being set up by state highway department employes.

Joseph Mordus, three year old son of Alexander and Eva Mordus, died at St. Joseph's hospital Thursday afternoon from pneumonia. He leaves his parents, a brother, John, and a sister, Regina.

For the third year in succession the sophomore class was declared victorious by the president of the student senate, Valdemar Johnson, at the annual pig roast held at the Connecticut Agricultural college by whichever of the two under classes can outwit the other. This year, the time set for the pig, which must be roasted over an outdoor fire for an hours' time at some place chosen in secret within a radium of two miles from the Main building, was limited to the forty-eight hours between noon Wednesday Dec. 3, and noon of the following Friday. The freshmen have been especially guarded as to the identity of their president, whose presence at the roast was adjudged a necessity, according to the rules, unless counterbalanced by an attendance of 70 per cent. of the rest of the class. This the sophomores have been especially anxious to prevent. Any freshman activity was regarded with suspicion, and promptly investigated. One fracas after another occurred, one man sustaining a broken bone in the left hand and another being consigned by the sophomoric brothers to the tower of Hawley armory, gagged and bound, to be rescued by his confederates. Early Wednesday afternoon things came to a crisis, when the whole body of freshmen left the dormitory and, in groups of about twenty scattered in every direction. The sophomores started after in hot pursuit, and for the rest of the afternoon, there was not a member of the two lower classes to be seen on the campus. Along the road from Mansfield to East Ashford one group of sophomores noticed unmistakable signs of life in a dilapidated barn. On attempting to enter it, they met the resistance of six of the hukiest members of the freshman class. A short, but somewhat gory battle ensued with the fresh coming out second. The latter were taken captive. Among them, although the victors were not then aware of it, was Willard Eddy, president and vice president of the freshman class. A little further investigation on the part of the sophomores resulted in the location of the pig himself, concealed, with a gallon of kerosene oil in an old cow shed across the road. With the president and the pig in their possession the sophomores held the field. At half past eleven President Johnson with the senior members of the student senate arrived. Finding the spoils in possession of the sophomores and most of the freshmen wandering over the countryside unable to locate the spot chosen, the class of '27 was declared victorious. Returning to the campus, they built a fire in front of Holcomb Hall and here the victorious sophomores roasted and disposed of the freshman pig, along with hot coffee and doughnuts served them by the co-eds.

A play was given Friday evening at Grange hall, Hampton, by members of the Hampton band. This organization is to be renewed, since early fall, of the former ladies' band of Hampton and is under the direction of Bert Lyman, of Columbia. The play was entitled "Sunnyside with the Boss." The part of Jimmy Greening was taken by Ralph Colven; that of his wife, by Mattie Huling; of his aunt, Hortense, by Stella Pearl; of his boss, by Arthur Pearl; of her aunt, Clarissa, by Bertha Briscs; and of Jimmy Benedict, the neighbor's boy by Ellsworth Manon. The proceeds are to be used for expenses of the band.

The feature of the second afternoon of the Willimantic Christmas bazaar and food exhibit at the state armory under auspices of the Methodist Episcopal church, was a baby carriage parade Friday afternoon at three. The parade procession moved slowly around the hall. Two of the children, little Miss Jennie Bowen, three year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bowen and Miss Frances Ellen Wilcox, four years old, sag daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wells Wilcox, preferred to push their own doll carriages. The prize for the most attractive carriage was given to Mrs. Frances Perkins, for her carriage covered with white wool and crystal, and holding her son Francis Perkins, Jr., dressed in white with a little pointed scarlet hood. The prize was a doll dressed as a bride in white satin and pearl beads, by Mrs. C. J. Arpaugh. The doll has been on exhibition for some days in Fullerton's window. Second prize was given Mrs. Earl K. Haling for a Christmas carriage covered with red crepe paper and Christmas ornaments and toys, and containing Master Robert Haling, eleven months old, dressed as Santa Claus. The prizes were awarded by Rev. (Mrs.) T. Hawthorne Jones of Mansfield Center, one of the judges. Other judges were Mrs. F. E. Guild and Mrs. H. C. Lathrop of Windham. Attractions which have been arranged since yesterday include the booth in the center of the floor by Hurley's Boys' store, hung with red paper and floating balloons, and the Windham Battery Company's attractive booth flanked by the chute, where the boys and girls take slides.

HAMILTON HOLT SPEAKS AT DEMOCRATIC RALLY

(Special to the Bulletin)

Willimantic, Dec. 5—Hon. Hamilton Holt, of Woodstock, democratic candidate for United States Senator was heard in a fine talk on "International Peace" before a large gathering of local democrats in a rally at the town hall, Friday evening. Mr. Holt laid particular stress on America's foreign policies, announcing his stand as one to abolish war and to further the league of nations. In all movements for international peace he pledged his support of President Coolidge especially to get the United States into a permanent court of international justice as an active body.

Congressman Patrick B. O'Sullivan of Derby, who is of Norwich ancestry was another speaker. Former First Selectman Robert E. Mitchell was the chairman of the rally. Previous to the rally Mr. Holt was heard in an address at the Methodist Church Christmas Bazaar and Trade Exhibit at the state armory, where he was presented to the audience by Captain Frank P. Fenton.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germ that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga (Adv.)

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre.

The following reprint from the New York American by Louella O. Parsons, will give you an idea of what to expect when Forbidden Paradise starts a run of four days at the Broadway, Sunday:

If Catherine of Russia bore any resemblance to Pola Negri she must have wrecked the nation. Pola, as the capricious Catherine, is so lovely, so temperamental, and so desirable, that nearly any man would countenance her whims and fancy, and enjoy being a victim.

In Forbidden Paradise, Miss Negri returns to us with all her old fire and charm. Possibly because in The Czarina she has a play that appeals to her, but most likely because she had Ernest Lubitsch to direct her.

And what a director is Lubitsch! The detail, the palace scenes and the court etiquette is done in a way that defies criticism. I was so impressed with Forbidden Paradise that I spent yesterday urging everyone to see the unbeatable combination of Pola and Lubitsch. In fact, I think I could almost claim a commission from the Rivoli theatre, D. Riesenfeld and Famous for the number of folk I sent there.

Not that they needed my good offices. At 2.30 o'clock I had to fight my way into the theatre. And it certainly does take a lot of energy on the part of the reviewers, who are so exhausted by the time they get seated, they wish movie houses were run like legitimate theatres or else there was some arrangement for them to see the pictures in advance.

Anyway exhausted or not I enjoyed every scene of Forbidden Paradise. I thought Doris Keane was delightful as Katherine.

His sophistication, his understanding of Catherine and his unfailing sense of humor do much toward making Forbidden Paradise a joy forever. Rod La Rocque, too, gives a fine, sincere performance.

One thing that impressed me is the comedy, injected with a delicacy that is nothing short of masterly.

There are other features on the Rivoli program this week, but you won't remember them, you will concentrate on Forbidden Paradise, and send an unconscious prayer heavenward that it may have more like it.

I beg of all my readers to make a point of visiting the Rivoli this week. If you have been seeing poor pictures, Forbidden Paradise will bring back your respect for the silent drama—and you will adore Pola's Catherine. She is adorable with her supreme egotism and her innumerable love affairs. A woman the feminine sex will envy, and the male element will fear.

By all means let us have more of Lubitsch and Pola.

The Ten Commandments

The Ten Commandments, Cecil B. De Mille's powerful spectacular drama presented by Adolph Zukor and Jesse L. Lasky, plays its only engagement in Westerly, R. I., at the beautiful new Opera House theatre next week, Monday and Tuesday, Dec. 8 and 9. Performances will be given daily at 2.30 and 8.30. The big picture comes here with the reclame of long runs in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston and Los Angeles where it was received with unexampled attendance and enthusiasm.

Dan, the commandment breaker, and his pal, Inspector Redding, who winks at iniquity; Mary, the wife, Sally Lung the charmer from Chinatown, and John the "four square" carpenter, are folks that live in memory and win from the spectator the tribute of sympathy, laughter and tears.

The main story is preceded by a grand introduction which pictures Israel's bondage and flight from Egypt, the miracle of the divided Red Sea, the giving of the law to Moses, and the destruction of the licentious bacchanal of the Golden Calf. Theodore Roberts as Moses, Estelle Taylor as the beautiful frenzied prophetess, together with Rod La Rocque, Robert Edeson, Leatrice Joy, Nita Naldi and Richard Dix in the modern story, are the outstanding figures in a cast of rare excellence. One of the most delightful features in the accompanying Riesenfeld score played by a large orchestra of symphonic experts.

It is only 40 minutes ride on good state highway to Westerly and it will be worth your while to take the trip and witness this massive production, The Ten Commandments, with its own touring symphony orchestra of 20 pieces.

First Evangelical Lutheran Church.

Doors will be open at 7; entertainment at 8 Friday night, choir rehearsal. Saturday morning at 10, German school and religious instruction. Saturday afternoon at 2.30, confirmation instruction.

TODAY'S EVENTS

This is the Feast of St. Nicholas, the jolly ol patron saint of children, which corresponds in Holland to our Christmas day.

Forty years ago today saw the final completion of the Washington monument, in the city of Washington, D. C.

Thirty-five years ago today the South mourned the death of Jefferson Davis, first and only president of the Confederate States of America.

Edward H. Sothern, the eminent ac-tor, is in line for congratulations today, this being the sixty-fifth anniversary of his birth.

What the "Fourth of July" is to the people of the United States today is to the people of Finland. It was seven years ago today that Finland severed its connection with the Russian Empire and proclaimed itself a sovereign state.

Representative hotel men and other guests from a dozen western states have accepted invitations to attend the opening in Seattle today of the new Olympic Hotel, erected at a cost of $3,000,000 and said to be one of the finest on the Pacific coast.

The first of the novelties offered this season to patrons of grand opera in New York will be Leo Janacek's opera "Jenufa," which is to be given its first performance (in German) at the Metropolitan Opera House this afternoon.

That the formation of a third political party would advance the cause of representative government in the United States is to furnish the subject for a triangular intercollegiate debate tonight among teams representing Williams, Columbia and Yale.

The one hundredth anniversary of the battle of Ayacucho, which virtually ended the dominion of Spain in South America, is to be fittingly celebrated by the Peruvian government with an elaborate program of fiestas and patriotic demonstrations beginning today at Ayacucho and closing at Lima two weeks hence.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

BREED THERTAE

Picturing a story that never grows old—one that is immeasurably richer in romance, dramatic values and other desirable qualifications than the great majority of modern stories written directly for the movies—Barbara Frietchie which comes to the Breed theater four days starting Sunday is entertainment not to be overlooked by the jaded picture-goer. It strikes a different note in photoplay "styles" so courageously that it undobtedly is destined to be one of the most talked of productions of the season.

Florence Vidor, as the lovable Barbara Frietchie of 62, is deserving of all the compliments that may be paid her. For no more sincere, lifelike and convincing silversheet study has ever been enacted by this talented favorite.

Likewise, Edmund Lowe creates a tremendously forceful impression in the role of the sweetheart soldier, Captain Will Trumbull.

Ranking far above the ordinary run of pictures, and without seeking to be a "spectacle" Barbara Frietchie is, nevertheless, one of the most pleasingly entertaining and educative screen productions released in many months.

Today's bill consists of Buck Jones in Winner Takes All the third chapter of Days of 49 the Pathe news and a Sunshine Comedy. Continuous show today from 1:30 to 10:30 P. M.

Lyceum Theater New London

Cecile B. De Mille's splendid dramatic spectacle, The Ten Commandments, which will be shown at the Lyceum theater, New London, on Dec. 10, 11, 12, and 13, achieved sensational success last season in New York, London, Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia and Los Angeles. The showings were confined to those cities up to the beginning of the present season. It is now being presented by a limited number of travelling companies, each with its own orchestra, and will be shown this season only in regular theaters. The sale of seats at the Lyceum will begin on Monday evening.

Next Week at United Congregational.

Members of the Sodalitas are asked to report at the junior department rooms at 7.30, Monday evening, equipped with needle, thimble, etc., in order that they may accomplish sewing for the Christmas boxes planned.

The Brotherhood supper and meeting will be held at the Community House at half past six Monday evening. Henry A. Tirrell will be the speaker of the evening.

The Tatapochan Camp Fire Girls meet with Mrs. Freeman, Thuesday evening, at 7.15, to continue work on their trays.

The last session of the Community School of Religious Education will be held in the church school rooms at half past seven on Tuesday evening.

Mid-week worship, Thursday evening, at 7.45, led by the pastor.

The girls' work committee invite all young people of the church school and the parish to the regular December party to be held at the Community House, Friday evening Dec. 12, at 7.30. The contents of the box for the children at Ellis Island will be gathered at this time and the committee hopes each class and individual will help them to make this the best Christmas box possible. A splendid moving picture film—Mary Pickford in Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm, has been secured for the evening's entertainment and refreshments will be served.

Big Feature Picture at Y. M. C. A.

The management of the Norwich Young Mens Christian Association takes pleasure in announcing that tomorrow (Sunday) at 3 P. M., in the large gymnasium of the association building, the unusual feature moving picture, The Shepherd King will be shown in eight reels when the large Powers machine will be used. This picture is a most wonderful portrayal of the great Bible character David with all of the accompaniments that go with the time in which he lived. The story opens with a prologue showing Moses and the Children of Israel going through Egypt on their way to Jerusalem. This vast army of people with their camels, donkeys, horses and sheep are pictured being led past the Pyramids and the Sphinx on their way to the Holy Land. The various characters in the wonderful story include David the King Saul, Princess Merab daughter of Saul, Princess Michal Jonathan Jesse, the father of David Samuel, Judge of Israel, Omah, Goliath, the giant of the Philistines Abimelech, a priest and others. The photoplay shows in an impressive way a most remarkable spectacle of Egyptian splendor. More than a year was consumed in the production of The Shepherd King and great care was taken in the selection of the personnel and the [illegible]. The public is most cordially invited to witness this mar

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Parking regulation in the section of the borough continue to be a subject of discussion. This is especially true among the business men. It would appear from all that is said that everyone is not exactly satisfied. Again, what pleases some of the business men does not please others. And there you are. It may be inferred from this that making parking regulations is not a happy pastime, and the borough officials who are charged with the duty have a thankless job. It is about as onerous a task as working out cross word puzzles—and the rewards are no greater.

Just now there is a plan afoot to permit parking for ten minutes in Main street between the railroad crossing and the Phoenix block. For years no parking at all has been allowed in that area. Planning to change this regulation has started the parking discussion all over again, this without regard to whatever merit the new plan may have or the justice of it as applied to business houses in the area mentioned.

The chief protest over parking restrictions is based n their effect on trade. Naturally, no business man wishes to lose opportunities to transact business. Neither does he want to be discriminated against as to being subject to more restrictions than his neighbor, a block up the street.

The situation is such in Danielson that making parking regulations that will not be irksome to anyone is a real task. This is because the Main street is narrow, has trolley tracks through its center, above the crossing, and happens to be a section of two important trunk line highways, nearly always burdened with heavy traffic. These physical barriers to making parking arrangements suitable to everyone cannot be removed. Only time and patience will work out regulations that all will accept harmoniously.

Funeral services for Mrs. Katherine Mullen Smith were conducted at St. Joseph's church at Grosvenordale on Thursday morning by Rev. John Quinn. Burial was in the St. Mary's cemetery at Putnam. The bearers were John Welch, C. E. Kean, William Smith and Francis Meehan. Funeral arrangements were by Louis E. Kennedy.

At the Union Baptist church at East Killingly, Friday afternoon, funeral services for Mrs. Winifred Moran were conducted by Rev. W. D. Hetherington, the pastor. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends. Burial was in the Bartlett cemetery. The bearers were Claude Moran, Harold Brooks, Eugene Fenery and Sidney Warren. Louis E. Kennedy was the funeral director.

Funeral services for Andrew Shilling, 55, who died at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam, were conducted at Canterbury, Thursday afternoon, by Rev. Edwin St. John. Burial was in the Canterbury Plains cemetery. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements. Mr. Shilling was a native of Germany.

The theft from the square in Putnam of the automobile of Dr. S. B. Overlook, of Putnam, set many Danielson owners of cars to thinking on Friday—as to their carelessness in leaving cars on the street without the machines being locked. It so happens that Danielson has been particularly free for a long time from car thefts, but that is no guarantee for the future. It was noted Friday that owners who do not usually lock their cars when they leave them down town took that precaution.

A plan heard over the radio, as Santa Claus was talking from a middle western city to little people in hundreds of towns and cities in that section of the country might be applied in a limited way to Danielson. Santa was appealing for discarded toys to be sent to a specified address for redistribution to needy children on the great holiday. He even offered to make certain repairs to such toys, that they might be used again.

Possibly something like that might be done in Danielson, if an active, available agency to handle the matter could be found. And then the press might invite the little people to write in to Santa and file their requests to be remembered. They'd be no doubt about getting the replies. Here is a plan that involves very little expenditure for the privilege of creating boundless joy for many people who will not otherwise have much to be happy for at Christmas time. And that indeed is a pity.

Danielson will be represented today (Saturday) by a delegation of Nobles of the Mystic Shrine at a session of Sphinx Temple in Hartford. A large class of candidates, including a number from eastern Connecticut cities and towns, are to be received. The meeting is expected to be one of the most important held by the organization in several months.

Grand officers of the I. O. O. F., will come here next Tuesday evening to attend a joint meeting of Quinebaug lodge and Dorcas Rebekah lodge in Odd Fellows' hall in the town hall building. The meeting is to be in the interest of plans for the new infirmary that the organizations are to be built at Groton, near the Odd Fellows' home. After the business meeting there is to be a social hour and refreshments are to be served.

Following are the newly elected officers of Brooklyn grange: Master, Mrs. Myra J. Frink; overseer, Mrs. Mabel Ennis; lecturer, Mrs. Mazie Potter; steward, Archie Ennis; assistant steward, Frank D. Spalding; chaplain, Miss Helen Palmer; treasurer, J. B. Stetson; secretary, Mrs. Addie C. Hyde; gatekeeper, Mrs. Hannah Witter; Ceres, Mrs. Louis Potter; Pomona, Miss Amy Potter; Flora, Mrs. Ethel Exley; lady assistant steward, Miss Laura Pike.

A class of over 60 Polish children is receiving instruction in Polish Saturday afternoons at St. James' school under the direction of a Polish teacher. This school is an extra time and apart from the regular school sessions.

December 23 has been set as the date for another Well Baby conference to be held in the town hall building.

The first business man who adopts the plan of instructing distributors of circulars and other such matter not to ring doorbells ought to get a lot of extra business. As it is now his bell ringers get him a lot of comment from disturbed housewives that might make his ears tingle if he heard it all, and that isn't good for business.

Mrs. Delphine Stringer, 71, wife of Victor Stringer, died at their home in Central Village Friday morning. Mrs. Stringer had been ill about a year.

There is anticipation here today of the first real rush of the Christmas season. The business men are ready for it with stocks probably more complete than ever before in a Christmas season.

Mrs. Frank Prince had the members of the W. F. M. S. of the Methodist church at her home for a meeting Friday afternoon.

The annual Christmas sale of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Baptist church was held Friday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Gallup, and was very successful.

At this time the annual warning about leaving valuable bundles in unguarded automobiles or other vehicles is not outof place. Forethought as to this may forestall losses.

The weekly vaudeville show, with motion pictures as an added attraction, drew a large attendance to the Orpheum theatre Friday evening.

Mrs. Leonard James of North Main street will have the members of the Ladies' Reading circle at her home for a meeting Monday afternoon.

Members of the Woman's Relief corps are making plans for a Christmas party in connection with their next meeting, to be held December 17.

At the Sunday morning service at the Baptist church members received by baptism last Sunday will be extended the right hand of fellowship.

Howard A. Newton of Attleboro was a visitor with friends in Danielson on Friday.

Mrs. Dora Boucher has filed suit in the superior court of this county for a divorce from John Boucher.

These are days when many of the young people are making the most of the skating that small ponds afford with some degree of safety from immersion.

The foundation is practically complete for a two-apartment dwelling to be built by the Larkin Reed Company, on East Franklin street.

PUTNAM

The industrial exposition at the State Armory for Come-Back days, Friday and Saturday, and the attractions that the Putnam merchants are offering brought an immense crowd into the city today and tonight. Every visitor to the armory, whether he lives in Putnam or the surrounding community was astonished at the wide variety of products made in Putnam and all weas delighted at the attractive way in which they have been arranged for public inspection in such a short time.

The industrial booths are along the outer sides of the building and the radio show occupies the center. The feature of the exposition is the great diversity of textile fabrics, from heavy canvas or tire fabric of duck to the delicate and many colored materials for women's wear. In line with the latter are the silks of all hues and colors, in spools or skeins, the product of the nationally known H. K. H. Silk Co.

Aside from the laudable object, which is self-explanatory in the name of "Come-Back Days" this demonstration will be interesting and instructive to local people who did not realize what was being done here.

G. Lawrence Perkins, president of The Patriot Press, who is now in China, has sent to friends here copies of the Sin Wan Pao, a sixteen page paper printed every day, Sundays included, in Shanghai. It is a puzzle to everyone and especially to printers and newspaper men, who can form no idea of how the type is set, the paper made up and, even to the average linguist, how it is read after it comes from the press. To put in type all the different characters on a linotype machine would require at least 16 magazines, and the composition of 16 pages every day by hand would seem at first glance an impossibility.

There are a few advertisements, easily distinguishable and easy to understand. One is the picture of a bottle with the words, "Hennesy, Three Star." In English or American, that needs no interpreter. Another is an advertiser of "Sta-Comb." A third is a picture of a Gelisha girl, which probably means a tea-room.

Mrs. Edward S. Gew, 81, sister of Mrs. Courtland Hoppin and of the late Miss Eleanor Clark, of Pomfret, who died Thanksgiving day at 135 Marlboro street, Boston, where she had resided for forty years, before her marriage was Annie Crawford Clark. She was born in Milton, Mass.

Her father was Joseph W. Clark, of three brothers who all became prominent in business, Joseph being especially identified with northwestern mining interests. Her mother was Eleanor Arnold of Providence, R. I., a member of a well known Quaker family. Mrs. Crew was educated at private schools in Boston, and was married in 1867 to Mr. Grew. He was in the wholesale drygoods business in Boston, and for a number of years a member of the firm of Gowing & Grew, and for some time before his death, in 1918, identified with Lawrence & Co.

During much of her life Mrs. Grew attended Emmanuel Episcopal church in Newberry street, Boston, but becoming interested in the parochial activities of Rev. Henry K. Sherrill she became identified with the Church of Our Saviour, Longwood, where he then was rector, and when he was chosen successor to Bishop Alexander Mann at Trinity church, Copley square, she became attached to this parish. For many summers Mrs. Grew has been to West Manchester, where she had an estate known as "All Oaks." She was a member of the Massachusetts Society of Colinial Dames.

Besides her sister, Mrs. Hoppin, Mrs. Grew is survived by three sons, Randolph C. Grew, Henry S. Grew and Joseph C. Grew, under-secretary of state at Washington, and a daughter, Miss Eleanor J Grew, who lately returned from the Pacific caast.

Vernon S. Warren of Putnam Heights was 84 Wednesday and was in sufficiently good health and good spirits to take the fullest enjoyment out of a birthday party given in his honor. Mrs. Vernon is 81 and she likewise enjoyed it. A large number of friends and neighbors were present.

Mr. Warren's father was George Warren, one of the leading citizens of his day, for several years a high sheriff of the county. His mother was Sarah Day, daughter of John Day, who founded the town of Dayville and gave it its name.

Nineteen babies were examined and weighed at the Well Baby conference at the High School conference Thursday afternoon. Dr. J. J. Russell was in attendance and Miss Lessard, of Putnam, Miss Snyder of Putnam and Miss Vincent of Hartford, all registered nurses assisting at the clinic as did Miss Geraldine Frost and Miss Winifred Mellor.

At a meeting of republican women at Hartford, Thursday, Mrs. Grace Nikoloff and Mrs. Walter Rich of Putnam, and Mrs. George M Sampson, Mrs. Wendell Witter, Mrs. C. E. May and Mrs. Janet Shepard were in attendance. The meeting was held at the Allyn House and was for the purpose of helping the candidacy of Governor-elect Bingham. Mr. Bingham gave a brief talk outlining his platform.

Quinebaug lodge, A. F. & A. M., at its annual meeting Thursday evening at the Masonic Temple, elected officers as follows: Worthy master, Edward Scott Duffy; senior warden, Charles E Richardson; junior warden, W. Edward Moss; treasurer, Mahlon E. Geissler; secretary, G. Allen Hawkins; trustees, George E. Brousseau, George P. Miner, Archibald Macdonald, Sr.; senior deacon, Allie S King; junior deacon, Edwin H. Phillips; senior steward, Harold Munsfield; junior steward, Thomas Bell; tyler, Frederick H. Platt; chaplain, Lucius A. Merriman; marshal, George P. Miner; organist, Ralph E. Thurston.

Henry H. Davenport left Thursday for Clearwater, Florida, where he will spend the winter and probably a great part of the year. A year ago he bought a tract of partly improved land for $54,000. A month ago he refused $70,000 for the same property. Mrs. Davenport and their daughter, Hazel, who have been visiting relatives at Harrisburg, Pa., for the past few weeks joined him at Philadelphia and they continued their journey to their southern home. Prior to a year ago Mr. Davenport was the supervisor of state highways in this section. The fact that he has sold his residence at Pomfret and his property in Putnam led credibility to the statement that he may spend nearly all of the year in Florida.

Arthur E. Howard, recently appointed trustee of the estate of G. Harold Gilpatric, the blind cashier of the wrecked First National bank, and who has been adjudged a bankrupt, was in Putnam Thursday looking after matters in connection with the estate. Mr. Howard is an attorney and a member of the Hartford bar.

William Valentine has been elected captain of next year's Putnam High School football team. He was one of the best players on the 1923-24 team and is given great credit for the part that he played in defeating Killingly High School in the game Thanksgiving morning. He plays with his head as well as with his feet.

DR. S. B. OVERLOCK'S CAR FOUND IN LAWRENCE

Putnam, Dec. 5.—Word was received Friday afternoon from the police in Lawrence, Mass., that they had located and taken possession of the automobile of Dr. S. B. Overlock stolen from in front of the post office Thursday evening while the doctor entered the office to get his mail. The thieves were not captured. A driver was sent after the car and the doctor will probably have it in his possession again tomorrow.

RAILROAD MEN HEAR TALK ON FIRST AID

Putnam, Dec. 5.—At 2 o'clock Friday afternoon and at 7 p. m. instructive talks and demonstrations on First Aid to the Injured were given at a Red Cross car parked on a siding of the New Haven railroad, opposite the telegraph tower, by Dr. Grant F. Hartzell, of Washington, D. C., and Dr. Robert L. Browning of Oklahoma.

At noon Dr. Browning talked to an audience of about fifty railroad men and employes of the Putnam Electric Light and Power Co. In the afternoon the firemen of the Telephone company made up his auditors and his talk referred specifically to injuries from coming in contact with high voltage currents.

To the railroad men Dr. Browning gave a practical demonstration of how to close a hemorrhage. Pressure of the fingers along the edge of the cuts will usually serve this purpose until a doctor arrives. He also demonstrated artificial respiration and methods of first aid treatment, and how to carry people with broken bones.

The car is equipped with benches and folding chairs for the audience. At one end are rather crude but comfortable beds. The car's galley is at the other end.

BALTIC

The St. Jean Baptiste Society met in their rooms recently for their annual meeting and election of officers. The present officers were re-elected to srve for the yar 1925.

The town school committee held its regular monthly meeting Wednesday evening in its rooms in the town hall. The meeting appointed Mrs. Blanche Case a member of the school board, to fill out an unexpired term caused by the resignation of one of its members.

A mix-up occurred Tuesday evening at about 6.45 at Second avenue, Main street. A Ford truck was crowded onto the trolley track by another Ford and bumped into a motorcycle which was at a standstill without lights. No one was hurt. The Ford suffered a broken right front wheel and punctured radiator and the motorcycle was badly bent. The accident was reported to the police and motor vehicles department.

Mrs. Tyler Winchester of Willimantic spent the week end with Mrs. Nelson Winchester.

Miss Mary Hurley spent the day with her sister, Mrs. Helena Burns of Norwich.

Trees Talk

Forest rangers in the Northwest have made living trees talk. By driving a copper nail into the base of a tree trunk and connecting it to a radio sender they have started every twig and leaf snapping off waves. Radio messages have to date been sent by means of trees two or three miles. A ranger may be half a mile from a phone in an emergency and by simply attaching his portable radio set to a tall tree instantaneous communication is certain.

Glasses for Color Blindness

The possibility of at least a partial cure for color blindness was pointed out at the meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, by H. E. Roaf, M. D., professor of physiology at the medical school of the University of London. "As a result of the examination of color-blind individuals," reports Prof. Roaf, "it has been found that some of them are sensitive to an great an extent of the spectrum and apparently with intensity equal to that of normal people. Therefore, the difficulty of these persons must be in their failure to differentiate certain wave lengths of light. Such individuals can recognize their mistakes by examination of their color matches through a colored screen. It is possible that if such a person wore a colored glass over one eye he might learn to recognize colors like normal persons while wearing the glass."

Spanish Treasure Revealed

After 50 years, George W. Hawkins of Setauket, Long Island, N. Y., has revealed the fact that he had dug up a number of Spanish gold coins. Year by year he disposed of them to numismatists at a premium, there being about 100 in all. He discovered the coins while digging holes for bean poles in 1894. Remnants of a canvas bag were found with them. The coins were dated 1770.

SHORTAGE AND WASTE OF OUR CITY WATER.

Aside from meeting the emergency situation concerning our water supply, the real problem concerning the water situation is to cut down that large volume of waste which is taking place under normal conditions. It is time for Norwich to realize that it would not now be at grips with a water shortage had a policy of conservation been established months ago.

Norwich reservoirs at the present time have a watershed of 4.6 square miles. Up to 1912 we had a watershed of 2.3 square miles, producing 2,300,000 gallons a day. By the addition of Stony Brook the watershed was doubled. Under normal conditions a square mile of watershed will produce 1,000,000 gallons a day, so that with our present watershed we are receiving on an average during normal conditions a total of 4,600,000 gallons daily from our present watershed.

Norwich's consumption each day is about 4,700,000 gallons, or 100,000 more gallons than the watershed can be expected to produce, and if we figure 30,000 people using that much water daily it means a per capita consumption of practically 157 gallons, which is 57 gallons in excess of what is considered the average per capita consumption throughout the country, and it is that extra consumption that must be charged up to waste.

If for instance there was saved the difference between 157 gallons per capita and such a liberal allowance as 115 gallons per capita, or 15 gallons over the national average, we would be saving 1,200,000 gallons of water a day. Even though it was only a million gallons a day that saving maintained throughout the year would mean 365,000,000 gallons, or that much in addition to what is now to be found in our reservoirs. Certainly with such a supply on hand there would be no danger of a shortage.

Under such conditions it doesn't appear that Norwich is in such dire need of additional watershed at a huge cost and possibly more bond issues, as it is of cutting down the waste that is taking place.

Just at the present time Norwich is not consuming as much water as it did a few months ago. The shortage is the reason for this. But the reason for the shortage, aside from the lack of rain, is that an abnormal drain is taking place under normal conditions. We are wasting water at the rate of more than a million gallons a day when that much should be staying in storage against just such a dry spell as is being experienced.

New London has such a large watershed (6.7 square miles) that it has no cause to worry over its supply, but the per capita consumption in that city with its big supply is only 103 gallons while the city is 100 per cent metered.

It will be necessary to raise dams, install pumps and obtain new reservoirs just as long as we continue to waste water and fail to properly protect such a supply as we have, which with the present population is adequate if the waste is eliminated.

Having been thrown into an emergency through waste, are we going to continue those wasteful practices after the present situation passes?

GOLDEN RULE SUNDAY.

The war is over, and for the most part the world is back on a peace basis. An amelioration of certain distressing conditions resulting from the war is to be noted, but the near east still has its problems which cannot fail to make a strong appeal throughout the world.

When we stop to realize that there are tens of thousands of innocent children in the near east, without father, mother or country, and with no responsible relative to provide for them, who are dependent upon outside philanthropy, there is presented an opportunity for responding to the appeal of that organization known as the Near East Relief which many will seize.

The appeal for the purpose of aiding these orphans is to be worldwide, and is to be made the basis for the observance of Golden Rule Sunday tomorrow. In the spirit of doing to others as you would like to be done by the object sought is the raising of funds through the act of self denial. By indulging in a simple meal on Sunday, and thereby getting a better idea of what it means for the children of the near east to live on four cents a day, there will be an opportunity for contributing the difference between the simple and the ordinary Sunday dinner for the relief of those who are so much in need of the assistance from the outside world.

Sandwiched in between Thanksgiving and Christmas the opportunity to participate in this benevolence cannot be overlooked. The chance to practice the Golden Rule must have a personal appeal. Regardless of what has been done for the Armenians and those rescued from the Turks, much more remains to be done. They cannot be permitted to struggle against great odds, and there's no reason to suppose that this or any other country will ignore their plight. They deserved help before and they deserve it now. Golden Rule Sunday December 7 is certainly an admirable opportunity for aiding so worthy a cause.

THE G. & E. BIDS.

Norwich is now awaiting with keen interest the report which the special committee will make to the court of common council in regard to the proposals which have been made to it for the purchase of the gas and electric plant.

Three bids have been submitted. The Eastern Connecticut Power company renews the offer that it previously made of purchasing at the book value of the plant and make a 20 per cent reduction in rates from those existing a year ago.

The Central Connecticut Power & Light company offers $2,250,000 in cash or $1,750,000 cash and $750,000 in 15-year bonds, $50,000 payable each year.

Fitkin & Co. offers $2,600,000 cash and to assume the $400,000 bonds.

In connection with the disposal of the plant, if the committee reaches the conclusion to recommend such to the council, it is to be remembered that the future as well as the present interest of the people of Norwich must be taken into consideration.

In one bid there is a 20 per cent cut in rates promised. Nothing is said about rates in the other two instances, but it is to be realized that when it comes to the making of rates the purchase price, and such subsequent capitalization as becomes necessary, must be taken into consideration. It will make a big difference to the people of Norwich whether they are saddled with rates based upon a $3,000,000 or a $4,000,000 corporation, or whether that capitalization is for a lesser amount, and the minute the plant changes hands it is rates and service in which the present owners are bound to be particularly interested.

It is to be realized that the presentation of bids is but a preliminary. In addition to the sanctioning of any sale by the people of Norwich there must be obtained the approval of the public utilities commission and legislative action secured.

Such gas and electric rates as Norwich must pay under new ownership is deserving of the closest attention. That may not affect the advisability of selling at a proper price but there must not be overlooked the future effect of fixing our gas and electric rates by a top notch selling price plus such additional capitalization as can be expected.

PICKING A SENATOR.

Connecticut hasn't been in the habit of sending a democrat to represent it in the United States senate.

Connecticut hasn't made a practice of sending to the upper house of congress a republican who deserted the party and entered the ranks of the democrats and who has since continued to work against republican principles and the mandate of the American people.

Connecticut hasn't developed the disposition to pick for such an important post one who has been a voter in the state but a few weeks, who has voted here but once and with the exception of the summer makes his residence in another state.

Connecticut has no reason to pick a New Yorker for its United States senator.

Connecticut has never been inclined to pick a pacifist for senator in place of one who was ready to protect its interests and went to the front in the service of his country.

Connecticut has emphatically insisted upon giving the president the backing that he needs in congress, and it isn't disposed to send to the senate one who has voiced his opposition to the president's statement concerning the league of nations and promises to prod him whenever he considers it necessary.

Connecticut is not unmindful of its duty. It cannot fail to understand the importance of electing Hiram Bingham for the service he can render the state and the support he will be sure to give to the president. He is certainly deserving of the office and his ability to satisfactorily administer it is beyond question. The only claim that Hamilton Holt has upon the office is that of being a voter in Woodstock since September and the fact that no real democrat wanted the nomination. His hobby is the league of nations.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Christmas is just around the corner but there's a lot of shopping to be done.

The man on the corner says: Every rain storm these days has a meaning all its own.

Now that pictures are being sent by radio will that mean an earlier display of styles from Paris?

No one is envying New Hampshire where the ice and snow storms have raised havoc thus early in the season.

Is it too much to expect of congress to keep cool with Coolidge, to get down to brass tacks with Dawes and do something?

The mayor of Northampton, Mass., who termed the president a second rate lawyer has been turned out of office. His display of poor judgment disqualified him.

These are the days when the dictionaries are getting more attention than ever, and, strange as it may seem, they contain much which wasn't suspected.

The sentence of 25 years imposed on the post office inspector for participating in a big mail robbery should carry its lesson unless a parole board frees him in a few months.

Connecticut recognized the importance of going to the polls November 4 to insist on the election of Calvin Coolidge and to give him the necessary support in congress from this state. His duty is just as great to make Hiram Bingham senator on December 16.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

It is and has been long recognized that we do not run our political affairs with the same ability for economy that we do our private business. It is frequently stated that if private concerns were managed with the same indifference to expense that political affairs are they would soon become insolvent. Business aims at the maximum of efficiency at the minimum of cost. A single illustration will suffice. Connecticut finds itself compelled to select a United States senator to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Frank B. Brandegee. According to our system this must be done by a popular election. There is everything to be said about electing our senators by a popular vote rather than by the state legislature as formerly. But in case of emergency why cannot an unexpired term be filled by appointment by the governor as in most of the states? The election will cost $500000. It is simply throwing money needlessly away!

An authority on the social conditions of the day has made this statement: "The whole planet is now no larger than a good sized island was at the beginning of the nineteenth century." Of course this statement is not to be interpreted in terms of square mileage. As far as science goes probably the surface of the earth has undergone no shrinkage in the last million years. But when looked at through the eyes of sociology is not this writer absolutely correct? Suppose we measure the surface of the earth by the time it takes to go over it now with what it did when the nineteenth century began. Many years ago the writer's father came to this country in a sailing vessel and was more than 12 weeks in making the voyage from Liverpool to New York. Forty years later he went over the distance again with his son in six days in a palatial steamer. The world is a small isle.

If this world of ours seems dwarfed when compared with what it was ages ago it is in large part due to the progress of science in the mastery of the great elemental forces. In the paragraph above reference was made to the apparently diminishing size of the globe because the Atlantic can now be crossed in a few days instead of many weeks as was required as late as the middle of the last century. But what shall we now say as to this slaughter of distance that is accomplished by radio! If distance seemed partially abolished seventy-five years ago when a little more than a week was required to step from London to New York, what shall we say when a concert given in London can be heard almost simultaneously all over the United States! If the nineteenth century can be said to have lessened distances then truly it can be said that the twentieth has abolished them. It sometimes seems that the word "impossible" must be taken out of the dictionary.

With the coming of new inventions and discoveries come also new names and new offices. If you had asked a boy less than ten years ago what was "broadcasting, and who was a "broadcaster" you would have had him puzzled. Spreading over wide areas, speeches, songs, orchestras by amplifying and multiplying sound has created a new and mighty industry. There are and will be more and more of those who will qualify as broadcasters. This new industry has already gone far enough for us to realize that our enjoyment of radio is measured by the manner in which it is presented. A soprano aria or a violin solo to delight us must be finely executed. The keen and witty fellow who broadcasted the Yale-Harvard game made the game a living thing by the manner of its presentation. We actually saw the boys making touchdowns and heard them splashing in the water. To be successful anywhere one needs to see what ought to be done and how to do it.

Is there a tendency in these days to what was once called "reversion to type"? The following is an explanation of what is meant. For instance it is known that by carefull breeding pigeons can be highly cultivated. They can be made to display the most gorgeous colors. But as soon as this careful breeding stops the tendency is for pigeons to drop back to their former colors. This is "reversion to type." It is just as scientifically true in regard to the human race as it is to birds. Mating ought to be more careful and scientific than it is. Unless care is exercised there will be among men "reversion to type." And this is exactly what happens when the human trend is downward. Are there any trends that way? What is the scientific explanation of jazz music? It is reversion to the type of music in vogue among the early Indian tribes. What is the social interpretation of the "flapper?" It is harking back to primitive days when women were noted for scanty raiment and abundant hair.

The public press has recently brought to our attention the sad news that Sir Gilbert Parker the brilliant novelist, has been severely injured in an automobile accident (automobiles have no respect for the high and mighty.) It was Parker who said in his World For Sale that "every one of us dreamers ought to be insulated. We ought to wear emotional lightning rods to carry off the brain waves into the ground." While it is doubtless true that much of what is spoken and written is erratic and emotional, if however it were wholly taken out of our literature wouldn't we lose much of the fires of the imagination? Inspiration is one form of emotionism, and if this were taken out of literature most of it would be dry and useless stuff.

If it is true that "credit is the life of trade" then we can appreciate what an enormous industry the telephone is. According to published reports The American Telegraph and Telephone company has 280,000 subscribers, that is, stockholders. From such a statement it must be perfectly clear that somebody has faith in the business. Faith is the basis of credit. We do not buy the stocks and bonds of concerns in which we do not believe. Our buying helps them to do business. Why do we not make a larger social application of this principal? Here is a fellow who has been unfortunate (and failure in business is only one of the many phases of misfortune—no one thing has ever yet gotten up a corner in misfortunes.) We say we have faith in this fellow, but is it strong enough to induce us to help him? Will we give him credit in getting through some financial pinch? This gives a real meaning to our faith.

It is well for us to have lingering memories of pleasant things. More than that it is well for us to cultivate the ability to linger over the high water marks in our past living. But there is a danger of lingering too long, because it is equivalent to living in the past. It is all right now and then to shut your eyes and see yourself again climbing the Alps, but remember there are mountains in your daily path that you must climb. Don't spend too much time in thinking of the nice time you had last August at Northfield, or on the Mohawk trail, because there is Christmas soon coming when Tommy and Lizzie (and perhaps the Tin Lizzie) ought to be remembered! A fitting card will do just as well for your husband as a box of chocolates, but a pair of warm pajamas is better than either because the chocolates may bother his store teeth. Give him anything but cigars.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

GETTING ACQUAINTED WITH GOD

Acquaint now thyself with Him, and be at peace.—Job 22:21.

Are we acquainted with God. To become so is held out as one of our available privileges. We esteem the opportunity of making profitable worldly acquaintances, yet strange to say, many treat with indifference the invitation given them again and again to become the friends of the Most High God. And ever christians who know God, to who Christ says, "I have called you friends," are very often indifferent to their opportunities to advance from a mere knowledge of God, or some light experiences of association with Him, to intimacy or relation and sweet communion and fellowship with Him. But many do long to know Him better. Of the means by which our acquaintance with God is increased the Bible undoubtedly comes first.

In His Word He is speaking to us. It is not alone a revelation of His will concerning us, not alone the revealing of the things man is to believe concerning God, or all the duties God requires of man; but it is a revelation of God Himself. When a friend writes to a friend, a lover to his beloved, he reveals not alone his thoughts and desires, but in revealing these he reveals himself. God reveals Himself to us in His word. In the Bible, in the letters of love He has written for us to read and reread and meditate upon and enjoy.

This is what is meant when we speak of a devotional study of the Bible. And this use of His Word is a precious means of spiritual acquaintance.

As the measure of acquaintance with one another is increased through conversation so prayer, which is but conversation with God, will increase our knowledge of Him.

Not only do we increase our acquaintance with God thus, but prayer is necessary in order to maintain the intimacy with Him we have already formed, and the graces that have come through that intimacy.

We have read that a celebrated musician once said, "If I quit the piano one day I notice it; if I quit it for two days my friends notice it; if I quit it for three days the public notice it." Thus it is with our communion with God in prayer. The world, our friends, and we ourselves sustain a loss if our prayers cease or are intermittent. We must keep up our habits of prayer and grow in the art of prayer, if we would acquaint ourselves with God and open ourselves to the secrets He is ready to reveal to us if we will cultivate intimacy with Him.

Another means of acquaintance with God is meditation.

Meditation is to the mind what digestion is to the body. If we would profit by that which we read or hear, it must go through the mental process of assimilation. It is our privilege to use all these means, the Bible, prayer, meditation, the experience of sorrow, and the experience of service, to acquaint ourselves with God and be at peace.

A TRIP ACROSS THE CONTINENT BY AUTO

There are two things about Santa Fe that are a never ending source of amusement to me—it's money and it's wood supply. Unless specially asked for, and frequently not then, we never see any paper money. Cash a $20 check and receive 20 silver dollars. Why there's a silver dollar that was first coined at the same time as the "buffalo" nickel and I'd never seen one. But a few dollars here certainly does make one feel that they have plenty of money in their pocket.

About the wood supply—Anyone is allowed to cut or pick up any dead wood in the state forests or on any land that is not fenced, and of the latter there are thousands of acres.

Men go out from the city with small wagons and Ford trucks, 10, 15, 20 miles into the country and pick up or chop dry trees and branches. Wood never seems to decay here, but just gets drier and drier—so dry that it seems warped—and most of it is pinon or white cedar.

As the dry wood is scattered, they get a very small load in a day, which they bring back to town, cut in stove length and sell to their customers at 50 cents a burro load. These burros are tiny mules, wearing a pack saddle on which is piled the wood in a big round load. To see a half dozen of these placid, sleepy-eyed little animals, long ears aflop, tiny hoofs clacking on the cement streets and apparently entirely surrounded by sticks of wood, is very funny. Yet that is the way this very charming city gets its wood supply. Range and mountain and hill are covered with pinon trees. They are said to belong to the pine tree family, but look more like a spruce, and once in seven years they yield a great crop of nuts which are produced in cones much like those of the pine tree. When the bearing year comes round, men, women, children, American, Indian and Mexican, go nut gathering. They pick them from the trees and from the ground, but best they like to find the pack rat's nests, for one of these often yields as high as three hundred pounds of the nuts. The pack rat looks much like the ordinary house rat, only he is larger. He lives out of doors where he digs a burrow like that of the New England wood chuck, then he covers it with a big mound of chips and small branches of trees and all through this covering pile, he places the long thorns and needles of the prickly pear and the buckthorn cactus, so that the coyote may not dig out Mr. Rat and his family. The buckthorn cactus grows everywhere, is from six inches to three feet tall and, at this season, is covered with it's seed pods about the size of a small acker and of a bright buttercup yellow. They are very pretty to look at but that is as far as it goes. I picked one to see what was inside of it, only to find out that the outside is covered with tiny barbed thorns, which must be removed from the fingers with the point of a knife blade. Never again!

If the pinon nut gatherer sells his harvest at wholesale, he receives eleven cents a pound, but if he sells direct to the consumer he receives thirty-five cents, which makes it quite worth his while. The last bearing year, 1919, Santa Fe sold four million pounds of the pinon nuts.

Los Cerros

Several years ago, a New York man brought his son to this land of dry air and golden sunshine in search of health.

In hunting for a place to live, he found a Mexican homestead of 40 acres and four adobe houses, located on a hillside at the entrance to the Santa Fe canyon, and two miles from the plaza in Santa Fe—a bit off the beaten path. He bought it and has made it over so that it is thoroughly convenient, yet it has lost none of the charm that was built into it years ago.

In summer and early fall, the tables are set on a wide veranda surrounding a patio where dahlia and hollyhock, marigold and nasturtium seem to endeavor to rival each other in the brilliance of their colors and where the blue of the California jay and the black and white of the magpie, as they beg for crumbs, add to the beauty of the place.

In the east, we would call Los Cerros (the Hills) a hotel—here, it is home to all who come. We drive or ride there afternoon or evening. Often we lunch or dine, and oh, what food! We play cards, or dance or just talk in front of one of the great fire places, wherein the logs are ever crackling. The owner of the place might be our host in some beautiful country home, so welcome are we, and always we look off at the mountains, shadowed with purple and deep blue, the sunlight bringing out each canyon and draw. It is all so mystically beautiful, as to seem unreal.

From Los Cerros, one can motor ten miles up the Santa Fe canyon—the remaining eleven miles must be done on horse back. In that ten miles there are exactly 91 hairpin and double S turns, and it's a one way road, with turnout's too. On the right, huge rocks from which the road has been cut; on the left, a sheer drop down to the glittering ribbon that is the Santa Fe river. The constant prayer is "may we meet no other car," but we always do, then back and twist and turn to find a place to pass, wondering whether the car or the occupants would be the more damaged should we go over the edges. Then we've passed and once again we draw full breaths.

At the end of the ten miles, there's a beautiful plateau, where grow long leaf pine trees and Colorado blue spruce with here and there a white trunked quaking aspen, and off to the east Mt. Boldy rises to a height of 13,000 feet. At one's feet, flows the Santa Fe river alive with glistening trout.

Fate of the Homesteaders

During Theodore Roosevelt's administration, an elderly couple took up a homestead just above this beautiful spot, built their log cabin and stables, raised horses, cattle and good crops, for the soil was very fertile and there was ample water. Roosevelt gave them a "patent" on their ranch, so that "they, and their heirs and assigns forever" would own the land over which they had worked so hard, but one day the elements took a hand in their affairs. Far up in the mountains there was a heavy storm and cloud burst. The canyon was filled with the torrent which came roaring down, uprooting trees of all sizes, and when the flood had cleared away, where had lain the peaceful ranch, rocks and boulders were high piled trees and branches and debris of all kinds were everywhere—but of the old couple, their stock and happy home nothing was left.

All around lies the state forest. Many people go there, in the summer to camp out for a week or two. The Elks have a beautiful log cabin, where the members go vacationing, but in spite of the grandeur of the scenery, the scent of the pine trees and the spicy tang of the sage bush, it seems to me that the sweeping away of that homestead would be ever present in my mind and that I'd not sleep well of nights.

A Traveler.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Water and Lighting Plants

Mr. Editor: Meeting by chance one or two of our thinking citizens yesterday, the question of our present inadequate water supply—even including the new pumping arrangements—came up. Why not now increase for the immediate future the natural supplies by taking in other basins and enlarging our water mains so that the property on the high land between Broadway and Washington streets as well as all other localities could be protected in case of fire?

While about this latter an idea regarding our gas and electric supply comes to me. If there is so much worth in our gas and electric light plant to attract so many outside corporations and private individuals, why can it not be reorganized so that we ourselves can keep in our own city the great value to accrue from such reorganization?

D.

The Emergency Water Supply.

Mr. Editor: It is not a small responsibility to permit the public to use water which has not been purified. Why the water commission should be a respecter of persons, finding it necessary to purify water for some and leaving to others the danger of drinking it before it reaches the chlorination plant we cannot understand, since so serious a matter as life is in the balance.

Now that the flowage of Tadman pond is being connected with the water supply, we hereby strongly protest to the board of health, and wish to call the attention of the same to this new source since it flows through a large poultry plant, washes a barnyard and a garbage dump.

A number of families beyond the chlorination plant are dependent upon the Norwich water supply and though paying at the same rate as others, they are forced to use water which has not passed through the purifying process. One consumer inquired at the office of the water department and was coolly informed to "boil the water!"

The water commission is running a tremendous risk in permitting the use of its water supply unpurified. What about the many lives endangered? While the work of putting in a new pump is in operation, why does not the water commission see the advantage of connecting the chlorinating plant where all consumers are benefited and none are placed in danger of sickness and loss of life?

Wills Cather's Immigrant Neighbors

After spending her early girlhood days in beautiful, historic Winchester, Va., Willa Sibert Cather was taken to the then dreary frontier country of Nebraska among settlements of immigrants.

Few of the neighbors near the ranch were Americans, most of them being either Scandinavians, Swedes, Norwegians or Danes. Visiting among them, she grew fond of their stories of their native countries.

After graduating from the high school nearby, she entered the University of Nebraska. She wrote for the college magazine and attempted to spin stories about the foreign settlers near her home. Although she considered her writings crude, they were liked and when she was graduated at 19, her instructors and friends thought that she would become a successful writer within a few months.

Then came a long struggle for this new recruit in the literary field. She worked on the staff of the Pittsburgh Leader, taught English at the Allegheny high school, went abroad and traveled in the west. In the nine years after leaving college she wrote only a book of verse, April Twilight, and some short stories.

At 29 she published a collection of her stories under the title of The Garden, and largely because of this she was made associate editor of McClure's Magazine where she served six years. In her last year there Alexander Bridge, her first book of fiction appeared, but created only slight interest.

O Pioneers, a story of the early struggles of the Swedish and Bohemian settlers, appeared a year later and won recognition. After three years' effort The Song of the Lark was published and received praise from Edward Everett Hale. Three years more of writing and My Antonia, the story of a Bohemian girl who was good to Miss Cather in her childhood, was declared by many to be the best piece of fiction written by an American woman.

Some of Miss Cather's books have been translated into Scandinavian and French and today she is recognized as one of America's foremost women writers.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Edward H. Sothern, who is in line for congratulations today on the occasion of his sixty-fifth birthday anniversary, is one of the best-known and most respected actors of the American stage. His father was the famous English player, Edward A. Sothern of Lord Dundreary fame and the son first made his appearance in the United States playing a minor part in his father's company. He has steadily risen in the importance of roles assumed and the significance of the plays presented, either under the direction of renowned managers or in his own productions. For many years he and his wife (Julia Marlowe) have toured the country, acting some of the best of the Shakesperian plays, and winning a popular support not duplicated since the days of Edwin Booth. Mr. Sothern is a versatile player, doing admirable work in plays as different as If I Were King, Hauptmann's Sunken Bell, and As You Like It.

Today's Anniversaries

1814—Don Juan Prim, famous Spanish soldier, and virtual dictator of Spain after the overthrow of Queen Isabel, born in Catalonia. Assassinated Dec. 30, 1870.

1849—William J. Florence made his first stage appearance at the Richmond theater, New York.

1923—The Baldwin administration was defeated in the British election. President Coolidge read his first message at joint session of congress.

CHILD TRAINING

The Hop O' Thumb Boy

Of all children difficult to bring up successfully, probably the "Hop O' Thumb" or irrepressible type of boy is the biggest problem. As one school teacher says, "You never can put your finger on him," and his own mother says, "A mother of a boy like Archie surely deserves a special dispensation!"

The Hop O' Thumb boy is the kind that "dry cleans" his hands on a towel when sent to wash them before meal time, and who slips away from the table afterwards, on the slightest pretext, to be with the gang.

The remedy? In the first place, one has to consider Archie's virtues as well as his faults. While impulsive and restless, he is quick to learn if he is sufficiently interested, and he is warm-hearted. This is often true of boys of this type especially if the affections are trained early to center in the home.

When Archie rebels at practicing, brings home poor marks from school, makes endless work at home by throwing his belongings around and through the daily infractions that tempt his mother to nag him wears her to a frazzle, there has to be a reckoning.

A first appeal should be made by the father. If the boy is young his love for his mother should be the plea. "See here, if you really care for her don't make her so much work! You don't want your mother to be a servant, do you, just because you're lazy and forgetful?"

Along with this goes the idea of justice: "fair play" is an appeal that nearly every boy resonds to. "Do you think it's fair to make your mother do your school work or practicing for you? Then do it yourself—the sooner you begin the sooner it will be done. Don't be such a baby that your mother has to stand over you and watch or talk to you every minute."

A boy generally has a vast amount of pride, and this is of value if it is only directed into the right channels. These first pleas may be met with a certain bravado that implies "I dont care," but the thought usually sinks in and is applied if the boy can manage to do it without seeming to "give in" or lose any of what he considers his "manly dignity."

If he seems to have grown suddenly beyond home influence and his father's advice, more drastic punishment is needed. A practical punishment, firmly enforced, is often effective for failure to study or keep his person or room in order. Thus, for example, "You can't ride your wheel for a week," or "I shall not allow you to attend the cinema on Friday night." Either will be a real hardship.

When such punishments fail to improve the boy's general attitude, the fault is likely to lie with the playfellows with whom he is associating. Their company can be discouraged of course, and an effort to keep him at home should be made. Books, games and radio, for example, are quite worth the expense if they keep him under home influence. To keep an active boy contented in his own yard is difficult, yet to keep him away from the gang or "mob" influence is just what is needed to forge anew the bond between him and his parents.

The father who drives a machine should take the boy along with him whenever possible; outdoor sports should also include the son. But failing then to curb the boy's restlessness and keep him from undesirable companions, real work among kind but firm, mature people may be the answer. It is certain that work will teach him the value of clothes, education and other advantages of which he previously has been so careless.

Stories That Recall Others

Tit for Tat

Two small boys were quarreling in a schoolyard. Or, more accurately, one was doing all the talking while the other listened unperturbed. Finally the talker was forced to stop for lack of breath.

"Are you through?" the other asked. An affirmative was his answer.

"Then all the things you called me, you is," said the second.

Botany Students Take Notice

While making a professional call a nurse undertook to show a negligent housekeeper how to clean a bedroom.

The carpet under the bed was covered with dut and puffy rolls of line.

"See," said the nurse, "these rolls of dirt shouldn't be allowed to form and remain on your floors."

"Dirt," exclaimed the astonished housekeeper, "I didn't know that was dirt. I always thought that was house moss!"

George S. Stevenson, treasurer of the Society for Savings in Hartford for the last three years a member of the board of trustees of Trinity college, presented his resignation as a member of the board a month ago.

America Now Awheel

These last 100 years have developed a "nation awheel" and wrought wonderful changes in transportation, broadening the horizon of individuals and in making far places neighbors.

A century ago the Erie canal, connecting the Great Lakes with New York, was rapidly nearing completion. Those were days of canal building, and travel by wheels was largely reserved for the wealth in a few cities.

A century ago there was not a single mile of railroad in this country. The great network of lines and transcontinental lines that have for years knit the sections of this country together and bound the states more closely into the Union were not even started.

A century ago MacAdam was working on the type of stone road that has since made his name world famous.

Today there are near 20,000,000 motor vehicles and hundreds of trunkline highways.

Russia's Would-Be Czar

A manifesto has been issued to the Russian people by the Grand Duke Cyril, who recently assumed the vacant throne. He condemns the Communists for bringing the country down to the dust and stealing her wealth, and promises that he will restore the church, pardon those who have gone astray and give the land to the peasants as their rightful property.

Training Orioles

Mrs. T. W. King of Lamoni, Ia., has some domesticated orioles which she captured in the nest when the birds were just ready to fly. One morning Mrs. King noticed the father of the birds beating against the cage in an effort to get his young. She then hung the cage on the porch and the father brought food for the family. He continued this until the birds learned to take care of themselves.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Frederick L. Osgood

Following an illness of but two days the life of Eliza J. White, widow of Ex-Mayor Frederick L. Osgood, came to a close Friday morning at her home 194 Washington street. The news of her death comes as a shock to a host of friends in this city many of whom had not learned of her illness. A sister, Miss Harriet N. Devotion, was about to leave her home in White Plains, N. Y., to spend the winter in Florida, when she received a telephone call which caused her to hurry to Norwich in time to be at the bedside of Mrs. Osgood when she passed away.

Mrs. Osgood was born in New York, the daughter of William White and Adeline Kinney. Her earliest education was received in the public schools of New York and later in private schools in Norwich, following the removal of her parents to this city.

Mrs. Osgood was united in marriage with Frederick L. Osgood in this city on October 7, 1874 and had Mr. Osgood lived one more year they would have celebrated their golden wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Osgood was a member of the Mayflower society and the Colonial Dames and her interest in genealogy made her an authority along this line. For many years she took an active interest in Christ Episcopal church. She was a woman of loving qualities and easily endeared herself to a wide circle of friends in this community.

Mrs. Osgood is survived by two sisters, Miss Harriet N. Devotion and Mrs. John A. Sherer, both of White Plains, N. Y. Mrs. Augustus C. Tyler of New London is a sister-in-law.

FUNERALS.

Mrs. George O. Hildebrand

The funeral of Mrs. George O. Hildebrand was held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock from her home, 235 Palmer street, relatives and friends attending, several from out of town. The many beautiful floral tributes were testimony to the esteem in which the deceased was held by her many friends.

Rev. Herman A. Hunzinger, pastor of the First German Lutheran church, conducted the service and also read the committal service at the grave in Yantic cemetery. The bearers were John Greiner, Alfred Jahn, Edward Duro and Otis Jenens.

Arrangements were by C. A. Gager.

James McKee

Practically all members of the G. A. R., whose health permitted, and many relatives and friends paid final tribute to a comrade and loved one, Friday afternoon, when funeral services for James McKee, who was killed Wednesday evening on Washington street, when struck by an automobile, were held at 2.30 o'clock from the home of his son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. E. J. Jones of 16 Bliss Place, with whom he had resided. There was a wealth of beautiful floral tributes.

The service was conducted by Rev. J. Harlow Graham, pastor of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, of which Mr. McKee had been a member. Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, pastor of the Greeneville Congregational church assisted Rev. Mr. Graham in the service and Fred Maples sang Abide With Me and one other selection.

Burial was in the family lot in Yantic cemetery where the committal service was read by Rev. Mr. Graham. Mr. McKee was president of the 18th Conn. Vols., and an officer of Sedgwick Post, No. 1, G. A. R., and the following members of these organizations were honorary bearers: Orrin M. Price, commander of Sedgwick Post, John Service, George Crocker, John Irish, George Kies and Edward G. Willey.

Arrangements were by Church & Allen.

Adam Rakowski.

Funeral services for Adam Rakowski were held at 7.30 o'clock Friday morning from his late home, 30 Barnes street, with requiem mass in St. Joseph's church at 8 o'clock, Rev. Theophile Kolowski officiating. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends at the services and the floral tributes were most beautiful. Previous to the mass the office of the dead was chanted by the sanctuary choir. The children's choir sang during the mass, in charge of the organist, Mrs. Healy, who rendered Pie Jesu, at the offertory.

Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery where a committal service was conducted by Rev. Fr. Kotowski. The bearers, members of St. George's society, of which the deceased was a member, were Joseph Donilovitz, Frank Kinpinski, Stanley Bujnowski, Paul Sabrewski, John Dudkowski, John Jurewicz, Anthony Shurkowski and Joseph Styzinski.

Arrangements were by Shea & Burke.

Was Acetylene Gas Explosion

General Manager C. W. Taggart of the city gas and electric department said Friday night that the gas explosion and fire at the Bogue garage on North Main street Thursday afternoon should not be ascribed to the illuminating gas from the city works as it was due to acetylene gas at a pressure of 1,000 pounds that was blown back into the meter, thereby rupturing the meter to which the acetylene was tied in. Such an accident will not happen again as he has required the garage people to protect the meter.

Will Attend Farm Bureau

An attendance from all over the county is expected today (Saturday) at the annual meeting of the county farm bureau in this city.

LATEST OFFER IS $3,000,000 FOR CITY GAS AND ELECTRIC DEPARTMENT

Three bids, one of them a new one, made to buy the gas and electric department of the city of Norwich, were opened at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon at the mayor's office in the court house by the special committee of the court of common council, which comprises Mayor Milo R. Waters, Alderman Henry Gebrath and Edward Crooks. In attendance at the meeting were Corporation Counsel William H. Shields and General Manager C. W. Taggart of the Norwich plant.

Fitkin & Co. Offer

The new offer, which came from A. E. Fitkin & Co., of New York city, an offer of $3,000,000 is the highest received so far for the city property. It was contained in the following letter.

We hereby offer to buy the properties and assets of the gas and electric department of the city and to pay therefore $2,600,000 in cash at the time of transfer and, in addition, to assume all current liabilities, such property, assets at time of transfer to us to be subject to no indebtedness or charges except the current liabilities, which we will assume, an dthe existing $400,000 of mortgage bonds which will remain outstanding. This, in effect will be a purchase of the properties for $3,000,000 plus the amount of current liabilities.

This offer is made subject to our obtaining satisfactory rights to operate the property, and also that there will be no substantial changes in the property and assets of the department, nor any new and unusual contracts except for its ordinary routine and current operations.

The further terms of this offer are as follows: That we receive all assets as shown on the balance sheet of said department dated as of Oct. 31, 1924, which you heretofore submitted to us, a copy of which we attach hereto, including any increases to date of transfers in said assets except the special amount reserved on date of closing in account No. 74 of said department as a sinking fund for certain bonds of the city issued in aid of the gas and electric department, due 1951. Such reserved amount on Oct. 31, 1924 constituted, we understand, $15,616.90 of the item "sinking funds $85,089.49" shown on said balance sheet.

Prepaid insurance and accrued paid interest on the $400,000 of mortgage bonds outstanding against the property to be adjusted as of date of transfer.

That the current liabilities assumed by us will be the actual current liabilities on date of transfer, which on Oct. 31, 1924, balance sheet appear under the heading "accounts payable, consumers' deposits," and accruals, interest, water miscellaneous."

That we assume all existing contracts of said gas and electric department from date of transfer and such routine contracts as may be made between now and date of transfer.

As evidence of good faith on our part we have deposited $50,000 in the Thames National bank of your city.

We are acting for and in behalf of our company and no other company in the state of Connecticut.

We will appreciate your earnest consideration of this proposition and an early reply.

All communications should be addressed to A. E. Fitkin Co., 165 Broadway, New York city.

Yours very truly

A. E. FITKIN & CO.

In addition to this written communication a representative of the company has stated to Mayor Waters that the company would continue to operate the Norwich plant, that the domestic rate for eltdricity would remain the same, the power rate would be reduced somewhat and the charge made to the city would be at a nominal rate.

Central Connecticut Power

The following offer was made through Bodell & Co., of Providence on behalf of the Central Connecticut Power & Light Co., of East Hampton:

Honorable Mayor and Court of the Common Council of the City of Norwich, Conn.,
Dear Sirs:

The undersigned, the Central Connecticut Power and Light Company, hereby offers to purchase on or before April 1, 1925, the property and assets of the Gas and Electrical Department of the City of Norwich upon the following terms and conditions.

The purchase price shall be $2,250,000 in cash, or $2,500,000 provided the city will accept $1,750,000 in cash and $750,000 in Fifteen Year 5 Per Cent. General Mortgage Bonds of the undersigned, payable at the rate of $50,000 in each year, and of a character set up in the plan of proposed capitalization hereto annexed.

The Gas and Electrical properties shall be conveyed to the undersigned by a good and sufficient deed, or deeds, and the other assets shall be conveyed, assigned or transferred by such instruments as may be necessary to give the undersigned good title thereto. The properties conveyed or assigned shall be free and clear of all liens and encumbrances, except as otherwise provided in this letter. The City shall have the right to convey the properties subject to the mortgage of Norwich Gas and Electric Company dated July 1, 1897, securing $400,000 face value of bonds, in which event the face value of said bonds shall be deducted from the cash consideration to be paid.

The assets to be acquired shall be the electric light and gas plant, real estate, and other assets enumerated in the balance sheet of April 30, 1924, contained in the 20th annual report of the Board of Gas and Electrical Commissioners of the City of Norwich for the year ending April 30, 1924, except so far as the amount of said assets may vary in the ordinary current operation of the properties. The failure of the city to deliver any of said assets upon the consummation of the purchase, excepting the gas and electric plants and system, shall only affect this offer by reducing the amount of the cash purchase price by the value of the assets not delivered.

The properties will be acquired subject to current liabilities, i. e., accounts and wages payable, guarantee deposits, accrued interest and miscellaneous current liabilities.

The gas and electrical department of the city subsequent to the acceptance of this offer and prior to April 1, 1925, shall consult and advise with the undersigned in respect to all important contracts and expenditures which it proposes to make, and will make no such contracts or expenditures except with the approval of the undersigned.

This offer is made subject to the city obtaining the authority to sell, and the undersigned obtained satisfactory rights to purchase and operate the property prior to April 1, 1925.

As an evidence of the undersigned's good faith in making this offer, and as security for the performance of the contract by it, the undersigned has deposited with the Thames National Bank $50,000, principal amount, of United States Liberty Loan Bonds.

This offer is open for your consideration up to and including December 10th, 1924. We would appreciate it, however, if an earlier reply could be given.

Yours very truly
Central Conn. Power & Light Co.
By FRANKLIN M. FERNALD
Vice President

This company also stated that it would operate the Norwich plant if it became the purchaser.

Eastern Connecticut Power

The Eastern Connecticut Power Co., of this city continued its offer of $1,700,000 with a 20 per cent. reduction on rates for power and light in force Dec. 31, 1923, not applying on the flat rate and street lighting. The offer also contained the expression of willingness to buy at any bona fide price that would be offered by any other purchaser and approved by the public utilities commission.

A representative of the Eastern Connecticut Power Co., stated Friday evening that they considered their offer of $1,700,000 with a guarantee of $84,000 reduction in the yearly rates would be of far greater advantage to the citizens than selling for such a price as has now been named, which he styled a ridiculous valuation. If the purchase price were $3,000,000 this official pointed out, the company would issue securities for $3,500,000 at least and would be obliged to earn enough to pay dividends on that amount. The usual earnings approved by the public utilities commission are from 8 to 10 per cent. and the company would be in a position to advance rates from which the people would have to appeal. In such an event, this official claimed, the citizens would be in a poor position to expect much from their appeal as the sale value which had been set would establish the high capitalization of the company. This official said he considered it would be infinitely better to sell at a fair price than at a high valuation that would mean a high capitalization.

Will Meet Further

Mayor Waters and the committee met again Friday evening and will on Monday meet the legal representatives of the Fitkin Co. The committee will then have another meeting on Tuesday and possibly a special meeting of the common council will be called for Wednesday or Thursday evenings to hear their report.

Accompanying the letter was a statement of the proposed corporate structure of the subsidiary company which would be formed should the Norwich property be acquired. This made the following showing:

First mortgage gold bonds, 5 per cent., 30 years, authorized $2,750,000, outstanding $2,000,000.

General mortgage, 15 year 5 per cent. serial payment gold bonds, authorized $750,000, outstanding $750,000.

Seven per cent. cumulative preferred stock (no par value, authorized $5,000,000, outstanding $915,000 (possibly part maybe 6 per cent. stock).

Common stock (no par value), authorized 200,000 shares, outstanding 100,000 shares.

Gross income	$928,201
Operating expenses	580,118
Net earnings	$348,083
Interest charges	137,500
Balance	$210,583
Preferred dividends—$915,000 of 7 per cent preferred stock	64,050
Balance available for replacements, renewals and common stock dividends	$146,533

The earnings and expenses shown are the combined figures of the Norwich company for the year ended April 30, 1924, and of the Central Connecticut and Essex Cos., for the year ended May 31, 1924.

In the approximate statement of assets and liabilities the property is shown at a valuation of $4,300,000 sinking fund $82,979.94, total current assets, $469,790.73, total assets $4,852,-770.67.

Capital stock liabilities and surplus are shown as follows: capital stock $915,000; funded debt $2,750,000; current liabilities, $75,776.19; reserves, $265,343.57; excess of assets over liabilities and represented by 100,000 shares of common stock of no par value $846,651.91; total $4,852,770.67.

CENTRAL BAPTIST PLANS FOR ATTENDANCE SUNDAY

Plans for "Attendance Sunday," Dec. 7, at the Central Baptist church were completed at the meeting of the 60 group leaders on Thursday evening. Each group has been hard at work calling upon its members. A goal of 85 per cent. of the present actual resident members has been set. This means that at least 520 members must enroll at some one of the four services held on Sunday or at one of the three Italian services. An automobile committee is planning to call for those otherwise unable to attend.

The committee consists of Carl W. Brown, Charles Chapman and Harold Burt. Mrs. C. Edward Smith will be in charge of the nursery. The ushers have made special plans for the occasion.

At the close of the great morning service the Lord's supper will be observed, for the last time in 1924. In the evening a great memory service will be the feature, with old favorite hymns.

SAW AUTO ACCIDENT ON COLCHESTER ROAD

As Dr. Louis T. Cassidy of this city was returning by automobile from Hartford Friday evening in the rain and sleet, which made the highway extremely dangerous for travel, he saw two cars approaching him on the long hill north of Colchester. The front car suddenly started to skid and the driver of the second car, a brother of James O'Leary, proprietor of a restaurant in New London, pulled his car sharply to one side to avoid hitting the skidding car. The O'Leary machine ran up a bank and overturned and was considerably damaged.

The occupants succeeded in getting out of the overturned car and only one of the party was injured, one man having a finger hurt.

Dr. Cassidy brought his car to a stop when he saw the accident and returned to render whatever assistance he could. The man's injured finger was dressed, after which Dr. Cassidy continued on his trip home.

AMERICAN LEGION POST APPROVES FIVE APPLICATIONS

In the absence of Commander Herman A. Bruckner, the meeting of Fletcher post, No. 4, American Legion, was presided over Friday evening in the legion rooms, Main street, by First Vice Commander Webster D. Copp. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved and five applications for membership were favorably voted upon. Attention was called to the fact that at the next regular meeting will occur the annual election of officers and it was voted that a special entertainment and refreshments be provided for the social hour to follow that meeting. William A. Anderson and Samuel Jennes were appointed a committee to have this matter in charge.

It was also voted that the post provide Christmas cheer for the ex-service men at the Norwich state tuberculosis sanatorium, and John A. Cunningham, C. C. Oat and Leon Raymond were appointed a committee to take this matter in charge. Jonathan L. Johnson, Frank P. Chase and William M. Skelly were appointed an auditing committee to go over the post books and report at the annual meeting.

County Commander William A. Anderson called attention to the fact that a county meeting will be held at Mystic on the third Sunday afternoon in this month and urged all the members of Fletcher post to make an effort to attend. Transportation will be provided. County Commander Anderson also announced that there will be a Voiture meeting with initiation in Norwich early next month.

The county commander spoke briefly of the membership contest between Connecticut and Florida and stated that the result of the contest will depend on the membership showing of the various posts on the last day of December. He urged all present members to pay their 1925 dues before the end of the month and to make an effort to secure as many new members as possible before the close of the year.

Jonathan L. Johnson, chef de gare of the Voiture, spoke briefly in connection with the Voiture meeting to be held in Norwich early in January, and also of the meeting planned for Dec. 14th in New London, at which a turkey supper will be served.

THE GOLDEN RULE A UNIVERSAL CREED

The Golden Rule is a universal creed. It is a common denominator of all religions and social welfare organizations. Protestant or Catholic, Jew or Gentile, modernist or fundamentalist, conservative or radical, royalist or communist, we accept the Golden Rule as the standard of life. Do we practice what we preach? Do our deeds keep step with our creed? Let us measure our gift to the children of the Near East by the Golden Rule on Golden Rule Sunday, Dec. 7.

Opportunity to give will be provided in many of the churches and Sunday schools and in addition to this boxes will be found at the following places on Monday morning: W. E. Manning, Yantic; Norwich Town store, Utley & Jones, Lerou's, People's store, Taftville, W. D. Ricker and G. M. Rathbone, West Side, Eugene Saunders, Laurel Hill. Mrs. C. D. Sevin of 28 Bliss Place is the local treasurer to whom contribution may be sent by mail.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

Mrs. William B. Birge, of Huntington Place, is in New York for a visit of several days.

Mrs. Henry D. Johnson of Lincoln avenue has returned from a brief visit with F. Stearns Edick, at Nyack, N. Y.

Miss Lydia Johnson has returned to Franklin, following a visit with her nephew, Fred Johnson, of Broadway.

Mrs. Flint Brayton of Lincoln avenue was at home Thursday from 4 to 8, entertaining for Mrs. Jessie Flint Brayton.

DECIDE GRACE HEACOCK WAS SHOT BY BLASING

Chicago, Dec. 5.—A coroner's jury late today decided that Mrs. Grace Heacock who was found shot to death in her apartment last night, was killed by George Blasing also found dead in the apartment, and decided that Blasing had committed suicide.

No light was shed at the inquest on the motive that precipitated the quarrel.

The police after finding two love letters addressed to the woman had been working on the theory that a jealous suitor might have shot her and Blasing but found no evidence except the letters might support such a belief.

FORCED DOWN BY LEAKY GASOLINE CONNECTION

Longhill, Conn., Dec. 5. — Forced down from a high altitude because of a leaky gasoline connection, an army airplane from Mitchel Field L. I., was slightly damaged this afternoon when the pilot, Lieutenant M. P. Cornell, made a hurried landing on a lot in the rear of the Griswold property. Lieutenant Cornell and his companion, an officer from McCook Field, Ohio, both escaped injury and returned to the air station by rail.

MEXICAN SMUGGLING PLOT ON THE AROZINA BORDER

Douglas, Ariz., Dec. 5.—Six alleged members of a Mexican revolutionary junta are in jail at Ague Prieta, across the international boundry line, and another man is held here as the result of the discovery of an arms smuggling plot. Other arrests are expected.

MUSCLE SHOALS BILLS INTRODUCED IN HOUSE

Washington, Dec. 5.—A bill identical to that introduced into the senate Tuesday by Senator Underwood for utilization of Muscle Shoals was introduced today in the house by Representative Roose, republican, Tennessee.

All About Paper

Paper was first made by the Chinese in the second century B. C. The crude process was later adopted by the Arabs, and by the twelfth century was manufactured all over Europe.

In tracing the history of the various kinds of papers, it is found that each decade had characteristic watermarks. Some of them were animals, birds, fishes, flowers, domestic and warlike implements or armorial bearings. In the fourteenth century the watermarks were very simple and the paper was of firm texture. In the fifteenth century the watermarks became more elaborate in design and the paper was finer. In the sixteenth century it was fashionable for the manufacturer to insert his full name in the watermark.

The tedious, labored manufacture of paper before the nineteenth century contrasts with the speedy, efficient process now used.

Rags are torn into small strips and used for pulp. Waste paper, old magazines, old newspapers and torn cardboard are all sorted very carefully. After being separated for fine or coarse paper they are thoroughly washed.

The material is then put through several very strenuous processes to reduce it to shreds. The papers are cut by sissors, torn pulled by machines with steel claws, and crushed under huge, heavy wheels. They are then vigorously ground by millstone. After they are powdered they are mixed with water into a sort of soup.

It is not surprising that by now the pulp is quite gray, so that the next process is to whiten it. It is mixed with several very strong chemicals and in a surprising short time is transformed into a white mass.

When machines spread it in thin layers in sieves, water is allowed to drip through it, forming the raw soup into felt. This is passed through cylinders, which act like clothes wringers, pressing out the water. Other cylinders dry it, and when it is polished the paper is finished.

Sound Bodies Desired

The United States is starting in the schoolrooms at country crossroads, as well as in the big city centers, to develop sound minds in sound bodies.

The United States bureau of education during the past year has received approximately 10,000 requests for health publications. Besides this more than 1,000 letters have sought specific information on school hygiene and were answered by specialists in the division of physical education.

W. F. AITKEN, ACADEMY FOOTBALL COACH, ELECTED HEAD OF HIGH SCHOOL LEAGUE

Stonington, Dec. 5.—Although William F. Aitkin, present director and coach of athletics at Norwich Free Academy is a new comer as a mentor in this section of the state yet his popularity among his fellow coaches in Eastern Connecticut is evident by the fact that he was elected to the presidency of the Eastern Connecticut League, at the annual meeting of the Interscholastic Athletic Council, at the Stonington High School. Besides the election of a new president of the league, Ralph B. Cornell of Westerly, vice president and E. Stanley Taylor of Chapman Tech, secretary-treasurer, were the new officers to be installed for the ensuing year during the meeting.

Charles E. Mason of Westerly, who is the outgoing president of the league took charge of the meeting. Numerous questions were discussed during the course of the meeting, chief among these being football, baseball and track activities which occupied the time of the high schools in the league during the past season. It was voted to have the annual interscholastic track meet held in New London. The date chosen for the event was Wednesday, May 20, and the following events were to be included in the plan of activities for the afternoon: Runs—100 yards, 220 yards, 440 yards, 880 yards; mile and low hurdles, while the field events will consist of the pole vaiut, high jump, running broad jump, 12 pound shot put (running broad jump), javelin throw. The meet will terminate with a half mile relay race. As had been expected, the cross country which was an innovation this year and which took place at Stonington will be classed as a permanent track activity. The date chosen to run this event off was Armistice Day, November 11, 1925. The site chosen was Westerly, and a three mile course will be the maximum.

Another offer which was accepted by the league was made by Peter C. Ward of the Alling Rubber Company. As a representative of the Alling Rubber Company, Mr. Ward offered a cup to the winning football eleven in the league next season. Chapman Technical High of New London, which completed the present league season in first place with five victories and one defeat, one game a head of Westerly High, won the cup offered by the Alling Rubber Company for the present year's league winner. Other championship awards which were decided upon the field of a particular sport during their season, were formally announced at the meeting. Westerly High was formally awarded the baseball championship, while the cross country run which was held at Stonington on Armistice Day, and which Stonington came out the winner, was formally awarded to Stonington. In order to secure proper officials for the football contests an offer of R. J. Guyer of the Connecticut Agricultural college to furnish three officials for all league football games for the season of 1925 was accepted as satisfactory by the members of the league. The schedules of the baseball and football activities during the coming year will be issued shortly, as soon as the committee designated for this purpose has a chance to meet.

A round of thanks was extended Peter C. Ward and the Alling Rubber Co for the co-operation and interest which this company has in the league. As retiring president of the league, Mr. Mason was voted a round of thanks for carrying out the policies of the council.

The meeting was well attended, the following representatives being present at the meeting:

Stonington High School—Philip E Newhall, principal and faculty director; John F. Gallagher, football coach; F. M. Stickney, track coach; Ernest G. Duke, football captain; William S. Maggs, cross country manager; J. W. Anderson, basketball manager; A. P. Kenyon, trick captain; William H. Hill, track manager; A. Fribbance, acting for Captain McCaffery.

ROMERO BEATS RENAULT IN CLOSE-RANGE BATTLE

Boston, Dec. 5—Quintin Romero, Chilean, heavyweight, tonight won the decision in his ten round battle with Jack Renault of Canada. The fighting was done at close range throughout, and Romero's advantage was slight.

The two heavyweights battled through the 10 rounds on comparatively even terms, the South American's greater aggressiveness and an effective left counting largely in the final award. There was little of the toe to toe slugging which had been predicted by some, infighting, punctuated by occasional rushes being the rule in all of the ten rounds.

Neither landed effectively in the opening round and the second was much the same, the scoring being chiefly on infighting. Romero scored often at close range in the third round and in the fourth had Renault on the defensive landing frequently on his left hand leads.

The fifth was Renault's best and he carried the round by a good margin. Shaking the South American with a hard right to the jaw, he had Romero holding on as the gong sounded. The sixth saw little damage done, although there was much hard hitting in the infighting. Romero continued boring in maintaining the aggressive. A cut was opened over Romero's right eye in the seventh, but it did not bother him, this round and the eighth being almost a repetition of the infighting of the sixth. The crowd, disapproving the close range boxing booed frequently.

Renault had a slight advantage in the ninth, rushing Romero to the ropes twice but the South American came back strong and, in the tenth round, which was crammed with hard infighting, continued his boring-in tactics. Renault weighed 198 and Romero 196.

Ted Blatt, St. Paul, Minn., bantamweight, was awarded the decision at the end of his 6-round semi-final bout with Abe Friedman, of Boston. Wolf Larsen, of Boston won the decision in an 8-round preliminary over Jack Hankinson, of Lynn, former English light heivyweight.

BULKELEY OPENS SEASON ON NEXT SATURDAY

(Suecial to The Bulletin.)

New London, Dec., 5,—When South Kingston High school called off its schedule basketball game with Bulkeley for this (Saturday) afternoon, it also caused the postponement of the Orange and Black basketball season one week.

However, South Kingston had agreed to come to New London on Saturday, December 12, and that game will officially open the Bulkeley season. A game with Torrington High school for this date was also pending, but it was finally scheduled for next month.

Coach William R. Canty is working hard to bring about the best possible combination. He has made several shifts in the personnel of the team, and the first team is a long way from being decided on as yet. A smooth working combination is bound to result when the Orange and Black mentor is through experimenting. The material he has on hand is anything but promising, and he has a tough job ahead of him to effect a winning combination by his careful tutelage. The Armory is being used three times a week for practice sessions, and the two days in the week finds the Orange and Black mentor is through experimenting. The material he has on hand is anything but promising, and he has a tough job ahead of him to effect a winning combination by his careful tutelage. The Armory is being used three times a week for practice sessions, and the other two days in the week finds the Orange and Black squad cavorting on the Y. M. C. A. floor. This arrangement from present indications will probably be permanent. It is the best suitable arrangement which could be made, but there is a possibility that one of the Church courts in the city will be used for practice purposes in the near future.

"KID" TEAM FALLS BACK TO SECOND PLACE

New York, Dec. 5.—McNamara and Van Kempen, the "Iron Man" and the "Flying Dutchman", continued to lead the six-day bicycle riders at Madison Square Garden at 10 o'clock tonight after 118 hours of riding.

Four other teams had covered an equal distance but were behind in points gained in schedule sprints. They were: Walthour-Georgetti, Belloni-Deruyter, Goossens-Buysse and Benezatto-Taylor.

Goullett and McBeath, teamed after their partners were injured in a spill early this mroning, remained one lap behind the leaders as did three other teams. Three combinations were two laps behind.

The leaders had covered 1,952 miles, 3 laps, against the record of 2,305 miles, 9 laps, made by Verri and Egg in 1914.

OVER 300,000 ATTENDED GAMES AT CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 5. — Official attendance figures at the Harvard football games for the season of 1924 were made public tonight by the Harvard Athletic Association.

They follow:

Virginia, 22,868; Middlebury 30,372; Holy Cross 41,602; Dartmouth 51,307; Boston University 20,910; Princeton 50, 936; Brown 39,102; Yale 74,786. With the exception of the Yale games at New Haven all games were in the stadium in Cambridge, Dartmouth and Princeton drawing approximately capacity crowds.

The total attendance of 331,383 for the season compares with 339,000 persons who went to Harvard games in 1923 and 300,300 who attended in 1922.

GOULLET IS RIDING HIS LAST BIKE RACE

New York, Dec. 5.—Alf Goullet, the veteran professional cyclist, is riding his last six-day race this week at Madison Square Garden. Between turns on the wooden saucer today he declared that the injection into the game of such speedy youngsters as Walthour and Georgetti, two newcomers, making a strong bid in this week's race, had convinced him he had seen his best days and that it was time to retire. He has not failed at any time this week to show his old-time speed.

Although he will quit the six-day field, in which he has hung up 12 victories, Goullet said he would not abandon cycling altogether but would confine his efforts to short races.

Goullet is one of the few stars of a decade ago still in the game. He scored his first six-day victory at the garden in 1913 with Joe Fogler as his partner. His last triumph was scored with Alfred Grenda in March, 1923. Goullet is the highest paid rider in the professional game. He was reported to have received $15,000 for racing in this week's grind.

MYTHICAL ELEVEN PICKED BY A STRAW VOTE

A straw vote conducted by the All-Sports Magazine is taken as best mythical football team in the country. The team was selected from a combined vote of over 300 prominent football coaches, officials and sport writers in the country. The 1924 season was so spectacular and boasted so many wonder-players that it is humanly impossible for one man to select a truly representative All-American eleven so the straw vote was employed.

In counting the votes there were a few outstanding features. Red Grange of Illinois was the only unanimous choice for any position. Crowley of Notre Dame was almost a unanimous choice for the other halfback job, and Hazel of Rutgers, because of his great passing, running and kicking, was a great favorite for the fullback post. Then came the fight for the pilot job and Dooley of Dartmouth outscored Stuhldreher of Notre Dame by a few votes. McCarthy of Chicago and Wycoff of Georgia Tech almost tied for the second fullback position, the vote of all of the southern coaches going for Wycoff.

The best linemen were outstanding, Ed Weir of Nebraska and Frank Gowdy of Chicago winning the tackle honors: Garbisch, Army and Papworth, Penn, winning the guard positions; Lovejoy of Yale, center and Stout of Princeton and Lawson of California topping the ends. The closest race was for the halfback jobs, Pond of Yale and Benkert of Rutgers taking second honors and beating Wilson, Army, and Steger, Michigan, by five votes, who in turn only beat Baker, Northwestern and Tryon, Colgate, by two votes.

First team: End, Stout, Princeton; tackle, Gowdy, Chicago; guard, Garbisch, Army; center, Lovejoy, Yale; guard, Papworth, Pennsylvania; tackle, E. Weir, Nebraska; end, Lawson, Stanford; quarter, Dooley Dartmouth; half, Grange, Illinois; half, Crowley, Notre Dame; full, Hazel, Rutgers.

Second team: End, Bjorkman, Dartmouth; tackle, Prevost, Penn State; guard, Hills, Princeton; center, Walsh, Notre Dame; guard, Farwick, Army; tackle, Anderson, U. So. California; end, Berry, Lafayette; quarter, Stuhldreher, Notre Dame; half, Pond, Yale; half, Benkert, Rutgers; full, McCarty, Chicago.

Third team: End, Henderson, Cornell; tackle, Hancock, Iowa; guard, Pondelik, Chicago; center, Horrell, California; guard, Bieberstein, Wisconsin; tackle, Cox, Minnesota; end, Muhl, Illinois; quarter, Bloodgood, Nebraska; half, Wilson, Army; half, Steger, Michigan; full, Wycoff, Georgia Tech.

PEERLESS SETS NEW RECORD AGAINST AETNA

At the Aetna Alleys the Peerless Five of New London, leaders of the Eastern Connecticut Bowling league, set a new three string team total mark when they took three straight from the Aetna team and bowled 1635. This betters their own mark set early in the season against the Palace Five by two pins. Smith was individual star of the game knocking off high single with 140 and high three with 339. The scores:

FUCHS SOLICITED FOR MONEY TO "BUY" LEGISLATORS

New York, Dec. 5.—Emil E. Fuchs, part owner of the Boston National leagu ebaseball team, tonight confirmed a report that he had been solicited for a slush fund with which to bribe Massachusetts legislators to pass a bill permitting Sunday baseball in the Bay State.

Judge Fuchs said he had been approached by a lobbyist recently who told him that the Sunday playing bill would be put through on payment of $100,000 in bills, but that it would meet with hard sledding unless certain people were "seen."

"I am somewhat reluctant to discuss the matter," Judge Fuchs said. "I will say that I was much astonished when the proposition was made, but the interview was a very short one, for I told the man who said it would cost the sum mentioned that the owners of the Boston Braves would not pay a red cent for legislation of any character. I told him that if the bill goes through it will go through on its merits, and on no other basis.

"There is no doubt in my mind that the legislators will pass the Sunday bill, and that it will be approved on referendum. If it cannot go through on its merits it will be the fault of politicians. The 25,000 signatures for the passage of the bill indicates a wholesome and widespread sentiment for Sunday baseball."

BALTIMORE JOE GANS LOSES DECISION TO KID GIBBONS

Baltimore Joe Gans, local light heavyweight boxer, lost a close decision Thursday evening to Alex (Kid) Gibbons at Claremont, N. H., in a ten round bout. Gans boxed cleverly throughout the fight but he was unable to hit with telling effect and it was Gibbon's aggressiveness in the last three rounds that won him the verdict.

Gans has apparently lost much of his punching power during the past year due almost wholly to his hands which are in a very brittle condition since his fight with Silas Greene almost a year ago. In his fight with Greene Gans broke two bones in his right hand and a number of years ago shattered one of the small bones in the left. He thought he could continue in the boxing game but his hands are giving him so much trouble that he is considering quitting the ring as a fighter but will continue his boxing instructions. Gans hands are badly smollen as a result of his fight Thursday evening and are giving him much pain.

HYLAND IS CHARGED WITH BEING PROFESSIONAL

Paris, Dec. 5.—Dick Hyland, star of this season's American Olympic rugby team, who remained in France to play with the Stade Francais club of Paris, was officially charged with professionalism before the French Rugby association today.

A written complaint made by the racing club of French states that Hyland made overtures to the club last summer, demanding a certain stipulated sum for his services, which was refused.

Hyland has not yet been informed by the federation of the charges against him, but he learned of them through a newspaper correspondent and made an indignant denial.

Stagg Is Honored

Springfield, Mass., Dec. 5.—A. A. Stagg, veteran director of athletics at Chicago University, has been made an honorary member of the Springfield College Varsity club, this organization includes in its membership athletes who have made letters in basketball, football and baseball. Stagg was graduated from Springfield in 1891. He captained and coached the Red and White's first football team, which was nicked the "stubborn christians."

Stagg also was a star pitcher for Springfield.

M'GRAW MAY TRADE MEUSEL TO CUBS FOR O'FARRELL

New York, Dec. 5.—Negotiations were begun today by the New York and Chicago National league clubs whereby the Giants are expected to obtain Catcher Bob O'Farrell in exchange for Outfielder Irish Meusel.

The deal was discussed by Manager John McGraw of the Giants with President William L. Veeck and Manager Bill Killifer of the Cubs. They said it had not been closed but could and it would be within a few days.

It was claimed the proposed transaction would benefit both clubs, inasmuch as the Cubs desire a hard-hitting right-handed outfielder while the Giants need strengthening in the catching department.

Meusel saw comparatively little regular service with the Giants last season, while O'Farrell was displaced by Hartnett as the Cubs' regular receiver.

McGraw said to progress had been made in discussions with Cincinnati, which is seeking Jail Tesreau alternate during next season. He indicated this proposition might fall through, however, if Meusel goes to the Cubs as the latter also was to have figured in the proposed Cincinnati deal.

PLAINFIELD TEAM ORGANIZES FOR 1924-25 SEASON

The basketball committee of the Army and Navy club and the Plainfield Baddies met with Manager Lester Salisbury Thursday night. Teams for the fastest basketball team in the state were drawn and Lester Salisbury was elected to succeed himself as manager of the teams; Jesse Alexander was elected assistant manager and W. Harold Bugbee press agent. The basketball season in the town of Plainfield will open at the Plainfield Community House on the 19th of December with any team in the state. The fastest basketball players in Connecticut will wear the uniforms of Plainfield's team. The business men of the town are behind the town's basketball team and Mr. Salisbury states that he will accept any and all challenges for games with his team. Managers of basketball teams in this state are invited to send challenges to Manager Salisbury, Plainfield, Conn.

ILLNESS PREVENTS VICENTINI FROM MEETING O'BRIEN

New York, Dec. 5.—Luis Vicentini, Chilean lightweight, withdrew today because of illness from his 10-round match with Tommy O'Brien, of Milwaukee, scheduled as a preliminary to the Tom Gibbons-Kid Norfolk light heavyweight bout at Madison Square Garden next Tuesday night.

Solly Seeman, of New York, who recently returned from a successful invasion of the Pacific coast, has been signed by Tex Rickard to replace Vincentini as an opponent for O'Brien.

COLUMBIA WILL PLAY OHIO STATE NEXT YEAR

New York, Dec. 5.—An intersectional game at Columbus, O., with Ohio State features Columbia's 1925 football schedule, announced today.

Ohio State, which will play a return game here in 1926, replaces Pennsylvania among Columbia's opponents but Graduate Manager Benson announced the suspension of gridiron relations with the Quakers was for one year only. He explained that Pennsylvania wished to take advantage of an opportunity to schedule a game with Yale next fall on the date which otherwise would have fallen to Columbia. The Lion and Quaker will meet again in 1926 he added, and establish an annual series.

The complete list of nine games, all of which will be played here except the contest with Ohio state, follows: Sept. 26, Hagerford; Oct. 3, Johns Hopkins; Oct. 10, Wesleyan; Oct. 17, Ohio State at Columbus; Oct. 24, Williams; Oct. 31, Cornell; Nov. 7, New York University; Nov. 14, Army, at Polo Grounds; Nov. 26 (Thanksgiving Day), Syracuse.

SEVENTEEN GAMES ON BROWN BASKETBALL SLATE

Providence, R. I. Dec. 5.—Seventeen games are on the Brown basketball schedule given out tonight. Eleven will be played on the Brown floors. Leading opponents of the Brunonians will be Amherst, Yale, Harvard and Williams. The schedule follows:

Dec. 13, Bridgewater Normal; 14, New Bedford Textile School; Jan. 10 Worcester Polytech at Worcester; 14, Wesleyan at Middletown; 17, Boston University; 20 M. I. T., at Cambridge; 22, Wesleyan, 24, Amherst; Feb 13, Yale at New Haven; 18, M. I. T.; 20, Massachusetts Agricultural College; 24, Harvard; 27 Williams, March 4, Worcester Polytech; 7 Clark University at Worcester; 11, New Hampshire; 14, New Hampshire at Durham.

New York, Dec. 5—Five licensed boxers and their managers were suspended today, pending a hearing, by the state athletic commission, as the first step toward eliminating unlicensed boxing clubs from operating in violation of the state law.

The boxers were charged with appearing on the card of an unlicensed club, the Genessee Boxing Association, in Utica, N. Y., last night. The boxers are Jimmy Downey, Ralph Monti, Harry Weber and Young Coogan, all of Syracuse and Johnny (Kid) Blair of Utica.

ILLINOIS WILL MEET MINNESOTA NEXT YEAR

Chicago, Dec. 5.—Illinois and Minnesota will not meet on the gridiron in 1925, Coach Robert Zuppke of the Illinois eleven, announced at the meeting of the Western Conference of athletic directors and coaches today. He said the injury of Harold "Red" Grange in the Minnesota game this season was not responsible for the break in relations but that he considered his schedule for next season already too heavy.

Sharkey Matched With Weinert.

Newark, N. J., Dec. 5.—Jack Sharkey, of Boston, has been signed to meet Charley Weinert of this city in a 12-round no-decision bout at the Newark armory on December 15 in place of Toney Fuente, Mexico fighter who refused this week to meet Weinert after signing a contract for the fight, according to an announcement of the National Sportsmen's Club today.

Amherst Grid Schedule

Sept. 26, Rochester; Oct. 3, Princeton at Princeton; 10, Bowdoin; 17, Hamilton at Clinton; 24, Wesleyan; 31, Mass. Aggies; Nov. 7, Springfield; 14, Williams at Williams.

Harry Heilmann, star hitter of the Detroit Tigers, is in Minnesota on a hunting trip, accompanied by Johnny McGovern, 1909 All-American player of the Minnesota football team. They are after deer.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

..Fifty years ago this week the outstanding event in Norwich was a visit by ex-Governor Bigler of Pennsylvania who came here upon invitation of local prominent citizens to explain the plans for the centennial exhibition. He was entertained overnight at the home of Governor Buckingham. That week new gasoline street lamps were being placed. About ninety gasoline lamps were in use in different parts of the city. The members of Sedgwick Post, No. 1, G. A. R., were making plans for another of their popular masquerade dances and the Ancient Order of Hibernians of Jewett City were arranging to hold their first annual ball on New Year's eve, that year. Interesting extracts taken from the files of The Bulletin of December, 1874 are as follows:

Monday, Nov. 30, 1874—Our citizens are aware that ex-Governor Bigler of Pennsylvania was recently appointed by the centennial board of finance as their agent to go about the country and organize the people of the various leading cities and states, in behalf of the national centennial exhibition. A desire has been felt to have Gov. Bigler come here. Nothing has been publicly done in Connecticut and there is no reason why Norwich should not set an example to the state. Last week a letter of invitation to the governor was procured with such signatures to it as could be immediately obtained, and it was sent off. A prompt reply has been received and our citizens will be glad to know that the governor has consented to come.

In one of our leading churches yesterday, when the hour arrived for service, there was not a solitary person in the pews, owing to the rain. About forty came in soon afterward.

Sir Knights C. W. Carter and James Kirker of Columbian Commandery No. 4, K. T., of this city have gone to New Orleans to attend the triennial conclave of the general grand commandery of the United States, the sessions of which will begin Wednesday.

Tuesday, Dec. 1, 1874 — Mayor Greene has kindly placed at the disposal of citizens desiring to hold a meeting for the reception of Gov. Bigler tomorrow evening, a room in the court house. Gov. Bigler comes here to make an address explanatory of the purposes of the centennial and of the progress of the work, and to interest the citizens of eastern Connecticut in that noble and patriotic enterprise.

A pleasant part of the services at the Universalist church Sunday school last Sunday, was the welcome home to Superintendent C. H. Dilliaby, after an absence of seven weeks. The words "Welcome Home" were arranged on the wall in the rear of the desk, and during the session Miss Rosa White, who has been acting as superintendent during Mr. Dilliaby's absence, presented him with an elegantly bound copy of Shakespeare's works, and a basket of choice flowers, accompanied by an address of welcome. It was a complete surprise to Mr. Dilliaby.

A dedication concert and ball will be given at Steiner's hall on Thursday of next week. Palmyra Encampment, I. O. O. F., in full regalia will dedicate the hall with regular ceremonies and a grand march. Tubb's orchestra will furnish music for the dancing.

Wednesday, Dec. 2, 1874 — While driving down from Windham county early Monday evening and when near Taftville, T. C. Gordon of this city drove under the guy rope of a derrick which he had not observed. The rope caught him under the chin, lifted him from the carriage and threw him to the ground, bruising him badly. The horse ran away and sadly injured the vehicle.

The new route to Portland by way of Worcester, which is to be such a great feeder for the Norwich & Worcester line, was opened Tuesday in Worcester, by a reception tendered by the Worcester & Nashua railroad. A number of gentlemen in this city were invited to attend, as well as prominent gentlemen from other cities in this vicinity. It is expected that the opening of this line will bring to the Norwich & New York and the Norwich & Worcester lines, the greater part of the down east traffic, especially in summer.

A large and very agreeable audience assembled in the lecture room of the Universalist church last evening to witness a little entertainment which was rendered by the members of the society. The entertainment of the evening was commenced by a very amusing play in two acts, entitled the Reg Chignons which was very well represented by a few of the young ladies of the Sunday school.

Thursday, Dec. 3, 1874—John Bachelor, formerly of this city, sails Saturday for California to superintend the erection of a new style of machinery invented by him for wool washing and cleansing. It is claimed that this machine will obviate a difficulty long felt by woolen manufacturers that of washing without matting the wool. Mr. Bachelor has been shipping a quantity from this city and Providence this week.

The Penemah Manufacturing company of this town have been setting out one hundred rock maple and elm trees. They extend the whole length and both sides of Providence street. Each tree is protected by a well finished box, which adds very much to the looks of the village. The trees were furnished from Norwich.

Gov. Bigler was entertained at the hospitable residence of Gov. Buckingham last evening, upon his arrival in this city. He came up by carriage from New London.

A profound weather prophet predicts that we shall have a powerful snowstorm within few days.

Thermometer Monday morning at 6 o'clock stood 13 above zero; yesterday morning it was 40 above.

Friday, Dec. 4, 1874—Capt Whaley and his men are rapidly getting the new gasoline street lamps into position along the streets for the illumination of which they are intended. When the new ones are all up, there will be about ninety gasoline lamps in use in different parts of the city. They are lamps which are inferior only to gas and only slightly so at that and a very trifling amount of care keeps them in good condition. These lamps cost $18 a year a piece, that sum including the cost of taking care of them, breakage of glass, etc.

To all appearances the Grand Army boys are going to have a masquerade that will do them credit. They take a great deal of pride in having their annuals go off well and in securing the right sort of a company at them. Tubbs band will give the preliminary concert and will play some of their new music in the course of it.

There has been more or less chicken stealing in the upper part of the city lately. Last Monday night several henories on Broad street were robbed, and at one place the fowls made such a noise that the thieves were frightened away.

Saturday, Dec. 5, 1874—The Ancient Order of Hibernians of Jewett City will have their first annual ball on New Year's eve, to dance the old year out and the new in.

Miss Nellie Daniel's company of bell ringers will appear at Breed hall on Monday evening. They are on their second tour through New England. The corps comprises nine musicians who are not only good at the bells but in the orchestra and band.

The standing committee recently appointed at the annual conference of Congregational churches, has decided to hold the next annual conference of Congregational churches of the state in the city of Norwich.

It is announced that some time during the present month, Anna Eliza Young, on Nov. 19 in Brigham Young's harem, will deliver a lecture in this city on the wrongs of Mormonism. She has delivered this lecture in every part of the country and there has been in many places a popular demand for its repetition. Mrs. Young comes well endorsed by press and pulpit.

STORING VITAMINS

The average healthy person stores up within the body several days' supply of essential vitamins. This explains why a well-nourished person of any age is less susceptible to germ-infection than those who are malnourished.

Scott's Emulsion

is a safety-factor that helps keep you well-nourished. A very little used daily to complement the regular diet, activates with essential vitamins and helps build resistance.

Store up a reserve of essential vitamins—take Scott's regularly.

Stops itching—
Reduces irritation

Clears away skin trouble

If you have today a spot of eczema, or irritation on your skin, cleanse the affected part by bathing with Resinol Soap; then smooth in gently with the fingers a coating of Resinol Ointment. One application frequently stops the itching completely because the special soothing healing properties of Resinol help it to sink deep into the pores where the trouble really lies and restore a normal condition.

Use Resinol Soap daily for your toilet and bath. It helps to keep the skin healthy. Ask your druggist.

It is not even necessary to pay the moderate Eureka price all at once unless you desire to do so. Only $4.75 down and a few cents saved daily will quickly make the Eureka and all attachments yours.

This great offer, good only until Christmas, is made so that thousands will learn the tremendously increased helpfulness of the Grand Prize Eureka when used with these instantly applied attachments. These famous attachments practically double the usefulness of the Eureka itself by renovating mattresses right on the beds, whisking away dust and lint from upholstered furniture, restoring the cleanliness of curtains and hangings and making countless other hard jobs easy—just as the Eureka itself has ended carpet and rug cleaning drudgery.

Over a Million in Use

Time after time, international authorities have awarded Grand Prizes and Gold Medals to the Eureka, thereby expressing their unqualified approval of its excellence. Yet—priceless as are these coveted awards—the fact that over a million homes today are Eureka cleaned is even stronger proof of the extraordinary service rendered by the Grand Prize Eureka.

Let your Christmas gift to your wife, mother, or daughter be more than a keepsake. Let it save her from weariness and bring her added hours of happiness every day. Make this an Eureka Christmas! She will appreciate it.

Only a Few Days Yet Remain

We urge you to call immediately at our store. There you will be given a complete demonstration of the famous Grand Prize Eureka and its extraordinary attachments. Do not delay—do not wait until a day or so before Christmas as our stock may be exhausted.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

FOREIGN WAR VETERANS.

The National Council of Administration of the Veterans of Foreign Wars will meet at the Congress hotel, Chicago, Illinois, Dec. 6 and 7, 1924. The object of this meeting is to work out a plan for the organization and adoption of a troop of Boy Scouts by each post in the V. F. W. The committee on a national Veterans of Foreign Wars home will report at that time. Corey J. Spencer, Jackson, Michigan, millionaire and clubman, has donated a $100,000 farm to the national organization to be used as a national home for aged and disabled comrades, widows and orphans.

CLARA BARTON TENT

Clara Barton Tent, No. 7, held its regular business meeting Tuesday evening in Buckingham Memorial, with the president, Mrs. Genie Evans in the chair. Officers were elected and the installation will take place in January. A letter from a camp in Laramie, Wyoming, was read, thanking the local tent for the gifts sent them. It was voted that the tent contribute to the work of the Red Cross.

MACCABEES

A very successful whist was held by the W. B. A. of Maccabees at Buckingham Memorial Wednesday evening with fifteen tables playing. The prizes were awarded as follows: Ladies' first, Mrs. A. Wholey; second, Mrs. A. Fournier; third, Miss Violet Johnson. Gentlemens, first, G. Morse; second, J. Pedace; third, C. Prodell.

The committee in charge of the arrangements for the evening was Mrs. Jane Farrell, Mrs. Gladys Hiscox and Mrs. Sophia King.

ODD FELLOWS

At the meeting of Shetucket Lodge, No. 27, held Tuesday night at Odd Fellows' hall on Main street, Noble Grand Louis Waters and Vice Grand Archibald Perry presided. Routine business took up the early part of the evening, this being followed by initiation. A smoker closed the program for the evening.

Grand Master Charles Cooper of Mystic was not present Tuesday night as he is to make his official visit in the near future, accompanied by his staff. A committee of three was appointed from the lodge to confer with members of Uncas lodge, No. 11, and Hope Rebekah lodge, No. 21, relative to plans for the annual visitation.

During the entertainment the third chapter of the Haunted House was read by Henry Heebner, proving to be as big a hit as the preceding chapters. The remainder of the program was omitted owing to the lateness of the hour to give the members opportunity to watch the billiard matches between Henry Heebner and Harry N. Steward and Howard Bishop and Louis Waters. The matches ended one to one and the play off at 150 points is to take place at the next meeting.

At the meeting next Tuesday evening Edward Kinney is to read the paper on My Twelve Years Experience in Prison and there will be another paper by Howard Bishop. The fourth chapter of the Haunted House will be given, the son of a noted Pittsburgh steel magnate to be present and tell of his experiences in a Ledyard haunted house. Special scenery and music is being arranged for this act.

Noble Grand Waters has also given notice that the first degree will be worked in full form on this evening and that all officers are expected to be present. Notice has also been given out that regular attendance at future meetings will be of assistance to those desirous of receiving appointive or elective chairs in the lodge.

JUNIOR MECHANICS.

Buckingham Council, No. 14, met in regular session on Wednesday evening with E. Leseman, councilor, in the chair and a good attendance. Several applications for membership were received and acted on.

State Councilor H. B. Marshall has appointed H. E. Eddins of Buckingham Council to serve as deputy state councilor over Roosevelt council of New London.

The regular election of officers is to occur in two weeks at which time the entertainment committee will furnish a smoker and refreshments.

AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY.

The regular meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of R. O. Fletcher Post No. 4, American Legion, was held on Monday night at the legion rooms on Main street with President Mrs. Ida Fairbanks in the chair. The meeting was one of the best attended meetings of the year and considerable routine business was transacted.

At the next meeting of the auxiliary the election of officers will take place and the following members were named a nominating committee to bring in the names for officers: Mrs. Fred Friswell, Mrs. Herbert Willey and Miss Evon Broadhurst.

The report of the committee in charge of distributing the Thanksgiving baskets to veterans at the Norwich State Hospital and the Norwich Tuberculosis sanatorium was heard and accepted and bills ordered paid.

It was voted to hold a social time, when refreshments would be served, following the last meeting of this month.

FORESTERS OF AMERICA.

There was a large attendance at the regular meeting on Tuesday night of Court City of Norwich, No. 63, with Past Chief Ranger Henry A. Congdon presiding. Four applications were presented and referred to the investigating committee. The Armistice Day headquarters, by-laws revision, charity fund committees reported through their different chairmen and considerable discussion followed same. Communications were read from the courts of Hartford, Waterbury, Bridgeport and Torrington inviting the members to attend class initiations to be held by these courts during the month of December. The local degree team is now busy preparing for a busy season during the coming winter months, and to bring their work to a standard of perfection they are spending a great many hours at rehearsals.

Pimples On Face Itched Terribly Cuticura Healed

"My trouble began by red pimples coming out all over my face and neck. They itched terribly, especially at night, and after scratching them they would burn and feel very sore. They disfigured my face so that I was ashamed to go out in public, and the irritation caused me to lose most of my sleep at night.

"I used many remedies without the least sign of improvement. I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after using it I purchased three cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment, which completely healed me.' (Signed) Miss Catherine Merrill, 61 Fairfield St., Worcester, Mass., March 24, 1924.

These fragrant emollients are all you need for all toilet purposes. Soap to cleanse and purify, Ointment to soothe and heal, Talcum to powder and sweeten.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Paroling Danny Fox

"Hello, Mr. Lucky Lefthindfoot," shouted the Proprietor of Welcome Inn, as the old gentleman rabbit stopped at the edge of the sidewalk. Then tying the Luckymobile to the hitching post, topped with a cast iron neck and head of a gander, dear Uncle Lucky hopped out followed by his small bunny nephew.

"Two fresh lettuce sandwiches," ordered generous Uncle Lucky sitting down at one of the little tables and loosening the blue silk handkerchief which he tied over the top of his old wedding stovepipe hat and under his chin to keep Billy Breeze from blowing it off.

"All Righty" laughed Uncle Lucky.

"I'd like a clover ice cream cone," sighed the little rabbit, glancing over the bill of fare as he twisted a curl in his white fur hair.

"All righty," laughed nice Uncle Lucky. "Make it short and sweet and snappy, then we'll both be well and happy," and taking a cabbage leaf cigar from his pocket, the old gentleman bunny was just about to scratch a match in his furry trouser leg, when back came the old gander with sandwiches and an ice cream cone.

"Guess I'll smoke my cigar with my carrot coffee," sighed dear Uncle Lucky, dipping the match into his pocket. Dear me, I hope it doesn't scratch itself on a nutmeg grater, which the dear old gentleman rabbit had just bought for Little Miss Mousie at the Three-in-One-Cent store. That would be a sad mishap. Yes sireebus.

Just then down Lettuce avenue came Reddy Comb, the rooster newsboy shouting at the top of his voice:

"Extra, extra! All about Danny Fox's tipioe gout."

"Bring me a paper," cried the old gentleman bunny. "I feel sorry for anyone who has the rheumatiz."

Glancing quickly at the Bunnybridge Bugle, dear Uncle Lucky exclaimed, all of a sudden. "I'm going down to the jail to see Danny Fox."

"Oh, please don't," cried the little rabbit. "He broke into the little Red School House and almost caught us all."

"So I see by the paper," answered Uncle Lucky. "Let's finish the sandwiches and then do some thinking. I feel sorry for Mrs. Fox and the little fox boys, Slyboots and Bushytail."

As soon as the old gentleman rabbit had received change for his lettuce leaf dollar bill, he tucked the three carrot cents in his waistcoat pocket and hopped back into the Luckymobile. Bundling in his small bunny nephew he gave the horn a honk or two, and away he sped for a mile or more, and pretty soon not so very far, he stopped before the Police Station in Rabbitville.

"How's Danny Fox behaving?" asked the old gentleman bunny.

"Feels pretty miserable," answered the big Policeman Dog. "Guess he misses the Missus and his two small cubs."

"Do any harm to let him out?" inquired Uncle Lucky.

"Not if he'll promise to be good," replied the old dog. "But fox promises are like peanut shells.—made to be broken."

"Well, let him out on parole," whispered kind-hearted Uncle Lucky. "If he doesn't behave, we'll lock him up for a year and a day."

WESTMINSTER

"I had fainted unless I had believed to see goodness of the Lord in the land of the living." (Psalm 27:13) was the text for an informal heart-to-heart talk on experiences during and since the destruction of the parsonage by fire, Saturday, November 22nd.

Many small and great kindnesses have been showered upon the pastors, not only by the people of Westminster but by the churches and communities for miles around, each of these being greatly appreciated. Mr. and Mrs. Davies are domiciled in the second house north of the church on the Brooklyn road. The house and farm is the property of Mrs. E. W. Coulter, who, with her sons moved to Saybrook Point last spring.

Mrs. Isabel Coy for some time past making her home with Mr. and Mrs. Albert Pellett died at their home early Monday morning after a brief illness. She and her husband, who died some years ago had their home in South Canterbury for years. Mrs. Coy's body was taken away for burial beside that of her husband in Massachusetts.

Andrew Shilling, widely known in this region, is another who passed out of this life this week. For some time he had lived in the home of Edward Baker. His death occurred at Backus hospital, Norwich, Wednesday morning.

Mrs. Nina Hansen, R. N., school nurse was at Frost, Westminster Hill and other schools in this region within a week.

A teachers' meeting was held by Supervisor E. B. Floyd, for Lisbon and Canterbury, at the Baldwin school house. At the conclusion of the business session during the social period the teachers provided refreshments.

Gayhead school, Miss Kimball, teacher, gave a very pleasing Thanksgiving entertainment last Wednesday afternoon. Invitations were sent hidden in paper pumpkins and written in rhyme. Following was the programme: Thanksgiving Song, a color drill with fancy marching, recitations by pupils, more marching, a Thanksgiving acrostic, followed by an entertaining playlet entitled How Thanksgiving Came to November. The exercises closed with a song to November. The programme was greatly enjoyed by the guests. A social time with refreshments followed.

Walter Jones was at home for Thanksgiving and the week end, returning the first of the week accompanied by his brother, Dick, who is also to make his start in life. Both make their home with their brother, Harry.

Mrs. Byron Bingham has returned from Hartford where she has been for several weeks. The Bingham children are recovering from whooping cough.

Benjamin Ellis, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Brundage and Misses Clark and Cowdell of Storrs college, were callers early last week at Rev. and Mrs. Davies' bringing many forms of aid from the college and community.

December first the new R. F. D. Carrier Mr. Ferguson assumed his duties, relieving Fred Sackett, the substitute, who had done good work since the transfer of Mr. Luke to the R. R. postal service.

Mrs. Ida Shorter is visiting friends and relatives in New York and vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. William Rollinson spent Thanksgiving with the Dobson family in Rhode Island.

PENDLETON HILL

The funeral services for Mrs. Fidelia Chapman Gallup were largely attended by relatives and friends at Voluntown Baptist church. Interment was in the beautiful burying ground not far from the Gallup homestead, where Rev. E. E. Scates of Jewett City and Voluntown conducted the committal services. The casket was hidden under a pall of pink roses, the gift of Mrs. Gallup's nieces and nephews. Mrs. Gallup was an inspiration to all who knew her and so will the memory of her always be.

Misses Violet and Lillian Tennant of Boston and Providence accompanied by friends, spent Thanksgiving with their brother, Herbert Tennant and his mother.

Mrs. Willis Almy was the guest over the holiday of her mother Mrs. James Gatchell, of Pawtucket, R. I., where she was one of a family party of twenty-one. Brigadier-General George Mitchell, Mrs. Almy's brother, and Mrs. Gathell, of San Diego, California, were with his mother for the holiday. General Gatchell was traveling south to visit several members of his family, two of whom hold high commissions in the United States army.

Mrs. Almy's mother, Mrs. James Gatchell is eighty-nine and in the best of health.

Mrs. Martin Chapman has been the guest for sometime of her sister, Mrs. William Hiscock, of Jewett City.

Mr. and Mrs. George Palmer and sons were guests Thursday of Exeter friends.

The dinner on Wednesday was as usual a success. The menu consisted of tomato bisque, shrimp wiggle, escalloped salmon, baked beans, bran muffins, apple dumpling, apple and pumpkin pie, and quince preserve.

One comforter was tied and another made ready for tying.

Considerable interest is manifested here in the Near East campaign and Golden Rule Sunday.

Through a typographical error Mr. Maine's initials in last week's correspondence under the head of a hundred per cent. Red Cross were omitted. The name should have read C. E. Maine as the first hundred per cent. family.

Miss Kittie Palmer, who has been ill with grip for ten days was able to attend the society dinner Wednesday.

SALEM

Myer Smuckler, who has been in Hartland for some time, spent Monday at his home here.

C. I. Beebe was in Bozrah Tuesday.

Mrs. Arthur Chapman and Mrs. Louis Chapman were callers in New London Monday.

Ernest Spencer is on jury duty.

Mrs. Helen Malona and Alice Rix were in New London Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Clark attended the funeral of Mr. Clark's brother in South Windham Wednesday.

Mrs. Hattie Goldie and Mrs. Clara Day, who have been ill, are improving.

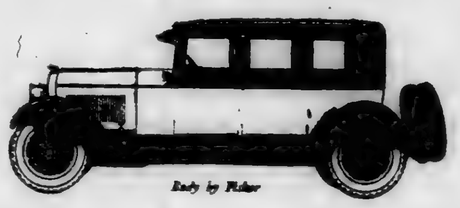
CADILLAC



Body by Fisher

A NEW and even more appealing beauty characterizes Cadillac V-63 cars. As ever, dignity and quiet good taste identify Cadillac exteriors.

But with these, there is an added charm, an added distinction, which causes people to turn and express greater admiration than ever when a Cadillac passes. Such beauty is the just due of a motor car which is acknowledged to have no equal in vibrationless, dependable performance.

A Seal On Every Christmas Package

IS THE SLOGAN IN THIS CAMPAIGN FOR THE SALE OF CHRISTMAS SEALS

Second Feature of the Campaign for the Sale of Christmas Seals Begins Saturday — $3,000, the Minimum Amount To Carry Out 1925 Programme — Buy Liberally — Humanity's Need Is Everyone's Need.

The second phase of the campaign the seventeenth annual Christmas seal sale will be inaugurated today (Saturday) when the public sale will begin through the medium of booths in and the local banks. In some of the larger stores in the city and in the lobbies of several of the theatres. This plan will furnish an opportunity for those who have not been reached through the mail to do their bit in making the sale a success, and should be an important feature in the campaign programme which has for its purpose the raising of at least $3,000 which is the minimum amount needed to carry on the work of the committee for the year 1925.

Everyone Should Be Interested.

Lucius Briggs, chairman of the Tuberculosis commission, who is directing this campaign, in speaking of the public sale said: "The appeal of the Tuberculosis commission for funds to be raised through the sale of Christmas seals is one that should receive the generous support of the public, inasmuch as the movement is organized to promote welfare activities which are of vital importance to the health of the community. The programme of work of the Tuberculosis commission has already been reviewed and includes the establishment of clinics where physical examinations may be given to detect the presence of tuberculosis in its early stages; provides tuberculosis nurses who teach health in the home; supplying hospitals in cases where it could not otherwise be obtained; furnishing milk to undernourished persons who are more susceptible to the germs. While this programme does not call for any great financial outlay it does involve continuous co-operative personal service which reaches into every corner of the community. It is the people then, who must contribute the financial support necessary to carry out this programme for the coming year and every one who buys Christmas seals helps this campaign to carry on the work of humanity which is behind all good public health and welfare agencies."

Mrs. Albert Van Wagenen in Charge of Booths.

One book feature of the campaign which is expected to materially increase the amount to be raised from

LUCIUS BRIGGS
Chairman of Committee

the sale of Christmas seals, will be in charge of Mrs. Albert Van Wagenen, and she has been fortunate enough to secure a very competent corps of workers to assist her in this phase of campaign work, beginning today, Saturday and continuing to the end of the following week. Christmas Seal Sale in Theatres

Mrs. James J. Casey, 119 Cedar St., is in charge of the Christmas seal sale at several of the local theatres. She will be assisted by the members of Mercier Assembly, Catholic Ladies of Columbus, the entire membership of the assembly having volunteered to help (or as many as needed) in this work. The following assignments have been made for the theatres:

Breed Theatre.

Palace Theatre

Organizations to Assist

A special invitation has been extended to organizations of war veterans, American Legion, patriotic, fraternal, benevolent orders, civic organizations, women's clubs and all local associations to assist in this campaign through the purchase of Christmas seals. It is expected that the response will be very helpful in swelling the amount of the fund as each organization will contribute by proportion to its size and influence in the community. If through an oversight any organization has not received an invitation to buy Christmas seals it is the wish of the committee that they send a contribution to Lucius Briggs, chairman, 44 West Main street or to Harold P. Hull, treasurer, care of Norwich Savings Society and in return they will receive the equivalent of the contribution in Christmas seals.

Christmas Seal Motion Pictures

Under the auspices of the National Tuberculosis Association a very interesting film has been made with the idea of visualizing the work done by the tuberculosis association. Through the courtesy of the management of the Palace theatre and the Breed theatre this film will be shown on several successive days. It will be shown at the Palace theatre on Tuesday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday of this week and at the Breed theatre on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. It is a gripping production that everyone interested in this fight against the spread of tuberculosis should see.

Outside Communities Canvass

The territory outside the city and within the district which is taken care of by the Norwich Tuberculosis Commission has been assigned to members of the committee residing in those sections. F. B. Rickelson will take care of the Taftville district and Rev. Robert B. Day will look out for Yantic and Fitchville. Mr. Day has made plans whereby all the people in the territory assigned to him will be given an opportunity to subscribe to the fund.

Christmas Seal of 1924

The Christmas seal of 1924 departs from the usual type of design. Instead of stressing the Christmas idea it stresses the health and educational appeal. The design depicts Knowledge enlightening the world as to the dangers of tuberculosis. It symbolizes eventual triumph by displaying the central figure of Victory waving aloft the flaming torch of success and resting on the lowered shield. Knowledge, with her hand resting on the double-barred cross, indicates that she is defending the world against tuberculosis. This is a very happy symbolism of the tuberculosis movement in its preventive activities.

MEN AND WOMEN PROMINENT IN HUMANITARIAN WORK IN COMMUNITY VOICE THEIR APPROVAL OF THE ACTIVITIES OF TUBERCULOSIS COMMISSION

Message From Rev. W. A. Keefe

Rev. W. A. Keefe, pastor of St. Mary's church, urges enthusiastic support of the Christmas seal sale. Father Keefe said: "I am very happy to [illegible] the pages and time and effort in the interest of The Crusade of the Double-barred Cross. I am sure that all who understand the purpose and [illegible] the splendid record of this crusade will feel happy to cooperate.

"During the past year I have been greatly pleased with the manner in which the money collected from the sale of Christmas seals was spent here. Never have I more often met your [illegible] in the homes of our people. [illegible] the nursing calls directing ways and giving practical advice and [illegible] nourishment to many whose lives were saved and health protected directly by her. What could be more practical? This great work is not only a charity, inasmuch as it helps others, I know it means personal protection to all the people of the community as it prevents the spread of tuberculosis.

"Your funds have been well used in the past. Your task calls for a larger fund this year. I trust that every citizen of Norwich will contribute generously. This is a wonderful chance for all of us to join hands and hearts in the true Christmas spirit. What a happy city ours will be when we cooperate in works of charity and mercy. This is my idea of community spirit inspired by the Christmas message 'Love one another,' 'On earth, Peace among Men.'"

Brings Happiness and Cheer.

Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, Superintendent of Norwich State Tuberculosis Sanatorium, speaks from first-hand knowledge of the great help that is given to the afflicted through the Christmas seal fund. This is his statement:

"Though the mortality statistics continue to show an appreciable diminution in the death rate from tuberculosis, thereby attesting to the fact that the various agencies combatting this disease are achieving some measure of success, this fact is of comparatively small interest and help to the one who for the first time is brought face to face with the knowledge that he or she has become a victim. What concerns that individual, if he be the wage earner or she the mother of the family is how is the first case can work be given up, or in the second what will become of the bread. Proceeds from the sale of the Red Cross seals aid in solving these problems. Either by assuming the maintenance of worthy patients at tuberculosis sanatoria or providing sustenance of the deserving at home. When Holboell, the Danish postal clerk, on Christmas Eve, 1903 stopped his work for a moment as the thought came to him to sell penny stickers for tuberculous children, he did not dream that his project would be carried throughout the civilized world and bring not only to the children but to the fathers and mothers [illegible] the happiness and cheer which [illegible] the right of everyone at this [illegible] season."

HUGH B. CAMPBELL.
Member, Tuberculosis Commission.

United Workers Cooperate

Mrs. Chares Tyler Bard, president of the United Workers when asked for her opinion of the work of the Tuberculosis commission, said: "It gives me great pleasure to comply with the request to say a word of commendation for the work of the Tuberculosis commission and to express a wish that the campaign for the sale of Christmas seals may be successful. The United Workers is a welfare organization which is doing a very necessary work in the community. We recognize however, that it is impossible for [illegible] agency to cover this field thoroughly, so we are glad to welcome an organization with which we can, in many instances cooperate, especially in the work of providing nurses for treatment of tuberculosis patients in the home, and in giving instructions to those who have come in contact with it, so that the disease may not spread. As I see it the tuberculosis commission has the right spirit of service. If it did nothing more than to care for the undernourished children, it would be doing a great work, as it is during infancy and childhood that the first infections from tuberculosis often occur. The Christmas seal sale will provide the resources for carrying on this preventive and curative work and a generous response on the part of the public will, I am sure, be appreciated by the commission."

MRS CHARLES TYLER BARD.
President, United Workers.

RED CROSS CHAIRMAN

Edwin A. Tracy, Chairman, Norwich Chapter, American Red Cross recognizes a kindred spirit in the work of the Tuberculosis commission and thoroughly approves of the humanitarian work which it is doing. "It must not be forgotten," said Mr. Tracy, "that the local Tuberculosis commission was fostered in its infancy by the Norwich Chapter of the Red Cross and for that reason the executives as well as the entire membership of the Red Cross have a special interest in the Tuberculosis commission and its efforts to enlist the support of the people of the community in a movement which has for its purpose the elimination of preventable disease and unnecessary misery in community life. The American Red Cross is a recognized humanitarian organization which has been an inspiration to all civilization. No other agency is so far reaching in the field of welfare work as the Red Cross. But here is a health movement that is distinctive and which calls for specialization and for that reason the executives of the Red Cross feel that they can cheerfully place the energies of their organization behind such an association as the Tuberculosis commission and express the wish that in this campaign for the sale of Christmas seals it may receive the public suport that it deserves."

EDWIN A. TRACY.
Chairman, Norwich Chapter American Red Cross.

An Appropriate Christmas Gift

Henry A. Tirrell, principal of the Norwich Free Academy, recommends the purchase of Christmas seals as a public duty. This is what he says:

"By the purchase of Christmas Seals we have a splendid opportunity to become sharers in a great public interest. The proceeds of the sale go to help all in our midst, who need protection from tuberculosis. In their prevention of this dread disease amongst our children, this work is especially helpful to our community. It is safe to say that no other charitable investment will bring greater returns than this in proportion to the money expended inasmuch as its results will be felt for many years to come in the health and happiness of each child who is saved. It is certain that a moderate outlay for preventive work amongst those who may now be threatened through malnutrition and unhealthful surroundings will save the much larger expense that would be involved if the young should be permitted to become sufferers from "the great white plague."

"There is no more appropriate Christmas gift to our community than this."

HENRY A. TIRRELL.
Member, Tuberculosis Commission.

Insurance to Donor

This is the opinion of Max Hanover, a member of the Tuberculosis Commission, who willingly contributes his best energies to the success of this campaign. Mr. Hanover said:

"The Christmas Seal campaign for the prevention of tuberculosis is now being carried on throughout the nation. It is an appropriate time to appeal to the heart of our great and benevolent nation when all the people are bent upon bringing good cheer to their dear ones at home and to their friends. I believe that happiness is never entirely complete when those round us suffer in misery; therefore, we ought to feel happy when we are able to contribute something to help those who are in danger of being affected by tuberculosis, especially to help the unfortunate who are already afflicted with the dread disease and have no means wherewith to combat its terrible onslaught.

"There is no other charity that I know of which is more worthy and which can do so much immediate good as a few dollars spent for Christmas Seals. This contribution which costs us such little effort and which really counts so little with us may mean so much as life and death to the recipient of this charity. If our citizens would realize the terrible despair of those who when afflicted with the white plague find themselves without the wherewithal to fight its merciless assault there would not be a single man or woman in our community who would fail to send in a contribution, no matter how small, to help along this cause.

"Asire from the charitable character of this fund it is also in the sense of an insurance fund. No one in our community is immune from this terrible scourge, hence all monies contributed toward the prevention of tuberculosis is so much insurance to the d[illegible]

"I trust that the benevolent men and women in our town who have not received any Christmas Seals will voluntarily purchase these health giving seals and thereby bring a little comfort to some of the afflicted tuberculosis sufferers in our city."

MAX HANOVER.
Member, Tuberculosis Commission.

Evidence of Practical Christianity

Rev. Alexander H. Abbot, pastor of United Congregational church expresses his sympathy with the work of the Tuberculosis commission, as follows:

"Each Christmas Seal used on a package or on a letter, means one bit of help toward wiping out tuberculosis in Norwich. It means that the user is, by just so much, bringing a bit of nourishment to the undernourished; affording a bit of preventive work in homes where such is needed; aiding in the hospital care of some who could not otherwise have it. The saddest thing any person can experience is the knowledge of being "just too late" in preventing a condition which could have been prevented if "taken in time." The use of the Carlstmas Seals show our determination to begin where we ought to begin: namely before tuberculosis gets too big a start on us. It is the sign of intelligent cooperation with forces already at hand in the community, to wipe out a disease that has been and still is a terrible scourge. To spend at least one dollar at Christmas time for such an end, should make us know that here be a definite evidence of a practical Christianity at work for the best good of our city."

REV. A. H. ABBOTT.
Member, Tuberculosis Commission.

MAYOR WATERS APPROVES CAMPAIGN

His Honor, Mayor Milo R. Waters, when asked to express an opinion about the work of the Tuberculosis commission said:.. "The dangers to the health of the people in every community are so great that every organized method to fight them must be encouraged. While the work of this commission does not come under my personal observance I am familiar enough with its work in the preservation of the health of the people of our city. The services which can be rendered in this public health movement are only limited by the amount of money that is realized from the sale of Christmas seals.. I wish, therefore, to most heartily commend the efficiency of the local Tuberculosis Commission. I hope that every citizen of Norwich-man, woman and child-will feel it both a privilege and a duty to buy Christmas seals in this campaign which is being conducted for a purpose that should command the generous support of all public-spirited citizens who have health and happiness of the people of the community at heart."

MILO R. WATERS.
Mayor.

ENDORSED BY FIRST SELECTMAN

William S. Murray

First Selectman William S. Murray stated that he was very glad of the opportunity to endorse the work of the Tuberculosis Commission. He said: "The Selectmen of your town are in a position to know something of the work of this commission and the splendid results which have been attained, since its institution, in fighting the dreaded white plague and which is the best possible reason why it should have public support. It seems to me that it is eminently fitting that the people of the town of Norwich should co-operate in welfare activities which so intimately affect the health of the community and should give both moral and financial support to such public health and welfare agencies as the Tuberculosis Commission which is doing such splendid work along this line. As first selectman of the town I recommend and urge a generous response, by the townspeople, to the seventeenth annual Christmas seals sale which si now in progress."

First Selectman.

The Great White Plague — It Fights From Ambush and Strikes the Poor, the Rich, the Brilliant, the Stupid, the Weak, the Strong — Its Treatment and Cure, Prevention and Control.

Treatment and Cure

Tuberculosis is a preventable and curable disease. It can be cured if it is taken in time. The earlier the diagnosis, the better the chance of cure. The cure consists in the restoration and healing of the tissues destroyed by the tubercle bacillus. This is brought about by, putting the patient at rest in the fresh air and by feeding him wholesome, nourishing food. If tuberculosis is discovered in time, the combination of fresh air, rest, good food, together with a correct mental attitude, all under proper medical supervision, will cure the disease.

Prevention and Control

Every community may help to prevent tuberculosis by educating its citizens in the importance of health; through establishing clinics where physical examinations may be given to detect the presence of tuberculosis in its early stages; through tuberculosis nurses who teach health in the home; through establishing sanatoria and hospitals where the disease may be best treated; and through open air schools and preventoria for malnourished children who are most susceptible to the germs.

Every individual, moreover, should be taught: (1) the danger of careless spitting, coughing and sneezing; (2) the need for plenty of fresh air, for open windows day and night; (3) the value of good food and proper care of the body; (4) the need for periodic physical examinations at least once a year, in order to catch disease at the start. It costs comparatively little to keep one's wall of resistance strong. Good health means proper living, that is, following ordinary, common-sense rules of diet, exercise recreation, rest and work. Those who have the most material comforts are not always the wealthiest in health.

Periodic Physical Examinations

To keep one hundred per cent fit, every person should consult a physician at least once a year for a physical examination. Tuberculosis clinics give free advice to those unable to pay a doctor. Such examinations of the human machine often result in startling discoveries. Out of an average group of one hundred men, women and children examined, 70 were found to have various defects of the body ranging from a minor infection of the teeth to a serious condition of the lungs or heart. Forty-seven per cent of the men who enlisted or were called for service in the United States Army during the world war were found to be defective.

The Death Rate

The tuberculosis death rate in 1922 in the United States Registration Area was 97 per 100,000 population. The state showing the lowest rate was Nebraska, 36 per 100,000. The state showing the highest rate was Colorado, 183. Other states showing low tuberculosis mortality are Utah, Wyoming, Kansas, Idaho, Montana, Michigan and Minnesota. Colorado's high rate is largely due to the influx of tuberculosis patients. California's rate is also unfavorable, for the same reason. Delaware, Kentucky, Maryland, Tennessee and Virginia and all southern states have high rates due in part to their large colored population. It is possible to obtain tuberculosis mortality statistics for counties, cities and villages by writing to the several health departments.

Deaths According to Sex

Tuberculosis death rates for males exceed those for females. According to insurance figures, white males show a death rate nearly one-half higher than females. This excess is not so high in figures for the general population. Nevertheless, the male excess of tuberculosis deaths is a noticeable factor in tuberculosis. English statistics have called attention to the increase in tuberculosis rates among women, particularly during the war. The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company's figures show that adolescent girls constitute the only group in their statistics in which the tuberculosis death rate has not declined. The increasing number of young girls who have entered industry is suggested as the cause for the increase. Attention has also been called to the higher death rate among females from abdominal tuberculosis.

Age and Occupation

Tuberculosis is very prominent as a cause of death between the ages of 15 and 44. One out of every 5 deaths from all causes between these ages is due to tuberculosis. Almost two-thirds of all tuberculosis deaths occur in this period.

Certain occupations are more conducive to the infection of tuberculosis than others. Industries where dust is a necessary accompaniment of the work, such as potteries, textile factories, mines and quarries, are more injurious than occupations where workers are exposed to wind and weather or are in offices.

Dust containing sharp pointed mineral particles, such as that thrown off in marble quarries, irritates the tissues, often cause inflamation, and make it easier for the tuberculosis germs, already present in most men and women, to develop active disease.

Other industries that throw off flint, slate, iron and particles of irritating dusts and show high tuberculosis mortalities are grinding, tool-making, printing, weaving spinning, garment and woolen-working and fur trades.

Tuberculosis is prevalent among plumbers, Printers, marble-cutters and clerks. Among granite cutters in Barre, Vt., for the years 1915 to 1918, the mortality from tuberculosis reached 1,066 per 100,000, or ten times the death rate for the total population of the country.

Bankers and brokers apparently suffer least. Farmers, clergymen, physicians and manufacturers are also fortunate in this respect.

According to Race and Color

Native-born of native parents show low death rates from tuberculosis. The rates are high for German males, and the Irish rates, both male and female, are over twice the rates of the native born. The rate for Russians, including Jews, is even lower than for native born, and Italian males also show very low rates. Italian females show a high rate however. The rate for Negroes in any locality is [illegible] two and one-half to three times that of the white population.

Economic Cost of Tuberculosis

Tuberculosis is one of the most costly diseases. The long period of illness caused by tuberculosis is costly in treatment and in the money lost because of sickness.

In 1922 there were 106,000 deaths from tuberculosis in the United States and, according to Framingham figures about 954,000 cases.

Tuberculosis cuts off two and one-half years of life from the complete expectation of every individual under present mortality conditions. If each individual were to add only $100 to the community wealth per year, tuberculosis would cost the community $250 per person. Among the one hundred million persons in the United States this loss is over 25 billion dollars.

It has been estimated that a tuberculosis patient is under care for an average of two and one-third years. Probably for at least one year he is unable to earn. Considering all occupations we can place the average annual earnings of a person at $1,000. Among the 954,000 tuberculous cases 954 million dollars were thus lost through sickness.

The usual length of stay in a sanatorium is six months. The cost of this is about $500. While it is not possible, not perhaps necessary, to give each patient six months' sanatorium treatment, the cost of caring for tuberculosis patients must be met whether in a sanatorium or not. If all the 954,000 cases could receive sanatorium care or other adequate treatment, which would cost at least as much, about $480,000,000 would be the estimated cost of caring for tuberculosis.

These estimates of the cost of tuberculosis in the United States namely, 25 billion dollars due to loss of life from tuberculosis 954 million dollars lost in wages and 480 million dollars for the expense of caring for tuberculous patients total approximately 26 and a half billion dollars.

Yet health may be purchased. From experiments tried at Framingham Mass., it has been figured that the health machinery necessary to control tuberculosis would be $2.00 to $2.50 per person in any American community.

DR. HUGH B. CAMPBELL
Secretary of Committee

For the entire population this would cost 7 billion dollars in a period of 25 years, as contrasted with a loss of 26 billion dollars.

The 106,000 lives wasted each year must be saved. 106,000 is about the population of Yonkers, N. Y., Kansas City, Kan., Spokane, Wash., Fort Worth, Tex., Reading, Pa., Wilmington, Del., Lowell, Mass., and Duluth, Minn.

The Decline in the Death Rate

The tuberculosis death rate in the United States Registration Area has declined almost yearly since 1900. During 1917 and 1918 there was a rise, and there was also a slight rise in 1904. In 1922 the death rate was 97.0. In 1904, when the National Tuberculosis Association was formed, it was 200, or over twice as high as the 1922 rate. The death rate has been more than cut in half, which means a saving, at the present time, of approximately 100,000 lives a year. Tuberculosis is not now the leading cause of death. Organic heart diseases and the pneumonias take more lives.

Prevention and Cure

Nineteen years ago only five states were making any active effort to cope with tuberculosis. Today every one of the forty-eight states has an anti-tuberculosis association. In addition there are over 1,300 affiliated associations and societies.

The National Tuberculosis Association and its affiliated state and local organizations are financed almost entirely through the annual sale of Tuberculosis Christmas Seals. Thus the public is enabled to support a movement designed solely to promote ill-health and welfare.

The minimum institutional requirement for tuberculosis is one bed for every annual death. This means the United States needs at last 106,000 beds. There are about 700 sanatoria and hospitals with over 67,000 beds for tuberculous patients in the United States. This number includes beds in governmental institutions. Nineteen years ago there were only 100 hospitals and sanatoria for the treatment of tuberculosis, with about 10,000 beds all told.

Nurses and Clinics

At least one general public health nurse is necessary to care for 3,000 persons. It is impossible to separate tuberculosis from a general public health program, but nurses trained in tuberculosis work are necessary. It has been estimated that there are over 3,500 specially trained tuberculosis nurses and several thousand others who are doing tuberculosis work in the United States.

There are over 600 permanent tuberculosis clinics at present in the United States besides a very large number of traveling or itinerant clinics.

If a lazy man is comfortable he is happy.

I'll Take Apples

You can have your plums and peaches,
Both of which are pretty fair,
You can have your pretty orange,
And your fancy Bartlett pear;
You can peal 'em if you want to,
You can cook 'em if you wish,
And can get your spoon an' eat 'em
In a dainty little dish.
And I know you'll find 'em tasty,
For they all are pretty fine—
But I am here to tell you
I'll take apples, boy, for mine!

In my flet, it is, I hold 'em,
An' I eat with bulgin' cheek—
I admit my mouth's so crowdede
It is hard for me to speak.
There is nothin' quite so tasty
As an apple seems to me,
There is nothin' any better
Ever grew upon a tree.
But I wan't 'em firm and luscious,
Full of juice and drools and dripe.
When you sink your teeth dowa in 'em.
Off your chin and off your lips.

You will say that I am pigpish,
When I tell I eat the core
I devour an apple's goodness.
Tell there just ain't any more.
You can criticise my manners.
For I ain't so much for style,
So I ain't ashamed to tell you,
I eat apples by the pile.
You can have your fruit that's fancy,
And I know it's pretty fine
But I am here to tell you
I'll take apples, boys, for mine.

A THANKSGIVING EXPERIENCE

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I am going to take a few minutes this morning to tell you of my Thanksgiving experience last year. It was about nine o'clock Thanksgiving night when I heard a commotion in an old piano box, where a few chickens roosted in the back yard.

I put my hat and coat on in a hurry, grabbed the lantern and ran out, just in time to find Mr. Skunk in there.

What to do at first I did not know. My better half was away, the hired man, who was deaf had gone to bed and I was afraid to load the gun.

The thought came to me, "Shut it in there if you can."

I was proceeding to do so when I heard an auto, which had a very familiar sound, coming down the road.

I took the lantern and ran to the road and held the auto up and sure enough there was one of our good neighbors. I asked him if he would shoot a skunk for me and he said to be sure, so I found the gun and ammunition and we went out. I pulled back the cover of the coop and held the lantern, while he aimed and got it the first shot.

I was t hankful that night for having such good neighbors and also thankful that we got the marauder, but did not think I had nerve enough to hold any one up.

Trusting you all had a nice Thanksgiving and wishing each and every one a merry Christmas I remain as ever,

WISTERIA.

SIMPLE BUT GOOD

Dear Social Corner Editor and Corner Folks: Here is something more you'll like. Peel, seed and stew sweet squash or pumpkin, sift, add butter and salt. Make some rich flaky baking powder biscuit, split and butter them, place on warm platter and spread with the hot squash. A few slices of lean bacon and some baked or boiled potatoes will not come amiss. It is simple but good.

The turkey fed folks would live longer and have less doctors' bills if they would get back to nature inside and out. I can eat turkey, and so can many others, but don't get it to eat.

Always wanting something helps to keep the brain busy. That is what invents things.

WAYS TO USE LEMONS

Dear Editor and Sisters: Am sending some lemon recipes that are unusual, are appetizing, keep up one's health and last but not least help to keep down the winter fruit bill. That in itself is a big item to many.

Lemon and Liver Sauce: Wash and score the liver of fowl, boil 4 or 5 minutes, drain it, pound it in a mortar with 2 or 3 spoons of good gravy. Pare off the thin outer rind of a lemon and mince it finely, remove the thick white skin cut the pulp into small pieces, mix with a teaspoon of the minced rind, add 1-2 teaspoon salt, stir this and the liver into 1-2 pint good melted butter. Make the sauce hot over the fire but it must not boil for fear the butter will oil. Time 1-2 hour to prepare. Enough for 3 or 4 persons.

Lemon Catsup: Take 1-2 dozen fresh lemons, cut into slices, remove pits, rub them well into 3 ounces of salt, place them in layers in stone jars and strew a little seasoning and spice between each layer, allowing 1-4 ounce each of mace, clove and cayenne, 2 ounces each of allspice and white pepper. Boil 2 quarts white vinegar, pour it hot over the lemons and let stand until the next day. Strain and bottle for use. Quantity two quarts.

Lemon Marmalade: Boil for 2 hours some fresh clear lemons in as much water as will cover them. Pour off water once or twice during that period replacing with fresh boiling water. Drain the lemons and cut them into thin slices. Leave out all pips. Weigh fruit and allow 2 pounds loaf sugar and 1 pint of water, the lemons were last boiled in for every pound of fruit. Boil sugar and water for ten minutes, add pulp and boil together for 1-2 hour. Pour the marmalade into jars when cool, cover with brandied paper and afterwards with bladder or tissue brushed over the white of egg or melted paraffin.

Carrot Salad-Lemon French Dressing: To 2 grated carrots add 2 cups shredded lettuce, a little grated onion, 1 tablespoon chopped green pepper and 1-5 cup French dressing. Serve on lettuce leaves.

French Dressing: Mix 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoons paprika, 4 tablespoons oil, 2 tablespoons lemon juice. Stir or shake thoroughly just before serving when about to put on salad.

Lemon Puffs: Grate rind of 2 fresh lemons, mix with 10 ounces finely sifted sugar. Beat whites of 2 eggs to firm froth, add sugar gradually and whisk all together to a thick paste. Cut into any shape desired, being careful not to handle paste any more than can be helped. Place puffs on oiled writing paper, baking upon tins in moderate oven for 10 minutes.

Lemon Cheese: One half pound sugar, 2 ounces butter, 2 eggs, rind and juice of 2 lemons. Put butter, sugar, rind and juice of lemons in double boiler, when dissolved add well beaten eggs. Stir until thick as honey. This can be used as filling for small cakes and is good on bread and butter.

EAST KILLINGLY PICNIC

Dear Social Corner Friends: I have been going to write and tell you about the E. K. Club No. 4 picnic for a long time. Kentucky Wonder and I took the 10 A. M. trolley and Cactus Blossom came in at the next stop. We got out at the four corners and went directly to Twice Twenty's. She and Mary Gusta were waiting to take us over in the latter's car.

Quite a number of the sisters were at the place of meeting. Some were decorating with Hallowe'en emblems and colors, while others were busy setting the tables and getting everything ready for the great feast, for that is just what it was. To quote Rural Delivery, "It was like going home to spend Thanksgiving." The sisters continued to come till nearly all the seats at the tables were filled, and believe me, it was a jolly good looking crowd. I have only one regret and that is I did not get a piece of the frosted lemon pie, but I had a piece of dandy custard pie (I'd like to shake hands with the one who made it) and one of Peggy Alders fine chocolate filled cookies.

After dinner we all went upstairs and listened to an interesting program of music, reading, singing and recitations, engineered by Esmaralda. Long may she wave.

Everybody had a good time, and you ought to have been there.

Red Rose: How are you? You sat near me at Twice Twenty's picnic and had some of my blackberry pie. That was a huge joke because it wasn't that kind at all. I put in some red raspberries and for lack of enough I filled it up with black caps.

Lonesome: I sincerely hope you arrived home safely Saturday night and slept well. I did not go to sleep all night. Too much excitement probably.

Delilah Deal: You name sounds ancient. Is it? I was interested in what you wrote last week and am wondering who your grandparents were. I lived in that village 35 years, and must have known you all.

Rosy Posy: Then you would like to have a cup of tea with me would you? I'd like awfully well to have one with you, too. Why do you not send me a card with your maiden name on it? I have no idea who you are.

I am sorry not to be able to send the requested poem, The Blackberry Girl. I have it somewhere, but can't find it. My sister knows nearly all of it by heart.

Best wishes to all,

DAISY DEAN.

FINE WAY TO MAKE A QUILT.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: I have been about three weeks trying to write this letter to correct the recipe for cocoanut filling for cookies, it should read: 1 cup of cocoanut, 1-2 cup of milk, 1 teaspoon flour, 1-2 cup sugar. Cook until thick.

Mary Gusta: I have been wondering what had become of you, and here you have been getting married right before my face and I'es almost. We wish you a long, happy and prosperous married life. Come over.

By reading up side down, and bottom side up, frontwards and backwards, doing some guessing and quite a little talking, I rounded up three of the new members yesterday, and unless I am very much mistaken they live on the very same street that I do between Caro's home and mine. How is that for a guess?

To the sister to the southeast: You don't need to be asking questions about what I have found out, because I havent found out nearly as much as I am going to. I shall be over that way before long to see if you look guilty. You may escape for a time, but you will want to attend a Social Corner picnic and you will find me there with my address book and pencil.

Rosalind: Do you remember the night many years ago when it rained so hard and you got mud spots on your pretty garnet colored dress? That was over 30 years ago, nearer 35, I think! How near right am I?

Nelly Grey: You had better send a collector after that ten cents. You would be surprised if you knew how many people watch for your light nights. I was at a neighbor's one night and they said it was time to light up as your light was burning. We can see it the last thing at night and it is always burning when I look in the morning. I don't believe you ever blow it out.

Pep: I hope to call on you soon, to see what you have to say for yourself.

Lilac Lady: I had hopes at one time Sunday of seeing you, but did not get far from home.

I am going to tell you of a way my aunt has of making a quilt. The blocks are pieced in squares any pattern and size desired. Have are nine inches square) She puts in a thin layer of cotton, lines, quilts and binds each block as she would a large quilt, then sews them all together into a large quilt. Every one that has seen it thinks it a very nice way to make one. I hope to make one like it this winter. This way one doesn't have to use the quilting frames and if the lining and binding are the same it looks nice on the back.

It seems rather cold for butterflies, but I see one once in a while.

Best wishes.

PEGGY ALDER.

GREETINGS FROM PAPA'S BOY

Dear Social Corner Ones: Just a few lines this nice cold snappy evening. I hope you all are enjoying a nice warm corner by a heater or stove as I am Dorinda: You have my sympathy in the loss of your father. Twelve years ago I had the same sad time so Thanksgiving means nothing to me.

Cypress: I am very much interested in you as your mother-in-law, Grandma II. I knew so well. She and my husband's grandmother were great chums. Get Lonesome Pine and Olga to tell you who is who.

Olga: You can well remember that snow storm eight years ago in March, can't you?

Diamond: How is the cold? Hope to see you the 10th. A big time is due then.

Chelsea: Where have you been this long time? Don't see you after those berries yet. I am here most of the time.

Elizabeth: How are you? I wonder if it is I that owes the letter.

Cherisette: Some time at the election wasn't they? What fun you must have had.

Rural Delivery: I am not the guilty one now.

I will stop now by wishing each and all a Merry, Merry Christmas.

PAPA'S BOY.

WITNESSING THE CHANGES

Dear Editor and Social Corner Children: It is two years since I addressed you thus. The time has passed so quickly I did not know or realize it was so near time for me to greet you all. It was the radio man that put me wise. Do you know children I have lived long enough in this world to ride in an auto, talk through the telephone, and listen to the radio.

When I was a girl we rode to town in what was called a stage. And when we wanted to borrow anything or talk with a neighbor we had to call in person. Now all we have to do is to lift u pthe receiver and give a number. I thought the first time I heard of Uncle Josh on the graphaphone it was great. Now all we have to do is tune in on the radio and we can have the best music going.

And I almost forgot the electric lights, no cleaning lamp chimneys and smell kerosene. But children, as you have all grown up with these pleasures, it does not seem all so wonderful to you. I was very much surprised to think my family of Fairy God children had grown so. But I welcome you all I wish you a merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

I have been grieved from time to time when one has been called from our circle. But all I can do is to recommend one who said I will never leave thee or forsake thee. He is always ready with sympathy, greater than any earthy friend can give.

I think the message I will leave with with you is thus:

I wish you wealth.
I wish you health.
I wish you golden store.
I wish you heaven when you die
What can I wish you more?

Best wishes from FAIRY GOD MOTHER.

RETURNS TO CORNER

Social Corner Editor: Years ago I wrote to the Social Corner, now I will try again. Alwilda is my real name. By nature I am rather tame and so perhaps you'll wonder when you hear me say, I love to hear it thunder. The lightning is too sharp for me, so I don't care for that; you see. But the thunder is so big and grand, a thing that no man can command. Is that a give away I wonder the reason why I like to hear it thunder? Folks have many fads and fancies, as the seasons onward roll, but my tastes are very simple. So, I guess I'm a simple soul. When I was young, some few short years ago, I had a theory don't you know, of how two strangers meeting on a train and riding along together, might possibly, talk about the weather. One was a sister and the other a brother. How shall they get to know each other? And this is how I fixed it and I thought it a good plan. Just to exchange opinions, on the subjects, that are most important to me. If their views on these subjects they would honestly tell, I thought at the end of the confab, they would know each other quite well. Now I have another theory, I can tell it, quick as a wink. The less you know of each other, the more of each other you'll think.

ALWILDA.

A FAMILY REUNION

Dear Social Corner, Editor, Sisters, and Friends: Once more I greet you all and hope you were able to enjoy all the good things that came your way Thanksgiving day. I spent my Thanksgiving in Norwich, had a fine time and plenty of sweet cider. There were 15 of us gathered around the festive board, just a family party, made up of three generations. It is an old time custom in New England of gathering the families together once a year and I think it should be kept up. Of course we miss those who have met with us in days gone by. Some have passed on, others here gone to different places, but those who were gathered at the call this year should return thanks for the many blessings they have had, and that they were able to be present this year, awhile may be the last time.

Golden Glow: Thanks for card, Will remember you later on.

Aunt Sarah: I have not received that cake you promised me so long ago.

Crimson Rambler: I have lost your address. Will you please send it to me?

Here is a Christmas greeting to all.

DOM PEDRO.

PLEASED BY POEM

Dear Cornerites and Editor: Enjoyed the poem entitled Gosh All Hemlock very much.

Mary Gusta: Congratulation! And how did you like climbing out of the window?

1492: No, he hasn't worn it since. You certainly guessed right.

Twice Twenty: You do not know me but I know you. Yes, I do think the name you suggested would be a good one but I really cannot pronounce it. Perhaps I am sort of dumb, or rather a wooden nutmeg—as 1492 says.

Lilac Lady: Remember the time you got a glass bank for a Christmas present?

Best wishes to all.

MANY WRITERS SHOULD MEAN MANY LETTERS

Dear Corner Folks: How do you all do this lovely morning? Hope all are well. How nice it was to see such a nice full page once more in Saturday's paper. We must boost this thing along, or else by and by there won't be any room for the Social Corner in The Bulletin. When the Corner was in its infancy with only a few writers we many times had the page full to overflowing, and it seems with its thousand or more writers we should have more letters every week.

Balsam Fir: Your two cards received and will say I thank you especially for the one from Portland. Surely I can identify you in the airplane. Did you fly from Dry Mills to Portland with the "Hi Flyers?" Some class to you. May be you are now honey mooning and I suppose before this you have visited with the man in the moon. How much does it cost to join the Hi Flyers? Be careful not to fly over Crystal Lake for fear of getting a tumble then a ducking. The airplanes fly over this way very often. Next time I hear one buzzing I shall expect to see you. There are two good landing places here so don't get cold feet.

Yes, J. E. T., there certainly are "owls" on the hill. Guess you would think so if you could hear them sometimes when they are out hooting. Your letter at hand and some letter it was. Only wish I could have met those folks from Cork. I think that gallon you spoke of must have been put into that mince meat for winter use; when did you say you are going to have those spicy pies? Please do not wait till the moon ceases to change, for I am a very impatient person.

Savilia: Why so silent? Have been expecting a call from you ere this. Hope you can make it very soon.

Paula: Have not heard a word from you since the day you were here in your car. Did you reach home safely? I hope so.

Theoda: Many thanks for all the information you gave me in your letter. Will answer your questions soon by writing you a letter.

We are now in the month of December, and we must expect ice and snow. We have had quite a nice fall but not much rain which is needed very badly as wells and brooks in the outlying districts are very low.

Rural Delivery: I am still interested in the radio and thinking very strongly of having one. Heard one recently installed and these folks say they are great. If I conclude to have one will let you know.

Balsam Fir: Glad you are with the Hi Flyers, any one could easily kick you.

Yours for the good of the Corner.

CRIMSON RAMBLER.

CHOWDERS AND JOHNNY CAKE

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: One of the sisters wish for some recipes so will send a few. A few chowders will be good on a cold day with plenty of onions.

Corn Chowder: Take two or more thick slices of salt pork, cut in cubes, fry with two large minced onions until light brown and keep stirred. Take six medium size potatoes, sliced with a quart of boiling water, then add one pint of canned corn, salt and butter to season. When potatoes are done, add a large cup of rich milk and serve with crackers. For larger dish double the recipe.

Clam Chowder: Fry three slices of pork with four onions five minutes, slowly or sausage drippings is good using about two large tablespoons; two quarts of boiling water, large cup sliced potatoes, (more if liked) add juice of clams and lastly add clams and a half cup of mik just before serving, salt and pepper. It is good.

Onion Chowder: Fry four onions good and brown in an iron kettle, add a tablespoon of butter, one half cup of rice and season, boil slowly three fourths of an hour. Add milk if liked and celery salt.

Johnny Cake: One cup of sweet milk one cup of sour, two cups of Indian meal, one cup of white, one egg that you will beat, one half cup of molasses and one half cup of sugar. Add that to one tablespoon of butter, a teaspoon of salt and soda each. Mix quickly and bake soon.

USING CANDY THERMOMETER

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: In a recent letter Aloise Janet wished me to explain the candy thermometer. Remove the cover and slip in the thermometer, placing the bulb well below the surface, and let the syrup boil until the mercury reaches 238 degrees. Then very quickly remove the thermometer, lift the sauce pan from the fire, pour the contents on a cold, moist platter, and tilt the kettle upright at once, for no drips or scraping must fall into the syrup. When the syrup is perfectly cold, stir with a wooden spoon slowly, constantly and always in the same direction until it is a thick creamy mass, too stiff to stir. Then work with the hands until it is perfectly smooth. Cover the fondant with a wet cloth, let stand for two hours to sweat; after which pack in a crock, cover it with a damp cloth at least 24 hours before molding it into bonbons. Always heat your thermometer before putting it in the candy.

Marshmallow: One cup granulated sugar, 1-4 cup of water boiled together to form a soft ball. Beat the white of an egg and keep beating until quite stiff cut up your marshmallows (a small cup) and stir the marshmallows in until they are all melted.

Marshmallow Cream: Whip a jar of heavy cream and add marshmallows which have been cut into quarters. Scatter crumbed macaroons on top. Serve cold.

Marshmallow Fudge: 4 cups sugar, 1-2 cup of cream, 1-2 cup of milk, butter the size of an egg, 1-2 pound of marshmallows, 1-2 pound walnuts, 1-2 pound Baker's chocolate, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Put sugar, cream, milk, into a sauce pan, place over the fire, stir constantly until it boils up well. Add chocolate shaved fine. Place the pan into another containing boiling water. Cook until it forms a ball when dropped into cold water. The ball should be hard enough to crack against the side of the cup, but not brittle. Remove from the fire at this stage, add vanilla and stir until it begins to thicken. Have ready large buttered pans or platters and pave the marshmallows placed in the bottom of the pan in rows one quarter of an inch apart on the top of each marshmallow place half of an English walnut. Pour the fudge over the marshmallow slowly and evenly being careful not to cover the walnut meats when it is sufficiently hard cut into squares with a marshmallow in each square.

Frosted Walnuts: Four tablespoons powdered sugar, 1-4 pound English walnuts, white of one egg, 1 teaspoon orange juice. Remove the shells from the walnuts and separate them into halves. Plunge them into boiling water, for a second and remove skin. Make an icing of the stiffly beaten white of an egg and sugar. Flavor with orange juice. Pierce each walnut half, with a hairpin, dip into the icing and place on buttered dish. Stand in a moderate hot oven until a light brown color.

You can color your candy pink with beet juice, yellow with carrot, green with spinach (press the spinach and strain). A little grape juice will give a purplish tint.

COOLIDGE PLUM PUDDING.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I want you to know I am thinking of you all, am as anxious as ever for the Corner. Although rather late, will answer Present! to the roll call. I have had sickness in the family for months but am glad we are all feeling fine at present. I am sending in a Coolidge Plum Pudding for Christmas. Will some of the sisters try it and report?

Coolidge Plum Pudding: One pound butter, one pound of suet (freed from strings and chopped fine), one pound B sugar, two and one-half pounds flour, two pounds raisins seeded and chopped, two pounds clean currants, one-fourth pound citron, lemon and orange peel, one-half pound of citron, shred fine, 12 eggs, whites and yolks beaten separately, 1 pint milk, one cup grape juice, one-half ounce cloves, one-half ounce mace, two nutmegs.

Cream butter and sugar, beat in the yolks when you have whipped them smooth and light; next put in milk, then the flour, alternately with the beaten whites; then grape juice and spices; lastly the fruit, well dredged with flour. Mix all thoroughly. Wring out you pudding cloth in hot water, flour well inside, pour in the mixture, and boil five hours, or you may steam it.

XMAS PARTY OF CLUB NO. 1

Dear Social Corner Pals: Club No. 1 meets at Franklin hall on Dec. 10th for our Christmas party to which we hope many of the sisters from far and near may come.

Each one may bring a gift whose value need not exceed ten cents for our gift basket. The entertainment will be in keeping with the season.

Bring the usual good things in the line of food and by special request please give 25 cents in place of fruit, unless you furnish enough to go round which would require a half bushel or more of any kind.

The best and Merriest Christmas ever, to you all,

HOPE COBWEB.

FAMILY CIRCLES

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Thanksgiving has come and gone once more, and many families have been united, and enjoyed the companionship of their dear ones who return to the family hearth stone to partake of the bountiful Thanksgiving dinner and meet, not only, father and mother, brothers and sisters, but to welcome the little ones, who may be a recent addition to the family circle.

Truly those who are favored with health and ability to travel have much to be thankful for.

But all are not so favored. There are many, who on account of the infirmities of age or weakness are confined to their homes, perhaps in their room and spend the day in loneliness, thinking of the dear ones gone before, who dropped off one by one, until the last remaining member of the once large family is left alone. Surely it is very hard to be the last one of the family as I know some kindhearted family, as I know from sad experience. But usually some kindhearted generous person seeks out the lonely one and makes them glad and happy with not only words of sympathy but generous gifts of such things as are sure to be appreciated. So that each one may say, "For what we receive, Lord make us truly thankful."

Now we must begin our preparations for the holidays. Per haps some of the sisters make their own Christmas sweets. If so am sending a recipe for Fruit Pastelles: Take one half pound of prunes, 1 pound of pitted dates, a half pint of peanuts, a little orange peel, a little citron and put all through the meat grinder, using the ordinary cutter. Stir in some sugar, the juice of one lemon and one orange. Put some sugar on a plate, take a small portion of the mixture and roll it in the sugar and form it into small balls the size of a walnut. This makes three or four dozen. They keep a long time. I hope some one will try this. It is much better than candy for the children. Wish best wishes for all.

PALMLEAF.

SOME GOOD RECIPES

Dear Corner Sisters: I am sending some recipes that are known to be good.

Banana Cake: Cream the yolks of four eggs adding two cups of sugar and add three quarters cup of cold water in which one teaspoon of banana flavoring has been added. Into two cups of flour add three level teaspoons of baking powder. Add this to the cake mixture, beat stiff the whites of three eggs and fold in. Bake in three layers and spread each layer with a boiled icing covered with thin slices of bananas.

Pear Pudding: (You can use apple also.) Pare, core and cook until transparent six pears, adding to the syrup a tablespoon of lemon juice and a teaspoon of preserved ginger root. Moisten two tablespoons of corn starch with a little cold water and pour a cup of boiling water on it and cook until transparent. Then add two tablespoons of sugar and fold in the stiffly beaten whites of three eggs. Line a dish or mould with this. Cut the stewed pears into thin slices and lay in the center of the mold. Cover with more of the pudding and set on ice until firm. Serve with sauce made by adding a cup of cream to the syrup, which should measure one cup; when hot add two egg yolks beaten until foamy. Serve ice cold and take out of mold and garnish with whipped cream and pear leaves, when time for pears, or you can garnish with green.

Saturday Salad: Cook a white, firm head of cauliflower in boiling salted water with 2 stalks of celery, broken in pieces. Drain and chill. Arrange on cold serving platter, surround the base with small bleached lettuce heart leaves; the very small leaves may be put between the flowerets; sprinkle top with finely cut pimentoes and chopped chives. Pour over 1 cup cream salad dressing or mayonnaise, and sprinkle with more bits of pimento and 1 1-2 teaspoon finely chopped parsley. Serve cold with mayonnaise.

Sunday Salad: Peel 3 large Florida oranges, remove the pith and membrane covering carpels, prepare an equal measure of crisp celery hearts, cut in 1 inch pieces. Arrange in a mound in center of shallow serving plate, surround with the cold cooked hearts of artichokes cut into quarters. Garnish with a wreath of curled celery and small chicory leaves. Pour on French dressing.

December Salad: Cut large heavy grape fruit in halves, crosswise. Remove pulp, keeping it in its original shape. Prepare half the measure of celery hearts cut into small pieces, the same quantity of apple cubes, (sprinkle apple at once with lemon juice) 1 cup chopped hickory nut meats, 1-2 cup candied cherries cut in quarters. Mix the last four ingredients together and then arrange in alternate layers with grape fruit in nest of lettuce heart leaves. Mask heavily with cream mayonnaise and sprinkle with bits of candied cherries.

Nut Bread: Into the sponge of two loaves of bread, stir one large cup of chopped walnut meats. Mix real hard treating it as you would ordinary bread dough. When cold, cut in thin slices, butter and press together.

UNCLE SAM'S DAUGHTER.

XMAS GIFT SUGGESTIONS

Dear Cornerites: A wonderful gift for grandmother is an odd tea pot stand. A box cover six inches square is filled with soft putty. Pieces of pretty broken china are pressed into the putty, putting them just as closely together as possible and keeping them even with the top. When dry scrape off surplus putty and paint or varnish the outside of box. A wooden cover is best. This is very pretty and handy to set the hot teapot on at the table.

A pair of round braided mats six inches in diameter, for candlesticks like miniature braided rugs make a good gift for the colonial house mistress. Colored cotton strips three quarters of an inch wide and any length from twelve to thirty inches are used. Black strips furnished by old stockings and all sorts of lovely combinations of colors can be worked up such as to start with, one each of black, old blue and tan. It looks well to use black again near the edge and the last two rows may be that color. The braids should be firm and no more than in quarter inch in width. Cotton crepe, gingham, percale, etc., from the scrap bag are ideal. Press with damp cloth when finished.

Sofa Pillow Top: Any kind of plain cloth, with leaves cut from velvet, basted on, then finish the edge of each leaf with a blanket stitch artistically cut and arranged with colors to blend. You can use dark green or brown cloth with a darker shade for leaves, each leaf finish with a blanket stitch in the light and dark shades. This pillow makes a nice present for a man or boy.

Take an old cigar box inlay a border on the cover around 1-4 inch, then sand paper and varnish it. Now glue some cotton on the inside of the cover and the bottom of the box, then glue card board around the inside and cover all except a little around the edges; then take some silk larger than the bottom of the box and tuck it in between the card board and the box with a nail file and glue it on the edges and the same to the cover. This makes a very attractive gift.

A decorated telephone set index can be made for ten cents, a little time and paint, by buying the inexpensive card board indexes for telephones, painting them black and decorating with a spot of bright colored flowers just above the center. Paint the telephone exchange and number of the phone in quarter-inch letters below. A border the same color as the latter around the edge adds to its appearance. Oil paints or show card colors are best.

If one likes the parchment lamp shades very effective copies can be made of heavy manila wrapping. Cut the pattern for your frame—allowing one inch extra all around. Crumple the paper, smooth out with hand, color to give it a marble effect with water color—blue, rose, yellow, lavender, etc. When dry cover with melted paraffin on both sides. Apply with a brush. If paraffin is thick in places it will add to its interest when lighted. How to sew the paper to the wire frame with loose stitches, cut away surplus paper, and cover sides of frame with gold braid. These look much more like real parchment shades than the imitations one sees in the shops.

TWO NEW CORNER MEMBERS.

Dear Social Corner: I have attended several meetings of the Social Corner club and am very much interested.

I should like to join and have as my penname LEAH.

Dear Editor of the Social Corner: Please enter my name on the Social Corner list. I have visited club meetings three times and am very much interested in the club. Will take for my penname LOMO.

A WISH TO THE CORNER

Dear Social Friends: Some time ago one of my children, Barbara, and her husband started to travel across the continent from the Atlantic ocean to the Pacific in a limousine, not because the car was an expensive one but because it was large and was to be their home while traveling. Their living room when the car stood in camp with its front door and its back door, its deep wide windows with their silk curtains, for to my daughter quality and not quantity was necessary to her happiness. A book case lined the car filled with up to date books and magazines. Downy sofa pillows filled in artistically and soft shaded rays came from the night lamps of the car. In a corner of the car was the small type writer that would type write the stories she would send to a newspaper and magazine for she was a short story writer. Strapped to the running board was their tent with all its fixings for outdoor living, sleeping and getting their meals. In the trunk at the back of the car they carried their hiking suits and shoes. They were equipped for easy delightful traveling.

Living out in the open air, in the woodland, in the valleys, or in the community camps, meeting new faces, old friends and joining the story-telling circle, and the chorus around the evening camp fire.

I was happyfied by her happy letters sent home to us and imagine my surprise when some one who had some reason for feeling resentful toward my daughter, waited one day to meet me on the street and said in her conversation, Barbara is working in a factory! I looked at her in utter bewilderment, what did she mean, and before I could recover myself she had kept on talking of other things and left my conversational powers in useless bewilderment. I put no questions but went home and wrote to my daughter, What does this woman mean? I had forgotten that as a stenographer my daughter could work in any office even if that office was in a factory. After living hand in hand with my children so many years I might have known Barbara's answering letter would be satisfactory. In it she reminded me that six weeks before receiving my inquiring letter, she and her husband while passing through the city had decided that they liked the city well enough to stay in it and see more of it. So they engaged a small apartment where they would be comfortable and found a garage for the car which they planned to use extensively during their stay there. Soon after hubby came home and informed her that he could take a position as book-keeper at a factory he had visited. In further talk they decided he could work there for a while and they would drive evenings. But as she found it rather lonely through the day so far from home and the camp friends, she took the position of stenographer in the same office which was large, well furnished, hardwood finished and clean to the last grain. The only objection they had was to the old lady (Old Rose) hubby called her, who after her husband died, became manager and part owner. Old Rose had ordered the cleaning of the buildings and the grounds, and the green lawns and she demanded that everyone working on the place should be clean. Those working in the office had to give references, Barbara and her husband very much objected to taking positions as though they were housemaid and butler, but rather than give it up, for the office looked attractive three names! Her mother's her aunt to them, Barbara made out a list of Ida's and the old family physician because, she said, he's dead and I will be under no obligation for the favor of filling out the blank for the Old Rose.

Her aunt Ida and I remembered getting the blanks to fill out and I did not give it a thought except saying to myself, what an old fashioned way of employing office help. I received it on one mail filled it out and returned it on the next mail and let it entirely slip from my mind. I did not even remember where the office was for Barbara had given me her city address.

My daughter finished her answering letter to my inquiring one with:

I guess that letter I sent to the dead doctor is not as dead as the doctor is and the Old Rose on that end of the line (I had forgotten the window) is Olive Green. Give my love to the Social Corner and tell them that the best wish I can give them in my opinion is that they take the trip from Maine to California in an automobile.

I will close this letter with best wishes for the Christmas holidays and hope some day to have a long letter from Barbara for this page.

MRS. LA FOLLETTE.

"MUCH TO BE THANKFUL FOR."

Dear Editor, Social Corner Sisters and Brothers: Here I am again! Hope everybody enjoyed Thanksgiving day. Biddy Ann and I ate our dinner all alone. We expected relatives to be with us, but at the last minute they phoned they could not possibly come. We were so disappointed I felt like going out on to the street and asking almost the first person I saw to come home with me and help clean up the food Biddy had prepared. I did ask a high school boy who boards here in town, but he had accepted an invitation to dine with one of his teachers. I hope he had turkey. We did not. We had an old hen, but when I chose Biddy Ann I knew she was a fine cook. She put the taste in that old fowl all right. I think it was the best dinner I have ever eaten.

We all have much to be thankful for. I know I have. I can remember when we had almost nothing to eat, at Thanksgiving or at any other time. When I was 9 and my sister 12 we were left all alone. We hired ourselves out to a farmer. Sister got a dollar a week and I got my board and a few clothes. Sister helped with the housework and the care of four children. How hard we had to work! We had to rise at 4 o'clock in summer and at 5 in winter. The coldest job was starting fires. Our work was far too heavy for us. How we got along four years and lived is more than I can

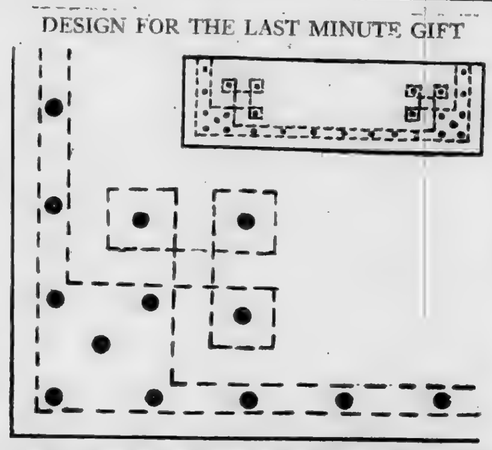
DESIGN FOR THE LAST MINUTE GIFT



There is always the last minute gift which must be made in a hurry and this simple darning design for a collar and cuff set will meet these requirements nicely. Make a straight collar and cuff set of the width desired. Cut these from a piece of organdy, or other fine material. A quarter of an inch hem is basted around the outside edge of both collar and cuffs. The hem is held in place with fine darning stitches taken with colored embroidery cotton. Several strands of the cotton should be used. The corner is given here with a small sketch of the finished cuff. Trace the design to a piece of paper continuing the straight line of darning and the dots out as far as necessary for the collar. Baste the paper on which the design is drawn to the under side of the collar or cuffs so that the pattern will show through the sheer material and work the darning stitches in the organdy. The dots may be worked solid in satin stitch, or what is quicker still, they may be made up of a group of French knots. Pale pink organdy with the design done in rose or green would be most effective.

WESTERLY

A well filled court room Friday morning heard the Third district court trial of two criminal cases. The first was that of State Thomas E. Brown, Chief of Police of Westerly, vs. Michael Serra, but the complaint of "keeping a place used and occupied for the purpose of gambling and playing games of chance," common gambler, was amended by Town Solicitor Ferguson to read "playing of a game of cards on the first day of the week." Sufficient evidence to convict was admitted by Attorney Dunn for the defendant and he was fined $5 and costs. The second case was a town of Hopkinton one, State, Chief of Police Elmer E. Smith, complainant, vs. James Kennedy, possession of intoxicating liquors, reported found by a raiding party with a search warrant dated Nov. 14th. The state was represented by Attorney Ferguson and the defendant by Attorney George J. West of Providence, who attacked the validity of the search warrant, but the trial proceeded when the attorney's motion to dismiss was overruled. Kennedy, who lived on the west side of the ten rod road, leading to the New London turnpike, known as the Sam England place, was found guilty by Judge Michael J. Turano and fined $100 and costs. An appeal was taken.

Clerk M. Walter Flynn, Jr., read the following:

Civil Docket: New writs, William F. Totten vs. Lawrence F. Maine. Jury trial was claimed on the first calendar day of superior court. Emma J. Collins vs. Bert Corbin. A trespass and ejectment case, if unanswered during the day continued one week. Atlantic Carbonic company vs. Grover C. King. Assigned to Dec. 12. Electric Paint and Varnish company vs. Frank Diganci. Continued two weeks to Dec. 19. John F. Davis vs. Louis LaFountain, continued to Dec. 19; Michael D. G. Panalia vs. Louis W. Tishler, continued one week; Edith Gregory vs. Joseph Stedman, continued one week and surety for costs asked; Charles H. Gavitt vs. Harry Bliven, entered as defaulted; W. R. Casocait vs. James Whiting, marked defaulted. Criminal docket—State, Thomas E. Brown, chief of police of Westerly vs. Michael Serra, ready; State, Elmer A. Smith, chief of police of Richmond, vs. James Kenney, ready.

When the case of the state vs. Serra was called, Attorney Dunn admitted sufficient evidence and spoke for a light penalty.

In the town clerk's office Dec. 1 a deed was filed by which Catherine E. Spellman conveyed to Andrew and Letitia Doherty a parcel of land on the north side of Cross street with dwelling and improvements, Dec. 3d Mabel B. Larkin of Westerly, Eva H. Peckham of Charlestown and R. Anna Larkin conveyed to Herman Hedman of the Bronx, N. Y., a tract of land partly in the towns of Westerly and Charlestown, of about 100 acres with dwelling and other improvements located on the south side of the Pawcatuck river and north of the highway from Bradford to Charlestown., Dec. 4th The Woodland Realty Co., of Cincinnati, O., gave title to William Cooper Proctor for real estate in Westerly with buildings and improvements. A lease was executed between Joseph Wilshire, husband of Helen W. and a brother of Joseph Wilshire, Mary C. Scanlon conveyed to Margaret A. Milan of Providence a certain lot or piece of land at Pleasant View near Wilcoxpaug pond and south of Atlantic avenue with buildings and improvements. Angelo DiPietro and wife deeded to Amodio DeSimone five and one-half lots at Prospect park, lots Nos. 256, 257, 258, 264 and 265.

The adjourned session of Westerly town council, Thursday evening decided not to accept any of the bids on the school houses at Bradford or Avondale, but to accept the offers of Wilfred Ward and the Westerly grange to take these buildings over and use them as community centers in these two places.

At the financial town meeting last February the town council was given authority to dispose of these buildings whenever the school committee was through with them. The school committee notified the town council this fall that the new schools were finished and they were ready to have the old buildings sold.

Members of the council felt that these buildings could be of no greater service to the town than as centers for community interests at Bradford and Avondale, the Avondale building having been used for that purpose for a number of years.

ACADIEN'S CREW, NEW LONDON, RELEASED; CAPTAIN HELD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Dec. 6.—Capt. Louis Andren, master of the French steamer Acadien, seized several days ago on a charge of proceeding upon a foreign voyage without filing manifest or obtaining clearance papers, when sighted off Rum Row, Block Island, and following the craft being held up as a rum-runner and who was released on that charge, is now being held in bonds of $15,000 on a charge of violation of the immigration laws. The crew of the Acadien were given a hearing this afternoon before United States Commissioner Earl Mathewson of Norwich and were were released. The Acadien was boarded by officers of U. S. S. Red Wing, of the fleet of rum-chasing craft several days later and when the Acadien was believed to have a supply of liquor aboard. When the presence of liquor was not revealed by a search of the steamer it was decided to hold Andren in violation of the immigration laws. The federal authorities contend that the French craft has been used as a means of smuggling foreigners into this country. Federal authorities also contend that the Acadien has brought loads of liquor from the rum fleet off Block Island to points within a radius of 20 miles east and west of New London harbor, on numerous occasions, the liquor being unloaded and placed aboard waiting motor trucks to be carried to its destination.

Robert Howard returned to his home on Long Island today, having been under treatment for a fortnight at Home Memorial hospital.

The continued failure of the state police under Sergeant Clifford Gorgas, Groton barracks, and County Detective William Lewis, to obtain, through their respective investigations, any tangible clues that will lead to reveal the manner in which Peter A. Toolin, former assistant paymaster at the Robert Gair Co., Montville, came to his death, is arousing public feeling. Not only is the failure of the officers to fathom the case causing criticism, but additional criticism is heard because Coroner J. J. Desmond failed to hold an inquest, allowing the body to be buried without the customary investigation.

Since Toolin's body was found at Station 15 1-2, Waterford, early Thanksgiving morning, over a week ago, not the slightest clue has been obtained, according to the investigators, that would warrant an arrest. The authorities contend now that Toolin was struck by a passing automobile, but they fail to explain how Toolin could sustain a crushed skull, a skull that was crushed almost to a pulp by being hit by a motor vehicle, the shattered skull being an injury, such as would not have been sustained had he been in front of a fast moving train. The worst fracture extended the entire length of the head, making an opening wide enough for the man's brains to protrude upon the highway, while there were five other lesser fractures.

Notwithstanding the fact that the investigators have failed to obtain a clue that might discover the automobile from which Toolin fell or by which he was struck, the authorities are seeking to ascertain whose machine ran over Toolin's overcoat, while the man lay unconscious or dead in the highway. The coat pocket on the right side shows the imprint of a Goodrich 55 cord tire. Interviews of automobile dealers today brought the information that the tire such as the the imprint on the pocket shows, is only attached to Ford pleasure cars and Chevrolet delivery cars and is a part of the new equipment of the respective cars. Sergeant Gorgas visited the undertaking rooms of James N. Kelley today and took charge of the overcoat, together with a left-hand glove found close to where the body of Toolin was discovered.

An automobile owned and driven by Joseph Mitchell, 183 Poquonoc road, Groton, was damaged this evening when in collision with a Groton & Stonington trolley car. The automobile was traveling northerly on Main street and between the rails of the trolley company. At the corner of Railam street the trolley car approached and Mitchell endeavored to operate the machine to one side of the highway. The automobile skidded along the rails with the result that the machine crashed against the front of the trolley car, occasioning considerable damage. The trolley car was in charge of Conductor McTague.

One of the big auto busses owned by Michael Baldelli, operated between New London and the submarine base, was damaged tonight when it is alleged the operator of a pleasure machine crowded the highway in Groton to such an extent that the bus left the macadam and plunged across the rough side of the road. The operator of the bus, John Neilan, lodged complaint with the New London police and the state police, Groton barracks. Neilan stated that the pleasure car, an Essex coach, the number of which he did not obtain, was operated practically in the center of the road and had not Neilan guided the bus to the side of the highway a crash would have resulted.

Patrick J. Walsh, a sailor aboard U. S. S. Alexander Hamilton, stationed at the United States Coast Guard Academy, and who complained to the police early yesterday morning that he had been robbed of $34 while occupying his room at the Salvation Army barracks, does not desire the guilty parties prosecuted, although it has been revealed that two other sailors undoubtedly committed the robbery as they were the only ones to occupy the room, other than Walsh. Today Sergeant John Cavanaugh investigated the complaint and determined that two sailors, both supposedly friends of Walsh had been in the room and that a short time before Walsh missed the money from his clothing the two sailors disappeared. One of the sailors was ordered to sea duty yesterday and the other was discharged from the service.

William J. Lahey, chief inspector of the New York police department has communicated with the New London police in an endeavor to obtain information of the alleged death by drowning of John O'Hagen, a member of the crew of the tugboat William Maloney, that is reported to have foundered in the sound three weeks ago. Neither the New London police department, nor the Merritt-Chapman & Scott Wrecking company here has any knowledge of the sinking of the tug. It is reported that the Maloney was a rum-running craft and with another steamer was in the sound with a cargo of liquor when both craft were caught in a storm. The Maloney was between New London and Newport when she was lost sight of by the other rum-runner and no tiding of the missing craft or her crew has ever been received. The crew of the second craft and the gang of bootleggers aboard came to New London and remained several days in the belief that the Maloney's crew would put in an appearance here, but they failed to do so.

It is understood that the Hectic traffic guide that has done intermittent duty at the corner of State and Bank streets is to be abandoned and removed from its location. The scheme for directing traffic is a good one and is the device of New Londoners, but it is misplaced when it is located, so far above the range of vision of those who operate automobiles. With the windshields and hoods on autos as they are placed now, the operator cannot see the guiding sign unless he or she leans out of the car and looks skyward. The traffic guide is manufactured in New London and it was the desire of the city officials to permit the demonstration of its adaptability where it has been placed. That having been accomplished, there seems no farther need of its maintenance.

New London lodge of Elks has adopted a new plan of filling the Lyceum theatre at the annual lodge of sorrow. No tickets will be required from those in attendance at the exercises next Sunday evening, it will be first come first served, the only reservations made being for the members of the lodge who will march in a body to the theatre from the Elks' club house. Thomas McKone of Hartford, who was stationed here in the service of the department of justice during the World war will deliver the address. Instrumental and vocal music will be provided by an orchestra and a quartette.

James Harrington was charged with drunkenness, when the police court convened this morning, and admitted that he was justly accused for he pleaded guilty. Then he went on to tell a silly story about being employed at New Haven and to have just come here to meet an acquaintance. After he had rambled along in talk of that sort it was shown that he didn't come here with any such purpose as he stated and was sent to jail for ten days. But he will be out in time to hang up his stocking and get whatever his friends may put into it.

Emery E. Rogers, colored, said, when presented for disturbance of the peace, that he was guilty of conduct unbecoming, but that he did nothing to harm anybody. He was complained of by Mrs. Lake and she was in court when Rogers was arraigned. She had, however, changed her attitude toward him. She didn't want him "punished much." The facts turned out to be that Rogers and Mr. Lake worked together, the former said, and now that the job they were engaged upon was finished they decided to celebrate. This they did and that aroused the complaint that Mrs. Lake made against Rogers. The court suspended judgment for thirty days.

Mrs. Donald McKenzie and infant daughter, of Waterford; Mrs. Gratice Whitele, Montauk avenue, Dominick Ladores, Norwich, and Miss Lillian Swanson, of Montauk avenue, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged today.

Benjamin H. and Elizabeth H. C. Armstrong have sold a tract of land on the westerly side of Pequot avenue to the Connecticut Seabury Co., Corp.

Elizabeth H. C. Armstrong has sold a parcel of land on Graham place, off Bayonet street, to Roman and Felika Nedwiecke.

George E. Blake and Frank L. Nolan have sold a house and lot on Terrace avenue to John M. Hendrickson and John N. Osterman.

Patrick Corcoran, former veteran hack driver and for several years an operator of a public service automobile, is critically ill at his residence, 400 Broad street. Mr. Corcoran suffered a general breakdown of his health several weeks ago and since that time his decline has been steady until now he is confined to his bed the entire time.

Charles P. Hammond, former police patrolman and detective sergeant, has entered the business field of New London and is now a recognized merchant. Mr. Hammond has acquired the business formerly conducted by Frank Denison of Williams street.

Maxwell J. Rockhill, director, division of parole and domestic relations, Trenton, N. J., has written the New London police requesting information as to the whereabouts of Rudolph Goers, who was stationed at one time at the United States Coast Guard academy. Goers is not known to the local authorities and inquiry at the coast guard resulted in the information that he was discharged from the federal service two years ago.

The New Haven police are seeking from the police department of this city the court record of Eugene Herring, who is under arrest in the former city, charged with idleness, burglary and theft and who declares that he served a six months' sentence for embezzlement in the New London county jail. The local police have no record of Herring having been arrested here and if he is telling the truth his term in the county jail was the result of his being convicted of a crime other than in New London.

Gargle Throat With Aspirin

Clip This if Subject to Sore Throat or Tonsilitis

Prepare a harmless and effective gargle by dissolving two Bayer Tablets of Aspirin in four tablespoonfuls of water. Gargle throat thoroughly. Repeat in two hours if necessary.

Be sure you use only the genuine Bayer Tablets of Aspirin, marked with the Bayer Cross, which can be had in tin boxes of twelve tablets for few cents.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

CONNECTICUT IMPORTS ABOUT 2500 CARS OF POTATOES

Connecticut probably receives about 2,500 cars of early and late potatoes annually from without the state because this state does not produce a supply sufficient to take care of the demand of our consumers.

The report on the 1923-1924 movement of potatoes from Maine shows that last season (Sept. 12, 1923 to March 31, 1924) 1,962 carloads were consigned to Connecticut points. Of these, eleven carloads were imported from Canada. Four hundred and four carloads were consigned to New Haven, 314 to Hartford, 301 to Bridgeport and 243 to Waterbury. Some of the smaller cities to which potatoes were shipped were Stamford, 82 carloads; South Norwalk, 47; New London, 85; New Britain, 76; Norwich, 24; Danbury, 22; Torrington, 22; Ansonia, 30; Bristol, 31; Meriden, 42; Middletown, 17; Greenwich, 19; Willimantic, 13; and Milford, 10. Eighty-three carloads were distributed among the smaller towns and cities. In addition to the above, 64 carloads were received from Western New York. Other states make shipments of varying amounts.

Indications are that local producers selling in Connecticut have in the past few years received from 45 to 60 cents more per bushel for native grown potatoes than the growers in Maine receive at their local shipping points. The freight rate from Aroostook county, Maine, to Connecticut is about 45 cents per bushel and accounts for a major part of the differential. This margin of about 55 cents makes it possible for many of our local growers to engage in potato raising at a profit, providing certified seed is used to secure large yields. In past years potatoes have come in carlots from states of Idaho, Minnesota, Michigan, and Illinois. On account of the great distance from our market we need expect but few shipments from these states. The receipts from these states at New York City and Boston are, nevertheless, an important factor in determining the prices paid for potatoes in the east and therefore influence our local market prices.

During the coming year the Extension service of the agricultural college intends to put on a campaign to bring about better growing methods, grading and selling of Connecticut grown potatoes and hopes the producers will co-operate and help build up a more successful potato industry in this state.

PREVENT COCCIDIOSIS AMONG THE POULTRY

Hens may have coccidiosis, but still not show it, and even though not physically affected themselves they may be spreading this disease to others on the farm who will succumb to the disease very rapidly. Infected soil may be the means also for spreading disease several months after the birds which had the disease have been disposed of. This is one reason why poultry yards, that are on a sloping hill are better than the level yards, as the wash on the slope helps to carry away disease in the soil. Wet undrained yards and unsanitary poultry houses help spread this disease very rapidly.

Birds affected by coccidiosis usually have diarrhea, and the feces may look bloody; the birds become weak and may lose the use of their legs or one leg altogether. In the advanced stages they remain quiet, with wings drooping and eyes closed.

Sanitation is probably the best preventive and there are practically no medicines which are of much value. Epsom salts used every three weeks helps to keep down the disease. The poultry houses, incubators and brooders should be kept clean and every so often should be disinfected. One pound of lye to about 40 gallons of water makes a good disinfectant solution. The ground that is used for the birds should be plowed at different levels each year and limed heavily, then cropped to help purify the soil. Unhealthy birds should be culled out as fast as they are observed so that the spreading of the disease will not be as great.

A POUND OF PORK EVERY SEVEN MINUTES

A pound of pork every seven minutes is the record of a quartersection corn belt hog farm on which actual figures were kept for a year by the United States department of agriculture in cooperation with the University of Illinois. The operation on this farm and the plans of cropping and feeding have been used as the basis for an exhibit which will be shown at the International livestock exposition to be held at Chicago November 29 to December 7.

The principal crops grown on the farm were corn, oats, and soybeans, very little feed being purchased and much of the oats being marketed as grain. During the year 78,700 pounds of hogs were marketed, which was a little more than a pound every seven minutes during the entire year. The outstanding reasons for the success of this farmer, who did most of the work himself, are given as follows: Convenient arrangement enabling the owner to care for the pigs with little labor; well balanced rations, producing gains without waste; and continuous use of fresh pasture, providing cheap feed and keeping the hogs in excellent condition.

Visitors to the International will find the exhibit arranged so that they may study the management of this practical farm with the minimum expenditure of time. This section may be found in the government exhibit by looking for the big clock with a hand that covers seven minutes every move

HANDICAPS IN GROWING CURRANTS AND GOOSEBERRIES

There are four factors which limit the growing of currants and gooseberries in the United States. The heat of summer, the lack of moisture, the white-pine blister rust, and the currant maggot. Currants and gooseberries, both wild and cultivated, are responsible for the spread of white-pine blister rust, the disease which threatens to destroy much of the valuable white-pine timber of the United States. For this reason the currant and gooseberry industry must be considered in connection with the preservation of the white-pine timber supply.

In this connection a new bulletin treating of the culture of currants and gooseberries and their relation to white-pine blister rust has been issued by the United States department of agriculture, as Farmers' Bulletin 1393. The regions naturally adapted to their culture are tabulated and the regions in which they are prohibited by law are also named, together with the best methods to adopt in growing these fruits wherever possible.

White pine blister rust on the white pines of our forests is caused by a destructive fungus of foreign origin. It must first grow on the leaves of currants and gooseberry bushes before it can attack and kill the pines. The pines in an infected area can be protected from further damage from the rust only by removing all currant and gooseberry bushes from the area. Because of the blister rust, the culture of currants and gooseberries is restricted or prohibited in regions where the eastern and western white pines, sugar pines and other five-needle (white) pines are important.

Cultivated black currants, sometimes called the European or English black currant, are more susceptible to white-pine blister rust than any other type of currant or gooseberry. This species is the most active agent concerned in the long-distance spread and establishment of the disease. The growing of black currants in home gardens as well as in nurseries and commercial plantings, should be entirely abandoned throughout the United States because of the importance of white pine and the relative small importance of the black currants.

THE THREE STAGES OF AGRICULTURAL CHEMISTRY

Agricultural chemistry has gone through three more or less distinct stages since the pioneering days of the science, says Dr. C. A. Browne, chief of the bureau of chemistry, United States department of agriculture. Three-quarters of a century ago, he says, the aims were the relatively simple ones of determining the chemical elements necessary for the growth of crops, of ascertaining the forms in which these elements could be most economically supplied, and of devising methods of analysis for preventing the commercial substitution of worthless or inferior substances for good fertilizer. The immense benefit resulting from the development of the fertilizer industry caused chemistry to be regarded as of preeminent value to agriculture. Chemists wrote many books on agriculture and many of the agricultural experiment stations were headed by chemists.

The second field attacked was that of stock feeding. Chemistry was called upon to determine the feed constituents which were necessary for the growth and fattening of farm animals, to ascertain the forms in which these constituents could be most economically supplied, and to devise methods of analysis for preventing the adulteration of commercial feeds. There was here, as before, a definite practical problem which awaited solution—in the first case, the maximum production of crops; in the second case, the maximum yield of animal products which are meat and milk.

Dr. Browne called attention to the curious anomaly that the third and most important period of agricultural-chemical research—that pertaining to human food—should come last. This field has been given serious attention by chemists only within the last thirty years. However, he calls attention to the fact that in this third period a single definite practical economic problem, such as claimed the general attention of chemists in the first two periods, were lacking.

It is to that borderland where chemistry touches upon physics, biology, physiology and the other sciences that chemical research is performing today its greatest service to agriculture, says Dr. Browne in calling attention to the need for most active cooperation on the part of every science.

ORCHARDS SHOULD BE PREPARED FOR NEXT YEAR

The orchardist should be getting his orchard ready for next year's harvest. One of the most important and most neglected pieces of work is the strengthening of weak trees. Every orchard has trees that need attention and tree surgery. It may be a tree that has been partly girdled by mice. If so, it should be marked this fall, so that it can be bridge-grafted the first thing in the spring. It may be a tree that has had a limb broken off during the season. This stub should be sawed off close to the tree and all decayed wood should be scraped out clean. No projection should be left so that water and dust could collect to start more decay.

Perhaps these things mentioned so far are taken care of to a greater or lesser degree by the average orchardist, but he most always fails to strengthen weak crotches in the trees by wire braces. To neglect this means the loss of many barrels of apples the following year as well as the setting back of the tree itself to split down by windstorms. It costs only about 10 cents to wire up a bad crotched tree, and it's worth the investment. Where only one of two limbs need bracing on an apple tree, it may be done with one long bolt passing through the center of each limb and then connected by several strands of copper or No. 14 galvanized wire.

SUN GREAT AID IN PROPAGATING PLANTS

Cuttings planted in about four inches of sand should be sunned part of the day and kept in a well-lighted place, although for a few days or a week in the case of tender plants like begonias, coleus, ageratums, cyprus, etc., the cuttings should be shaded with a piece of paper. The sand should not be allowed to dry. A propagation box should be pierced for drainage, like flower pots.

When cuttings are well rooted, transfer them to small pots, using a soil mixture of one part fine sand and two parts rich soil or leaf mold. Put the cuttings in the center of the pot and make sure that the roots are not doubled up. Firm the soil about the plant. Keep well watered, that is wet all the soil each time, and do not water again till the soil becomes dry. Do not water too frequently as it is bad for the plant. When the small pots fill with roots transplant to larger pots with about the same mixture adding one part well-rotted manure. For the housewife who desires to propagate some of her house plants by cuttings, these simple directions if followed carefully will give good results.

In the first place, determine whether the mother plant is to be kept for continued decorative purposes or its appearance temporarily sacrificed. If the former, then only a few side shoots or bottom shoots can be taken for cuttings, but if the whole plant can be used, the ten shoots which generally make the strongest cuttings can be taken. This latter does not spoil the mother plant, but the plant should be cut back, and in a few weeks new shoots will grow.

Some begonias are propagated by leaf cuttings. A leaf is removed and cut into small pieces, each piece containing one form of the leaf ribs and about four square inches in area. Stalk or stem cuttings vary in size from two to four inches in length, according to their sturdiness. The cut should be made with a sharp knife just below a leaf bud and the bottom leaves removed; in some cases part of the leaves are cut off. All cuttings should be planted in sand free of dirt or pieces of leaf, to prevent cuttings from rotting. Cuttings take root in from three to six weeks.

DAHLIAS SHOULD BE DUG WHEN FREEZE THREATENS

When dahlias have stopped growing or are in danger of freezing in the ground is the time to lift them, says Professor A. H. Nehrling, of the New York State College of Agriculture at Cornell university. The success and beauty of next year's dahlias depend on the timeliness of this operation.

"Early some sunny morning," says Professor Nehrling, "dig up the roots and lay them in the sun to dry. The earlier in the day that this can be done the better as the more that can be stored away damp usually decays quickly. The stems should be cut off about six inches from the ground, and tied with the roots."

Professor Nehrling advises storing the roots of dahlias in sand or sawdust, or even shavings. The idea of sand or sawdust is to keep the roots from drying out during the storage period. The best temperatures for the cellar in which they are kept are between 45 and 50 degrees.

"Sort over the roots two or three times during the winter," says Prof. Nehrling, "to prevent the spread of rot. Flowers of sulphur, a good fungicide, sprinkled on the roots will help prevent decay.

Plant from the middle of May up to the first of June. There is usually too great a hurry to get them into the ground with the consequence that poorer grade of flowers results. To make the roots go further they can be divided as far as the eyes go. That is, if each root has at least one eye the plant should develop.

The root eye must be at least two inches below the ground when planted, and later on when the shoots come out, thin down to two shoots. This will give the shoots an opportunity to stool out and form at least five or six buds, ones that will have larger and more beautiful flowers than if the whole number of shoots had been left to mature."

TOO MANY ACORNS ARE INJURIOUS

Acorns eaten in large quantities by grazing animals may prove injurious, and even fatal, particularly to young cattle, said A. A. Hansen, of the Purdue university agricultural extension staff, in response to numerous inquiries received at the university. Trouble usually occurs in November, or in frost when there is little else in the woodland pastures and the cattle, animals present to consumers seems in fairly large quantities. When taken with other feed, acorns may be nutritious, digestible and harmless.

In a recent experiment in which a young steer was fed nine pounds in liberal quantities, the animal twitched the body muscles nervously, the pulse became weak, respiration was slow, the surface of the body became cold, there was a discharge from the eyes and nostrils and the steer finally became semi-conscious.

Too liberal indulgence in an acorn diet is apt to cause a serious decrease in the milk flow being due perhaps to the general impairment of the animals health Hansen said.

Divorce Institute

The University of California has taken a step toward correcting the "divorce evil" if such it be, by instituting a course of critical analysis of the home. Miss Mary Burt Messer, formerly of the sociology department of the University of Wisconsin, is director of the course. Miss Messer has been quoted as saying that the troubles of American home life fall into two main categories: "The belief on the part of the modern young woman that she is indifferent to the ties of love and of home and the insufficiency of the home itself, its mediaevalism and inability to meet the needs of the present-day man, woman and child.

MARKET WAS "BULLISH"

New York, Dec. 5.—Another wild outburst of bullish enthusiasm sent more than one hundred stocks to new high levels for the year in the early part of today's trading, but a deluge of selling orders by professional traders in the late afternoon brought about a sharp reaction from the top prices, leaving closing quotations irregularly lower. Total sales, which exceeded two and a half million shares, were within ten thousand shares of the record established on November 20, the highest in about eight years.

Railroad shares continued to lead the advance, contributing about one-third of the day's highs. Buying of these issues was given added stimulus by the publication of a statement showing that Class I railroads reported net operating income of $127,105,000 in October, or at the rate of 5.8 per cent on the tentative valuation fixed by the interstate commerce commission. The roads also showed the lowest operating ratio of 70.50 per cent for any single month since July, 1918.

"Katy" common was the individual feature, being bid up three points to a net top at 34 3-8 and then dropping back to 33 1-2. Among the many other issues to sell at the year's best prices were Atchison, Baltimore & Ohio, Chicago Northwestern, Great Northern preferred, Kansas City Southern common and preferred, Lehigh Valley, Pennsylvania, Prince common and preferred, Southern Railway and the three Wabash issues.

Net losses of 1 to 2 points were recorded, however, by the Erie issues, Missouri Pacific, Atlantic Coast Line, Colorado and Southern, Delaware & Hudson, Lackawanna, Reading, Gulf, Mobile and Northern preferred, Seaboard Air Line preferred, and Western Pacific.

With the exception of American Can, which closed 3-4 higher at 149 3-8 after selling 2 1-2 points above that figure, most of the standard industrials lost ground. United States Steel showed a slight fractional recession at 117 1-4 after having crossed 118, and Baldwin, selling ex-dividend, closed about a point lower at 124 1-8.

United States Realty issues broke about 10 points from their high prices as a result of the contradictory reports concerning the consolidation of the real estate holdings of that company with those of the Du Pont interests. Bear traders launched another sharp drive against H. R. Mallinson, forcing that issue nearly points below the peak price established yesterday.

United States Distributing preferred jumped 20 points to 165 on a few sales, and other outstanding strong spots were American Car and Foundry, Fisher Body, Foundation Company, General Asphalt common and preferred, Great Western Sugar preferred, Pierce-Arrow preferred, Pullman and United Drug, up 3 to nearly 6 points.

Call money held steady at 3 per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged with business quiet. Acceptance rates were again marked up one-eighth of 1 per cent on all maturities, the new asking basis ranging from 2 5-8 per cent on 30 days to 2 7-8 for 90.

Foreign exchanges turned reactionary after the brisk advance of the last few days. Demand sterling ruled about a cent lower around $4.67 3-4 and French francs broke 10 points to 5.42 cents, on heavy speculative selling.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Dec. 5.—Bond prices turned upward early today under the leadership of the high-yielding railroad issues, but crumbled later in the day under the pressure of heavy realizing sales. Movements in the market paralleled the trend of stock trading, where a reaction followed an early advance.

Several of the semi-speculative rail liens maintained their gains until the close. Demand for the Frisco income 6s, inspired by the inauguration of common dividends this week and the optimistic estimates of 1924 earnings, continued unabated, lifting the price two points to 81 1-4, the same as the road's preferred stock. Seaboard, "Katy" and International-Great Western issues eclipsed their previous high records. Early gains in some of the higher priced carrier bonds gave way to fractional losses in the late trading.

Trading in Mexican government obligations was stimulated by reports that service on Mexico's external debt suspended last July, might be resumed shortly. Gains in the list ranged from one to two points. Other foreign bonds moved within narrow limits.

The recent rapid advance in Pierce-Arrow motor 8s invited profit taking today and the price receded more than two points. Other industrial issues which lost ground included Bethlehem Steel 5s of 1936, Dery Silk 7s and International Paper 5s.

The decline in Liberty bonds was checked today by the active bidding for the new 4 per cent treasury bonds, which commanded a premium in the outside market. Bankers estimated that total subscriptions for the issue, including exchange of old certificates would total about $2,000,000,000. The discount house of Salomon Brothers and Hutzler announced that it had exchanged $50,000,000 treasury obligations for a like amount of the new bonds.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Dec. 5.—Reports that drought and torrid temperatures are damaging late wheat in Argentina did a good deal to make wheat prices tend upward today, and so, too, did bullish estimates of farm reserves of wheat in the United States. The close in the wheat market here, although unsettled, was 5-8c to 1 1-4c net higher, with May 161 to 161 1-8 and July 142 1-8 to 142 1-4. Corn finished at 3-4c to 1 1-2c gain, oats 1-2 to 1@1 1-8c up, and provisions showing 10 to 32c advance.

In connection with unfavorable crop reports from Argentina, the wheat market was influenced by the fact that Liverpool and Buenos Aires quotations displayed strength and that at times there was rather notable buying here on the part of eastern houses. Meanwhile, unofficial announcements were also current that domestic farm reserves of wheat Dec. 1 amounted to only 177,000,000 bushels as against 225,000,000 bushels last year. On the other hand, new export business today appeared to be decidedly slow.

Blizzard conditions west of here together with unfavorable weather in Argentina put independent strength into the corn market. Besides, country offerings of corn were smaller, oats followed corn.

Provisions touched a new high price record for the season. Influenced by grain and by talk of further scarcity of hogs.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Dec. 5.—Curb prices bounded upward in the early part of today's market and then reacted in sympathy with the heavy selling movement on the "big board."

Heavy profit-taking by professional traders was noted in the oil group Illinois Pipe broke 8 points, Standard Oil of Ohio 5 and Vacuum, Prairie Oil and Gas, South Pennsylvania and Gulf sold off one to two points.

Radio shares responded favorably to reports of unusually large Christmas sales. Dubilier, Huzelitne and Ware each gained a point while Thermodyne crossed 15 to a new top figure.

Other industrials were mixed. Lehigh Valley coal, the most active feature, climbed about 3 points to 44 1-2 and net gains of one to three points were recorded by Continental Baking preferred, Curtiss Airplane, Lackawanna Coal and Silica Gel certificates. Ford Motors of Canada, Dunhill International, National Tea and Yellow Taxi of New York were heavy.

Public utilities also displayed considerable irregularity, a gain of nearly three points in Commonwealth Power and 2 1-2 in American Gas and Electric being counteracted by a drop of 2 1-4 points in American Power and Light common and a point in Middle West Utilities.

The feature of the bond list was the heavy trading in Standard Gas and Electric, which improved fractionally.

COTTON.

New York, Dec. 5.—Cotton spot quiet; middling 23.30.

MONEY.

New York, Dec. 5.—Call money steady; high 3; low 3; ruling rate 3; closing bid 3; offered at 3 1-4; last loan 3; call loans against acceptances 3 1-2; time loans: steady; mixed collateral, 60-90 days 3 1-4@3 1-2; 4-6 months 3 1-2@3 3-4; prime commercial paper 3 1-2.

METAL MARKET.

New York, Dec. 5.—Copper firm. Electrolytic spot and futures 14 1-4. Tin steady, spot and futures 55.25. Iron steady; prices unchanged. Lead steady. Spot 8.65@9.00. Zinc steady. East St. Louis spot and futures 6.95@7.00. Antimony, spot 14.37.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

New York.

Stocks: Irregular; U. S. Distributing preferred soars 20 points.

Bonds: Higher; many low-priced rails at new tops.

Foreign exchanges: Lower; sterling slightly reactionary.

Cotton: Barely steady; larger crop estimates.

Sugar: Lower; larger Cuban crop estimates.

Coffee: firm; higher Brazilion markets.

Chicago.

Wheat: higher; bullish Argentine reports.

Corn: firm; unfavorable weather.

Cattle: steady to strong.

Hogs: lower; record receipts.

It is difficult to convince the average man that he isn't as clever as he thinks he is.

Mentioned For Secretary Of Agriculture

KEYSTONE VIEW CO., NEW YORK

Daniel A. Wallace, Minnesota farm paper editor, who is greatly favored for the post of Secretary of Agriculture, to succeed his brother, the late Henry C. Wallace, of Iowa. He has the endorsement of many farm organizations.

THOMPSON

Rev. and Mrs. S. T. Livingstone have returned from a visit with their daughter in White Plains, N. Y.

The Orpheus club of Webster is to give a program in the town hall for the benefit of the Brandy Hill church.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Amidon of Stafford Springs and Mrs. A. E. Knight were at H. P. Amidon's on Thanksgiving day.

Dr. and Mrs. R. C. Paine and Hamilton were with Woodstock relatives on Thanksgiving day.

Mrs. Harriet Munyan had 12 at dinner Thanksgiving, including Miss Cora Baldwin, of Worcester.

Under the direction of Mrs. J. J. Bemblow, chaplain, an interesting program, Reminiscences of Long Ago, was given at the last grange meeting, chorus, Love's Old Sweet Song; reading, An Old Fashioned Man, Mr. Kimball; duets, Lena Smith and Mrs. Arthur Peterson; reading, The Old Swimming Hole, Mr. Dunleavy; The Old Rail Fence, E. S. Backus; The District School, Mrs. Bemblow; The Old Fireplace, Mrs. Amidon; duets, Louis Smith and Fred Bemblow. The next meeting is to be the annual Christmas social.

The Thimble club meets next Thursday with Mrs. John Bemblow. An out of town speaker is expected.

Mrs. A. V. Reynolds and children of Worcester, have been visiting at Mrs. Nathan Chase's.

CANTERBURY GREEN

An interesting meeting in the interest of the schools was held on Sunday evening with an address by the supervisor, Mr. Floyd, and with several songs by the school children. Next Sunday evening the C. E. society will hold their regular consecration meeting.

A most gratifying report of the results of the recent every-member canvass was given at the Sunday morning service. The amount pledged for the ensuing year is double that of last year. Fourteen absent members and friends have responded. Many thanks are due Mrs. James Lathrop, who planned the canvass, and those who helped carry on the work of soliciting the funds necessary for church expenses.

The Young People's club gathered at the town hall Monday evening; Miss Fidelia Campbell was elected president. The next meeting will be held at the home of Miss Christine Gunnerson.

The Ladies' Aid society met with Mrs. Cornell at Black Hill Tuesday afternoon. A quilt was tied and other work accomplished. The officers elected for the following year are: Mrs. Milo Appley, president; Mrs. Sager, vice president; Mrs. Hawes, secretary and treasurer, with a work committee of four, Mrs. Hawes, Mrs. Minnie Towne, Mrs. Sager and Mrs. Paetsch. A sale and chicken pie supper will be held next week at the church.

Several local people were in Plainfield Tuesday evening to attend the bazaar held by the church there.

Columbus Smith, who has been visiting at Nelson Lyon's, returned to his home last week.

Thad Wilson is home after an absence of several weeks.

Mrs. Henry Larkham is visiting this week in Willimantic, the guest of Mrs. Jesse French.

The grange at its regular meeting Wednesday evening conferred the third and fourth degrees on a class of ten. A bountiful harvest supper was served at the close of the meeting.

There was a pleasant affair last Saturday evening at Grange hall, when Mr. and Mrs. William Wright entertained a party of guests in honor of the 25th anniversary of their marriage. The hall was tastefully decorated with pink and white festoons draped from a large white bell in the center. A short entertainment of songs, recitations and music was followed by refreshments of chicken sandwiched, sandwiches, cake and coffee. Krause's orchestra of Plainfield furnished music for dancing. Mr. and Mrs. Wright were the recipients of many handsome and appropriate gifts as well as many good wishes and congratulations.

A swarm of gnats, estimated at several millions, which locked in the cornice of the First National Bank Building at Connellsville, Pa., caused a fire alarm to be sounded. A pedestrian saw what he believed to be smoke issuing from the cornice but the firemen could discover no blaze. It was found that the swarming of the gnats appeared from the sidewalk to be just like smoke.

tell. Once only did I balk. I got ill, packed all my belongings, mostly toys I had made and stored in my pretty box all covered with house paper. I intended to slip out about midnight, but Sis found me out in time. It seemed she was so tired she threw herself on to her bed without undressing. When she awoke it was nearly midnight. She must have heard me, for she looked in at my door. When she saw me fully dressed and with hat and coat on she was some surprised. It took her some time to change my mind. I couldn't make her see the situation as I saw it. I was going to find a good home somewhere and then come back for her. But she wouldn't let me go. She cried some and soon we were both crying. She wouldn't go to bed but dropped down across the foot of my bed and said "If you move I shall know it." Clothes didn't burden us much those days. I wore no underwear, just my outside shirt, pants and jumper, all made from Kentucky jean. Sister wore mostly what others didn't want. Sometimes they fitted, more times they did not. THE WEATHER
The Conditions

The southwestern disturbance has continued to move northeastward and it was central Friday night over Lake Michigan. It has been attended by precipitation mostly in the form of rain from the Missouri and lower Mississippi valleys eastward to the Atlantic coast except in Maine.

The temperature was higher Friday in the Lake region and in portions of the Atlantic states. The indications are for considerable cloudiness over the states east of the Mississippi river during the next two days and local rains are probable in portions of the North Atlantic states Saturday. The temperature will not change materially before Sunday night, except that it will rise Saturday in New England.

Winds

North of Sandy Hook: Strong shifting becoming westerly, weather overcast Saturday, rain Saturday morning.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Fresh to strong southwest and weather mostly overcast Saturday.

Forecast

Northern New England: Rain or snow and warmer Saturday, Sunday fair.

For Southern New England: Cloudy and slightly warmer Saturday, probably preceded by rain in early morning in eastern Massachusetts, Sunday fair.

Observations in Norwich

	Ther.	Bar.
7 a. m.	30	30.20
12 m.	28	30.10
6 p. m.	40	30.00

Highest 40; lowest 20.

Comparisons

Predictions for Friday: Increasing cloudiness, followed by rain or snows.

Friday's weather: Threatening, sleet followed by rain in evening, easterly wind.

TAFTVILLE

The monthly business meeting of the St. Veronica T. A. & B. society was held Wednesday evening in the society rooms on Providence street, with a large attendance. The president, Miss Louis White, presided, and following the transaction of business refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed.

James MacAulay entertained a number of his little friends at a birthday party Thursday afternoon at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas MacAulay of North B street. The youngsters spent the afternoon playing games and refreshments of ice cream, cake, candy and lemonade were served by Mrs. MacAulay. The young host received many handsome gifts. Those present were Edmund Paquin, Lewis Aberg, Wilfred Watts, Lester Roberts, Rita Tetreault, Elsie Airey, Grace Fogarty and Jean MacAulay.

Mr. and Mrs. Hormisdas Gladue and son Leo of Providence street, and Mr. and Mrs. William Carson of Norwich avenue have left for New Bedford, Mass., to attend the funeral of Frederick F. Kilpatrick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kilpatrick, former residents of Taftville.

Miss Katrina Fritzshe has arrived from Germany to make her home with her brother, Walter Fritzshe of North B street.

The water is very low in the Shetucket river. Friday the entire river above the Ponemah mills dam, was covered with a thin coating of ice throughout the day, for the first time this season.

Theophile Parent, a former Taftville resident, who moved from the village to occupy a farm he purchased in Vermont, near the Canadian border, was a caller at the home of Taftville friends, Friday.

Henry Phaneuf presided at the regular monthly meeting of the St. Louis society which was held Friday evening in the society's hall on Dion street.

Frost in the ground of the rogue courts on Ponemah Heights has put an end to the games there each Saturday afternoon. Because of the mild fall, the members of the various rogue clubs were able to continue playing later than usual. The poor condition of the courts has now put an end to the fun of players who would not hesitate about playing in zero weather, if the courts were in condition. The equipment was removed from the grounds this week, and will be stored until next spring.

A large Shepherd, commonly known as German police dog, in the back seat of an automobile parked on Merchants avenue Friday, with the owner no where in sight, created quite a disturbance by snarling and snapping at people who passed the car. Two or three children, evidently thinking that the dog was inclined to play, approached the car and tried to pet the animal, but were quickly stopped by one of the residents of the street, who saw that the dog meant business.

Alfred Edmundson, at one time overseer of weaving in Ponemah mills, was a caller in town Friday.

Frank Smith of New Haven was a caller on friends in town, Friday.

Some of the mill houses on South B street are being shingled.

A great many pieces of mail received at the local postoffice bear the tuberculosis commission seals. Many holiday cards are also passing through the local office, in spite of the fact that Christmas is about three weeks away.

While it may be too early to cut Christmas trees, one property owner who owns several acres of woodland near the village, said Friday that some one had been at work with an axe on his land. Small cedar trees had been cut down and the branches trimmed from the main trunk, as though they were to be used for some decorating purpose. It is against the law and punishable by heavy fine to cut any evergreens or laurel on private property without the consent of the owner. Ten or twelve small trees have been cut down in this case, and the branches have been removed, the bare trunk was left on the ground. An effort will be made to find out the names of those who were so ready with the axe.

Gaston Chancereile of Providence street has resigned his position with the No. 1 spinning and spooling department of the Ponemah company.

Mrs. Joseph E. Bessiton has been ill at her home on North B street.

Mrs. Rose Stevens, who has been ill for several weeks, has given up her house on South C street, and with her children, is making her home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Prime Dugas of South A street.

PETITIONS FOR COURT RULING TO USE TRADING COVE BROOK WATER

In furtherance of the plan to erect the pumping station at Trading Cove brook, to meet the present emergency in the Norwich water supply, the board of water commissioners has presented a petition before the superior court for a finding that the small reservoir to be erected near the brook is of public convenience and necessity and will not be detrimental to the public health.

Judge G. E. Hinman has set next Friday morning at 10 o'clock in this city as the time to give a hearing upon the petition, which has been drawn by Corporation Counsel William H. Shields, Jr. It gives the following reasons for the petition:

"That the two reservoirs now owned by the city now contain a supply of water sufficient for the use of its consumers for only thirty days and at present parts of the pipe lines of the city are without water due to the lowering of water in said reservoirs and an emergency exists for an immediate further supply of water for said city.

That the City of Norwich, petitioner, by the board of water commissioners for the city of Norwich now proposes to establish and locate upon land now owned by Jesse H. Rogers and Prudence T. Rogers in the town of Montville in said New London county near the southerly bank of Trading Cove brook, a small reservoir into which the waters of Trading Cove Brook may be diverted and from which said waters may be pumped into the pipe line running to the city of Norwich from the Stony Brook reservoir, owned by said city and located in said located is of public convenience and town of Montville.

That said reservoir so proposed t obe necessity on account of the present low water condition of the two reservoirs of the city and the need of the inhabitants of said city of water for fire protection and for domestic use and said reservoir so proposed is also of public convenience and necessity as a protection against a water shortage on the part of said city and its inhabitants in the future.

That said reservoir so proposed to be located will be within one-half mile of a small cemetery known as the West Plain cemetery located in the said town of Norwich northerly of said Trading Cove Brook.

"That Trading Cove brook above said location for said reservoir has a large water shed and a large constant flow of water and said proposed location is the only practical location that can be obtained by the said city for an emergency supply of water.

That said reservoir so proposed to be located will not be detrimental to the public health."

Water Analyzed

As has already been stated, samples of the Trading Cove brook water have been analyzed by the laboratory of the state department of health, which has found that the water is fit for domestic use when properly chlorinated, as it will be when passing through the chlorinating plant on the Stony Brook 24-inch pipe line before the water enters the city pipes for general distribution.

Four or five Norwich citizens, including G. Warren Davis of the Corning road, where there is no city water, recently made a personal appearance at the state department of health where they saw Dr. Osborn, head of the department, and attorney general Healey, before whom they made a protest over the location of the pumping station on the Trading Cove brook on the grounds of the nearness of the cemetery and they also registered their protest over chlorination, which, according to one of those who attended the conference, was declared by the attorney general not to be a sure protection against typhoid infection as had been proved in the case of Torrington.

THREE DIVORCES GRANTED TO PETITIONING WIVES

Three divorces, one on the grounds of desertion and two on the grounds of intolerable cruelty, were granted by Judge G. E. Hinman in the superior court here Friday morning. All were on the uncontested list.

Lillian Cruise Noble of New London secured divorce from Juvenal C. Noble of the same place on the ground of intolerable cruelty from June 1, 1918, which was about a year after the time they were married June 13, 1917 in Bridgeport. They have a daughter six years old.

Caroline Groppelli Zerrilli of New London was granted divorce from Angelo Zerrilli, formerly of New London, now of parts unknown. The divorce was on the ground of intolerable cruelty since Nov. 1, 1920. They were married July 20, 1918, in New London and have a four year old daughter.

Desertion since March 1, 121, was the ground upon which Beatrice Hamilton Sword of New London was granted divorce from Wm. F. Sword, formerly of Providence, now of parts unknown. They were married June 5, 1913 at Wakefield, R. I. She was given the custody of a five year old son, but not of a seven year old daughter.

The suit of Florence O. Veinotte against Maurice W. Veinotte was postponed and the suit of Annie Ericson against Albert Ericson went off the list.

Mrs. Gardner's Song Goes Big.

The Chicago American and the New York Journal were among papers which gave most flattering notices and pictures of the singer, following the broadcasting Wednesday from WGBS of Negro spirituals, by Mrs. Leila Troland Gardner, of New York, a native of Norwich. A number of requests were sent to the station by people who heard and appreciated Mrs. Gardner's singing and who especially praised her own setting of "Ol' Man Trubble."

East Side School Progress

At the new East Side school building, Contractor W. S. Spencer has about 20 men at work and Friday the workers were pouring cement for the foundation walls.

An effort is being made to push work in all departments. The O'Neill Company's men are busy with wiring the building. J. A. Fitzgerald is getting on well with the laying of the water supply pipes.

MISSIONS DEPT. WORKS AT ALL-DAY MEETING

An all-day meeting of the missions department of the Woman's Guild of the United Congregational church was held Friday at the Community house, Church street. The women worked on surgical dressings and layettes for a hospital in Greeneville, South Carolina, this being the only hospital for miles around that section that takes cars of colored people. The surgical dressings were in charge of Miss Mary Lucas and Mrs. Fred Lester.

At noon there was a cafeteria luncheon served under the direction of Charitable Circle, K. D. During the afternoon Rev. Henry M. Bowden, director of foreign speaking work at Ellis Island, addressed the women. Dr. Bowden told in an interesting way his activities at Ellis Island. Clothing was received at the meeting to be packed and sent to F. J. Werking, a teacher at Atlanta university, the clothing being intended for the poor colored people at the university. Mr. Werking was at one time a resident of Norwich. Miss Mary Lucas had charge of the devotional part of the meeting and Mrs. Harriet Mitchell presided at the piano. There was a large attendance at the meeting.

Foley Pills Reached the Sore Spot.
Mrs. Ellen Reighard, South Fork, Pa., writes: "I had been suffering with my kidneys and nothing seemed to touch the aching spot until I procured Foley Pills, with wonderful results." CHRISTMAS BAZAAR AT METHODIST CHURCH CLOSES

A baked bean supper and an old folks concert brought to a close Friday evening the annual three-day Christmas bazaar of Trinity M. E. church. There was a good attendance in spite of the stormy evening. The supper menu was as follows:

Baked Beans	Cold Meat
Cabbage Salad	Potato Salad
Apple Pie	Cheese
Rolls	Tea Coffee

About 8 o'clock the Old Folks Concert was given by the Loyalty class, assisted by a quartette and soloists, Mrs. William Crowe, Jr., Mrs. Henry E. Church, Lyle Fillmore, William Rush, Miss Mae L. Guile and Milford E. Newbury. Priscilla at her Spinning was given by Miss Eunice Taft and reading by Miss Isabel Shearer.

The bazaar which was in general charge of Mrs. E. M. Newbury proved very successful.

GOLDBLATT MANAGER OF CLARK COLLEGE DEBATORS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Worcester, Mass., Dec. 5.—Leo A. Goldblatt, a resident of Norwich, Conn., and a member of the senior class at Clark college, was last night named a member of the college debating team for the coming year. Mr. Goldblatt, who is manager of the team, announced after the try-outs that negotiations were under way for debates with the University of Maine, Holy Cross, Colby, City college of New York, Springfield college and Temple college of Philadelphia, Pa. The question to be used in all debates will be, "Resolved, That the United States Should Recognize Soviet Russia."

Mr. Goldblatt is president of the Pi Alpha and Menorah fraternities and the Tau Kappa Alpha honorary debating fraternity.

CONNECTICUT ACCIDENT REPORTS AMONG BEST

Connecticut, Maryland and Massachusetts have been reported to United States Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover as states which have the most complete procedure in the country for following up traffic accidents. The scheme of anaylsis of motor vehicle accidents employed in the Connecticut motor vehicle department is described in a printed report of the committee on statistics which is to be submitted to the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety to be held in Washington, December 15, 16 and 17 under the auspices of the United States Department of Commerce.

"A study of the motor vehicle laws of the forty-eight states and the District of Columbia shows that most states have some provision for reporting traffic accidents," says the report. "Few, however, make the requirement in such a way that any centralized statistics are available. Eight require personal injury cases to be reported to the commissioner of motor vehicles or equivalent officer. Some of them also require reports on all accidents involving property damage in excess of a small minimum amount. The eight states are: Connecticut, Maryland, Massachusetts, Vermont, New Jersey, New York, Rhode Island and West Virginia." Twenty states reported that no traffic accident data are collected.

Accidents on the streets and highways of the United States reached the amazing total of 22,500 killed and 678,000 injured in 1923, and an economic loss of more than $600,000,000. Connecticut accidents resulted in 289 deaths, 4,872 injured and an economic loss approaching $8,000,000.

Eight Connecticut men are members of the sub-committees that have been invited to attend Secretary Hoover's safety conference. They are: Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel, a member of the committee on traffic control; Professor J. G. Tracy and Professor C. J. Tilden of Yale university, who co-operated with the state motor vehicle department in analysis of last year's accidents; C. L. Bardo, general manager of the "New Haven" road, chairman of the committee on grade crossing protection and trespassing of the American Railway Association; David Van Schaack, director of the Bureau of Inspecton and Accident Prevention of the Aetna Life Insurance Co.; William BroSmith, vice president and general counsel of the Travelers Insurance Co.; Samuel Ludlow, Jr., vice president of the First Reinsurance Co., of Hartford; and Commissioner of Education Albert B Meredith.

CHRISTMAS SALE AND SUPPER BIG SUCCESS

The Ladies Aid society of the Third Baptist church held a very successful Christmas sale and meat pie supper in the vestry of the church Friday afternoon, both receiving good patronage. The sale which began at 3 o'clock consisted of fancy work, aprons, food and candy and from 5:30 to 7 the supper of meat pie, mashed potato, mashed turnip, cabbage salad, pickles, rolls, cake and coffee was served.

The affair was in charge of the society president Mrs. William A. Lund, who was ably assisted by Mrs. Herbert Peckham and Mrs. William Sweet at the fancy work table, Mrs. Irving Larkin, food table, Mrs. Archie Furbush, candy table, Mrs. William Grant, apron table. The supper committee comprised, Mrs. George A. Howard, chairman, Mrs. Harry Conkin, Mrs. Elmer Mulkin, Mrs. James Spicer, Mrs. Christ Wunderlick, Mrs. Gottlieb Haisch and Mrs. Walter Orrell, Mrs. Henry Sebastian had charge of the grab bag. The waitresses were Mrs. Wilfred Duberger and the Misses Doris Lund, Jennie Sebastian, Dorothy Conklin, and Minnie Quinley.

The World Wide guild and the G. G. class of the Sunday school had variety tables which were in charge of Mrs. Henry Sebastian, Miss Elinor Howard and Miss Mable Quinley. After the sale and supper the winter bouquets which were used in decorating the vestry were sold. A good sized sum was realized for the treasury.

The other officers elected were: Secretary Gladys Thornes, treasurer, Gertrude Amburn, chairman of the literature committee, Marion Lathrop; program committee, Edna Jones; membership committee, Lillian Crumb; social committee Rose Thornes.

During the evening refreshments were served by the hostess.

APPRAISERS NAMED IN MYSTIC WATER CASE

Hibberd R. Norman and James L. Case of this city, with Sidney H. Miner of New London have been named by Judge G. E. Hinman of the superior court as appraisers in the petition of the Mystic Valley Water Co. to acquire real estate of Mathias and Emma Grisar of Stonington, which the power company wants for its reservoir property.

VIEWS ACCIDENT SCENE AND HEARS ARGUMENTS

Judge George E. Hinman of the superior court went by automobile about noon Friday to the point on the Norwich-Westerly highway at its function with the Ledyard Center road where there was an automobile collision between the motor truck of Courey Bros., Norwich grocers, and the touring car of William M. Eastwood of this city. Trial of the Courey suit against Mr. Eastwood for 1,000 damages was held in court this week. Judge Hinman drove his own car and was accompanied by the attorneys in the suit, J. J. Desmond for the plaintiff and E. W. Perkins for the defendant, who later in the day made their arguments in the case before Judge Hinman in the superior court. The judge reserved decision.

Three messengers of the Pacific Gas & Electric company were held up in front of the company's office in San Francisco and robbed of $41,000.

POETRY

TIMES GO BY TURNS.

The lopped trees in time may grow again
Most naked plants renew both fruit and flower;
The sorriest wight may find release of pain,
The driest soil suck in some moistening shower;
Times go by turns, and chances change by course,
From foul to fair, from better hap to worse.

The sea of Fortune doth not ever flow,
She draws her favors to the lowest ebb
Her tides have equal times to come and go,
Her loom doth weave the fine and coarsest web;
No joy so great but runneth to an end
No hap so hard but may in fine amend

Not always fall of leaf, nor ever spring
No endless night, yet not eternal day;
The saddest birds a season find to sing,
The roughest storm a calm may soon allay;
Thus, with succeeding turns, God tempereth all,
That man may hope to rise, yet fear to fall.

A chance may win that by mischance was lost;
That net that holds no great, takes little fish;
In some things all, in all things none are crossed;
Few all they need; but none have all they wish.
Unmingled joys here to no man befall
Who least, hath some; who most, hath never all.

—Robert Southwell.

"LET ME ENJOY."

Let me enjoy the earth no less
Because the all-enacting Might
That fashioned forth its loveliness
Had other aims than my delight.

About my path there flits a Fair,
Who throws me not a word or sign;
I will find charm in her uncare,
And laud those lips not meant for mine

From manuscripts of moving song
Inspired by scenes and souls unknown,
I'll pour out raptures that belong
To others, as they were my own.

Perhaps some day, toward Paradise
And all its blest—if such should be—
I shall lift glad, afar-off eyes,
Though it contains no place for me.

—Thomas Hardy.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Did my foreman tell you what you will have to do?

Yes, sir, he told me to wake him up when I see you coming.—Judy's Magazine.

Passenger (after the first night on board ship)—I say! Where have my clothes gone?

Steward—Where did you put them?

Passenger—In that little cupboard there, with the glass door to it.

Steward: Bless me, sir! That ain't no cupboard. That's a porthole!—Exchange.

That is so.

Well, what reduction could be made if I supplied the paint?—Manchester Chronicle.

PUBLIC EXHIBITION MORGAN COLLECTION OF MANUSCRIPTS

Beginning Today They Will Be on View Until March 1 in the Main Exhibition Hall of the New York Library—Original Manuscripts and Drawings by British Authors—First General Showing of Many Works That Are Considered Almost Priceless—From the Pierpont Morgan Library.

New York, Dec. 7.—(By the A. P.)—The choices of the Pierpont Morgan library's original manuscripts and drawings by British authors will be offered for public view in the main exhibition hall of the New York public library tomorrow.

For this occasion, which will make the first general public showing of many works that are considered almost priceless, J. P. Morgan himself directed the selection and installation of the display.

The exhibition was arranged, however, by trustees to whom, for perpetuity as a memorial to his father, Mr. Morgan last February deeded the $7,000,000 collection founded by the late Pierpont Morgan, and the magnificent marble edifice near the Morgan family residence in the old Murray Hill section where the collection was housed.

The present exhibition will remain on view until March 1. It consists of original manuscripts, documents and letters of British authors, in prose, poem or drawing, displayed in a three hundred foot sequence from William Dunbar's fifteenth century manuscript "Tretabus, Thou Art the Flower ... James M." to Andrew Lang's twentieth century "Ode to Golf" and Rudyard Kipling's "Verses Written for Nicholson's Almanac of Twelve Sorts."

That Mr. Morgan had inherited from his father an almost boyish enthusiasm for rare manuscripts and drawings was evident to the small group of newspaper men whom he conducted through the exhibition before it was thrown open to the public.

He seemed to have memorized the contents of each of the documents, in faded ink most of them, and in all manner of script, from the flowing signature of Sir Thomas Moore on the lease of his home, Crosby Hall, in 1523, the microscopic penmanship of Charlotte employed upon "Arthuriana, or odds and ends."

"See, there is Milton's manuscript for Book I of Paradise Lost, just as the printer received it," explained Mr. Morgan. "I say manuscript, Milton having been blind at the time, he dictated his work and this probably is the script of his sister Anne or his secretary.

Some of the names most noted in literature were represented by only a few specimens, others by scores. There were John Dryden's panegyrical poem Eleonora dedicated to the memory of the Countess of Abingdon; the original essay concerning human understanding of John Locke; a letter from Samuel Pepys to a fellow member of Pepys navy office account; Sir Isaac Newton's notes for a loan and counter a letter to Alexander Pope and signed with the "Thousand Symptom" in which Jonathan Swift offered Gulliver's Travels to a reluctant publisher.

There were the life of Alexander Pope, of Samuel Johnson, a letter in which Dr. Johnson described a journey with James Boswell, and Boswell's own letters recording impressions of Dr. Johnson. There was Laurence Sterne's Memoranda Left With Mrs. Montague in Case I Die Abroad" and drafts of "Tristram Shandy" there were Alexander Pope's "Essay on Man" and 19 of his letters to Lady Mary Wortley, leader of London's literary coterie of blue stockings; Thomas Gray's "Odes," the first book to be printed by the Strawberry Press, Edmund Burke's will and a dozen of Robert Burns' scribbled poems with his later revision.

"This shows how Pope worked," commented Mr. Morgan, pointing to a manuscript of Epistle I. Essay of of Man, which contained so many deletions, transpositions and insertions that looked like and undephirable maze of penscratchings. "After all, it takes some trouble to be a poet."

"Wonder what this painter said when he got one of these things to decipher," wondered a reporter. Mr. Morgan laughed. "I confess I have been more concerned with the trials of the poet than of the printer," he said. He later pointed to a manuscript of the Corsair, which was among many of George Gordan Byron's works on display. The Morgan yacht is "The Corsair."

"Father was particularly keen to have that one," he said. "So of course when the opportunity came, I had to have it." When he came to the John Keats section he quoted, without consulting the faded penmanship under the glass lid, for Meg Merrles as Keats wrote in a letter to his sister Fanny:

There was a naughty boy
And a naughty boy was he
And he kept little fishes
In a washing tub three. . . .

"Delightful, isn't it?" commented Mr. Morgan. He quoted again from Captain Frederick Marryats "Mr. Middlimen Easy" saying, "How I used to read that and how I liked it when I was a boy. And I still do."

Highlights in the exhibit which Mr. Morgan appeared especially proud of were the originals of Lalla Rookh by Thomas Moore; Leigh Hunt's "Abou Ben Adhem" as he copied it for Mrs. James T. Fields of Boston and as she presented it to Pierpont Morgan; that the present Mr. Morgan calls some of the very best of Robert Browning's work, Christmas Carol in prose—being a ghost story ow Christmas by Charles Dickens; "Vanity Fair" by William Maxepeace Thackeray, with a series of that author-artist's caricatures in colors for his own books; Alfred Tennyson's "The Brook," James Thompson's "The City of Dreadful Night," Oscar Wilde's "The Picture of Dorian Gray;" Thomas Hardy's "Emeline" or Passion Versus Principle"; and "A Ballade of Jakko Hill" by Rudyard Kipling.

"It has taken me several years to see all those things," Mr. Morgan said.

HOLDUP MAN KILLED TWO; WOUNDED FIVE OTHERS

South Bend, Ind., Dec. 7.—No trace has been found of the unidentified robber who late yesterday, accompanied Raymond L. Mosely, Boston, Mass., when he shot and killed two men and wounded five others in an attempted holdup of a soft drink parlor here, police announced tonight.

Mosley's condition is critical as a result of being struck by a hammer by one of his victims. Police said he did all the shooting his companion having been unarmed. Police believe he had been drinking.

The dead men are Harry E. Eaton, 30 and Elmer Chapman, 40.

Mosely was pulled with a hammer by Homer Curry while he escaped from the scene of the holdup according to information to the police. The two men entered the place and ordered patrons and others to put up their hands. The robbers had collected about $40 when Ratcliff was reached and resisted, it was said. He was shot and killed by Mosely, according to police.

The men ran from the place and commandeered the automobile of Stanley Polmarzek, who was shot and wounded. The robbers sped out of the city and in passing the farm of C. L. Dunn attempted to take his automobile and when he resisted he was shot and stabbed wounded.

The robbers then abandoned their car near the Dunn farm and started walking. They encountered a road gang nearby, however, and engaged in a dispute with them killing Cauffman. Curry, another member of the crew, struck the robber with a sledge hammer. As Mosely fell he fired at Curry and wounded him slightly.

C. L. Dunn was the only one of the five who was seriously hurt.

TWO MEN SLAIN IN CHICAGO; POLICEMAN WAS A VICTIM

Chicago, Dec. 7.—Two men were slain in Chicago today one of them a police officer, Ascott Burgeson, who is reported to have been killed in a fight with gangsters. The other man, Stanley Szymanski, was shot and killed by a fellow bandit.

Three men, Walter Gerome, William Flewelling and Edward Ezekiel, were taken into custody in connection with the death of the policeman. They said that they had accompanied Burgeson on a tour of roadhouses northwest of the city.

They told Police Captain Albert Christenson that when passing a roadhouse near Cassville on their way they came upon six men struggling with a woman, when they attempted to rescue her six other men came out of the cabaret and set upon them. The three men fled, not noticing that Burgeson was not with them. A block away, the men declared, they noted the policeman's absence and went back to the scene of the fight and found that the woman and the other men had fled. Burgeson lay senseless on the ground. The men took him to a hospital where he was pronounced dead.

60 FOREIGN COMMUNISTS EXPELLED FROM FRANCE

Paris, Dec. 7 (By the A. P.).—The French government's secret police today pushed sixty foreign communists agents over the French frontiers and announced a policy of weeding out foreign agitators in line with Premier Herriot's belief that the menace of a red peril comes rather from foreigners than from French communists.

Those who were expelled today on warrants comprised 43 Italians, 7 Belgians, 6 Poles, 1 Jugoslav, 1 Swiss, 1 Swede and 1 German.

Women, it declares, should be told that communism promises equal pay and better treatment for them, and an allowance during childbirth. It says youth should be promised money for education and that discontent should be fostered everywhere under the new organization of "cells." Special instructions are given for a regular census on automobiles and all stores of arms and ammunition.

DOG GAVE ALARM FOR APARTMENT HOUSE FIRE

New York Dec. 7.—Bismark, a dog, gave an alarm of fire by violent barking early this morning, and 25 tenants of a West Side apartment made their way to safety from flames which partially destroyed the lower floors of the building.

But Bismark's efforts could not save his best friend, Eugene Sexton, the janitor, who was asleep in the basement and who was burned to death despite the struggles of the dog to hurl himself through the closed door.

TWO CHINESE WERE SHOT IN SPRINGFIELD

Springfield, Mass., Dec. 7.—Two members of the On Leong tong were shot and seriously wounded early tonight in the first outbreak of the tong war in this city. Both victims were taken to a hospital where their condition was reported as critical. Two assailants, believed to be gunmen of the Hip Sing tong, escaped, after dropping their revolvers at the door of the Chinese grocery where the shooting took place.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

To Tour Irish Boundary

London, Dec. 7.—The Irish boundary commission today in a communication announced its intention to make a tour of investigation of Ireland to look over the districts involved in the boundary question and to acquaint self with economic and geograp conditions.

For Invasion of Hondur...

Hanagua, Nicaragu, Dec. 7.—General Julio Peralta with five hundred troops, is near the frontier preparing for a new invasion of Honduras from Nacaragua, according to reports received here. It is asserted that it is the plan of Peralta to joint General Ferrera, the revolutionary chief, in another attempt to overthrow President Tosta.

SOCIALISTS SHOW HEAVY GAINS OVER COMMUNISTS

Berlin, Dec. 7.—(By the A. P.)—Germany went to the polls today to elect a reichstag and a new Prussian diet. The three liberal parties—socialists, clericals and democrats led by Chancellor Marx, have centered their efforts on the defense of the republic, as opposed to the nationalist, led by Admiral Von Tirpitz and Count Von Westarp; Stresemanns German People's party, and the fascisti party under General Ludendorff.

A survey of scattering returns from more than 75 metropolitan and provincial election districts late tonight credits the socialists with heavy gains over the communists. The democrats also are liberally exceeding their vote of last May, while the German people's party appears to be absorbing the vote lost by the German nationalists.

General Ludendorff's national freedom party has suffered heavy losses in districts which formerly returned a majority for it. Thus far its losses in Bavaria are especially conspicuous.

At mid-night the reselection of Ludendorff was quite uncertain owing to the party's failure to carry a sufficient number of districts to insure him the necessary surplus vote as candidate-at-large.

The future of liberalism in Germany and the ability of Germany to keep unimpaired the continuity of her post-war economic recovery will be heavily influenced by the outcome of today's voting for the new reichstag and the Prussion diet.

If the Prussian reactionaries, who are the traditional and irreconcilable foes of German democracy, are repulsed in their cherished ambition to acquire control of the Prussion diet, and the national electorate returns a reichstag which will be definitely dominated by the socialists, democrats and clericals, Germany will be enabled to settle down to a concerted and co-ordinated attempt to work out her political, economic and social salvation along the rules laid down by the Dawes reparation plan.

While this plan has been formally accepted and has been in operation for three months, a government which failed to command a clear majority in parliament would constantly find itself at the mercy of growing opposition elements, comprising not only the German nationalists and communists, but also the habitually uncertain German peoples party.

International reconciliation and internal unity which is essential to Germany's rehabilitation, would be a difficult achievement if the reactionary and ultra radical parties were returned in their previous strength, according to the belief of Chancellor Marx and other leaders, who have sought to win the voters over to a program of constructive national policies.

Among the eventualities suggested as the outcome of the balloting is the return of the former so-called Wirth coalition, comprising socialists, clericals and democrats, on the assumption that their combined mandates would give them a secure majority. Another prospect is suggested by the proposition to include Stresemann's people's party in such coalition, in the belief that as it would be the smallest partner in the four party combine its influence in the cabinet would be restricted. The primary purpose of uniting the industrialistes in a four party ministry would be to force them to assume responsibility in the conduct of the government, and incidentally eliminate them from the opposional forces on the floor of the reichstag.

A third solution might be found in the move to permit the Marx-Stresemann cabinet to continue in office until May, when the first post-war popular election for president is to take place. Such an arrangement is believed to be feasible if the socialists agree to tolerate the present minority cabinet, on condition that it would continue its present programme of internal and foreign policies as determined by the experts' report.

If the last mentioned solution to the parliamentary situation arising out of the elections is adopted a general reconstruction of the government would be undertaken next spring, and it is considered improbable that Ebert would assume the chancellorship. Dr. Marx being elected to succeed him in the presidency.

Transcending in national significance all consideration of the partisan aspects of the election, is the general verdict of the voters to be declared in this election on the question of fortifying the republic and the Weimar constitution.

Germany is divided into 35 federal election precincts, 28 of which are in Prussia. As Prussia is electing a diet today the official count of the national balloting will be greatly delayed.

Seven million marks are believed to have been spent by the parties in the campaign. The election coming so soon on th May election, virtually ruined all the parties financially.

TWO MEN INJURED WHEN AUTOMOBILE OVERTURNED

Stamford, Dec. 7.—Two men are in Stamford hospital, one in a serious condition, following an automobile accident in Hope street, Glenbrook, this afternoon. Michael Valenti, of Stamford, received a fracture of the skull and possible internal injuries, and Frank Bosco, also of Stamford, was cut and bruised. The men were riding in an automobile with two others when the machine caught in the car track and overturned. Peter Zurzolla, of New Canaan, driver of the machine, was arrested on a charge of reckless driving and was released under bonds of $2,500.

High Record Made by the U. S. Coast Guard

In Twelve Months Rescued 2,462 Persons From Perilous Positions.

Washington, Dec. 7.—Despite the annually increasing duties loaded onto the United States Coast Guard through new legislation, it was able in the last fiscal year to establish a record in the work for which it was originally created—the protection of life and property on the high seas and prevention of smuggling.

The annual report of the guard, made public tonight, discloses that in the twelve months ending last July 1, men from coast guard boats and stations rescued 2,462 persons from positions of peril and boarded and examined papers of 46,152 ships, 14,499 more than ever inspected in any one year in history.

Much of the additional boarding resulted from the new service of the coast guard as an aid in phohibition enforcement. It has become necessary, the report says, to watch all vessels more closely, to make more detailed inspections of their cargoes, and to watch them farther out at sea since the guard's work has included phohibition enforcement.

Much attention was given by cutter crews in the last year to oceanic conditions and considerable data regarded as highly important to navigation has been gathered by cruising vessels. The international ice patrol, managed and operated by the coast guard for thirteen nations, was able to supply much of this data, which showed that during the year there was an unusual absence of fog and ice in the northern steamer lanes. As a result of experience gained last year and in years previously, the coast guard believes it will be able hereafter, if not handicapped by limited, funds, to give adequate protection to trans-Atlantic shipping.

While the report contains no recommendations, it calls to the attention of the secretary the need for replacement of the veteran cutter, Bear, which last summer made her fifteenth voyage into the Bering and North Pacific waters to carry food and mail to the ice bound settlers of the northernmost communities of America. The Bear failed to get through. The sheathed guard wants congress to appropriate $925,000 for construction of a new boat to carry on the work.

In connection with the work of the ice patrol, the log of the cutter Modoc shows that on April 12 she paused over the spot where twelve years before the Titanic went down with the most appalling death list of any maritime disaster. There, with flags at half staff, prayers were read over the grave of the ill-fated vessel by a representative of the great protective agency established as a result of this disaster, that such may not occur again."

$25,000 PRIZE WAS AWARDED DR. DAVIS STARR JORDAN

Augusta, Me., Dec. 7.—Dr. Davis Starr Jordan, chancellor emeritus of Leland Stanford University, educator, naturalist and author, has been awarded the prize of $25,000 offered by Raphael Herman of Washington, D. C., for the best educational plan calculated to maintain world peace. Announcement of the award was made here today by Dr. Augustus O. Thomas, commissioner of education for Maine and president of the World Federation of Education association, which directed the contest. Thousands of plans were submitted for the consideration of the judges.

The World Federation of Education was organized as an outgrowth of the world conference on education which met at San Francisco in 1923. The award Dr. Thomas explained, differs from that offered by Edward Bok in that it calls for no legislative action and will not be submitted to referendum vote. The plan selected, it was stipulated, must be worldwide and capable of application in all schools.

Dr. Jordan in his plan recommends that "the World Federation make intensive studies of certain matters pertinent to world unity through the continuous operation of appropriate committees on education for peace these to report at stated meetings of the federation and to the various national organizations corresponding to and including our own National Education association, indicating at the same time lines of action likely to contribute toward international accord. Meanwhile one must admit that any specified procedure can be ab best only a step towards the development of enlightened public opinion and co-operation in effecting mutual understanding among peoples."

CONDUCTORS RESENT CHARGE OF DSHONESTY

New Haven, Dec. 7.—Resenting implications that the conductors employed on the trolley cars in this city are dishonest, the New Haven branch of the International Street Car Men's union has adopted a resolution demanding that Alderman George E. Pickop, who made the charge at a meeting of the board of aldermen last Monday, either issue a public retraction of the statement or show proof that the charge is well founded.

Alderman Pickop, during the debate upon the motion to compel the Connecticut company to eliminate the double truck type of one man cars from the streets of the city, is reported to have said:

"The conductors stand on the back end of the two-man cars figuring new ways to knock fares on the company."

COUNTERFEIT BILLS OF LARGE DENOMINATIONS

New Haven, Dec. 7.—Two counterfeit bills of large denominations were passed here over the week end, one being for $50 and the other for $20. The $50 bill was passed in an electrical store in Broadway, where a stranger offered it for a $4.50 electrical flatiron. He received $45.50 in change. The $20 bill was passed in a cigar store in Chapel street, the stranger receiving $19.80 in change after purchasing two cigars. Federal agents have been notified.

Progress Made by The U. S. Treasury

Refunding of $8,044,426,049 Must Be Made by December 1, 1929.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—Satisfactory progress was reported by the trtasury today on the first stage of its gigantic fiscal operation which by December 1, 1929, will require the retirement of the refunding of $8,044,426,049.

The first step in the big programme was the refunding of the treasury notes of 1925, the third Liberty loan four and a quarter percent bonds and treasury certificates maturing March 15 next, in connection with the offering, announced last Monday, of a new issue of 20 to 30 year four per cent. bonds. Assistant Secretary Dewey said today that exchanges of the early maturing securities for the new issue were being received in a way that assured success of the treasury's plan.

It is the intention of the treasury to issue amounts of the new long term bonds to the full extent that maturities of the three issues named are tendered in payment, and subscriptions for the new issue will be received indefinitely for this purpose. Cash subscriptions to the issue were closed Thursday night, and the treasury announced yesterday that it had decided to decline any cash subscriptions in excess of $10,000. It will allot in full all cash subscriptions up to $1,000 but only 65 per cent. of each cash subscription from $1,000 to $10,000, with a minimum of $1,000 to any such purchaser.

The treasury believes that, although the cash requirement necessary from the present offering of bonds is only $2,000,000,000, it has accomplished a wider distribution of the securities than ever had been done in any federal issue before.

Officials pointed to the success of the cash part of the bond issue and the indicated satisfactory results of the exchange features of the offering as proof that the American public was now thoroughly schooled in the value of federal obligations as investment.

In the present use of the big operation to [illegible] Liberty bonds [illegible] Dec. 15 and [illegible] one of the fiscal officers that a big chunk of them will be converted into the new 20 to 30 year securities at this time.

In addition to the third Libertys which are being refunded, the exchange privileges of the new notes the conversion of $400,000,000 of treasury four per cent. certificates and treasury notes to the amount of $397,325,900 both of which mature next March 15.

PUZZLED HOW TO HANDLE GENEVA PEACE PROTOCOL

Rome, Dec. 8.—(By The A. P.)—How to handle the Geneva peace protocol—which is regarded as the great preliminary step toward world disarmament—forms the delicate problem which faces the international statesmen when they meet tomorrow as members of the council of the League of Nations.

Austen Chamberlain, the British foreign secretary whose new conservative government has asked for more time to study this instrument of arbitration and security, saw Premier Mussolini today at luncheon with King Victor Emmanuel and conversed privately with various members of the league council.

There is no attempt to conceal the extraordinary importance which everybody attaches to the attitude of the United States on the protocol, because it is recognized that the protocol can scarcely be expected even to work without at least American neutrality toward it.

FIVE AUTOMOBILES WERE INVOLVED IN COLLISION

Meriden, Dec. 7 When one driver miscalculated in trying to pass another on the Berlin state highway, just north of the Meriden city line early this evening, his machine and four others became involved in a collision which resulted in injury to one woman, considerable damage to the cars and an extensive traffic jam.

Frank J. Wendt, of Wallingford, who was charged by state policeman Nelson with the responsibility for the accident was ordered to appear in Berlin town court Tuesday evening on a reckless driving charge.

Mrs. Ralph Pagliuca, of New Haven, wife of one of those involved in the crash, sustained lacerations from broken glass, which necessitated her removal to the Meriden hospital. She was reported there as slightly injured.

ESCAPED PRISONER WAS RETAKEN IN NEW HAVEN

New Haven, Dec. 7—Charles Brunt, of this city, who escaped from the county jail November 19 after expressing a wish to see his wife, was recaptured here early tonight. The police had received information several days ago that Brunt was hiding here. Tonight they found his wife walking in the street. When questioned she said her husband had forced her from their home and told the police where she had been living. When they approached the house, the police saw Brunt hurrying away. After a chase, he was captured.

Robert Guarino, who, with Joseph Morro, escaped from the jail November 28, was captured Saturday night while asleep in a house in Beach St. The police say they received information regarding his hiding place from a former pal.

CATHOLIC DEMONSTRATION AGAINST PREMIER HERRIOT

Quimper, France, Dec. 7 (By the A. P.).—A great demonstration of protest on the part of the Catholics against Premier Herriot's revival of his anti-clerical campaign brought tens of thousands of Bretons to Quimper today to participate in a procession and to listen to addresses by Bishop Duparo and other churchmen.

In another quarter of the town there was a smaller counter demonstration by anti-clericals.

Squads of mounted gendarms patrolled the streets. Outside the Catholic cathedral a military force was massed, ready for action in case of disorder. The Catholics, however, obeyed the order issued by the bishop that the parade should be carried out in absolute silence, without a single gesture.

HEAVY VOTE IN GENERAL ELECTIONS IN GERMANY

Early Returns Credit the Socialists With Heavy Gains Over the Communists—There Will Be Only a Few Newcomers in the New Reichstag — General Ludendorf Survived the Collapse of the German Fascisti—Nationalists Reelected Tirpitz—Clericals Return Wirth and Marx—Ruth Fischer and Clara Zetkins Were Among the Communists Elected.

Berlin, Dec. 7.—(By the A. P.)—Young in the general elections, which was somewhat sluggish in the morning, took a sudden spurt in the afternoon, bringing the participation in Berlin to 80 per cent. on the qualified voters. For the whole country those casting ballots are estimated at from 70 to 80 per cent.

The Socialists returned Scheidmann, Mueller, Bauer; clericals Fehrenbach, Wirth and Marx, and the people's party statesman.

There will be only a few newcomers in the new reichstag, as the system governing the nomination of candidates in Germany gives the preference to party leaders and former deputies.

The German nationalists re-elected Admiral Von Tirpitz, Prince Otto Von Bismarck, Count Westarp and Oscar Hergt.

General Ludendorff, Albrecht Von Graefe and Count Von Reventlow survived the collapse of the German fascisti and will again afford the liberal parties a target for parliamentary jibes.

Ruth Fischer and Clara Zetkin were among the communists elected.

SEVERAL SHOTS FAILED TO HALT FLEEING MAN

Hartford, Dec. 7.—Several shots fired by State Policeman Robert D. Mackesson tonight failed to stop a man on Jefferson street whom the police believe to be Joseph Lawrence, brother of John Lawrence, who was arrested while [illegible]ering a car reported as stolen which the state policeman was watching. The arrested man said his name was John Lawrence but would give no further information about himself or the man who got away. He was taken to the Hartford police station.

The state police had been searching for the car for several days and locating it today on Jefferson street, Officer Mackesson was detailed to watch it. The two men walked up to the car and started to enter it, but upon seeing the officer, started to run.

The officer was successful catching one of the men but the other eluded him and jumped a negrby fence, escaping to another street. It is not known whether or not he was hit by any of the shots fired by the officer.

BELIEVE W. H. KIMBALL VICTIM OF FOUL PLAY

Rehoboth, Mass., Dec. 7.—An empty wallet discovered during an organized hunt within a yards of the spot where his [illegible]shed-up automobile was found on the night of November 24, gave authorities here reason to fear today that William H. Kimball of this town, 23 years old, athlete and former special student at the Massachusetts Agricultural college at Amherst, who has been missing from home for the past 13 days, was a victim of foul play.

On November 24 he withdrew [illegible] savings from the bank to use [illegible]ending in his old automobile for a new one. When he left home he had about $300 on his person. He left the house at about 8 o'clock in the evening and has not since returned.

Yesterday an organized hunt began and toward the close of the day the wallet, containing nothing but Kimball's driver's license was found.

William C. Reick.

New York, Dec. 7.—William C. Reick, former owner of the New York Sun, Evening Sun and the Journal of Commerce, died here tonight at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Henry S. Stearns, Jr., after an illness which dated from a stroke of paralysis he suffered while in Bermuda in October.

Rev. Joseph J. Prendergast, S. J.

Worcester, Mass., Dec. 7.—Rev. Joseph J. Prendergast, S. J., for the past five years a member of Holy Cross college faculty died today at the college. He was a native of Clinton, Mass. He was ordained to the priesthood in Woodstock, Maryland, by the late Cardinal Gibbons in 1892. He had taught at Fordham university, Washington; St. Peter's college, Jersey City; Loyola college, Baltimore and in Kingston, Jamaica, where he also did missionary work. He was for one year treasurer of the novitiate at Yonkers, N. Y.

TILSON SAYS THAT FEW REPUBLICANS ARE FOR HOLT

Washington, Dec. 7.—The prediction that scarcely any republicans in Connecticut will vote on December 16th for Hamilton Holt for United States senator and that many democrats will be found voting for Hiram Bingham, was made by Representative John Q. Tilson, of New Haven, talking to The Register correspondent yesterday.

Mr. Tilson has been sending out letters to his workers urging them to do everything in their power to see that Bingham received the election. Previous to the opening of congress he put in two days in New Haven working for Bingham in addition to having endorsed his candidacy on the platform of the state convention.

He stated: "Hiram Bingham was nominated for United States senator by the republican convention and he should have the support on election day of every republican in Connecticut. I declared at the convention that I would support Governor Bingham and I wish to reiterate it at this time.

"If there is dissatisfaction among republicans it is not due to anything I have left unsaid or undone.'—New Haven Register.

SEEKING ADDITIONAL HOSPITAL FOR WAR VETS

Hartford, Dec. 7.—An additional hospital for disabled World war veterans, to be located in Connecticut, is to be asked of congress during the present session by the legislative committee of the Disabled Veterans of the World War, according to Dr. George M. Calvert, national chief of staff of the organization, who was in Hartford today in connection with a nation-wide survey of conditions for disabled veterans. The principal need in this section, Dr. Calbert said, is for a hospital to handle "nervous cases" now denied treatment because of lack of facilities, or who are mixed with the insane in state and federal institutions. He praised the work done by the veterans' bureau here and said that Connecticut has the largest per capita number of disabled veterans of any state in the union. Dr. Calvert is blind, being one of the 120 men in the United States forces who lost their sight in action during the war.

WAS LAST SURVIVOR OF LIGHT BRIGADE

Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Dec. 7.—Ellis H. Cutting, believed to have been the last survivor of the Light Brigade on its immortal charge at the Battle of Balaklava in the Crimean war, died here today after being stricken with a paralytic stroke, the second within a month. He was 87 years old.

Mr. Cutting joined the British army when he was 16, and took part in many campaigns.

He suffered a stroke shortly before election but informed attendants the Sunday before election that he wanted to cast an absent ballot for President Coolidge.

YALE UNDERGRADUATES RING FALSE FIRE ALARMS

New Haven, Dec. 7.—An investigation into the undergraduate celebration which brought the city fire apparatus to the Yale university campus three times last night on false alarms, will be started tomorrow by Dean Frederick S. Jones, he announced tonight. The three men, said to be Yale students, who were arrested while attempting to turn in a fourth alarm, will be given a hearing in city court tomorrow morning.

The celebration was in recognition of the election of many men to the Yale fraternities.

PROPOSALS MADE FOR RELIEF OF AGRICULTURE

New York, Dec. 7.—Plans for the establishment of a farmer-to-consumer league, a national, non-partisan association for the relief of agriculture through co-operative marketing, were announced today by a temporary organization committee. Members of the league will be pledged to help farmers to secure farm relief legislation at the present session of congress and to expose the alleged opposition of middlemen, who, according to leaders of the movement, intend to block the passage of any bill providing for co-operative national farm marketing by the farmers themselves.

SLOOP RAN AGROUND ON PENFIELD REEF

Fairfield, Dec. 7.—The sloop Minnie Belle, of Edgewater, N. J., which ran aground on Penfield reef at 10 o'clock this morning was able to clear itself on the high tide tonight. The vessel was left [illegible] and dry on the [illegible] after grounding, and federal agents and other officers visited the craft, following reports of alleged rum-running activities, but they were unable to find any appearances of illicit business.

Telephone 1131
Office Hours: 9:30 to 12 m.; 1:30 to 6 p. m.

Willimantic lodge, No. 1211, B. P. O. E., held its annual lodge of sorrow Sunday afternoon at three o'clock, in Odd Fellows' hall, with a fine attendance. Attorney John C. Blackhall, of Hartford, delivered an eloquent oration. Under the direction of Charles N. C. Wheeler, the B. P. O. E. band rendered several selections, including dirges. Vocal numbers were by The Elks' Double Quartet, John W. Keirans and O. Chartier, first tenors; Michael J. Farrell and Harry Lester, second tenors; J. Archambeault and William A. Costello, first basses and Harry W. Standish and Arthur J. Roy, second basses. The programme as carried out was: March, Vigor-in Ardius, Fulton, introducing the hymn To the Holy Name of His Eminence, William Cardinal O'Connell; Elks' Double Quartet; selection from Maritana, Wallace; vocal solo, Arthur J. Roy, Mrs. M. J. Farrell, accompanist; oration by Hon. John C. Blackhall; march, Introductor, Chopin; vocal solo, Michael J. Farrell, with Mrs. Farrell as accompanist; selection from Atlantis, V. F. Safranek; Elks' Double Quartet; Dismissal March, Absent Brothers, arranged by C. N. C. Wheeler. Nelson A. Daniels was chairman of the committee of arrangements and was assisted by J. B. Riordan, Albert J. Fournier, Roland B. Jordan and M. E. Sullivan.

Although bleeding from a jagged wound on his neck, caused by broken glass from his wrecked car, Samuel M. Herbert, 38, of 216 riverway street, Boston, a member of the firm of the Herbert Date Company of Boston, refused to be taken to the hospital and resumed his journey in a hired machine, shortly after the accident which caused his injuries. Herbert was on his way to Danielson in a Dodge coupe which skidded and crashed into the embankment of the Danielson-Willimantic state highway, on a curve near Sherman's station. The machine slid on thin ice and met a similar fate as have a number of other cars which have figured in accidents at this curve of late. Mr. Herbert was thrown against the side of the car with force and his head crashed through one of the windows of the coupe. The glass cut his neck narrowly missing the jugular vein. The Boston man was fast weakening from loss of blood when another motorist arrived and took him to the Sherman filling station. Dr. Charles A. Jenkins of this city was summoned and upon his arrival he advised Herbert to go to St. Joseph's hospital, but the injured man declined. He was taken to the physician's office here after which he hired a public service car to take him to New London where he boarded a train for Boston. The coupe was hauled to a Hampton garage for repairs.

The funeral of Joseph Mordus was held from the home of his parents in Mansfield City at 10:15 o'clock Saturday morning. High mass of the Holy Angels was sung at St. Joseph's church in this city by Rev. Paul Bartlewski. Mrs. Edmund R. Portelance was at the organ, and Miss Minica McKeon sang the solos. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery where Rev. Father Bartlewski read the committal service. The bearers were May and Sophie Golick and Helen and Jeanette Sledjick of Mansfield City.

The tangled case of Max Scheinmann, charged with breach of the peace was resumed in police court on Saturday morning and a similar charge was made against the complainant, Mrs. Celia Chasen of Union street. A continuance was asked for on behalf of Mrs. Chasen, but the court elected to have both defendants tried together. The seed of the trouble was an exchange of words between the two people involved, in a meeting room of the Hebrew synagogue on Bank street October 31st, last. Mrs. Chesen claimed that Scheinmann called her a "Bumberski" which in Yiddish means a woman who would do anything that was wrong.

Joseph Peck, who was judge at a meeting of the arbitration board of the synagogue society, by which Scheinmann was fined for breach of the peace, testified that he was a witness to the happenings on the night of October 31. A number of the members of the synagogue, including the two defendants had been talking and when Mrs. Chasen made reference to a widow in town who had been unfairly treated in a business deal by Scheinmann, the latter called to his wife to come away with him and not to talking to those "bums." Peck said that the remark was not directed personally to Mrs. Chasen. Bumberski, he said, carried the same meaning as the American word bum. Following a short argument by Prosecuting Attorney Harvey, Judge Foss found both of the accused not guilty.

The funeral service for James Kirkpatrick was held at his home in South Coventry Sunday afternoon at 2:15 o'clock. Services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Pickop. Burial was in the Nathan Hale cemetery. Arrangements were by Avary and Van Zandt.

Dan Cupid's arrow only struck true in ten cases during October, according to the vital statistics for that period on file at the office of Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton. The list:

6—Donat Lussier and Irene Jolie, by Rev. J. J. Papillon.

7—Marvin W. Hall and Janeliah R. Stearns, by Rev. A. S. Muirhead.

18—Urban Dauplaise (Chicopee, Mass.) and Jeanne Parrott (Chicopee, Mass.), by Justice of the Peace Frank H. Foss.

27—Ferdinand Warren King and Lucie Ann Way, by Rev. F. F. Foshay.

Another continuance was ordered by Justice of the Peace George H. Andrews, of Mansfield town court, in the case of Timothy Costello of Eagleville, charged with reckless driving. E. Abraham Kusnetz of South Coventry, who was badly injured one week ago Saturday night, when his wagon was struck by a car operated by the accused, is a patient at St. Joseph's hospital and the authorities are awaiting developments in his condition. Kusnetz sustained several fractured ribs and a lacerated scalp. Shortly after the accident he was taken to the hospital by Dr. Ottenheimer for treatment but he left the institution against the physician's orders. The next day he was again taken to the hospital and compelled to remain.

Captain Dr. W. P. S. Keating, friend of all veterans, has a willing hand to assist ex-service men to fill out bonus application blanks which must be filed with the government within a few days.

Only four of the thirteen members of Francis S. Long post, No. 30, G. A. R., were present at the semi-monthly meeting Saturday afternoon, the remainder being confined to their homes with colds and grip. Present were Commander A. P. Benner, James Haggerty, Adam Dunts and George Herrick. The last named is to celebrate his 90th birthday in January but gave a fine account of what he saw and did during a recent three weeks' visit in New York.

The various town and city departments of the town building were thrown open to a distinguished visitor Saturday in the person of Hamilton Holt, democratic candidate for United States senator and strong advocate of international peace.

Care owned and operated by Henry Monast, of this city, and Donald Gaylord, of Hartford collided at the corner of Windham and Main streets; shortly after noon Saturday causing slight damage to both machines. A report was made to the police and the drivers agreed to a settlement of damages.

At the Card Home for the Aged, the King's Daughters held a fine meeting recently when the women of the home whcare members entertained the circle.

Physical Director Leroy A. Dissinger of the Y. M. C. A., supervised a hare and hound race Saturday morning for the boys' department of the L. Smith, Burton and Mullen were the hounds and the remainder of the class were hares.

Rabbit hunting is going to be a popular sport hereabouts as soon as the ground becomes covered with a light snow. It is reported that there are plenty of cottontails in this section.

Funeral services for Miss Theresa Eaton were held at the Mansfield Center Congregational church Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. T. Hawthorne Jones officiated. Burial was in the Mansfield Center cemetery. Avery & VanZandt were in charge of the arrangements.

At 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon, funeral services for Herbert Bebbington were held at his home in Ashford. Burial was in the South cemetery, Ashford. Arrangements were by Avery & VanZandt.

Mrs. Mathilda Newhall of Hartford has assumed her duties as assistant matron at the Card Home, Pleasant street.

The third day of the Christmas bazaar and trade exhibit in the armory, under auspices of the Methodist Episcopal church was well attended. In the afternoon the entertainment consisted of radio concerts and three reels of motion pictures. In the evening a one-act comedy, Joint Owners in Spain, by Alice Brown, was given by members of the High School Dramatic club.

Considering the weather, there was very good attendance at the production in Hebron Friday of Pygamlion and Galatea. Sir William S. Gilbert's three-act comedy of the classic story of Pygmalion, the Greek sculptor, whose statue suddenly came to life. The play was given by the State Players under the auspices of St. Peter's school. The cast included Joseph Connor as Mimos, Pygmalion's slave; Carl Ajello as Agesimos, slave to Cerysos; Rudolph Billips as Pygmalion, the sculptor; Irene Ellis, as Cynisca, his wife; Myrine, sister to Pygmalion Madeline Wheeler; Mr. Tilley as Leucippe, a soldier; Galatea, the animated statue, Phillys Smith; and Chrysos, a patron of art, Oscar D'Esopo.

MANSFIELD CHILDREN HURT WHEN CAR OVERTURNED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, Dec. 7.—Two children of Arthur Mott of Mansfield were slightly hurt and the father and other members of the family escaped serious injury by a narrow margin, shortly after 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon when the Ford car in which they were riding suddenly overturned near Brown avenue on the Coventry road. Mr. Mott, who was operating the machine, could not give any explanation of the accident other than that something seemed to have gone wrong with the steering apparatus. The two children were taken to St. Joseph's hospital for treatment and later were returned to their home. A report of the accident was made to the police department.

HANS EBELL'S RECITAL DELIGHTS LARGE AUDIENCE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, Dec. 7.—Hans Ebell, head of the piano department of the Boston Conservatory of Music, gave the first in a series of three piano recitals in the High school auditorium Sunday afternoon. There were a large number in attendance. The programme was a popular one, specially arranged by Mr. Ebell to form the first of the sequence. He played from Beethoven's Sonata No. 8 in C minor, Allegro molto e con brio. Adagio molto and prestissimo. From Mendelssohn's Songs Without Words, No. 1, Andante con moto, No. 29—Venetian Boat Song, and No. 17—Agitato. From Schumann, Novelette No. 2: Presto con bravura, from his Childhood Scenes: About Strange Lands and People Curious Story, Catch Me If You Can, Entreating Child, Contentedness, Important Event, Dreaming, by the Fireside, The Knights of the Hobby Horse, Almost Too Serious, Frightening, Child Falling Asleep and The Poet Speaks. The third part of the program comprised Doctor Gradus ad Parnassum by Debussy, Petite Valse, by Henseit, Melodie and Prelude in G Minor from Rachmaninoff, the artist giving in conclusion a waltz from Faust (Gounod-Liszt). The audience was very attentive and very appreciative. Mr. Ebell responded to two encores, playing Waltz in d-flat minor by Chopin and by special request, his own Polka. Rachmaninoff's brilliant "Prelude" was especially well received. The 13 little scenes from childhood Mr. Ebell gave with a very great simplicity and poignance, but it was the waltz from Faust that thrilled his auditors, the applause ringing through the whole building. The Polka, his own composition, with which he responded to the second encore was short, original in construction, and brilliantly executed.

Mr. Ebell says an American audience is not like a European audience, boisterous with delight, but is fully as appreciative. The people in Europe applaud more, but the people in America may be feeling more. They respond to the personal tone and to the personality of the player.

JEWETT CITY

The Christmas committees appointed on Sunday at the Baptist Sunday school were: Programme committee, Mabel Frink, Winifred Scates, Florence Quimby and Ellen Prior; committee to procure the tree, D. L. Phillips' class of boys and on decorating the tree, Mrs. G. H. Prior's class of girls. The teachers are the purchasing committee. The exercises will be held Christmas eve.

Dorcas Circle of The King's Daughters is to meet at Miss Beatrice Read's Tuesday evening.

A box social was held at the last meeting of Pachaug Grange, No. 96, during the refreshment period. William McNicol acted as auctioneer and a good sum was realized. A Christmas programme will be given at the next meeting, the programme, under the direction of Mrs. Idella Babcock. There will be a Christmas tree and all have been asked to bring gifts not exceeding ten cents in price. It is expected that the new furnace will be in and ready for use at that time.

Mrs. R. F. Cheney has returned from Jamaica, Vt., where she went to spend Thanksgiving with her mother. During her stay her mother became seriously ill and died.

Grayson Young and family have moved to Packerville, where they have leased the Packer farm for three years.

Golden Rule Sunday was observed in the Baptist Sunday school Sunday. Mrs. G. H. Prior gave a talk about the Near East dinner which she attended recently in New York, and a collection of thirteen dollars was received.

JEPTHA G. BILL DIES AT THE AGE OF 101

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Jewett City, Dec. 7.—Jephtha Geer Bill, 101, a native of Griswold, died Friday at the home of his son, Dr. Benjamin J. Bill at Genoa, City, Wisconsin. Mr. Bill was born Sept. 7, 1823, in Griswold, the son of Elisha Satterlee and Olivet Geer Bill. He spent his early years on the home farm, and attended the common schools of the neighborhood, and formed intellectual tastes which continued through his long life. He lived there until he was 25. February 15, 1848, he married Prudence Powers Benjamin. She died in 1896. Shortly after his marriage the couple settled on the old Benjamin place, a 70-acre farm, to which he added from time to time by large purchases, so that at one time he owned two hundred and fifty acres in the town of Griswold. The farm is now owned by Ransom G. Young. He also purchased the Hibbard Brown farm of two hundred acres in the town of Preston, which he sold late in life. He was both progressive and practical in his farming, and his properties yield large incomes.

Bill was prominent in town affairs in the prime of his life. His public record was marked by the highest integrity, and remarkable executive ability. For many years he served his community as justice of the peace, and when called upon to settle estates and attend to legal matters, performed the duties with the expertness of an able lawyer.

At the close of the Civil war, he began serving on the board of selectmen and for eight years continued in office, most of the time as chairman. That at the beginning of his service the town was burdened with a debt of $38,000 which was entirely cleared during his term of office, is a lasting proof of his ability as a financier. As a republican, he always exerted a wide influence in politics, and in 1870 represented the town in the state legislature, running far ahead of his ticket at the election.

He became a member of the Methodist church at Bethel (Glasco) at the age of 12. He acted as class leader, steward, Sunday school worker and assisted in all charitable and benevolent enterprises. For nearly seven years he has lived with his son in Wisconsin. After he was 90 he often went from Connecticut to Wisconsin to visit his son retaining great vigor until within a few years.

Only one of his three children is living, Dr. B. J. Bill. There are eight grandchildren, Benjamin, Hattie, Ann, Kenneth, Ransom and Francis, living in the west, and Laura Young, of New Haven, and Benjamin Young of Northampton, Mass. There are several great grandchildren.

Mr. Bill was one of 17 children. A half-sister, Mrs. Anginett Richmond of Greeneville, and a half-brother, Nelson, of Lynn, Mass., survive Mr. Bill. For years Mr. Bill's father, Elisha Bill kept the toll gate on the turnpike road at Bethel. It is a coincidence that Mrs. Jepthah Bill's great-uncle, Abiel Benjamin, lived to be 104 years old.

Mr. Bill will be buried in Griswold.

REPORT SHOWS IMMIGRATION HAS DOUBLED SINCE 1922

Washington, Dec. 7.—Immigration into the United States has more than doubled since 1922, the bureau of immigration declared today in its annual report to the secretary of labor. The figure increased from 522,919 in 1923 to 706,896 in 1924.

The increase fav principally due, the report showed, to the greater number om immigrants coming from European countries. Immigration from Turkey and southern and eastern Europe decreased from nearly a million in 1922, to 150,000 in 1924.

The principal increases were shown as follows: From England, Scotland and Wales, from 25,123 in 1922 to 59,340 in 1924; Ireland 10,579 to 17,111; Germany, 17,931 to 75,091; Scandinavian countries, 14,625 to 35,577; British North America, 46,810 to 200,690, and Mexico 19,551 to 89,336.

Under the quota limit law, the report stated, so-called "birds of passage" have practically disappeared from the immigration movement.

"For a long period prior to the World war," the report said, "the number of aliens leaving the United States was fully one-third as great as the number admitted, but the exodus declined rapidly during the three years when the quota law was in operation until in the last year only 76,789 aliens departed compared with 706,896 admitted."

RECOMMENDATION MADE ON TAXATION OF PROPERTY

Washington, Dec. 7.—Taxation of all property transferred by the owner within two years prior to his death under estate tax rates is among recommendations made to the senate committee investigating administration of the internal revenue bureau.

In a statement reviewing the committees investigation of certain estate tax cases acted upon by the bureau Chairman Couzens said today this and another recommendation, fixing an age limit after which all transfers of property would be taxable under this law, had been made to the committee.

Instances were cited by Senator Couzens as showing that the government lost considerable taxes because of the difficulty in interpreting the present law, which provides for taxation of transfers of property under estate tax rates when made "in contemplation of death."

Chairman Couzens said although that Nelson T. Hart, solicitor for the bureau, had told the committee the newly created gift tax would aid in enforcement of the estate tax provisions through checking losses by gifts. The gift tax was denounced by the administration when under discussion at the last session of congress.

NEW ENGLAND THRIFTIEST SECTION OF THE COUNTRY

New York, Dec. 7.—New England is the thriftiest section of the country, the Middle Atlantic group of states is its closest competitor and the south has made the greatest relative advance in savings, a report covering the last 13 years made public today by the American Bankers' association reveals.

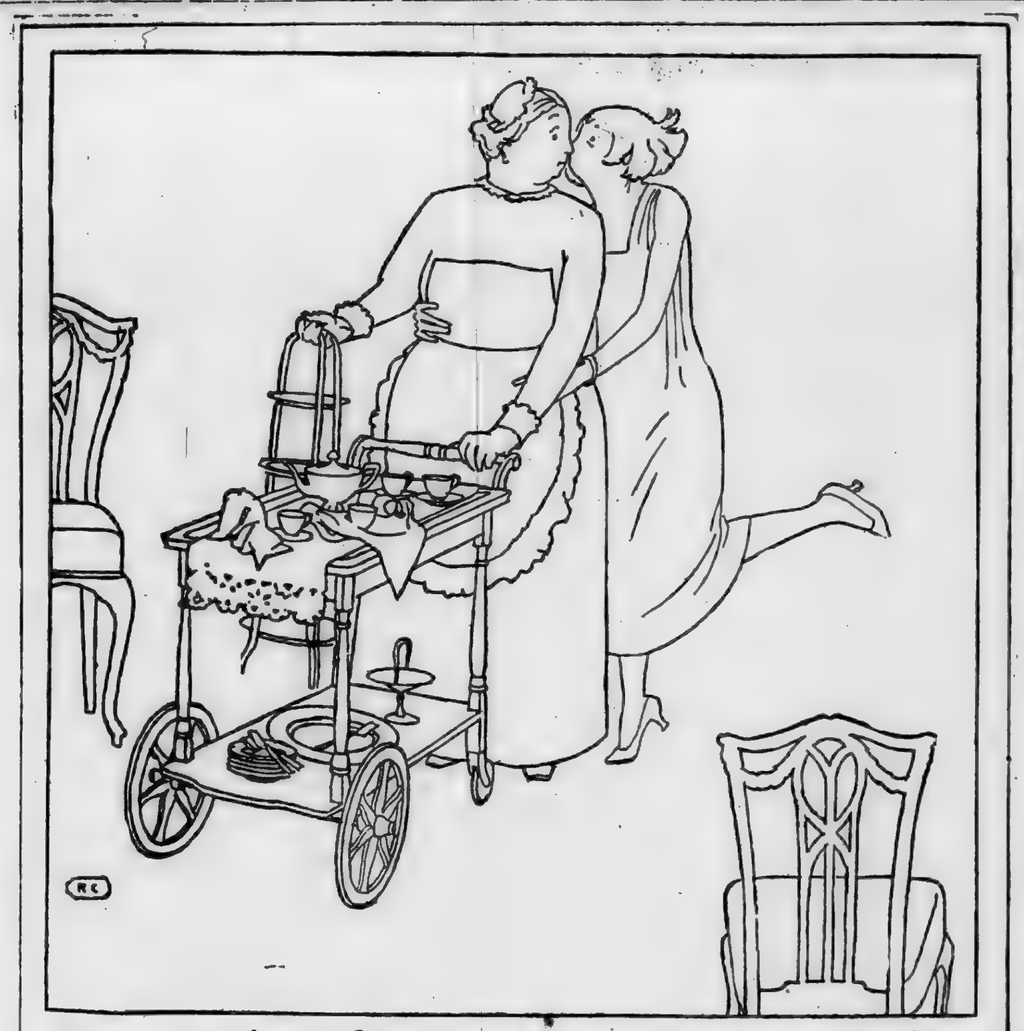
The data, shows that per capita savings deposit in New England this year was $443; Middle Atlantic $305; Pacific, $240; East Central, $168; West Central $87 and Southern $52.

The south in the 12 years considered in the report has advanced 138 per cent, its per capita savings in 1912 being only $18.

The advance in other section was: New England, from $245 to $443; Middle Atlantic from $151 to $305, Pacific from $101 to $240; East Central from $80 to $168, and the west Centrad from $40 to $87.

DEPLORE ATTACK ON THREE MEMBERS TRINITY FACULTY

Hartford, Dec. 7.—The Trinity College trustees at their session at the college yesterday deplored the attack made by a group of New York alumni upon three members of the faculty and issued a statement to the alumni and undergraduates of the college in which they asserted that they had the utmost confidence in the loyalty of the entire faculty. No petition for the removal of Professors Frank C. Babbitt, Arthur Adams or Horace C. Swan was received from the New York group as had been expected, but the trustees took cognizance of the criticism of them as alleged obstructionists. President Remsen B. Ogilby also issued a statement in which he classed the three among his "ablest counselors."



Snowdrift · · · · for making cake

when the success of the "party" depends on everything being as nice as nice can be!

Snowdrift is made by the Wesson Oil people out of oil as good as fine salad oil—hardened and whipped into a creamy white fat—and packed in an airtight can to keep it as sweet and fresh as the day it was made. There couldn't be anything nicer for making cake, biscuit or pie crust or for frying.

GROWTH OF DIVORCE AND MENACE OF AGNOSTICISM

New York, Dec. 7.—Continued growth of the divorce rate is leading to the ultimate dissolution of the home in the United States, and the menace of agnosticism is the great peril of the Christian church today, declared Dr. Clarence Edward McCartney, of Philadelphia, moderator of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church, in a sermon at the Fourth Presbyterian church tonight.

"By the middle of the present century, if the present rate is maintained," Dr. McCartney said, "one of four marriages will end in the divorce courts, and by the end of the century one in two. But after we have progressed to that point of advancement and emancipation, what is to take the place of the home? * * * Has any emancipated thinker come forward with a suitable substitute for the home."

SALESMAN MORTALLY WOUNDED BY BANDITS

New York, Dec. 7.—Leroy Palmer, a salesman, was mortally wounded early this morning when three armed men attempted to hold-up a group of card players in a West Side garage and opened fire when there was a show of resistance.

Shortly afterwards detectives captured two men, identified by witnesses as the assailants, after a revolver battle on the roof of a tenement house. A third man fled down a fire escape, after an exchange of shots and was not captured.

The prisoners are Joseph Gaynor, 21, of New York, and Thomas Kerney, 28, of Yonkers. Gaynor the police say, admits he is the brother of "Angelface" Gaynor, second story man now serving a sentence in jail. Both prisoners are said to have police records.

WOMEN WIN HONORS AT LIVESTOCK EXPOSITION

Chicago, Dec. 7.—(By the A. P.—Mrs. Joseph Frantz of Mt. Cory, Ohio, breeder of blue blood Galloway cattle, is one of the first women breeders to win top honors in the International Livestock Exposition.

In the final judging of the silver jubilee show today entries from Mrs. Frantz's herds took one grand championship and half a dozen blue ribbons along with several seconds for breeding Galloways of various grades and ages.

Iowa stock owned by Dubes and Olson, Aurelia, won first honors today in the breeding shorthorn class and exhibits from Indiana, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois and Morrioru took the big prizes in other classes of cattle, shee and horses.

The best two bulls in the Galloway competition were entered by Mrs. Frantz, second award going to C. E. Tolley, Meade, Kansas, and third to J. W. Larabee and Sons, Earlville, Ill.

Ford Mercer, 17 year old high school boy from Wellston, Okla., who was selected to receive the Moses trophy of the national boys and girls club for meritorious community leadership and general farming ability, is one of 14 children.

He triumphed over contestants for the honor from 41 states and two Canadian provinces. Many factors contributed to his success but the largest single point score was for having organized his county, through his club last summer to wage a fight against grasshoppers.

Fords record card reveals that his home is a three room cottage and that neither his mother nor father could read or write before he started to school.

PROGRESS BY CONGRESS FIRST WEEK OF SESSION

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—Although much of its time was taken up with the usual opening formalities, congress was able to accomplish a fair amount of work in the initial week of its short session.

Gaps in its organization were filled; the deficiency appropriation bill which came over from the last session was passed and the house got in position to pass and send to the senate early this week the first of the more than a dozen annual supply measures—the interior department appropriation bill.

As soon as this measure is out of the way, the house will turn to consideration of the agriculture appropriation bill under a plan of republican leaders to have three of the supply measures in the hands of the senate before the Christmas recess. The third to be taken up will be the treasury-post office department measure.

The senate will resume debate tomorrow on the Muscle Shoals question with the leaders hopeful that the end of this long controversy is in sight through administration approval with amendments of the Underwood bill for lease, sale or government operation of the project.

ACCIDENTALLY SHOT HIS SISTER WITH NEW RIFLE

Winsted, Conn., Dec. 7.—While admiring a new rifle which his father had purchased for him yesterday as a Christmas gift, Edward, the 13 year old son of Frank Keefe, today shot his seven year old sister, Mary. The little girl entered the room as her brother was looking over his present, and in a playful way said: "Shoot me, Eddie." The boy, thinking the rifle was unloaded, pointed it as his sister and pulled the trigger. The bullet entered the girl's body just below the heart. Unless complications follow, according to physicians, the girl will recover.

LAWYER KILLED WHEN THROWN FROM N. H. TRAIN

Rye, N. Y., Dec. 7.—Albert Desilver, 35, a Brooklyn lawyer, was killed when he was thrown from a New Haven express train while it was passing the Rye station today. His wife and son, who were aboard the train, were unaware of the accident until they reached New Haven.

The Desilvers had boarded the train in New York and as it was approaching Rye, Desilva left his seat to go to the smoking car. While he was between two cars, the train turned a curve and he was hurled to the station platform.

PRIESTS WERE CAPTURED BY BRIGANDS IN CHINA

Des Moines, Dec. 7.—Father Eugene Creegan of Chicago, head of the parsionist Order of Monks, announced here tonight the receipts of the following cablegram from Chenfu Chow, China. Relating the capture of a group of Catholic priests by Chinese brigands:

CHAPMAN HAS SHOT ANOTHER POLICEMAN

Mount Vernon, N. Y., Dec. 7.—Rowland Bennett, a member of the Mount Vernon police force, who was shot and robbed of his revolver by a bandit while patrolling his beat last night, today identified the robber from photographs of criminals at headquarters as Gerald Chapman, notorious mail robber and escaped convict who has been hunted by police throughout the east as a suspected murderer.

Chapman is accused of shooting and killing a patrolman in an attempted robery of a New Britain, Conn., department store on October 12, the police said.

Convicted of participating in a $1,500,000 mail truck robbery in New York in 1921, Chapman was sentenced to serve 25 years in Atlanta penitentiary. He made good a daring escape in March, 1923, after serving six months of his sentence. Captured after a pistol fight with a posse, he again escaped a few days later from a hospital in Athens, Ga.

SCHOONER AND SLOOP AGROUND AND ABANDONED

Nantucket, Mass., Dec. 7—The two-masted schoner Evelyn and Ralph and the sloop Inez which ran aground three miles west of Tom Nevers head on this island early yesterday, were abandoned as total losses today after the coast guard cutter Tampa had failed to salvage the Inez. Only 15 feet of the stern of the Evelyn and Ralph remained above water today, the rest of the schooner having been destroyed by fire which swept backward from the forecastle after a stove tipped over as a result of the shock of striking the beach.

Crews of both boats made their way safely to shore although the heavy surf smashed the boat of the Ralph, plunging the men into the water.

The boats were members of a fleet of Nantucket fishing craft returning with catches from Georges Banks. Driven by a favoring wind through a heavy, rolling sea, the two boats covered their return trip in unusually rapid time and before the crew were aware of the proximity of the coast, had piled on the shore. The Evelyn and Ralph took fire at once and burned throughout the day.

Together the boats had cargoes of some 46,000 pounds of fish. The vessels were valued at $27,000 and the cargoes at current market prices, at approximately $13,000.

DOROTHY M. HILLMAN IS GOING BACK WEST

While neither the bride nor her mother would comment on the possibility of a reconciliation, it was learned that a telegram had been sent to young Hillman telling him that "Dorothy and her mother were coming home."

Mrs. Hillman decided to come out of hiding, it was said, when she learned that her mother had been prostrated at the home of a relative here as a result of anxiety incident to the daughter's flight.

MOTORMAN FATALLY INJURED IN ACCIDENT

New Haven, Dec. 7—William Jacques, motorman, who was injured when a trolley car collided with a motor truck in Orange street, West Haven, last Tuesday night, died today. Death was due to a fractured skull. Jacques, who was 59 years old, had been employed by the Connecticut company for fourteen years. This was his first accident. He leaves a wife and six children.

SURGEONS, PHYSICIANS, DENTISTS USE WONDERFUL NEW ANTISEPTIC

We are calling the attention of the good people of Norwich and vicinity to Kojene, the most powerful, non-poisonous, non-alcoholic, non-irritating Antiseptic known.

In this newspaper we will continue to tell the people, and especially the ailing people, to whom Kojene will prove a blessing, just exactly what physical ills it will help, and in spite of our enthusiasm for this wonderful antiseptic will stick to the truth in every statement we make.

We will not exaggerate—although some of the things we write may seem exaggerated.

Nothing equals Kojene for irrigation of the antrum; for Pyorrhea and Gingivitus; for Stomatitis, Trench Mouth, pus pockets and all cases of infection.

Kojene, so we will tell more people who need it, is four times as powerful as an antiseptic than Carbolic Acid. It is much more powerful than poisonous bichoride of mercury, and will not burn or even irritate the tenderest membrane.

We will tell the readers of this paper of its wonderful and quickly effective action in Tonsilitis and sore throat; of how completely it drives out the offensive mucus of catarrh and thoroughly cleans the entire nasal tract.

We will tell them of its remarkable success in the treatment of cankers in the mouth and how quickly it succeeds when used for Eczema, itching skin, ulcers, boils and skin eruptions.

And last but by no means least, we will tell them that as a germ destroying mouth wash it is as far ahead of the highly flavored and bubbling kind as daylight is to candlelight and has no nasty, disagreeable taste.

It is seventy-five times as powerful as the weak kinds whose popularity seems to lie in their weakness and the ignorance of those who use them.

A sixty cent bottle (6 ounces) of Kojene, will make one-half gallon of a stronger, better and more efficient mouth wash than the high priced doubtful ones you buy ready made.

Medical men like to join in any effort to drive menacing poisons from the home and give their support to any great and worthy preparation that destroys pernicious germs and helps humanity—that is just what Kojene does.

In six ounce bottles at Lee & Osgood's and every progressive druggest in American. 60c with the understanding that money will be returned if any purchasee is dissatisfied. Complete and simple directions for treating various ailments with each bottle.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

A warning to citizens: It may not have occurred to you that you have not paid your personal tax in the town of Killingly this year, but if you have not there are some bad hours just ahead of you. There have been many such warnings, it has been said any number of times that court action against those who have not paid. Some heeded these warnings and settled the account with the personal tax collector. Others paid no attention to it or said "I will do it tomorrow"—and then forgot it. Others, who never intend to pay if they can avoid it, just continued to sit tight and hold their hands, as it were.

For all the delinquents the day of judgment is at hand, for be it known that Prosecuting Attorney Arthur G. Bill is making ready to take court action against between 300 and 400 Killingly people who are liable to pay a personal tax and have not done so, all warnings notwithstanding. Court proceedings are to begin this week.

It is said to be a big job for the court officials, but they are going through with it. People who have never been in court before are to be haled before the town tribunal and not only made to pay what they owe the town for personal taxes, but also the court costs, and these probably will pay as much in having their experience as they would in paying a dozen years's personal taxes. In addition they will get a court record out of it.

Having exhausted every effort to get payments through ordinary channels, Attorney Louis A. Woisard, personal tax collector, conferred with the selectmen and reached the agreement that the unpaid accounts should be turned over to the town court to collect. The court will get the money. There is no doubt about that.

It was stated Sunday that a special form is being printed for the use of the prosecuting attorney in handling the several hundred special cases that will come before the court. Prosecutions will begin this week. There will be no escape from payment on the part of those summoned to court unless they can establish that they are illegally assessed.

Both men and women will figure in the court proceedings for women are liable to pay personal taxes these days as well as men. It is with regret that the procedure now to be followed has been decided upon by the town officials, but there does not appear any other way of getting the money. The money is due the town and that being the case, the town is entitled to it.

So all of the town of Killingly may preparing for some howling during this Christmas holiday season. There is going to be a lot of kicking, no doubt, and scores of excuses, but none will avail. The town has decided to collect what is coming to it.

The body of Comfort Starr, 72, was brought here from New York, Saturday, in charge of Undertaker Louis E. Kennedy, at whose undertaking rooms it remained over Sunday. Mr. Burlingame died at the Eye and Ear hospital in New York, following a surgical operation. He had been in failing health for some time, but his relatives and friends in Brooklyn and Canterbury and in this immediate vicinity were surprised to learn of his death.

Mr. Burlingame had been absent from this territory for about a score of years, but is remembered hereabouts as one of the most astute business men this county has produced in a generation. He was born in Canterbury, a son of Samuel and Judith Hyde Hopkins and spent his boyhood and youthful days in his native town. He worked out, as the practice was in those bygone days, after he had reached the age of availability for farm work, but continued his studies and at the age of 20 was teaching school in the Allen hill section of the town of Brooklyn, a town in the affairs of which he was destined to have a prominent part in succeeding years.

Eventually he became interested in banking and it was while following this calling that he became best known to the people of the town of Killingly. A score of years ago Mr. Burlingame took up his residence in New York and he has since been engaged there as a broker. The success that characterized his activities hereabouts was even more marked during his New York residence.

In politics Mr. Burlingame was a democrat. While a resident of Brooklyn he took a special interest in political affairs and so closely did he keep in touch with thought along political lines over there that it was said with large measure of truth that he knew in advance of election how about everyone would vote on election day. This simply was characteristic of his thoroughness in dealing with any subject that was of interest to him.

Mr. Burlingame was unmarried.

Sunday morning at the home of her sister, Mrs. Lewis O. Crowell on South street the death of Miss Mahala Fuller occurred. Miss Fuller was born in Edmunson, N. Y., October 1, 1836, a daughter of William and Rebekah Goodspeed Fuller. In addition to her sister, Miss Fuller leaves a brother, Elbert Fuller of Cornell, N. Y.

Many in Danielson have the grip, have had it, or are trying to have it. In so far as this is concerned, this is more than an ordinary news item. Numbers of the patients will tell you that being hit with an automobile, being set afire and getting a beating from a champion puncher are just commonplace troubles, as compared with having a session with the poor health tyrant that is classified as grip. He is wholly merciless this season and as hard to be rid of as a book agent. High temperatures, vomiting, pains in the head and rheumatism are some of the unpleasant things visited upon those who fall before the attack. Most of the patients experience all of these troubles.

Dr. S. B. Overlock was driving round Sunday in the 1925 model Buick coupe stolen from in front of the post office Friday night and which was recovered Saturday in Lawrence, Mass. The car had been abandoned on a Lawrence street. Two strangers who were in the vicinity and were acting suspiciously were questioned by the police, but there was no evidence on which to hold them and the men were discharged. Eugene Brodeur of the Putnam Buick company went to Lawrence and drove the car back. It was not injured nor marred in any way. As the car had been driven but a few weeks and as no theft insurance was carried on it, Dr. Overlock feels very much ahead of the game.

Joseph Plessis returned yesterday from Worcester where he had been under observation at St. Vincent's hospital for four weeks and is much improved in health. He is personal tax collector for the town of Putnam.

Dwight C. Mills, 90, who died Friday at Naugatuck, for a time had business associations with one of the local textile mills. He is said to have been the oldest manufacturer of woolens in New England.

A part of Grove street is being dug up in order to replace a section of a ten inch water main practically destroyed by electrolysis. A peculiar thing is that the adjoining sections at either end are apparently intact, almost as good as when laid.

Mrs. Doughty, widow of Jerome Doughty, and mother-in-law of Dr. Harry A. Houghton, is critically ill at the home of her daughter in Danielson.

If present plans mature, Putnam Rotary club will have a Rotary club instituted at Rockville before the end of the month. The approach of the holiday season may delay this until after New Year's, but Jake Albert, who is the liason official between the two towns and the existing organization and the proposed one, announces that it is only a matter of a few weeks until the project is consummated.

Attorney J. F. Carpenter is able to be at his desk again, but shows the effect of his two weeks' illness.

Miss Katherine Byrne, vice chairman of the republican state central committee, presided at the meeting of 500 republican women of the state, held at the Allyn House, Thursday to devise plans and formulate a campaign for the election of Hiram Bingham as United States senator. Mr. Bingham made a short address at the meeting in which he outlined his platform.

Merton Ames, son of Warren S. Ames, manager of the Chandler & Morse store, has gone to Palmer, Mass., as a linotype operator. He is a rapid worker at the machine and is careful and conscientious.

O. F. Smith, sub-master at Putnam High school, has been engaged as coach for next year's baseball team.

According to a statement recently issued from the U. S. comptroller's office Connecticut national banks have a business second in volume only to Massachusetts among the New England states, demand deposits totaling $121,052,000, time deposits saving accounts amounting to $65,365,000. This report say that there are 61 national banks in the state and all in good condition. Putnam citizens will accept this as correct now as far as this city is concerned but it would be difficult to get any one here to believe that it was true for some time prior to August of this year.

J. F. Trinder, head of the vocational schools of the state was here Friday and Saturday and visited the industrial exposition. The local state trade school had one of the most interesting and attractive exhibits in the hall, one that will give many people a new idea of the scope of its work and the practical advantages that it offers to boys and girls, to young men and women. E. E. Ellis, superintendent of the Putnam school spent most of Friday and Saturday in explaining the various kinds of trade taught and the free education offered the youth of this section in so many desirable vocations, a technical school training at practically no cost.

It must be lots more fun being a youngster of the age that revels in Santa Claus and his doings than it was a score of years ago. Witness the gorgeous displays of toys for the little people that the stores are showing this season. Santa never had anything like them only a few years back. No gray head living ever owned such an electrically operated railroad train as is awaiting some lucky youngster the coming Christmas. And that there is fascination in such things for older people is attested by the number that stand outside show windows and enjoy with the youngsters of today the exhibits that will feature this and the coming week.

The Service battery basketball team won a score worth having from the Providence Collegians at the state armory Friday evening, 31 to 28. It was one of those games that might have slipped away to the visitors through just a little let-down by the boys of the battery team. In the first half the battery piled up a lead of 22 to 14, and it was well that they did, for in the second half the Collegians made 14 points while the battery was collecting only 9. Gale and William Eaton played especially well for the service battery team, while Smith, at center, was an outstanding player for the visitors.

The Service battery will play again this week, but up to Sunday afternoon the opposition had not been announced.

Judge William Fenner Woodward was a visitor in Hartford Saturday.

Another section of state highway fence over at South Killingly went down Sunday under an impact of an automobile that went out of control. No one was injured.

White figures on a blue background feature the Connecticut automobile registration plates for 1925. Numbers of pairs of them have been received in Danielson.

PUTNAM'S COME-BACK DAY THE BIGGEST KIND OF SUCCESS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Dec. 7.—There were more visitors in Putnam Saturday afternoon and evening than there have been seen here since the celebration in honor of the returned soldiers, five years ago. They came from a wide radius and were interested and surprised at the great variety of products made in Putnam. The affair has proved to be a greater success in every way than the most sanguine of its promotres hoped for. The state armory, where the industrial exhibit and to show were held, was crowded both afternoons, but Saturday night it was packed.

At 8.30 o'clock George L. Padgett, a member of the general committee, made the following brief announcement of the formal opening:

"Four months ago at a public mass meeting at the Victory theatre the duty fell on me to announce the worst financial disaster that Putnam had ever met—the closing of the First National bank, and to ask what action we as citizens should take. The train of losses and misfortunes that followed this bank failure are known to you all.

"I have been asked to perform a much pleasanter mission tonight—to formally declare the opening of this exposition, which is symbolic of the splendid courage and fortitude that our people have displayed during this period, and which has culminated in this celebration. To a man who can explain more fully and more entertainingly the meaning of this, I surrender this place. Ladies and gentlemen, I present to you Ralph C. Jenkins, superintendent of public schools."

Mr. Jenkins made an eloquent address thoroughly appreciated by his hearers. He said in substance:

The general committee in charge of Come-Back day has asked me to tell you something of the meaning and purpose of this celebration. I can do this best by making a comparison between the flag which we all love so well and the spirit of Putnam.

Think of the flag first as a mere physical thing, a strip of red and white bunting, a small square of blue, and in this square scattered a number of stars. To a savage it would have no meaning, a child would be amused by the pretty colors.

But to you and me it is the birth and life of our nation. It calls up visions of embattled farmers at Concord bridge and Lexington, of long line of Union soldiers, of khaki-clad lads in the trenches. It is a thing for veneration. Instinctively when it passes it is "Hats Off, the Flag Goes By."

Think of this celebration first in were dollars and cents. We count the cost of stores decorated with bunting. We see streams of people going into the banks and lines of little children receiving at the tellers' windows the full amount of the money which they deposited in the school savings department of the First National bank. We look at the exhibits in this armory and estimate their worth.

But thingk of it as a spiritual thing. It represents the restored confidence of a community. It symbolizes for us not only a winter at Valley Forge but a glorious Appomattox. It represents us as no longer in the trenches but advancing over the top to a splendid victory. It means that after such a catastrophe as few communities experience in a generation, PUTNAM HAS COME BACK.

And where have we been? Let's not look back into the past. It hurts. Just remember this:

Suddenly, out of a clear sky, Putnam's only commercial bank closed its doors. Temporarily, all was confusion. But then a miracle happened. In spite of the fact that there was no money in sight, a group of enterprising men asked the community for $150,000. Within a week almost $200,000 was pledged. Then there was a delay, but when it came time to collect the pledges, all the necessary money was obtained within ten days. And money was forthcoming for a third bank. I am a school teacher and I teach that two take away one leaves one. But that doesn't apply to Putnam banks. If yo uhave two and take away one the result is three.

What does this mean? Is it a mushroom that grew in the night and will rot in a few days? Is it a rainbow after a shower that will disappear with the dawn? Listen:

A community to be prosperous must have certain natural advantages. Putnam has them. Our health officer tells me that Putnam is remarkably free from disease. We have a healthful climate. We have excellent railroad facilities. We are at the center of a prosperous agricultural area.

And in addition to all that we have developed something which is just as important to a community as climate or railroads—a diversified industry.

Not so many years back, Putnam was a cotton town. If cotton went well, all went well, if not, all went ill. We are still a cotton town to some extent and th eagent of our largest cotton mill tells me that things are looking up in the cotton industry.

But look at all these other industries. There is wool, and there is a bright outlook for the woolen trade. And there is silk, and we're going to have a hosiery plant and monufacture hosiery in Putnam. And there is that new product Rhea and the beginnings of an industry which is successful in Germany and other foreign countries, but which is being tried in Putnam in this country for the first time. And there is fur, with 40 people employed in making fur coats and trimmings, and the strong prospect that there will be many more in another year. And an industry which is making phonograph and other kinds of needles which is growing all the time.

And the Putnam company, which has increased its floor space five times in the past year and which is going to make radiators as well as boilers. Within the past five years this foundry has increased its tonnage more than three times and during the next year will more than double that.

And wholesale flowers and belt and leather goods, and lumber and handles, and machine tools and this wonderful radio industry.

No, it is no rainbow we are chasing. Putnam Has Come Back!

But I don't care how many things we make in Putnam. If Putnam people won't trade at home, we can't have a prosperous community There is altogether too much trading being done out of town. With the bank closed, people went to the surrounding towns to do their banking, and got the habit. But the banks are open again.

The 100 stores co-operating to make this day a success offer to the people of Putnam anything the care to buy.

Patronize your local banks. They can do just as much for you as any bank in New England. Patronize your local nètertainment. No better pictures are shown in the United States than Jake Alpert shows in the Bradley theatre.

Support your local schools. We have as good schools in Putnam as they have anywhere. The buildings are modern, the teachers are experienced. Putnam High school prepares for college and gives a good business training. The State Trade school is second to none anywhere. They are doing a wonderful piece of work. Support them.

Support your churches. You say, "Oh, I can go out in the woods and get more religion than by sitting in a stuffy church and listening to a stuffy sermon," or "we've got a radio now and I can hear a better sermon at home." But what would Putnam be without its churches? And you can't have churches in Putnam unless you do your churching in Putnam any more than you can have stores in Putnam and trade with mail order houses.

What have people been thinking about Putnam? When the bank closed it was a hundred miles away. But I read about Putnam on the front page for days. Our troubles were broadcasted as far south as Florida and as far west as Califronia. A man was in Webster the day after our railroad wreck. He told a man of it. The man said, "I didn't suppose there was anything left in Putnam to wreck."

The papers have commented editorially on our coming back. The good news as well as the bad news is going from coast to coast.

We are experiencing in this community a Second Birth. It is familiar in nature. There is a very beautiful legend that the phoenix, the sacred bird of the Egyptians, being old and weary and spent with life, enters the sacred temple at Heliopolis, lies down upon the sacred fire and is consumed in flames. But from the dead ashes arises a new phoenix, young, virile, eager.

People of Putnam, come, let us worship and bow down before our new phoenix which is the new spirit of Putnam, and help her to "carry on."

MISS M'CAULEY CUSHED BETWEEN TWO CARS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Dec. 7.—Miss Anna McCauley, 30, a resident of Providence, R. I., but who has been employed as a sewer at the Beechmont Worsted Co. for several years, was struck and crushed between two automobiles this afternoon and dangerously if not fatally injured. She was taken to the Day Kimball hospital, where it was found necessary to amputate her leg. She and Evelyn Roberts, who works in the same mill, had gone riding with Florence Roberts of Johnson, R. I., a sister of Miss Roberts, and owner and driver of the car. Coming down School street, the car stalled and the three occupants got out and tried to locate the trouble. This was after dark and the stalled machine showed no lights. Charles Leaters of Putnam, game warden of the county, driving a Ford coupe, came down the grade on School street and did not see the car nor Miss McCauley until almost upon them. He applied the brakes, but the cars were so close together that the girl was caught between them.

WESTERLY

Westerly Lodge, No. 678 Benevolent Protective Order of Elks of Westerly, R. L. Harold S. Barber, exalted ruler, held the annual lodge of sorrow, Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, at the Lodge rooms on High street. The services were in charge of a committee consisting of Al. J. Twomey, A. T. L. Ledwidge and L. C. Purtill.

Mrs. Jacob Catto arrived in Westerly Saturday evening from New York for a lengthy visit with relatives and friends. Mrs. Catto sailed from Genoa, Italy, November 22, on the Italia-American line steamship Colombo, accompanied by Mrs. Theresa Abbiarte and after a rought passage landed in New York Saturday morning. For a period of three years Mrs. Catto has been abroad with her husband and was met in New York by her daughters, Mrs. Rose Parnigoni and Mrs. Mary Fruell, who accompanied their mother on her return to her former home in Westerly.

The members of the minstrel troupe of Grace Methodist Episcopal church choir, about forty, are planning to visit the Masonic Home, Wallingford, Saturday, December 20th to present a pre-Christmas entertainment for those at the home. The majority of the cast are members of Pawcatuck Lodge, No. 90, F. & A. M., of Pawcatuck and many of the Masons will accompany the entertainers on the trip by automobile to Wallingford. A delegation from Hartford is expected to be among the Masonic bretheren in attendance on that day.

Friday evening about 2:30 o'clock, while Mrs. Martha C., wife of S. Eugene Larkin was crossing Canal street near Bannon's she was struck by the automobile of James Demarco of the Watch Hill road, who was proceeding up High and Canal streets at a moderate rate of speed. At the time it was raining hard. Mrs. Larkin was thrown to the ground and sustained minor injuries. Police Officer George H. Champlin directed her removal to the office of Dr. Edwin R. Lewis, where she was treated for her injuries before being taken to her home on Beach St.

Miss Katherine Perry, daughter of Arthur L. Perry, returned to her home in Westerly, Saturday afternoon from Boston, where she has been under treatment for several weeks at the Peter Bent Brigham hospital.

Mrs. Julia Davis returns today (Monday) to her home in Woburn, Mass., after a week end visit with relatives in Pawcatuck. Accompanied by Mrs. Adah Burdick of Pawcatuck, Mrs. Davis will leave her home the first of January for three months' visit at Mount Dory, Florida, before returning north.

Dwight R. Stillman of Westerly and Weekapaug left town Friday for a short visit in New Haven, Sunday, Mr. Stillman left the Elm City to pass the winter months in Daytona, Florida.

George Corey, an employe of the freight department, Westerly station of the New Haven railroad, left Westerly Saturday for New London, where he was joined by his cousin for a visit to New York city. Although Mr. Corey, who is well up in railroad matters, has been in the employ of the railroad for many years, this is his first trip to Gotham, which he left on Sunday to return home.

Horace E. Burdick, of Avondale and Watch Hill, is passing two months in Florida. Writing from Miami, Fla., Mr. Burdick says "Busy town and growing, working night and day on new buildings."

Byron E. Wilcox, son of Judge and Mrs. William A. Wilcox of Pawcatuck, left Atlantic City on the end of the past week, where he has been in the employ of the Western Electric Company in telephone installation, for Birmingham, Ala., At the southern city Mr. Wilcox will have a more advantageous position with the electric company.

Mrs. Carlton Merrill and sister of Peacedale, and Mr. and Mrs. Murray Gates, Jr., of Wakefield, were automobile visitors in Westerly Saturday, guests of relatives and friends.

Miss Marion Young was confined to her home, Hillandale Farm, for several days during the past week by illness.

Stanley S. Livingstone was in Providence Sunday and visited his wife, who has recently undergone an operation in a hospital there.

William Holden who returned to his home in Pawcatuck the first of the week from the Rhode Island hospital in Providence, where he recently underwent an operation, is able to be about.

Frank L. Friend was a business caller in Providence Saturday.

Edwin Barber, Jr., Abial Brown, Robert Freestone, George J. Kemp, Walter F. Thorpe, Antonio Turo, George W. Sanders and John Sullivan were members of a delegation from Harod W. Merrill post, No. 16 of Westerly, in attendance Saturday evening at the Providence Biltmore at a banquet at which the chief speaker was National Commander James A. Drain. There were two hundred diners including representatives from other New England departments, American Legion. For the Rhode Island department, Commander Raymond B. Littlefield presented National Commander Drain a silver-headed gavel.

The funeral of Mrs. Emma Dean Taylor, widow of John A. Taylor, was held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock from her residence, 58 Elm street. The services were in charge of Rev. William F. Williams of Stonington and burial was in River Bend cemetery.

The Westerly Cycle Club basketball team defeated the Danielson players in a rought game Saturday evening at Majestic hall, Coggswell street, Pawcatuck, 29 to 19. Herman A. Driggs was referee.

Police Officer Fred T. Mitchell received Saturday a package of greeting cards, mailed from Providence to a Watch Hill resident, on which a two cent due stamp had been placed, the recipient having turned them over to the officer for investigation. A letter in printed form stated that the sender had lost some of his faculties and took that way of gaining a livelihood. A peculiar feature of the proposition was that the addressee should forward the necessary amount in payment for the cards to a man, giving in his address a general delivery, Connecticut. The matter was called to the attention of Postmaster Thomas Lenihan and is being investigated by the Westerly Police department.

The dance given by members of Battery E, 243rd, R. I., Coast Artillery corp the first of the season by the Battery boys was generally attended at the state armory on Dixon street on Saturday night.

Dr. Alexander B. Briggs of Ashaway was given Saturday evening a fifty year veteran Odd Fellows' jewel, presented by District Deputy F. Earl James, at a regular meeting of Narragansett Lodge, No. 7, I. O. O. F. Dr. Briggs' medal is the third to be conferred on its membership by Narragansett Lodge, the other two being held by Court B. Bliven and B. F. Greene, man, who have also rounded out fifty years of membership. Lunch concluded Saturday evening's program.

Officer George Madison, having returned to the Westerly force after several week's vacation, is detailed to the Pierce street beat, in the Italian section of Westerly.

Judge Frank H. Hinckley of Mystic, was a visitor for a short time in Westerly Sunday morning.

Mrs. Allan L. Thompson, regent of Phebe Greene Ward chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, presided at the meeting recently, when committees for the year were announced as follows:
